20 And the beast was taken and with him the false prophet who wrought signs before him wherewith he seduced them who received the character of the beast and who adored his image. These two were cast alive into the pool of fire burning with brimstone.

21 And the rest were slain by the sword of him that sitteth upon the horse, which proceedeth out of his mouth. And all the birds were filled with their flesh.

† Apoc. 19:10. I fell down...to worship him: [RJMI: This servant of God and brethren of St. John appeared in so glorious a manner that St. John took him to be God and therefore would have given him divine honor had not this servant stopped him by telling him he was but his fellow servant and one of his brethren and thus was a human being. (See Long Commentaries: "Worshipping, Adoring, and Bowing Down," p. 1218.) This is also refutes the heresy that no saints, no human beings, are in heaven until after the second coming of Jesus Christ.]

‡ Apoc. 19:11-21. With justice doth he judge and fight: [RJMI: That is, Jesus Christ who will be leading his heavenly and earthly army to defeat the Antichrist's hellish and earthly army and the False Prophet at the Battle of Armageddon. (See Long Commentaries: "The Battle of Armageddon," p. 1175.)]

THE APOCALYPSE

Chapter 20

Satan is bound for a thousand years. The souls of the martyrs reign with Christ in the first resurrection. The last attempts of Satan against the Church. The last judgment.

1 And I saw an angel coming down from heaven, having the key of the bottomless pit and a great chain in his hand.

2 And he laid hold on the dragon the old serpent, which is the devil and Satan, and bound him for a thousand years.*

3 And he cast him into the bottomless pit and shut him up and set a seal upon him that he should no more seduce the nations till the thousand years be finished. And after that, he must be loosed a little time.

4 And I saw seats, and they sat upon them. And judgment was given unto them and the souls of them that were beheaded for the testimony of Jesus and for the word of God and who had not adored the beast nor his image nor received his character on their foreheads or in their hands. And they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years.†

* Apoc. 20:1-3. Satan...bound...for a thousand years: [RJMI: This occurred on Pentecost Day in AD 33. Before the gospel could be successfully preached to the world, Satan had to be chained. Hence St. John was given a vision of what had occurred previous to the preaching of the gospel on Pentecost Day, the chaining of Satan for 1000 years, which happened when Christ died on the Cross. Satan's power was not totally taken away but greatly limited so that many peoples and then nations will convert. (See St. Augustine, City of God, bk. 20, chs. 7-8.) To see the progress of peoples and then nations being freed from the power of the Devil by converting to Christianity in great numbers, see RJMI book The Great Apostasy: Satan Chained in AD 33 and the De-paganization of the World Begins.]

† Apoc. 20:4. The souls of them...who had not adored the beast: [RJMI: St. John is not only taking about the final Antichrist (the final beast) that will come at the end of the world but the spirit of Antichrist, the many precursors of the Antichrist, who were in the world from the time of the fall of Adam and Eve. Hence St. John Says, "Little children, it is the last hour; and as you have heard that Antichrist cometh, even now there are become many Antichrists: whereby we know that it is the last hour." (1 Jn. 2:18) "And every spirit that dissolveth Jesus is not of God: and this is Antichrist of whom you have heard that he cometh, and he is now already in the world." (1 Jn. 4:3) "For many seducers are gone out into the world, who confess not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh: this is a seducer and an antichrist." (2 Jn. 1:7) "Who is a liar, but he who denieth that Jesus is the Christ? This is Antichrist, who denieth the Father, and the Son." (1 Jn. 2:22) Hence all men from the fall of Adam and Eve who died not believing in or obeying the true God believed in and obeyed the Antichrist; hence they "adored the beast [and] his image [and] received his character on their foreheads." However, those who died believing in and obeying the true God were of the elect, which includes those who were "beheaded for the testimony of Jesus and for the Word of God" and thus all of the elect who have died—both the elect during the Old Testament era who believed in the Messiah who was to come and the elect during the New Covenant era who believed in the Messiah who had come. See St. Augustine, City of God, bk. 20, c.9.]

Reigned with Christ for a thousand years: [RJMI: The elect could not enter heaven until after Christ died on the holy Cross, which caused Satan to be chained for 1000 years. Until then they were in the Limbo of the Fathers, the highest level in hell. Hence they could not reign with Christ in heaven until they were taken to heaven with Christ during his ascension into heaven. Therefore, from that point forward, the saints reign with Christ in heaven. And they do not reign just for the 1000 years that Satan is chained but forever. Thus when it says the saints reign with Christ for those 1000 years it does not mean they stop reigning after that. For example, King David uses the words "a thousand generations" to mean forever: "He is the Lord our God: his judgments are in all the earth. He hath remembered his covenant forever, the word which he commanded to a thousand generations. Which he made to Abraham and his oath to Isaac. And he appointed the same to Jacob for a law and to Israel for an everlasting testament: Saying: To thee will I give the land of

5 The rest of the dead lived not till the thousand years were finished. This is the first resurrection.‡

6 Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection. In these the second death hath no power, but

Chanaan, the lot of your inheritance." (Ps. 104:7-11) If "a thousand generations" were literal, then God's covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob that they and their descendents will possess the Promised Land would mean they will only possess it for a thousand generations and thus not forever. In the same way, if the words regarding the saints that "they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years" were literal, then that would mean that they stop reigning with Christ after a thousand years and thus will not reign with Christ forever, which contradicts other scriptures that say they will reign with Christ forever. For example, "But the saints of the most high God shall take the kingdom: and they shall possess the kingdom for ever and ever." (Dan. 7:18) "And they [the saints] shall see his face: and his name shall be on their foreheads.... and they shall reign for ever and ever." (Apoc. 22:4-5)]

Judgement was given unto them: [RJMI: He does not mean the elect will sit in judgment in Christ's name only during the Particular Judgment and General Judgment, which is true, but also upon men in the fallen earth before they die. For example, Jesus told the apostles that they will judge the twelve tribes of Israel: "Then Peter answering, said to him: Behold we have left all things, and have followed thee: what therefore shall we have? And Jesus said to them: Amen, I say to you, that you, who have followed me, in the regeneration, when the Son of man shall sit on the seat of his majesty, you also shall sit on twelve seats judging the twelve tribes of Israel." (Mt. 19:27-28) Indeed, as soon as the apostles began to preach the gospel on Pentecost Day, they began to judge the Israelites, both those who believed and thus were Christians and members of the Catholic Church and those who did not believe being judged as in the way of damnation. And St. Paul says, "Know you not that the saints shall judge this world? And if the world shall be judged by you, are you unworthy to judge the smallest matters?" (1 Cor. 6:2) While it is true that the faithful on earth in positions of authority also reign with Christ and make judgments, St. John (as recorded in Apoc. 20:4) referred only to the elect who died and are reigning and judging with Christ in heaven for the 1000 years. However, St. Augustine believed that St. John also referred to the faithful on earth in positions of authority. (See St. Augustine, City of God, bk. 20, c. 9.) Of course, the judgments of the saints in heaven are in complete accord with God's will as they are perfect and holy with no possibility of ever sinning. Hence God the Holy Spirit inspires them to make just judgments in accordance with God's will.]

‡ Apoc. 20:5. The rest of the dead lived not: [RJMI: These are the dead reprobates whose souls are said to be dead and thus live not. Hence they do not and never will reign with Christ. Therefore their souls are not only dead for those 1000 years but forever. Hence the words "till the thousand years were finished" does not say one way or another what their condition is after the 1000 years. For example, Judas Machabees won a battle in which none of his men were killed. The Bible records this as follows: "And they went up to mount Sion with joy and gladness, and offered holocausts, because not one of them was slain, till they had returned in peace." (1 Mac. 5:54) That does not mean they were slain after they returned in peace. Indeed, they were also not slain even after they returned in peace. And the Bible also says the following: "Therefore Michol the daughter of Saul had no child to the day of her death." (2 Ki. 6:23) That does not mean she had a child after she died. Indeed, she remained childless even after her death. In the same way when it is said that "the rest of the dead lived not till the thousand years were finished" does not mean they lived after that. Indeed they remained dead after the 1000 years. And in the same way, when Verse 4 says the elect "lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years," it does not mean they stopped reigning with him after that. Indeed, they reign with Christ forever.] The first resurrection: [RJMI: The first resurrection does not refer to "the dead who lived not" (to the dead reprobates) but to the elect who have died and thus are saved and reign in heaven with Jesus, as the previous and following verses makes clear. Hence the first resurrection is the resurrection of the souls of the elect when they die and enter heaven or purgatory and then heaven.]

THE APOCALYPSE

they shall be priests of God and of Christ and shall reign with him a thousand years.*

7 And when the thousand years shall be finished, Satan shall be loosed out of his prison and shall go forth and seduce the nations which are over the four quarters of the earth, Gog, and Magog, and shall gather them together to battle, the number of whom is as the sand of the sea.†

* Apoc. 20:6. The second death: [RJMI: The second death is the everlasting death of the resurrected and corrupted bodies of the reprobates, which occurs at the General Judgment at the end of the world. (See Verse 14) Their first death was the everlasting death of their souls, which occurred after their Particular Judgment when their souls were cast into the hell of the damned. See commentary on Jn. 11:26. Hence those who attained to the first resurrection will not suffer the second death because they did not suffer the first death, the everlasting death of the soul. (See Apoc. 2:11; Apoc. 20:14; Apoc. 21:8)] They shall be priests: [RJMI: The word "priests" as used here means all of the elect who have died. St. John is speaking of all who hath part in the first resurrection as priests and thus includes all of the elect and hence even laymen: "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection..., they shall be priests of God and of Christ." (Apoc. 20:6) There are two kinds of priests among the faithful: special priests and universal priests.]

Special Priests are priests in the most common sense of the word. They are ordained as priests in order to be God's ministers to believers, to perform divine worship, to administer the sacraments and to rule, guide, preach, and teach believers. They act as intermediaries between God and man.

Universal Priests are all of the faithful are universal priests in the sense that they offer to God their prayers, sacrifices, and other good works. In four places, St. Peter and St. John use the word "priest" to mean all the faithful and thus the universal priesthood. (1 Pt. 2:5-9) (Apoc. 1:5-6) (Apoc. 3:21) (Apoc. 20:6)

St. Augustine says, " 'But they shall be priests of God and Christ and shall reign with him a thousand years;' and this refers not to the bishops alone and presbyters who are now specially called priests in the Church, but as we call all believers Christians on account of the mystical chrism so we call them all priests because they are members of the one Priest. Of them the Apostle Peter says, 'A holy people, a royal priesthood.' " (City of God, b. 20, c. 10.)]

† Apoc. 20:7. Satan shall be loosed: [RJMI: Satan was chained when Christ died in AD 33. And he was unchained a literal 1000 years later in 1033, which was the beginning of the Great Apostasy. Logic refutes the opinion that the 3½ year reign of Antichrist begins immediately after Satan is unchained because before the nations will accept the Antichrist, most men must first be seduced, corrupted, and gathered together. And it takes a long time to do these things. Men and then nations do not get seduced overnight.]

For example, when an evil ruler is released from prison, it takes time for him to gather and recruit his forces and re-corrupt the kingdom he wants to repossess. Hence if Satan were released on the first day of Antichrist's 3½ year reign, most men and nations would not yet be seduced into following the Antichrist thus would not accept the Antichrist. Even though during the whole New Covenant era most men are evil and follow the spirit of the Antichrist and minor antichrists by believing in false gods and false religions, they need to be seduced into following the Antichrist and his one religion. And that takes some time.

The empirical evidence of the Great Apostasy that began in the 11th century proves that Satan had to be unchained at that time or else he could not have succeeded in progressively corrupting Catholics and then Catholic nations to the point that most Catholics either left the Church or were Catholic in name only (nominal Catholics) and most Catholic nations were no longer Catholic nations.

(See RJMI book "The Great Apostasy: Satan Unchained in AD 1033 and the Re-Paganization of the World and Great Apostasy Begin" and see RJMI Topic Index: "The everlasting earthly paradise, the errors of millennialism, and the heresies of dispensationalism.")

He must be loosed a little time (Apoc. 20:3): [RJMI: Hence the "little time" in which Satan is released, as mentioned in Verse 3, is now going on for almost 1000 years. That a "little time" in the eyes of God can be a long time in the eyes of men is proved several times in the Bible. St. Peter says, "But of this one thing be not ignorant, my beloved, that one day with the Lord is as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day." (2 Pt. 3:8) King David says, "For a thousand years in thy sight are as yesterday, which is past and as a watch in the night." (Ps. 89:4) God, speaking through the holy Prophet Isaias, who lived about seven hundred years before the birth of Jesus Christ, refers to more than 700 years as a time "near to come": "Thus saith the Lord: Keep ye judgment, and do justice: for my salvation is near to come, and my justice to be revealed." (Isa. 56:1) The holy Prophet Sophonias, who lived about five hundred years before the birth of Christ, teaches that the second coming of Jesus Christ is "near," which is a time period of about 2500 years: "The great day of the Lord is near, it is near and exceeding swift: the voice of the day of the Lord is bitter, the mighty man shall there meet with tribulation. That day is a day of wrath, a day of tribulation and distress, a day of calamity and misery, a day of darkness and obscurity, a day of clouds and whirlwinds." (Soph. 1:14-15) In the Book of the Apocalypse, Chapter 12, Verse 12, a "short time" means about six thousand years—from the time of Satan's fall to the second coming of Christ: "And that great dragon was cast out, that old serpent, who is called the devil and Satan, who seduceth the whole world; and he was cast unto the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him... Woe to the earth, and to the sea, because the devil is come down unto you, having great wrath, knowing that he hath but a short time." (Apoc. 12:9-12)]

‡ Apoc. 20:8. Camp of the saints...beloved city: [RJMI: The camp of the saints is wherever Catholics are. And the beloved city will be the home, the main base, of the Catholic Church during the reign of the Antichrist. The beloved city does not mean Rome (Vatican City) because it will be destroyed when the Antichrist comes to power and remain desolate during his 3½ year reign. See commentary on Apoc. 11:2. And it does not mean Jerusalem because it will be the home base of the Antichrist. (See Long Commentaries: "The Two Witnesses are murdered in Jerusalem and Antichrist's followers celebrate," p. 1178). St. Augustine says, "The words, 'And they went up on the breadth of the earth, and encompassed the camp of the saints and the beloved city,' do not mean that they have come or shall come to one place, as if the camp of the saints and the beloved city should be in some one place; for this camp is nothing else than the Church of Christ extending over the whole world and consequently wherever the Church shall be. And it shall be in all nations, as is signified by 'the breadth of the earth,' there also shall be the camp of the saints and the beloved city, and there it shall be encompassed by the savage persecution of all its enemies; for they too shall exist along with it in all nations; that is, it shall be straitened, and hard pressed, and shut up in the straits of tribulation, but shall not desert its military duty, which is signified by the word 'camp.'" (City of God, b. 20, c. 11)]

§ Apoc. 20:9-10. Fire from God: [RJMI: God will protect some Catholics and their camps and the beloved city. Verses 8-10 describe the defeat and death of the Antichrist and False Prophet and thus the defeat and death of his evil kingdom.]

** Apoc. 20:11-15. Great white throne: [RJMI: After the second coming of Jesus Christ and after he has destroyed all the evildoers from the face of the earth, Jesus will resurrect the bodies of the dead and conduct the General Judgment in which he will publicly judge all men according to the faith they believed in and the works they did before they died. This is also known as the "Great White Throne Judgment." (See Long Commentaries: "The Particular Judgment and the General Judgment," p. 1196.)]

the dead were judged by those things which were written in the books, according to their works.

13 And the sea gave up the dead that were in it, and death and gehenna gave up their dead that were in them. And they were judged every one according to their works.*

14 And gehenna and death were cast into the pool of fire. This is the second death.

15 And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the pool of fire.

Chapter 21

The new Jerusalem described.

1 And I saw a new heaven and a new earth. For the first heaven and the first earth was gone, and the sea is now no more.†

2 And I John saw the holy city, the new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God prepared as a bride adorned for her husband.‡

3 And I heard a great voice from the throne, saying: Behold the tabernacle of God with men, and he will dwell with them. And they shall be his people, and God himself with them shall be their God.§

4 And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and death shall be no more nor mourning nor crying nor sorrow shall be any more, for the former things are passed away.

5 And he that sat on the throne, said: Behold, I make all things new. And he said to me: Write, for these words are most faithful and true.

6 And he said to me: It is done. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end. To him that thirsteth, I will give of the fountain of the water of life freely.

7 He that shall overcome shall possess these things, and I will be his God; and he shall be my son.

8 But the fearful and unbelieving and the abominable and murderers and whoremongers and sorcerers and idolaters and all liars, they shall have their portion in the pool burning with fire and brimstone, which is the second death.**

9 And there came one of the seven angels who had the vials full of the seven last plagues, and spoke with me, saying: Come, and I will shew thee the bride, the wife of the Lamb.

10 And he took me up in spirit to a great and high mountain. And he shewed me the holy city Jerusalem coming down out of heaven from God,††

11 having the glory of God, and the light thereof was like to a precious stone as to the jasper stone even as crystal.

12 And it had a wall great and high, having twelve gates, and in the gates twelve angels, and names written thereon which are the names of the twelve tribes of the children of Israel:‡‡

13 on the east, three gates; and on the north, three gates; and on the south, three gates; and on the west, three gates.

14 And the wall of the city had twelve foundations; and in them, the twelve names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb.§§

† Apoc. 21:1. A new heaven and a new earth: [RJMI: Before the General Judgment and just after the dead bodies are resurrected and taken to the intermediate heaven, Christ will destroy the old earth and its heaven and create a new earth and a new heaven, which will be the everlasting earthly paradise promised by God and prophesied by the prophets in which there will be no more sin, death, pain, sickness, suffering, or any other evils (See Verse 4). And there will be animals, plants, wine (alcohol), and food in it but no killing. For example, see Isa. 25:8; 65:17; Isa. 66:22; 2 Pt. 3:13; Apoc. 7:17. After Jesus creates the new earth and new heaven, he will then conduct the General Judgment upon the new earth. (See Long Commentaries: "The Messias will come a second time to judge mankind and purify and rule the earth forever," p. 1122.; and see "The Everlasting Earthly Paradise," p. 1179.)] And the sea is no more: [RJMI: There will be bodies of water in the everlasting earthly paradise, as literal waters will flow from the New Jerusalem. (See commentaries on Zach. 14:8 and Apoc. 22:1-2.). But it is not certain that there will be seas (oceans) and thus there may only be lakes, rivers, and streams. Or, as St. Augustine teaches, there may be something new that is better than seas. St. Augustine says, "As for the statement, 'And there shall be no more sea,' I would not lightly say whether it is dried up with that excessive heat or is itself also turned into some better thing. For we read that there shall be a new heaven and a new earth, but I do not remember to have anywhere read anything of a new sea, unless what I find in this same book, 'As it were a sea of glass like crystal' 'But he was not then speaking of this end of the world, neither does he seem to speak of a literal sea, but 'as it were a sea.' It is possible that, as prophetic diction delights in mingling figurative and real language, and thus in some sort veiling the sense, so the words 'And there is no more sea' may be taken in the same sense as the previous phrase, 'And the sea presented the dead which were in it.' For then there shall be no more of this world, no more of the surgings and restlessness of human life, and it is this which is symbolized by the sea." (St. Augustine, City of God, b. 20, c. 16)]

‡ Apoc. 21:2. New Jerusalem: [RJMI: After the General Judgment, when all the devils and evil humans are cast into hell and sealed in it forever, the New Jerusalem will come down out of heaven and land where the old Jerusalem was, and it will be bigger and much more beautiful than the old Jerusalem. See Verses 10-27]

** Apoc. 21:8. Pool burning with fire: [RJMI: The pool of fire is the new and everlasting hell Christ will create when he creates the new earth. During the General Judgment all of the reprobates with their corrupted bodies are thrown into this hell. (See Long Commentaries: "The Particular Judgment and the General Judgment: ... 'Jesus will judge men again but this time publicly and on earth,'" p. 1199.) There is no leaving this new hell and hence devils and damned human can no more roam the face of the earth. And the pains and sufferings are not only greater than those of the old hell but there is no end to them and thus no moments of repose. In the old hell the devils and damned humans are not always suffering and are not always in hell or else they would not be able to plot and make war against God and his Church and chosen people. For example, Jesus says that devils are at rest when they possess living creatures: "And when an unclean spirit is gone out of a man he walketh through dry places seeking rest and findeth none. Then he saith: I will return into my house [a human body] from whence I came out. And coming he findeth it empty, swept, and garnished." (Mt. 12:43-44) Hence when Jesus cast the devils out of a man in the country of the Gerasens, the devils pleaded with him not to send them to hell but let them stay upon the face of the earth by possessing swine: "For he commanded the unclean spirit to go out of the man... And Jesus asked him, saying: What is thy name? But he said: Legion; because many devils were entered into him. And they besought him that he would not command them to go into the abyss. And there was there a herd of many swine feeding on the mountain; and they besought him that he would suffer them to enter into them. And he suffered them." (Lk. 8:29-32) The second death: [RJMI: The second death is the everlasting death of the resurrected and corrupted bodies of the reprobates which are cast into hell during the General Judgment, which are then united to their damned souls. (See Apoc. 2:11; Apoc. 20:6, 14; and, the commentary on Apoc. 20:6.)]

†† Apoc. 21:10-27. The holy city of Jerusalem: [RJMI: John is now given a vision of the New Jerusalem that will come down from heaven.]

‡‡ Apoc. 21:12-13. Twelve gates: [RJMI: Each gate represents a tribe of Israel.]

§§ Apoc. 21:14. Twelve foundations: [RJMI: Each foundation stone represents an apostle. Hence God's one and only Church is built upon the twelve tribes of Israel and then the twelve apostles, the Old Covenant first

THE APOCALYPSE

15 And he that spoke with me had a measure of a reed of gold, to measure the city and the gates thereof and the wall.

16 And the city lieth in a foursquare and the length thereof is as great as the breadth. And he measured the city with the golden reed for twelve thousand furlongs, and the length and the height and the breadth thereof are equal.*

17 And he measured the wall thereof an hundred forty-four cubits, the measure of a man which is of an angel.†

18 And the building of the wall thereof was of jasper stone, but the city itself pure gold, like to clear glass.

19 And the foundations of the wall of the city were adorned with all manner of precious stones. The first foundation was jasper; the second, sapphire; the third, a chalcedony; the fourth, an emerald;

20 the fifth, sardonyx; the sixth, sardius; the seventh, chrysolite; the eighth, beryl; the ninth, a topaz; the tenth, a chrysopterus; the eleventh, a jacinth; the twelfth, an amethyst.

21 And the twelve gates are twelve pearls, one to each; and every several gate was of one several pearl. And the street of the city was pure gold, as it were transparent glass.

22 And I saw no temple therein. For the Lord God Almighty is the temple thereof, and the Lamb.‡

23 And the city hath no need of the sun nor of the moon to shine in it. For the glory of God hath enlightened it, and the Lamb is the lamp thereof.§

and then the New Covenant which replaced the Old Covenant. The Catholic Church, then, incorporates the teachings and prophecies from the Old Testament era into the New Covenant. Hence there would be no New Covenant without the Old Covenant and there would be no Old Covenant without the New Covenant.]

* Apoc. 21:16-17. The city: [RJMI: The New Jerusalem is a perfect cube, equal in length, width, and height. "And he measured the city with the golden reed for twelve thousand furlongs, and the length and the height and the breadth thereof are equal." The total volume, then, of the city is 12,000 furlongs. A furlong is 1/8 of a mile. Hence the total volume of the city is 1500 cubic miles. Hence each side of the city is 11.5 miles and its height is 11.5 miles, which make 1500 cubic miles. Measured the wall: That is, the thickness of the wall which is 144 cubits. 1 cubit = 21 inches and thus the walls are 252 feet thick.

Some hold the opinion that the city is 1500 miles on each side and 1500 miles high and thus way exceeds the borders of the entire Promised Land and the encroaches on lands promised to other peoples. According to this opinion, faithful Israelites (that is Catholic Israelites who are saved) not only get the amount of land that God promised them but would also get lands that God did not promise to them. Hence, in my opinion, this opinion is improbable.]

† Apoc. 21:17. The measure of a man: According to the measure of men and used by the angel. This seems to be the true meaning of these words.

‡ Apoc. 21:22. No temple: [RJMI: That is, no temple in which sacrifices will be offered, as there is no need for sacrifices in the everlasting earthly paradise, as all men will be either saved or damned. The new temple is Christ himself. This new temple, then, will be a non-sacrificial temple, just as is the temple heaven. St. John was given a vision of the temple in heaven: "Therefore they [the saved] are before the throne of God, and they serve him day and night in his temple: and he, that sitteth on the throne, shall dwell over them. (Apoc. 7:15) "And the temple of God was opened in heaven: and the ark of his testament was seen in his temple." (Apoc. 11:19) From the time of the everlasting earthly paradise, the only material temple of God will be the one in heaven while Jesus will be the spiritual temple in the new earth. His union with the Father unites men on earth with the material temple in heaven. And it is probable that the heaven of God's home will then be the heaven of the new earth.]

and enlightens all the saved with the physical light the emanates from him will be light enough for this world, as each person will be like a walking light bulb, just as the light that came from Christ during his transfiguration: "And he [Jesus] was transfigured before them. And his face did shine as the sun." (Mt. 17:2) And Verse 24 says "all the nations shall walk in the light of it"; that is, of the physical light that comes from Christ. This physical light is not to be confused with the spiritual light that comes from Christ which is grace that all the elect need to remain holy and perfect. These verses clearly refer to the sun and moon and thus to physical light. A prophecy of Isaias upholds this opinion. Speaking of the earthly paradise he says, "Iniquity shall no more be heard in thy land, wasting nor destruction in thy borders, and salvation shall possess thy walls, and praise thy gates. Thou shalt no more have the sun for thy light by day neither shall the brightness of the moon enlighten thee but the Lord shall be unto thee for an everlasting light, and thy God for thy glory. Thy sun shall go down no more, and thy moon shall not decrease: for the Lord shall be unto thee for an everlasting light, and the days of thy mourning shall be ended. And thy people shall be all just, they shall inherit the land for ever, the branch of my planting, the work of my hand to glorify me." (Isa. 60:18-21) And Apoc. 7:16 may uphold this opinion: "They shall no more hunger nor thirst, neither shall the sun fall on them, nor any heat. For the Lamb, which is in the midst of the throne, shall rule them, and shall lead them to the fountains of the waters of life, and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes." (Apoc. 7:16-17) (See Apoc. 22:5)

Second Opinion: The second opinion is that a new sun and new moon will exist but will not shine in the New Jerusalem, as Christ will physically light up the New Jerusalem, as Verse 23 speaks only of the city of Jerusalem having no need of the sun or moon. And Verse 25 says that "there shall be no night there"; there being the New Jerusalem and thus night could be in the rest of the new earth, which would mean there is a sun to light up the day.]

§§ Apoc. 22:1-2. Throne of God: [RJMI: The throne of God and of the Lamb is Jesus Christ's throne that will be the New Jerusalem, from which he rules the everlasting earthly paradise. River of water of life: From Jesus' throne a river flows that transmits spiritual water (grace) to water the souls of men and physical water to water the plants and other things that need water for physical substances. The new earth will be like the Garden of Eden that had the Tree of Life and a river of water flowing out that splits into four rivers to water all of paradise. (See Gen. 2:8-15) If God's plans had been fulfilled for the Second Temple, Jerusalem, and Israel, physical water would have flowed from a well below the Temple, as recorded in Ezechiel, Chapter 47:1-12. From there, it would have

MISCELLANEOUS

LONG COMMENTARIES

By Richard Joseph Michael Ibranyi (RJMI)

Caesar's Due

The first duty of Catholics no matter where they live or what they do is to love and obey God above all things. (Mt. 22:37-40) Proof that a man truly loves God is that he obeys all of God's commandments. Jesus says, "If you love me, keep my commandments. ... He that loveth me not, keepeth not my words." (Jn. 14:15, 24) If Catholics want to be saved, they must obey all of God's commandments. Jesus says, "If thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments." (Mt. 19:17)

One of God's commandments is that Catholics must obey their lawful rulers, even non-Catholic rulers, in all things but sin, things that unjustly threaten their lives, and things that are impossible. God the Son, Jesus Christ, commands Catholics to give Caesar his due:

"Tell us therefore what dost thou think, Is it lawful to give tribute to Caesar or not? But Jesus knowing their wickedness, said: Why do you tempt me, ye hypocrites? Shew me the coin of the tribute. And they offered him a penny. And Jesus saith to them: Whose image and inscription is this? They say to him: Caesar's. Then he saith to them: Render therefore to Caesar the things that are Caesar's and to God, the things that are God's." (Mt. 22:17-21)

Therefore, the second duty of Catholics is to give their rulers their due. And this applies not only to Catholic rulers, but also non-Catholic rulers, as Caesar was a pagan. Echoing Christ, St. Paul teaches Catholics about this duty:

"Let every soul be subject to higher powers. For there is no power but from God: and those that are ordained of God. Therefore, he that resisteth the power resisteth the ordinance of God. And they that resist purchase to themselves damnation. For princes are not a terror to the good work, but to the evil. Wilt thou then not be afraid of the power? Do that which is good, and thou shalt have praise from the same. For he is God's minister to thee, for good. But if thou do that which is evil, fear, for he beareth not the sword in vain. For he is God's minister, an avenger to execute wrath upon him that doth evil. Wherefore, be subject of necessity not only for wrath but also for conscience' sake. For, therefore, also you pay tribute, for they are the ministers of God, serving unto this purpose. Render, therefore, to all men their dues. Tribute to whom tribute is due, custom to whom custom, fear to whom fear, honour to whom honour." (Rom. 13:1-7)

Therefore, when God's chosen people find themselves under the yoke of unbelievers, they must submit to that yoke in all things except sin, things that unjustly threaten their lives, and things that are impossible until God sees fit to deliver them by war or other legal means; that is, legal in the eyes of God.

Catholics ruled by non-Catholics in non-Catholic lands would do well to think of themselves as Joseph in Egypt and Daniel in Babylon. (Gen. 41:39-44) (Dan. 2:48-49) While living and working in godless lands and being ruled by godless rulers, Joseph and Daniel maintained the faith and obeyed these pagan rulers in all things except sin, things that unjustly threaten their lives, and things that were impossible.

While the apostles and Jesus' other followers obeyed their pagan rulers in pagan Rome, they obeyed God above all things. When commanded to obey men and in so doing disobey God, "Peter and the apostles answering, said: We ought to obey God rather than men." (Acts 5:29) Therefore, if there is ever a conflict between obeying God and obeying Caesar, then God must be obeyed and Caesar disobeyed; that is, if one wants to be saved. If men want to be saved, they must disobey anyone or anything that would make them disobey God. Hence, if a non-Catholic ruler tries to force Catholics to sin against the faith or morals, or unjustly threatens their lives, or to do the impossible, Catholics must disobey him.

The Catholic Church is God's Mystical Body on earth. She is God's voice and arm of justice, mercy, and sanctification on earth. St. Paul teaches that "The Church of the living God [is] the pillar and ground of the truth." (1 Tim. 3:15) And Jesus decrees, "He [that] will not hear the Church, let him be to thee as the heathen and publican." (Mt. 18:17) Therefore, as high as the heavens are above the earth, so much higher is obedience to the Catholic Church over obedience to Caesar, be he a Catholic or a non-Catholic ruler. Consequently, a Catholic is first and foremost a member and citizen of the Catholic Church before he is a member of a race or citizen of a nation.

Therefore, if a Catholic's duty to obey God through his Catholic Church ever conflicts with his duty to Caesar, then God speaking through his Catholic Church, must be obeyed and Caesar disobeyed. In this case Catholics are obliged to disobey Caesar if they do not want to sin and place themselves in a state of damnation

What Catholics must not and must give to Caesar

Catholics living in non-Catholic nations and under non-Catholic rulers must not give Caesar his due in the following things:

- In things that are sinful; that is, in things that are sins against the Catholic faith and morals

- In things that are impossible
- In things that unjustly threaten their lives
- In things a pope or other legitimate authority decrees that Catholics must not give to Caesar, some of which ordinarily can be given to Caesar.

Catholics living in non-Catholic nations and thus under non-Catholic rulers must give Caesar his due in the following things:

- Catholics must pay taxes, even if some of the taxes go to sinful things, such as the building and maintenance of pagan temples. For example, Jesus commanded the apostles and his other followers to pay taxes to pagan Rome, even though some of those taxes went to the building and maintenance of pagan temples and other sinful things. (Mt. 22:17-21) However, Catholics must not pay taxes if a legitimate Catholic authority decrees that they must not pay taxes.
- Catholics can join non-Catholic armies and fight in their wars, provided they do not have to do anything sinful and provided a legitimate Catholic authority has not forbid them to do so. The famous Theban Legion was a Catholic Legion in the pagan Roman army that fought valiantly. Many of your martyrs in the early days of the Catholic Church were soldiers in the pagan Roman army. They fought for pagan Rome as long as they were not commanded to do something sinful. Hence, when the army commanded that Catholic soldiers must offer sacrifice to or show reverence to false gods or idols, they refused and were either martyred, imprisoned, or kicked out of the army. For example, the Catholic soldiers of the Theban Legion were commanded to reverence false gods and idols but refused and thus were martyred.
- If allowed to vote, Catholics must vote for the lesser evil, provided a legitimate Catholic authority has not forbid them to vote.<sup>2850</sup>

- Catholics can be rulers and politicians and hold other offices, provided they do not have to do anything sinful and provided a legitimate Catholic authority has forbid them to do so. Think of Joseph in pagan Egypt who was second in authority under Pharaoh, and of Daniel in pagan Babylon who was the top governor.
- Catholics must pledge allegiance to the non-Catholic nations and rulers, provided there is nothing sinful in the pledge.
- Catholics must pray for their non-Catholic rulers.

When living under non-Catholic nations and rulers, Catholics must tolerate evil things but they must not consent to them or respect them. Hence they must tolerate idols, false gods, and sins of immorality but they must never consent to these things or respect them. For example, a Catholic who is present during a meeting of non-Catholic rulers who invoke their false gods must tolerate this and can remain silent, but he must not consent to the false gods or respect them. Think of Joseph when he was at the court of Pharaoh when Pharaoh was praised as “god on earth.” Joseph remained silent and did not condemn it every time he heard it, but he did not consent to or respect this title.

Created and Uncreated Wisdom

God is all-powerful, all-knowing, and all-wise. The power of God is uncreated, as it is one of God’s powers and thus is eternal. It consists of God’s power to do all things. The knowledge of God is uncreated, as it is one of God’s powers and thus is eternal. It consists of God’s knowledge of all things, past present, and to come. The wisdom of God is uncreated, as it is one of God’s powers thus is eternal:

“All wisdom is from the Lord God and hath been always with him and is before all time.” (Eccus. 1:1)

The wisdom of God consists of God’s thoughts, plans, and ways. The wisdom of God regulates all that he does. For there is no thought, plan, or way of God that is not all wise and thus that is not pure and unadulterated wisdom.

The wisdom that emanates from God gives birth to wisdom in rational creatures when they hear and embrace God’s wisdom in their hearts and minds. That is why the wisdom that emanates from God is referred to in the feminine, as her or she, because she gives birth to wisdom in rational creatures:

“Wisdom shall praise her own self and shall be honoured in God and shall glory in the midst of her people, and shall open her mouth in the churches of the most High and shall glorify herself in the sight of his power. And in the midst of her own people, she shall be exalted and shall be admired in the holy assembly. (Eccus. 24:1-3)

“Doth not wisdom cry aloud and prudence put forth her voice? Standing in the top of the highest places by the way in the midst of the paths; beside the gates of the city in the very doors, she speaketh, saying: O ye men, to you I call, and my voice is to the sons of men. O little ones, understand subtlety, and ye unwise, take notice. Hear, for I will speak of great things, and my lips shall be opened to preach right things. My mouth shall meditate truth and my lips shall hate wickedness. All my words are just; there is nothing wicked nor perverse in them. They are right to them that understand and just to them that find knowledge. Receive my instruction and not money; choose knowledge rather than gold. For wisdom is better than all the most precious things and whatsoever may be desired cannot be compared to it. I wisdom dwell in counsel and am present in learned thoughts.” (Prv. 8:1-12)

“For I make doctrine to shine forth to all as the morning light, and I will declare it afar off. I will penetrate to all the lower parts of the earth and will behold all that sleep and will enlighten all that hope in the Lord. I will yet pour out doctrine as prophecy and will leave it to them that seek wisdom and will not cease to instruct their offspring even to the holy age. See ye that I have not laboured for myself only but for all that seek out the truth.” (Eccus. 24:44-47)

In the following verses, the wisdom that emanates from God is referred to as “her” and “she” but the source of wisdom is referred to as “him,” as God himself. And this wisdom was embraced by the holy Jesus, son of Sirach, the author of this text:

“When I was yet young, before I wandered about, I sought for wisdom openly in my prayer. I prayed for her before the temple, and unto the very end I will seek after her, and she flourished as a grape soon ripe. My heart delighted in her, my foot walked in the right way, from my youth up I sought after her. I bowed down my ear a little and received her. I found much wisdom in myself, and I profited much therein. To him that giveth me wisdom, will I give glory.” (Eccus. 51:18-23)

Beware, then, of the heretics who teach that God the Holy Spirit is feminine and thus is not masculine. These heretics equate the wisdom that emanates from the Holy Spirit as the Holy Spirit himself. Therefore, they make no distinction between the uncreated wisdom that is in the Holy Spirit and the created wisdom that emanates from the Holy Spirit and is conveyed into the souls of rational creatures.

While the wisdom that is in God is eternal and thus uncreated, the wisdom that emanates from God is created because it is outside of God. God creates it outside of himself and gives it to others. The Bible speaks of God’s created wisdom, the wisdom that emanates from God, and says that this wisdom was the first thing God created and thus was before everything else that God has created:

“And in the multitude of the elect she shall have praise, and among the blessed she shall be blessed, saying: I came out of [emanated from] the mouth of the most High and covered the earth as a cloud... So the Creator of all things gave me a commandment, and he that made me chose the spot for my tent, And he said to me: Let thy dwelling be in Jacob and thy inheritance in Israel, and take root in my elect. From the beginning and before the world was, I created; and unto the world to come, I shall not cease to be; and in the holy dwelling place, I have ministered before him. And so was I established in Sion, and in the holy city likewise I rested, and my power was in Jerusalem. And I took root in an honourable people, and in the portion of my God his inheritance, and my abode is in the full assembly of saints (Eccus. 24:4-5, 12-16)

“The Lord created me, the beginning of his ways, for his works. Before this age, he established me, in the beginning before he made the earth. The depths were not as yet, and I was already brought forth, neither had the fountains of waters as yet sprung out. The mountains with their huge bulk had not as yet been established; before the hills, I was brought forth; he had not yet made the earth nor the rivers nor the poles of the world. When he prepared the heavens, I was present, when with a certain law and compass he enclosed the depths. When he established the sky above and poised the fountains of waters, when he compassed the sea with its bounds and set a law to the waters that they should not pass their limits, when he balanced the foundations of the earth, I was with him forming all things and was delighted every day, playing before him at all times, playing in the world, and my delights were to be with the children of men. Now therefore, ye children, hear me: Blessed are they that keep my ways. Hear instruction and be wise and refuse it not. Blessed is the man that heareth me and that watcheth daily at my gates and waiteth at the posts of my doors. He that shall find me shall find life and shall have salvation from the Lord. But he that shall sin against me shall hurt his own soul. All that hate me love death.” (Prv. 8:22-36)

Even though created wisdom is not really a person, it is personified and thus referred to as a person; such as when the Bible refers to inanimate things or living forces as living beings. For example, many times in the Bible, Jerusalem (an inanimate thing) is referred to as a female person:

“Rejoice with Jerusalem and be glad with her, all you that love her. Rejoice for joy with her, all you that mourn for her. That you may suck and be filled with the breasts of her consolations that you may milk out and flow with delights, from the abundance of her glory.” (Isa. 66:10-11)

“My soul, bless thou the Lord, because the Lord our God hath delivered Jerusalem his city from all her troubles.” (Tob. 13:19)

In the following verses, the Bible refers to inanimate things and living forces as living persons (as spirits):

“There are spirits that are created for vengeance and in their fury they lay on grievous torments. In the time of destruction they shall pour out their force and they shall appease the wrath of him that made them. Fire, hail, famine, and death, all these were created for vengeance; the teeth of beasts, and scorpions, and serpents, and the sword taking vengeance upon the ungodly unto destruction. In his commandments they shall feast, and they shall be ready upon earth when need is, and when their time is come they shall not transgress his word.” (Eccus. 39:33-37)

Even though created wisdom is not a real person, it is a real force, such as oxygen or the wind, and thus is not inanimate as a rock is.

God’s created wisdom is given to rational creatures and is created in their hearts and minds when they embrace it. No creature can possess the wisdom that is in God (uncreated wisdom) or else they would become God, which is impossible. But rational creatures can possess the wisdom that emanates from God and thus can become like God. However, the wisdom that is in God the Son is born from God the Father and thus is the wisdom that is in God. It is uncreated wisdom, just as God the Son is uncreated. It did not come to God the Son by emanation but by eternal birth. Whereas the wisdom that is in rational creatures is the wisdom that emanates from God and thus is in them by grace and adoption but not by nature and birth.

For example, if I verbally teach the wisdom of God to unbelievers and some embrace it and thus it is now in them, they do not become me but become like me by the wisdom we share in common. And the wisdom that emanates from my mouth is not a living being but a living force, a force that was embraced by some and thus lives in them but fell dead in others and this was dissipated in them.

Here is another example. I write the wisdom of God on a piece of paper for others to read. Some read it and embrace it others read it and do not embrace it. Now, the words, the wisdom, on the paper are not part of me or else if they burned the paper they would burn me. However, the words on the paper emanated from God to me and from me to others, and it is a living force to be reckoned with. That is why St. Paul says,

“For the word of God is living and effectual and more piercing than any two edged sword; and reaching unto the division of the soul and the spirit, of the joints also and the marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart.” (Heb. 4:12)

King Solomon puts it this way,

“And all such things as are hid and not foreseen, I have learned; for wisdom which is the worker of all things, taught me. For in her is the spirit of understanding; holy, one, manifold, subtle, eloquent, active, undefiled, sure, sweet, loving that which is good, quick, which nothing hindereth, beneficent, gentle, kind, steadfast, assured, secure, having all power, overseeing all things, and containing all spirits, intelligible, pure, subtle. For wisdom is more active than all active things and reacheth everywhere by reason of her purity. For she is a vapour [an emanation, a force] of the power of God, and a certain pure emanation of the glory of the almighty God, and therefore no defiled thing cometh into her. For she is the brightness of eternal light, and the unspotted mirror of God’s majesty, and the image of his goodness. And being but one, she can do all things and remaining in herself the same, she reneweth all things, and through nations conveyeth herself into holy souls, she maketh the friends of God and prophets.” (Wis. 7:21-27)

(See also Wisdom 8)

The wisdom that emanates from God comes to men internally in their hearts by the natural law and externally by hearing it, as many truths cannot be known by the natural law and thus must be heard from an external source. Men can embrace this wisdom or reject it. Hence they can even reject the wisdom that is in their hearts by the natural law and thus harden their hearts to it.

We learn from the following verses that the wisdom of God emanates from the God the Holy Spirit and is conveyed by the Holy Spirit into the souls of rational creatures:

“Who hath searched out the wisdom of God that goeth before all things [the wisdom that emanates from God]? (Emanated) Wisdom hath been created before all things, and the understanding of prudence from everlasting. The word of God on high is the fountain of wisdom, and her ways are everlasting commandments. To whom hath the root of wisdom been revealed, and who hath known her wise counsels? To whom hath the discipline of wisdom been revealed and made manifest? And who hath understood the multiplicity of her steps? There is one most high Creator Almighty, and a powerful king, and greatly to be feared, who sitteth upon his throne, and is the God of dominion. He created her in the Holy Spirit, and saw her, and numbered her, and measured her. And he poured her out upon all his works and upon all flesh according to his gift, and hath given her to them that love him.” (Eccus. 1:3-10)

“He [God] created her [created wisdom] in the Holy Spirit.” Created wisdom, then, emanates from God the Holy Spirit and is conveyed into souls by the Holy Spirit. And the Holy Spirit (by covering grace during the Old Testament era and now sanctifying grace during the New Covenant era) also gives spiritual life to souls.

Created wisdom (the wisdom that emanates from God) is a figure of God’s Church, both during the Old and New Testament eras, and a figure of the Blessed Virgin Mary because both are full of God’s wisdom to the highest degree possible for created things. God’s Church contains the infallible deposit of God's wisdom and conveys it to men. And many times God's Church is referred to in the feminine, as her or she. The Blessed Virgin Mary is the most perfect and holy creature that God has ever created or ever will create. As such, she has the most created wisdom that any creature can contain. She is the real personification of a creature with created wisdom. As such, she was chosen to give birth to uncreated wisdom on earth so that uncreated wisdom can live among men on earth. And this uncreated wisdom is God the Son, Jesus Christ. In her son (the divine person of the Incarnate Jesus) is contained both uncreated wisdom in his divine nature and created wisdom on his human nature.<sup>2851</sup> Therefore, in the womb of the Blessed Virgin Mary, uncreated wisdom and created wisdom met and found a most perfect home in the divine person of Jesus Christ and a most perfect resting place in the womb of the Blessed Virgin Mary, who herself is the human personification of created wisdom. For, indeed, at the conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary and the Incarnation of Jesus Christ, created "wisdom hath built herself a house." (Prv. 9:1)

Therefore, God's wisdom, such as mentioned in the Bible, is symbolic and a figure of God's Church (which during the New Covenant era is the Holy Catholic Church) and is symbolic and a figure of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

The following verses literally apply to the created wisdom that emanates from God and symbolically to the Blessed Virgin Mary and is symbolic of the Incarnation:

"I am the mother of fair love, and of fear, and of knowledge, and of holy hope. In me [my womb] is all grace of the way and of the truth [Jesus Christ]; in me is all hope of life and of virtue. Come over to me, all ye that desire me, and be filled with my fruits." (Eccus. 24:24-26)

What follows is the fulfillment of the symbol:

"In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God... AND THE WORD WAS MADE FLESH [in the womb of Mary] and dwelt among us, and we saw his glory, the glory as it were of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth." (Jn. 1:1, 14)

"Jesus saith to him: I am the way, and the truth, and the life." (Jn. 14:6)

In his foreknowledge, we can hear God, as recorded in the Bible, speaking to Mary and her speaking to him even before she is created. That God, in his foreknowledge, speaks thus to creatures who have not yet been created and they speak to him is testified to by King David. King David speaks of men that are not yet born but whom God has made, which, in context means men whom God has made in his foreknowledge but are not yet made:

<sup>2851</sup> At the instant that Jesus' human soul was created within his human body, the Holy Spirit bestowed created wisdom in his human soul. And at the same instant Jesus' human soul and all its faculties, which includes created wisdom, was deified and hence Jesus human nature, like his divine nature, is all powerful, all knowing, and all wise. (See Long Commentaries: "Jesus' Human Nature Was Divinized and Thus Is Divine," p. 1095.)

"There shall be declared to the Lord a generation to come, and the heavens shall shew forth his justice to a people that shall be born, which the Lord hath made." (Ps. 21:32)

And King David speaks of God seeing and knowing him before anything was created:

"Thine eyes did see mine unformed substance; and in thy book, they were all written, even the days that were fashioned when as yet there was none of them."

What follows is from my book Mary, God's Greatest Masterpiece, and Lucifer's Fall:

Let us listen to Mary converse with God before she was created, before she actually existed. This conversion takes place in the mind of God. Mary speaks of being God's primary thought, as existing before anything else created. She says that she was conceived in the mind of God before any other created thing. The following verses, then, symbolically refer to Mary but literally refer to the created wisdom that emanates from God:

"The Lord possessed me in the beginning of his ways, before he made any thing from the beginning. I was set up from eternity, and of old, before the earth was made. The depths were not as yet, and I was already conceived, neither had the fountains of waters as yet sprung out. The mountains, with their huge bulk, had not as yet been established: before the hills, I was brought forth: He had not yet made the earth, nor the rivers, nor the poles of the world. When he prepared the heavens, I was present: when with a certain law, and compass, he enclosed the depths: When he established the sky above, and poised the fountains of waters: When he compassed the sea with its bounds, and set a law to the waters that they should not pass their limits: when he balanced the foundations of the earth. (Prv. 8:22-29)

God created everything primarily for Mary. Everything was formed by God with Mary in mind. All things were formed with her as the template, the master form. "I was with him forming all things: and was delighted every day, playing before him at all times" (Prv. 8:30) And, Mary was destined to be created and dwell among men. "Playing in the world, and my delights were to be with the children of men." (Prv. 8:31)<sup>2852</sup>

<sup>2852</sup> For more, see RJMI book Mary, God's Greatest Masterpiece, and Lucifer's Fall. Also read the quotes on Wisdom in this commentary and think of the Holy Catholic Church and the Blessed Virgin Mary.

Beware, then, of the heretics who believe these verses literally refer to Mary and thus believe Mary's soul was the first thing God created and thus existed with God in heaven before she was born on earth. If that were so, then Mary would not have been surprised during the Incarnation and other events in her life. This is the heresy that Origin and others held, the preexistence of souls in heaven before they born on earth in their bodies.

Divorce and Remarriage

The allowable opinions for and against

Among those who hold the dogma that divorce and remarriage while both spouses are still alive is not intrinsically evil, as God allowed this during the Old Covenant era, and thus hold the dogma that laws regulating divorce and remarriage are disciplinary law, some believe Jesus allowed divorce and remarriage for fornication and similar sins while greatly limiting the reasons for it (which is the opinion I hold) while others believe that Jesus did not allow for any exceptions and thus under no circumstances can the faithful who are married divorce and remarry while both spouses are alive.:

A Dictionary of Christian Antiquities, by Smith and Cheetham, 1880: "The general conclusion that we arrive at from a review of the documents and authorities of the early church is that while the remarriage of the guilty party was sternly and uncompromisingly condemned, there was no consensus on the question of the lawfulness or unlawfulness of the remarriage of the innocent party."<sup>2853</sup>

The opinion that allows divorce and remarriage is based upon Matthew 19:9 and Matthew 5:32:

"And I say to you, that whosoever shall put away his wife, except it be for fornication, and shall marry another, committeth adultery: and he that shall marry her that is put away, committeth adultery." (Mt. 19:9)

"But I say to you, that whosoever shall put away his wife, excepting for the cause of fornication, maketh her to commit adultery: and he that shall marry her that is put away, committeth adultery." (Mt. 5:32)

The opinion that does not allow divorce and remarriage is based upon Lk. 16:18:

"Every one that putteth away his wife, and marrieth another, committeth adultery: and he that marrieth her that is put away from her husband, committeth adultery." (Lk. 16:18)

Those who hold the later opinion have to ignore or misinterpret Matthew 19:9 and Matthew 5:32 which, in my opinion, clearly say that a husband can put away his wife and marry another in the case of fornication. And fornication implies other sins of the same grave nature, just as the sixth command that forbids adultery does not only apply to adultery but all kinds of sexual sins, such as homosexuality. Now, according to this opinion, Lk. 16:18 is easily interpreted to mean that while a wife is still a wife, the husband cannot put her away and marry another. However, if his wife is no longer his wife due to divorce because of fornication, then he can put away the woman who is no longer his wife and marry another. The same applies to the following quotes from St. Paul

"But to them that are married, not I but the Lord commandeth, that the wife depart not from her husband [as long as he remains her husband]. And if she depart, that she remain unmarried, or be reconciled to her husband [and thus he is still her husband]. And let not the husband put away his wife [as long as she is his wife]." (1 Cor. 7:10-11)

"Know you not, brethren, (for I speak to them that know the law,) that the law hath dominion over a man, as long as it liveth? For the woman that hath an husband, whilst her husband liveth is bound to the law. But if her husband be dead, she is loosed from the law of her husband. Therefore, whilst her husband liveth [who is still her husband], she shall be called an adulteress, if she be with another man: but if her husband be dead, she is delivered from the law of her husband; so that she is not an adulteress, if she be with another man." (Rom. 7:1-3)

Hence these verses apply to baptized husbands and wives, not to baptized ex-husbands and ex-wives who got validly divorced and thus are no longer husbands and wives. These verses do not deal with the reasons that allow baptized spouses to divorce and remarry. However, Mt. 5:32 and Mt. 19: 9 do mention a reason that allows for divorce and remarriage—fornication.

Common sense defends the opinion for

I do not believe it is God's will that a wife whose husband greatly endangers the spiritual or physical welfare of his family must remain married to him unless he amends his ways. At first he should be separated from his family, if possible, with the hope that he repents. If he proves to be obstinate, then the wife must not only separate from him but she can also divorce him and remarry. The same applies to a husband whose wife greatly endangers the spiritual or physical welfare of her family.

Take the example of a 20-year-old wife whose husband looks at pornography and shows it to his children or worse sexually abuses or attempts to sexually abuse his children. At first, the wife and children must separate from him.<sup>2854</sup> And if he does not repent, she can divorce him and remarry. Surely, God would not want this young woman and her children to live the rest of their lives without a good husband and father to take care of them. The same applies to a drunkard husband who unjustly beats his wife and children. And the same applies to a husband whose wife greatly endangers the spiritual or physical welfare of her family.

But it is the Catholic Church who must judge and determine the just causes for divorce and remarriage in general and in specific cases, as spouses can lie, exaggerate, or seek divorce and remarriage for less serious or frivolous reasons.

Laws regulating divorce and remarriage are disciplinary laws and thus can be changed

Because laws regulating divorce and remarriage are disciplinary laws, they can be abolished, modified, or dispensed or exempted from. Hence even if Jesus did ban divorce and remarriage with no exceptions, a pope can change that law because it is a disciplinary law. The argument that disciplinary laws made directly by God can never be changed does not hold because God directly made disciplinary laws during the Old Testament era that were changed. For example, God directly gave the disciplinary law of circumcision to Abraham:

“Again God said to Abraham: And thou therefore shalt keep my covenant and thy seed after thee in their generations. This is my covenant which you shall observe, between me and you, and thy seed after thee. All the male kind of you shall be circumcised. And you shall circumcise the flesh of your foreskin that it may be for a sign of the covenant between me and you.” (Gen. 17:9-11)

Yet this law was abolished and not by Jesus and thus not directly by God but indirectly by God through the first pope. St. Peter, at the Council of Jerusalem in AD 50. Hence when Jesus said, “What therefore God hath joined together, let no man put asunder.” (Mk. 10:9), he meant that only God can directly put it asunder or indirectly through his representative on earth, which during the New Covenant era is the pope. Hence the pope, speaking for God, can put asunder disciplinary laws that were directly made by God.

Hence if Jesus did not allow exceptions for divorce and remarriage, a pope, and only a pope, can change the law. Yet if Jesus allows exceptions for divorce and remarriage, such as for fornication and similar sins, then a bishop can allow it without the need of the approval of a pope. Indeed, for at least the first 1000 years of Church, some bishops have allowed divorce and remarriage and thus imposed it upon their flocks. And, to my knowledge, no pope ever condemned them for it. And popes themselves have explicitly allowed it. Take the following examples.

Bishops who allowed divorce and remarriage

In the days of the apostate Origen

In the days of Origen, some Catholic bishops, Catholic commentaries, and local Catholic councils allowed it:

The apostate Cornelius a Lapide, Commentary on Mt. 19:9: “Origen, in this passage (Tract. 7), animadvertes severely upon certain bishops of his time, for conceding with Tertullian (lib. 4, cont. Marc.) and Ambrosiaster (in Cor. vii.), second nuptials to wives on account of the adultery of their husbands, saying that it is lawful for the innocent spouse to put away an adulterous partner, and to marry another. The same license is given by the Council of Illiberis [Elvira]. (31 quaest. 1 cap. Si qua mulier.) Also in Concil. Aurelian [Arles] 1, cap. 10.”

St. Hilary, Bishop of Poitiers

St. Hilary of Poitiers, Commentary of Matthew 5:32: “For while the law had granted the liberty of effecting divorce on the authority of a libellus, now the evangelical faith has not only enjoined on the husband the desire for concord, but has judged him guilty of compelling his wife to adultery if she is married again to another man because of the necessity of his departure; it prescribes no other ground for desisting from wedded life than the defilement of a husband by the society of a polluted wife.”<sup>2855</sup>

A History of Matrimonial Institutions, by George Elliott Howard, Ph.D., 1904: “[Footnote 4] Esmein, op. cit., II, 51. Chrysostom (De libello repudii, c. iii), Asterius of Amasea, Theodoret, and Hilarius of Poitiers all appear to hold that marriage is absolutely dissolved by adultery, from which the right of second marriage for both parties logically follows: ibid., II, 50, 51; Zhishman, op. cit., 101, 102; Geffcken, op. cit., 31.”<sup>2856</sup>

The apostate Bishop Basil of Cesarea

Apostate Basil of Caesarea, Letter 188, 4th century: “Canon 9. The sentence of the Lord that it is unlawful to withdraw from wedlock, save on account of fornication, applies, according to the argument, to men and women alike... But the man who has been abandoned is pardonable, and the woman who lives with such a man is not condemned. But if the man who has deserted his wife goes to another, he is himself an adulterer because he makes her commit adultery; and the woman who lives with him is an adulteress, because she has caused another woman's husband to come over to her.”

St. Ambrose, Bishop of Milan

The Ambrosiaster, which is said to be the work of St. Ambrose, allows divorce and remarriage for fornication but, oddly, only for the offended husband but not for the offended wife:

Ambrosiaster, 4th century, on 1 Cor. 7:11: “ ‘but if she does, let her remain single or else be reconciled to her husband—and that the husband should not divorce his wife.’ The apostle’s advice is as follows: If a woman has left her husband because of his bad behavior, she should remain unmarried or be reconciled to him. If she cannot control herself, because she is unwilling to struggle against the flesh, then let her be reconciled to her husband. A woman may not marry if she has left her husband because of his fornication or apostasy, or because, impelled by lust, he wishes to have sexual relations with her in an illicit way. This is so because the inferior party does not have the same rights under the law as the stronger one has. But if the husband turns away from the faith or desires to have perverted sexual relations, the wife may neither marry another nor return to him. The husband should not divorce his wife, though one should add the clause except for fornication. The reason why Paul does not add, as he does in the case of the woman, But if she departs, he should remain as he is because a man is allowed to remarry if he has divorced a sinful wife. The husband is not restricted by the law as a woman is, for the head of the woman is her husband.”

A History of Matrimonial Institutions, by George Elliott Howard, Ph.D., 1904: “By some Fathers the right of remarriage is conceded to the man repudiating a guilty wife, while they deny it to the woman under like conditions. Others, actuated by a livelier sense of justice, like Epiphanius, concede it to both consorts alike.”<sup>2857</sup>

Footnote 2: “Const, c. i. ad leg. Tul. (9. 9); Munchen, l.c. S. 58. It was not until the year 449 that the position of man and wife was put on the same footing in this respect.”

The heretic Epiphanes, Bishop of Salamis

Bishop Epiphanes was a non-notorious heretic most of the days he lived. Nevertheless, he, in my opinion, held the correct opinion that Jesus allows for divorce and remarriage for serious reasons:

Heretic Epiphanius, Panarion, c. 377: “But this can be tolerated in the laity as a concession to weakness—even remarriage after the first wife’s death by those who cannot stop with the first wife.

And the husband of [only] one wife is more highly respected and honored by all members of the church. But if the man could not be content with the one wife who had died, or if there has been a divorce for some reason—fornication, adultery or something else—and the man marries a second wife or the woman a second husband, God’s word does not censure them or bar them from the Church and life, but tolerates them because of their weakness. The holy word and God’s holy Church show mercy to such a person, particularly if he is devout otherwise and lives by God’s law not by letting him have two wives at once while the one is still alive, but by letting him marry a second wife lawfully if the opportunity arises after being parted from the first.”<sup>2858</sup>

The heretic Chromatius, Bishop of Aquileia

Heretic Chromatius, Tract 10, on Chapter 5 of St. Matthew: “He acts against the will of God who rashly presumes to separate by an illicit divorce a marriage united by God. Let them be aware, therefore, what a grave crime subject to damnation by God they commit who, for unbridled lust dismiss their wives (without cause of adultery) and seek to pass to another marriage. While it is unlawful to put away a chaste and pure wife, it is permitted to dismiss an adulteress because she has made herself unworthy of her husband’s relationship by sinning against her own body and daring to violate the temple of God.”

St. Asterius, Bishop of Amasea

St. Asterius, Homily 5, on Matthew 19:3: “You must hold this as entirely certain that nothing except death and adultery can dissolve marriage.”

The heretic John Chrysostom, Bishop of Constantinople

In the below quotes, Chrysostom teaches that adultery breaks the twain of spouses so that they are no longer one. He teaches that if the non-adulterous spouse remains with the adulterous spouse, he or she is joined to harlot and thus, by implication, not joined to a spouse. Hence the only conclusion is that adultery breaks the bond of marriage:

Heretic John Chrysostom, Homilies on the Gospel of St. John, Homily 63, c. 390: “4. ... ‘If any man put away his wife, saving for the cause of fornication, he causeth her to commit adultery.’ (Matt. v. 32.) For if the coming together maketh one body, he who cometh together with a harlot must needs become one body with her. How then shall the modest woman, being a member of Christ, receive such an one, or how shall she join to herself the member of an harlot... 'Shall I then make the members of Christ the members of an harlot?'... Sheep that are covered with the scab, and full of disease, may not herd with those that are in health; we must drive them from the fold until they get rid of the malady. We have been made members of Christ; let us not, I entreat, become members of an harlot."

Heretic John Chrysostom, Homilies on the Gospel of St. Matthew, Homily 17, c. 390: "4. 'Now it hath been said, Whosoever shall put away his wife, let him give her a writing of divorcement. But I say unto you, Whosoever shall put away his wife, saving for the cause of fornication, causeth her to commit adultery; and whosoever marrieth her that is put away, committeth adultery.' ...And not thus only, but in another way also he hath lightened the enactment: forasmuch as even for him he leaves one manner of dismissal, when He saith, 'Except for the cause of fornication;' since the matter had else come round again to the same issue. For if he had commanded to keep her in the house, though defiling herself with many, he would have made the matter end again in adultery."

St. Patrick, Bishop of Ireland

Synod of St. Patrick, 5th century:

"Canon 26. Of a prostitute wife: Hearken unto the Lord when he saith: 'He who is joined to a harlot is made one body.' Also, 'An adulteress shall be stoned'; that is, she shall die for this fault that she may cease to increase who does not cease to commit adultery. Further, if a woman has become corrupted, does she return to her former husband? Moreover, it is not permitted to a man to put away his wife, except because of fornication; and if he says it is for that reason; hence, if he marries another, as if after death of the former, [authorities] do not forbid it."

"Canon 28. Of the first or the second vows: "First vows and first marriages are to be observed in the same way, that the first be not made void for the second, unless they have been stained with adultery."

This is admitted to by the apostate Bishop Anthony J. Bevilacqua:

The History of the Indissolubility of Marriage, by apostate Anthony J. Bevilacqua, 1967: "Canons 26 and 28 admit remarriage for the innocent husband in the case of the divorce of his wife because of adultery."<sup>2859</sup>

St. Augustine, Bishop of Hippo

In his Retractations, St. Augustine says that divorce and remarriage is one of the most difficult topics to deal with and warned his readers not to follow his opinion blindly because he is not sure of it himself:

St. Augustine, Retractations, 426-428: "Two Books to Pollentius on Adulterous Marriages: "I wrote two books on adulterous marriages with the desire of solving, according to the Scriptures, to the best of my ability, a very difficult question. I do not know whether I have done this very clearly. On the contrary, I think that I did not reach a perfect solution of this question, although I have clarified many of its obscurities, as anyone who reads intelligently will be able to judge."<sup>2860</sup>

No doubt St. Augustine was uncertain and confused over this topic and thus in some places he seems to allow divorce and remarriage for fornication but in others he teaches the opposite. For example, in 413 in his book On Faith and Works, he is not certain if fornication allows for divorce and remarriage:

St. Augustine, On Faith and Works, 413: "It does not seem right that whoever puts away his wife caught in adultery and marries another ought to be reduced to the equality of those who put away their wives for another reason than adultery, and remarry.<sup>4</sup> In the divine expressions themselves it is not clear whether one would be considered an adulterer if, having lawfully put away an adulteress, he should marry again; so that in this case, according to my judgment, one might be pardonably mistaken."<sup>2861</sup>

A Dictionary of Christian Antiquities, by Smith and Cheetham, 1880: "[On] Remarriage after divorce: ...St. Augustine speaks with hesitation (De Fide et Oper. c. xix.. Op. tom. vi. p. 221)."<sup>2862</sup>

In 419 in his book On Adulterous Marriages, he seems to contradict himself. In the following quote, he teaches that fornication is a reason for divorce and remarriage:

St. Augustine, On Adulterous Marriages, to Pollentius, Book 1, 419: [c. 3] Therefore, in giving the precept, the Apostle does not command the woman to remain unwed after she departs, unless she leaves her husband for that cause alone which makes it lawful for her to depart from him... [c. 5] If he committed fornication, not only would she be permitted to depart, but she would even be permitted to remarry... [c. 6] You have clearly given good advice to wives in urging them not to separate from their husbands, but, rather, to bear with them, although they are aware that the freedom has been given them to be joined to other spouses, if they put away their adulterous husbands."

But in the following quote from the same work, he teaches fornication does not allow for divorce and remarriage but only separation:

St. Augustine, On Adulterous Marriages, to Pollentius, Book 1, 419: “[c. 6] When we say, therefore, that even the woman who has put away an unfaithful husband is not given the freedom to marry another, you still maintain that it is indeed lawful, but not expedient. We both undoubtedly agree that the woman who puts away an unfaithful husband ought not to remarry. But this fact is important, namely, that, when both spouses are Christian, we say that a wife is not allowed to marry another if she departs from a fornicator.”

The logical conclusion in his Book 1, until this quote in Chapter 6, is that he is speaking of Christian spouses because he binds them to New Testament verses. If they were not Christian spouses, then they are not bound the Christian laws of marriage, as contained in the New Testament and decreed by the Catholic Church. But in this above quote in Chapter 6, he tells the reader by implication that all along he was speaking of non-Christian spouses in the quotes in which he allows for divorce and remarriage for fornication; if so, then why apply New Testament verse and laws regarding Christian marriage to them! But in Chapter 6, he takes the reader by surprise by referring to Christian spouses as if all along he was not speaking of non-Christian spouses. And here is where he gives his opinion that fornication allows Christian spouse to separate but not remarry.

Hence St. Augustine’s uncertainty and confusion regarding this topic is manifest, as he himself acknowledged in his Retractions.

Popes who allowed divorce and remarriage

Pope St. Innocent I

In the following letter, Pope Innocent I implies that the innocent spouse can remarry if he or she obtained a divorce, which hence breaks the bond of marriage:

Pope St. Innocent I, Letter 36, to Probum, 5th century: “Wherefore, we decide, in accordance with the prescriptions of the Catholic Faith, that that is the marriage which was established by divine grace in the first place and that the union with the second wife can in no way be legal since the first wife is still alive and was not dismissed by divorce.”

Pope St. Gregory II

Pope Gregory II, Quod Proposuit, 726: “As regards your question what a husband is to do if his wife has been attacked by illness so that she is incapable of conjugal intercourse? It were best if he could continue as he is and practice self-restraint. But since this demands exceptional virtue, the man who cannot live in continence, had better marry. But let him not fail to furnish her with support, since she is kept from married life by sickness, not debarred from it by some abominable offence.”<sup>2863</sup>

Pope St. Zacharias

Apostate Peter Lombard, Sentences, 1150: “3. Pope Zacharias [d.752]. Also Pope Zacharias: ‘Did you sleep with your wife’s sister? If you have done this, you shall have neither of them; and your wife, if she did not know of your crime and does not wish to practice continence, may marry in the Lord whomever she pleases. But you and the adulteress will remain without hope of marriage, and do penance for so long as you live.’<sup>2864</sup> ...<sup>2865</sup>

“2 ...Pope Zacharias. Hence Pope Zacharias: ‘If any free man has taken a woman of servile condition in marriage, he is not to have license to dismiss her if they were joined by their common consent, except in the case of fornication.’<sup>2866</sup> He is discussing those to whom each other’s condition is known when they are joined in marriage.”<sup>2867</sup>

Councils that allowed divorce and remarriage

Council of Arles, 314

There are two translations of the Council of Arles’ Canon 10. One upholds the opinion that divorce and remarriage between Christian spouses is allowed the other does not. The former has the word “not” and the latter does not. What follows is the translation with the word “not” which upholds the opinion that divorce and remarriage is allowed:

Council of Arles, 314: “Canon 10. Concerning those young men who are Christians who apprehend their wives in adultery and are not forbidden to marry, we decree that, as far as it is possible, counsel be given them not to take other wives while their own, though guilty of adultery, are still living.”

With the word “not” removed, the meaning is the opposite, which upholds the opinion the remarriage is not allowed. The definitive proof that “not” is in the original is the last part of the decree which says,

“We decree that, as far as it is possible, counsel be given them not to take other wives.”

Counsel gives men advice not commands. Hence if remarriage was forbidden by this law (as would be the

case if the word “not” was not in the decree), then it is not a matter of counsel but of command, of necessity under pain of sin. Hence the decree would have been worded like this:

“We decree that they may not take other wives.”

The translation with the word “not” is contained Gratian’s Decretals, in the works of Petavius, and other sources. The translation without the word “not” is contained in Mansi (2, 472), Hefele’s History of the Councils, and other sources:

Divorce and Remarriage, by apostate Rev. Victor J. Pospishil, Canon Lawyer, 1967: “In some manuscripts the particle ‘not’ is missing, but the Codex Herovallianus (Heronville) supplies it. However, even without it the meaning would be clear, because otherwise why should they be counseled not to marry if they could not marry anyway? Jacques Petit, who in the seventeenth century prepared an edition of the acts of the council, quotes St. Augustine’s opinion on this decision: ‘The Fathers of this very renowned council do not inflict any punishment but give only a counsel. Thus, the Fathers say that the matter is not forbidden.’”<sup>2868</sup>

Council of Vannes, 465

A Dictionary of Christian Antiquities, by Smith and Cheetham, 1880: “Remarriage after divorce... Remarriage in the man is by implication permitted by the council of Vannes, A.D. 465 (can. ii. Hard. Concil. tom. ii. p. 797).”<sup>2869</sup>

Council of Vannes, 465: “Canon 2. Those also who have abandoned their wives, except for the cause of fornication, as the Gospel says, without proof of adultery, and have married others, we decree are to be excommunicated, lest the sins overlooked through our indulgence entice others to the license of error.”

Hence husbands who divorce their wives with proof of adultery and remarry are justified and thus not punished.

Council of Agde, 506

This council allows Christian spouses to divorce and remarry only for a good cause and only by a declaration from a bishop:

Council of Agde, 506: “Canon 25. Inasmuch as they dishonor both their faith and their marriage, those laymen are to be excluded from the communion of the Church and from the holy community of the people who dismiss or have already dismissed their conjugal fellowship because of a grave fault and who do not offer any satisfactory grounds for the severance, and thereby forsake their marriage for no other reason than that they may presume to form relationships that are unlawful or with other men’s wives, if they put away their wives before they have declared the cause of the separation in the presence of the bishop of the province, and before their wives have been condemned by the court (civil).”

Council of Verberie, 752

Council of Verberie, 752: “[PALEA. C. 6.] If a woman plotted her husband’s death with others, and her husband killed one of them defending himself, the husband may prove her complicity and, in our opinion, dismiss his wife and take another if he wishes. Let the conspirator herself be subject to penance, without hope of marriage.”

Council of Compiègne, 756

Roman legates attended this council:

The History of the Indissolubility of Marriage, by apostate Bishop Anthony J. Bevilacqua, 1967: “Shortly after the Council of Verberies, the Council of Compiègne was convened in 756. Present at the Council were two Roman legates, George, bishop of Ostia, and John the Sacellarius. Also present was an ambassador from the Emperor Constantine V Copronymus. Separation is decreed of obligation if the wife commits incest with her brother-in-law; in which case the husband has the right to remarry (canon 11). Separation was also obligatory if the husband contracted spiritual affinity with his wife by acting as god-parent to a step-child at confirmation. In this case, however, neither the husband nor the wife could remarry (canon 15).

“Contrary to the Council of Verberies, remarriage is permitted if one partner permits the other to enter the religious life (canon 16). If one of the spouses contracts leprosy, the marriage may be dissolved by mutual consent and the party free from the disease may marry again (canon 19). Also contrary to the Council of Verberies, compulsory flight from one’s country does not give the right to remarriage (canon 21).

“Canon 9 contains a strange ruling. A vassal follows his lord to a new fief. Upon the lord’s death a new lord gives the vassal a wife. After a time, the vassal returns to the family of his first lord and marries another wife on their estates. The canon decrees that the second marriage and not the first must remain intact (canon 9).”<sup>2870</sup>

“The Councils of Verberies and Compiègne continued what the Penitentials of Theodore had begun. The Frankish Church accepted their decrees as authoritative. Some of the canons became incorporated in collections of Benedict Levita,

Annulment is divorce by another name

The opinion that Jesus forbid divorce and remarriage for any reason and that no pope can change that law did not begin to make steady progress until the 12th century:

Divorce and Remarriage, by apostate Rev. Victor J. Pospishil, Canon Lawyer, 1967: "After a study of the testimony of tradition given in the following sections and of the pertinent texts in the appendixes, the reader will understand why one can consider as exaggerations such statements as, for example, 'The Catholic Church and Catholic theology have always maintained...' or 'The testimonies of the Fathers and of the councils leave us no room for doubt that...' This is simply not true. There are only a few documents before the end of the first millennium attesting to the absolute rejection of divorce. Only after the reform of Cluny in the tenth century and the foundation of the first universities can it be said that the Western Church established a clear policy and doctrine prohibiting divorce; and the fact is that there is no document of the first centuries which would clearly and unequivocally exclude divorce in the case of adultery on the part of the wife and at the same time forbid a subsequent remarriage of the innocent husband. Or to say it more plainly: there are no witnesses of the early Church... which would support the present Catholic doctrine on the indissolubility of sacramental marriages.

"For the present purpose it would be sufficient to submit testimony by a not too small number of witnesses to the effect that divorce and remarriage were permitted in not too rare instances. This would establish the absence of a uniform, determined doctrine on this subject. But actually the passages gathered from the writings of various authors and the canons of synods, patriarchs, and popes, insinuating the permissibility of divorce are so numerous that there cannot be any doubt of the absence of the principle of absolute indissolubility...

"One can assert, speaking only quantitatively, that is, looking at the amount of documents from those times, and not so much to the qualitative value of each, that up to the eleventh century there was no difference between the Eastern and Western Churches in the question of divorce. It was permitted for many grounds, although isolated voices were heard which sought to allow divorce on the basis of adultery alone. These few representatives of a stricter interpretation of the law on divorce gained a larger audience during the Gregorian reform, so that in the Western Church of the twelfth century it came to be accepted, at least theoretically, that all divorces of sacramental marriages are forbidden. The tradition of the ancient Church and the practice of the Eastern Churches was ignored...<sup>2872</sup>

As the opinion that divorce and remarriage is forbidden for any reason became the dominant opinion, divorce and remarriage was still allowed (such as for impotence or taking religious vows), but it was no longer called divorce but was called annulment. Hence, some have rightly referred to annulments as Catholic divorce and pointed out the hypocrisy, just as natural family planning to prevent conception is called Catholic contraception.

After all, an annulment means that something has to first exist before it can be annulled. It is one thing for the marriage rite to be null and void due to improper form or matter and thus never existed but quite another thing for the marriage rite to be valid and then annulled.

Some dishonestly make the case the annulments declare that the marriage rite was invalid and thus the marriage never existed. This would only be true if the marriage rite was invalid due to improper form or matter, which includes the inability of the spouses to marry (such as if the woman is married to another man).<sup>2873</sup> But so-called annulments of valid marriages dissolve the marriage bond and thus are divorce by another name.

For example, annulments can be given for impotence that is discovered after marriage (known as antecedent impotence). The non-impotent spouse can either remain married or appeal for an annulment which breaks the bond of marriage and allows the non-impotent spouse to remarry. Proof that the marriage bond existed is if the non-impotent spouse does not appeal for an annulment, he or she simply remains married and thus does not have to get married again.

The same applies to annulments given to a spouse who takes religious vows in which the marriage bond is broken and the spouse who does not take religious vows is free to marry again. This marriage existed up until the point that one spouse took religious vows and thus the marriage bond was dissolved and not declared to have never existed. Hence is another example that annulment is just another name for divorce.

Those who called divorces annulments knew about this dilemma and thus formulated a new theology to defend their opinion in which they split marriage into two phases and thus had two kinds of marriage: unconsummated marriages and consummated marriages. For at least the first 1000 years of the Catholic Church there was no separate category for marriages that were not consummated and marriages that were.<sup>2874</sup> If the marriage rite was valid, the spouses were married and the full sense of the way. In the 12th century several theologians began to make a distinction between marriages that were consummated and not consummated. Some, such as the apostate Gratian, said that marriages that are not consummated are not marriages at all; hence the spouses had to consummate the marriage after their marriage rite for them to be married. But others said that if that were true, then St. Joseph and the Blessed Virgin Mary were not married because they never consummated their marriage. Then others came up with another theology which split marriage into two categories. Some referred to unconsummated marriages as imperfect marriage and consummated marriages as perfect marriage. But this was also an insult to Joseph and Mary by making their marriage imperfect. Others said that unconsummated marriages are incomplete marriages while consummated marriages are complete marriages. But this, too, is an insult to Joseph and Mary by making their most holy of all marriages incomplete.

The reason the theologians did this was to pretend to uphold their opinion the divorce and remarriage is never allowed for any reason by applying this only to consummated marriages but not to unconsummated marriages because unconsummated marriage, according to their new theology, are imperfect or incomplete. For example the nominal Catholic Encyclopedia teaches this:

Nominal Catholic Encyclopedia, Divorce: “The Catholic doctrine on divorce may be summed up in the following propositions:

“1) In Christian marriage, which implies the restoration, by Christ Himself, of marriage to its original indissolubility, there can never be an absolute divorce, at least after the marriage has been consummated;...

“3) Christian marriage before consummation can be dissolved by solemn profession in a religious order, or by an act of papal authority...”

The question must then be asked, If unconsummated marriages are marriages nevertheless, then in order for the spouses to remarry, the marriage bond, imperfect and incomplete as it is, must still be broken, which is divorce, the dissolution, the breaking, of the marriage bond.

In Matthew 19:9, Christ did not make any distinction between consummated and unconsummated marriages. And neither did any Catholic or so-called Catholic until Hincmar of Rheims and in the 9th century and then others in the 12th century. And it was not taught by any pope or so-called pope until apostate Antipope Alexander III (d. 1181) in the 12th century.

<sup>2874</sup> Hincmar of Rheims (d. 882) is said to be the founder of this opinion. But it did not begin to become popular until the 12th century.

Those who acknowledge the need of an infallible papal decree

In the 16th century and before the Council of Trent, the apostate Thomas Cajetan said the following:

Apostate Thomas Cajetan (d. 1534), Commentary on Mt. 19:9, 16th century: “But what about dismissing a wife of fornications, and the other, under the leadership, of the text, this has nothing to say. ... He that leaves his wife for the cause of fornication and shall marry another does not commit adultery. I respond that the sound of the text is according to the plain literal sense: But, since I do not dare to oppose the torrent of doctors and ecclesiastical judges, I have nothing to regulate the text dismissing a whore. I understand, then, that out of this, the law of the Lord Jesus Christ, a Christian should be allowed to divorce his wife for sexual immorality, according to the flesh of the unlawfully fornicating wife, and to be able to marry another wife, always safeguarding the Church’s definition, which up to now does not appear.”<sup>2875</sup>

If the Council of Trent were a valid Catholic council, then the opinion that Jesus Christ does not allow divorce and remarriage for adultery would be infallible. However, not only is that council invalid but it contains several heresies, other errors, and contradictions. And its teachings on divorce and remarriage are not only inadequate for not addressing many important topics but also contain contradictions. Hence some nominal Catholic theologians after that council still believed that an infallible papal definition is needed to clearly and completely define which opinion it true. For example, even though Bishop Anthony J. Bevilacqua was an apostate and his article titled The History of the Indissolubility of Marriage (1967) contains errors, willful ambiguity, deceptions, and omission (though not as many as others dealing with this topic), he nevertheless acknowledged that a pope is needed to infallibly settle this legitimate dispute:

The History of the Indissolubility of Marriage, by apostate Bishop Anthony J. Bevilacqua, 1976: “Conclusion: ... There seems to be no doubt that within the near future the question of divorce and remarriage in the Catholic Church will become a very controversial issue. It is essential that the Church be able to engage in the controversy with objectivity and clarity. Unfortunately, the history of the permanence of the marital bond has been neglected. More research into this teaching is required and urgently required. It is hoped that this general study presented in this article will in some small way stimulate others to carry out more original and deeper research into this area of vital importance to the Church.<sup>2876</sup>

I have much more evidence dealing with this topic and related topics, but this will suffice for now. If I have some spare time, I will publish a book regarding this topic and related topics. Look forward to a future pope to infallibly define that Jesus did allow for divorce and remarriage for adultery and similar sins and that popes have the authority to allow divorce and remarriage for other good reasons because the laws dealing with divorce and remarriage are disciplinary laws. And this applies not only to unconsummated marriages but also to consummated marriages.

Dreams

“And he saw in his sleep a ladder standing upon the earth, and the top thereof touching heaven: the angels also of God ascending and descending by it...” (Gen. 28:12)

Gen. 28:12. He saw in his sleep: Dreams are either from God, the Devil, or men’s imaginations. Dreams that are not from the true God are not to be observed but are to be rejected:

“Deceitful divinations and lying omens and the dreams of evildoers are vanity.” (Eccus. 34:5)

However, dreams that are from God are to be observed:

“Hear my words: if there be among you a prophet of the Lord, I will appear to him in a vision or I will speak to him in a dream.” (Num. 12:6)

God gives dreams not just to believers (such as Jacob, Gen. 28; Joseph, Gen. 37; Judas Machabees, 2 Mac. 5:11; and St. Joseph, Mt. 1:20; 2:12) but also to unbelievers (such as Pharaoh, Gen. 41; Nabuchodonosor, Dan. 2; Laban, Gen. 31:22-24; and Pilate’s wife, Mt. 27:19) in order to warn them against harming his chosen people, to try to convert them, to help them defeat an enemy, to warn them of their sins or future destruction, or for some other reason.

When dreams are from God, the interpretation of them is a gift from God. But most dreams are not of this sort but either proceed from the natural complexions and dispositions of persons, or the roving of their imaginations in the day on such objects as they are much affected with, or from their mind being disturbed with cares and troubles and oppressed with bodily infirmities; or they are suggested by evil spirits to flatter or to terrify minds in order to gain belief and so draw them into error or superstition, or to trouble them in their sleep because they cannot influence them when they are awake. (See Job 7:14.) Most dreams are not from God:

“Where there are many dreams, there are many vanities and words without number.” (Ectes. 5:6)

If dreams that are not from God are not rejected, they will deceive the dreamers and those who give credit to the dreams:

“The hopes of a man that is void of understanding are vain and deceitful, and dreams lift up fools. The man that giveth heed to lying visions is like to him that catcheth at a shadow and followeth after the wind... What can be made clean by the unclean? And what truth can come from that which is false? Deceitful divinations and lying omens and the dreams of evildoers are vanity: And the heart fancieth as that of a woman in travail; except it be a vision sent forth from the most High, set not thy heart upon them. For dreams have deceived many, and they have failed that put their trust in them. The word of the law shall be fulfilled without a lie, and wisdom shall be made plain in the mouth of the faithful.” (Eccus. 34:1-8)

Hence dreams that are against the true God and true faith or immoral are known for certain to not be of God and thus must be rejected. That is one way that false prophets and lying dreamers are exposed and condemned:

“If there rise in the midst of thee a prophet or one that saith he hath dreamed a dream, and he foretell a sign and a wonder, and that come to pass which he spoke, and he say to thee: Let us go and follow strange gods, which thou knowest not, and let us serve them: Thou shalt not hear the words of that prophet or dreamer, for the Lord your God trieth you that it may appear whether you love him with all your heart and with all your soul or not.” (Deut. 13:1-3)

“I have heard what the prophets said that prophesy lies in my name, and say: I have dreamed, I have dreamed. How long shall this be in the heart of the prophets that prophesy lies and that prophesy the delusions of their own heart? Who seek to make my people forget my name through their dreams, which they tell every man to his neighbour, as their fathers forgot my name for Baal. The prophet that hath a dream, let him tell a dream; and he that hath my word, let him speak my word with truth. What hath the chaff to do with the wheat, saith the Lord?” (Jer. 23:25-28)

Eye for an Eye, Turn the Other Cheek, and Let Go of Thy Cloak

Eye for eye

“You have heard that it hath been said, An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth.” (Mt. 5:38)

Mt. 5:38. Eye for an eye: This law is just, as God himself ordained it (Ex. 21:24), (Lev. 24:20), (Deut. 19:21). What Jesus is condemning is acts of personal revenge, which are always sinful, and which never end the cycle of violence and thus lead to endless feuds because man kills not for justice and the common good but for personal revenge. For example, a man who rapes another man's wife can be justly killed and that is not an act of personal revenge but an act of revenge based on justice. However, if the sons of the man who was justly killed strike back and kill the man whose wife was raped, then that is an act of personal revenge and thus unjust and sinful. It is murder!

Jesus is also condemning those who show no mercy when mercy is due because of sincere repentance. For example, the penalty for adultery is death, but Jesus had mercy on the adulterous woman and gave her a dispensation from the death penalty because of her sincere repentance and because those who condemned her were hypocrites who were committing the same or other mortal sins that were also worthy of death. (Jn. 8) So in this case Jesus is telling them that if you want an eye for an eye without mercy, then you will also lose an eye for an eye without mercy because of your sins of the same magnitude. And this law of mercy which mitigates the law of an eye for an eye was also in effect during the Old Covenant era when God forgave David's adultery and murder and dispensed with the death penalty because of David's sincere confession and repentance. However, till the day David died, God punished him in other ways because of these sins. So we see that even though the eye-for-an-eye law was in effect during the Old Covenant era, it was not always enforced. Likewise, the eye-for-an-eye law is still in force during the New Covenant era but under certain circumstances it should not be enforced and thus should be dispensed with.

Turn the other cheek

"But I say to you not to resist evil: but if one strike thee on thy right cheek, turn to him also the other."
(Mt. 5:39)

Mt. 5:39. Not to resist evil: What is here commanded is a Christian patience under injuries and affronts and to be willing even to suffer still more rather than to indulge the desire of personal revenge. And many times when attacked, it is better to do nothing and defuse further conflict. However, as proved by other Bible verses, Jesus does not condemn acts of justified vengeance, such as magistrates punishing criminals, soldiers killing and wounding men in just wars, men defending their life or property or reputation, or parents punishing their children. For example, St. John the Baptist did not tell soldiers who were believers to leave the army and thus no longer fight in wars: "And the soldiers also asked him, saying: And what shall we do? And he said to them: Harass no man, neither calumniate any man, and be content with your pay." (Lk. 3:14)

St. Paul says that God authorizes ministers of justice to punish criminals in an act of justice: "For he is God's minister to thee, for good. But if thou do that which is evil, fear: for he beareth not the sword in vain. For he is God's minister: an avenger to execute wrath upon him that doth evil." (Rom. 13:4)

In an act of justice and righteous revenge, Jesus tells Christians to kill his enemies and thus not turn the other cheek: "But as for those my enemies, who would not have me reign over them, bring them hither and kill them before me." (Lk. 19:27)

In an act of justice and righteous revenge, God gives the Two Witnesses the authority and power to kill many people: "These have power to shut heaven that it rain not in the days of their prophecy; and they have power over waters to turn them into blood and to strike the earth with all plagues as often as they will." (Apoc. 11:6)

In an act of justice and for the reputation of God, Jesus did not turn the other cheek but whipped the money changers out of the Temple: "And he found in the temple them that sold oxen and sheep and doves, and the changers of money sitting. And when he had made, as it were, a scourge of little cords, he drove them all out of the temple, the sheep also and the oxen; and the money of the changers he poured out, and the tables he overthrew." (Jn. 2:14-15)

In an act of justice and righteous anger, Jesus did not turn the other cheek when struck but instead condemned the striker: "And when he had said these things, one of the servants standing by, gave Jesus a blow, saying: Answerest thou the high priest so? Jesus answered him: If I have spoken evil, give testimony of the evil; but if well, why strikest thou me?" (Jn. 18:22-23)

In an act of justice and righteous anger, St. Paul did not turn the other cheek when struck but instead condemned the striker: "And the high priest Ananias commanded them that stood by him to strike him [St. Paul] on the mouth. Then Paul said to him: God shall strike thee, thou whited wall. For sittest thou to judge me according to the law, and contrary to the law commandest me to be struck?" (Acts 23:1-3)

And regarding the meaning of "an eye for an eye" and "turn the other cheek," St. Augustine says,

St. Augustine, Sermon on the Mount, 393-394:
"56. Hence the Lord goes on to say: 'Ye have heard that it hath been said, An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth: but I say unto you, that ye resist not evil; but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also...'

"63. [However,] are we thus precluded from inflicting such punishment [requitual] as avails for correction, and as compassion itself dictates; nor does it stand in the way of that course proposed, where one is prepared to endure more at the hand of him whom he wishes to set right. But no one is fit for inflicting this punishment except the man who, by the greatness of his love, has overcome that hatred wherewith those are wont to be inflamed who wish to avenge themselves. For it is not to be feared that parents would seem to hate a little son when, on committing an offence, he is beaten by them that he may not go on offending. And certainly the perfection of love is set before us by the imitation of God the Father himself when it is said in what follows: 'Love your enemies, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which persecute you'; and yet it is said of him by the prophet, 'For whom the Lord loveth he correcteth; yea, he scourgeth every son whom he receiveth.’ The Lord also says, ‘The servant that knows not his Lord’s will, and does things worthy of stripes, shall be beaten with few stripes; but the servant that knows his Lord’s will, and does things worthy of stripes, shall be beaten with many stripes.’ No more, therefore, is sought for, except that he should punish to whom, in the natural order of things, the power is given; and that he should punish with the same goodwill which a father has towards his little son, whom by reason of his youth he cannot yet hate. For from this source the most suitable example is drawn in order that it may be sufficiently manifest that sin can be punished in love rather than be left unpunished; so that one may wish him on whom he inflicts it not to be miserable by means of punishment, but to be happy by means of correction, yet be prepared, if need be, to endure with equanimity more injuries inflicted by him whom he wishes to be corrected, whether he may have the power of putting restraint upon him or not.

“64. But great and holy men, although they at the time knew excellently well that that death which separates the soul from the body is not to be dreaded, yet, in accordance with the sentiment of those who might fear it, punished some sins with death, both because the living were struck with a salutary fear, and because it was not death itself that would injure those who were being punished with death, but sin, which might be increased if they continued to live. They did not judge rashly on whom God had bestowed such a power of judging. Hence it is that Elias inflicted death on many, both with his own hand and by calling down fire from heaven; as was done also without rashness by many other great and godlike men, in the same spirit of concern for the good of humanity. And when the disciples had quoted an example from this Elias, mentioning to the Lord what had been done by him, in order that he might give to themselves also the power of calling down fire from heaven to consume those who would not show him hospitality, the Lord reproved in them, not the example of the holy prophet, but their ignorance in respect to taking vengeance, their knowledge being as yet elementary; perceiving that they did not in love desire correction, but in hatred desired revenge. Accordingly, after he had taught them what it was to love one’s neighbour as oneself, and when the Holy Spirit had been poured out, whom, at the end of ten days after his ascension, he sent from above, as he had promised, there were not wanting such acts of vengeance, although much more rarely than in the Old Testament. For there, for the most part, as servants they were kept down by fear; but here mostly as free they were nourished by love. For at the words of the Apostle Peter also, Ananias and his wife, as we read in the Acts of the Apostles, fell down dead, and were not raised to life again, but buried.

“65. But if the heretics who are opposed to the Old Testament will not credit this book, let them contemplate the Apostle Paul, whose writings they read along with us, saying with respect to a certain sinner whom he delivered over to Satan for the destruction of the flesh, ‘that the spirit may be saved.’ And if they will not here understand death (for perhaps it is uncertain), let them acknowledge that punishment [requital] of some kind or other was inflicted by the apostle through the instrumentality of Satan; and that he did this not in hatred, but in love, is made plain by that addition ‘that the spirit may be saved.’ Or let them notice what we say in those books to which they themselves attribute great authority, where it is written that the Apostle Thomas imprecated on a certain man, by whom he had been struck with the palm of the hand, the punishment of death in a very cruel form, while yet commending his soul to God, that it might be spared in the world to come,—whose hand, torn from the rest of his body after he had been killed by a lion, a dog brought to the table at which the apostle was feasting.”<sup>2877</sup>

(See commentary on Rom. 12:19.)

Let go of thy cloak also

“And if any man will sue thee at the law and take away thy coat, let him have thy cloak also.” (Mt. 5:40)

Mt. 5:40. Let him have thy cloak also: If any man go to law to take away one of your possessions and wins his case and you have no recourse to appeal to a higher court, give him what he won; and if he won it unjustly, give him a little more to shame him. And in some cases, to avoid going to court and wasting your time and money, give him what he wants and even a little more if you must to avoid going to court. However, this does not mean that Catholics must let a thief steal without attempting to bring him to justice. Justice must be sought and thus the thief must be caught and punished and the goods returned if possible or else lawlessness and disorder will prevail. For what good is God’s Seventh Commandment of “Thou shalt not steal” if it is not enforced. For example, when Ananias and Saphira lied to St. Peter by not giving him all they promised but held some back by deceit, God did not let them go and give back more of what they promised but in justice killed them instead. (Acts 5) If God had not killed them, then many would have lied to and deceived St. Peter and thus not given to the Church what they promised, vowed, or even owed (such as tithes) and thus the Church would eventually not be able to function unless justice intervened. And even worse, God and his ministers would be condoning and even promoting thieves and thus be partners in their sins and crimes. Thus God’s ministers would blaspheme God, put their souls in the way of damnation, leave the thieves in damnation by not justly condemning and punishing them if possible, and encourage others to become thieves.

Ezekiel's Vision of the Second Temple, Jerusalem, and Israel

The vision

Before the first temple fell, the Prophet Ezekiel was taken into the Babylonian Captivity with King Joachin. He was contemporary with Jeremias and prophesied to the same effect in Babylon as Jeremias did in Jerusalem. While he was in Babylon, the First temple was destroyed by the Babylonians.

In the 14th year after the Temple was destroyed, God gave Ezekiel a vision of what the second Temple, Jerusalem, and Israel should look like when the Temple will be rebuilt and Jerusalem and Israel re-occupied after the Israelites return from their 70-year captivity in Babylon:

“In the five and twentieth year of our captivity, in the beginning of the year, the tenth day of the month, the fourteenth year after the city was destroyed: in the selfsame day the hand of the Lord was upon me, and he brought me thither. In the visions of God he brought me into the land of Israel, and set me upon a very high mountain: upon which there was as the building of a city, bending towards the south.” (Ez. 40:1-2)

This vision was meant not only to let the Israelites know God's plans for the second temple, Jerusalem, and Israel but to remind them that God had not abandoned them and that he will restore them to the Promised Land and they will rebuild the Temple.

Ezekiel's vision of the second temple, Jerusalem, and Israel is recorded in Chapters 40 to 48.

The second temple was meant to be more glorious than the first

The plans for the second Temple were grander than the first temple because God himself, Jesus Christ, the Messiah, will come into the second temple. The plans for the second temple were grander than the first temple because God himself, Jesus Christ, the Messiah, will come into the second temple. Indeed, regarding the second temple and Jerusalem in those days, Ezekiel says,

“And the name of the city [Jerusalem] from that day [shall be called], The Lord is there.” (Ez. 48:35)

And the Prophet Malachias also foretold that God will come into the second temple:

“Behold I send my messenger [John the Baptist], and he shall prepare the way before my face. And presently the Lord [Jesus Christ] whom you seek, and the messenger of the testament whom you desire, shall come to his temple [the second temple]. Behold he cometh, saith the Lord of hosts.” (Mala. 3:1)

On his return from the Babylonian Exile, the Prophet Aggeus oversaw the building of the second temple and exhorted Zorobabel, the prince of Juda, and Jesus, the high priest, to build the temple. God, speaking through the Prophet Aggeus, said that the Messiah, God the Son, will dwell in the second temple and that it will be more glorious than the first temple:

“For thus saith the Lord of hosts: Yet one little while, and I will move the heaven and the earth, and the sea, and the dry land. And I will move all nations: AND THE DESIRED OF ALL NATIONS SHALL COME [Jesus Christ]: and I will fill this house with glory [the second temple]: saith the Lord of hosts. The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, saith the Lord of hosts. Great shall be the glory of this last house more than of the first, saith the Lord of hosts: and in this place I will give peace, saith the Lord of hosts.” (Agge. 2:7-10)

The second temple was meant to be more glorious than the First not only physically but also, and more importantly, spiritually. Indeed, it was more glorious spiritual because the Messiah, who is not only man but also God, came into it and brought redemption to the world. The first time God came into the second temple as an inhabitant and dweller in Israel was when the infant Jesus was presented in the temple:

“And after eight days were accomplished, that the child should be circumcised, his name was called JESUS, which was called by the angel, before he was conceived in the womb. And after the days of her purification, according to the law of Moses, were accomplished, they carried him to Jerusalem, to present him to the Lord: As it is written in the law of the Lord: Every male opening the womb shall be called holy to the Lord: And to offer a sacrifice, according as it is written in the law of the Lord, a pair of turtledoves, or two young pigeons: And behold there was a man in Jerusalem named Simeon, and this man was just and devout, waiting for the consolation of Israel; and the Holy Spirit was in him. And he had received an answer from the Holy Spirit, that he should not see death, before he had seen the Christ of the Lord. And he came by the Spirit into the temple. And when his parents brought in the child Jesus, to do for him according to the custom of the law, He also took him into his arms, and blessed God, and said: Now thou dost dismiss thy servant, O Lord, according to thy word in peace; Because my eyes have seen thy salvation, Which thou hast prepared before the face of all peoples: A light to the revelation of the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel.” (Lk. 2:21-32)

Hence, the second temple was more glorious spiritually than the first because God came into it and redeemed men while it was standing. However, it was not more glorious physically, as God wanted it to be, because the Israelites did not fulfill God's plans for the second temple as given to Ezekiel:

Catholic Commentary of Agge. 2:10: “Great shall be the glory of this house: The ancients who had seen the former [the first temple] wept when that of Zorobabel was founded [the second temple], confessing its inferiority both in size and elegance. It was only 60 cubits high and broad, while the former was 120, built of polished stone and covered with cedar. Zorobabel had rough stones (1 Esd. 5:8), (1 Esd. 6:3), (2 Par. 3:4), and (3 Ki. 6:7). As for the same temple [the second temple], enlarged and adorned by Herod, it continued not long in that state; and its chief glory consisted of our Saviour's presence, when he was received in the arms of Simeon, and often preached there."

When given the vision, Ezechiel warned the Israelites to follow God's plan:

"But thou, son of man, shew to the house of Israel the temple, and let them be ashamed of their iniquities, and let them measure the building: And be ashamed of all that they have done. Shew them the form of the house, and of the fashion thereof, the goings out and the comings in, and the whole plan thereof, and all its ordinances, and all its order, and all its laws, and thou shalt write it in their sight: that they may keep the whole form thereof and its ordinances and do them." (Ez. 43:10-11)

The fact that the Israelites did not "keep the whole form thereof and its ordinances and do them" showed a lack of faith on their part and was a foreboding of their future lack of faith which caused them to reject and crucify Christ, which in turn caused the destruction of the second temple, which was meant to last forever.

The second temple, as well as the first, was meant to last forever

If the Israelites had followed God's plan for the second temple, Jerusalem, and Israel, as given to Ezechiel, and remained faithful to God, then the second temple would never have been destroyed and would have remained forever; that is, at least until the end of this world:

"And I heard one speaking to me out of the house [the vision of the second temple], and the man that stood by me, Said to me: Son of man, the place of my throne, and the place of the soles of my feet, where I dwell in the midst of the children of Israel forever: and the house of Israel shall no more profane my holy name, they and their kings by their fornications, and by the carcasses of their kings, and by the high places... Now therefore let them put away their fornications, and the carcasses of their kings far from me: and I will dwell in the midst of them forever." (Ez. 43:6-7, 9)

Hence God's promise that the second temple would last forever was a conditional promise predicated upon the Israelites' faithfulness and obedience to God "to put away their fornications." The fact that they did not build the second temple according to God's plan was a sure sign of their lack of faith and obedience to God, which came to the pinnacle when they rejected and crucified Jesus Christ.<sup>2878</sup> The following is a quote is from an apostate Jew who correctly believes that the second temple was supposed to have been built according to God's plan given to Ezechiel but was not because of the sins of the Israelites:

Did the Jews Disregard Ezekiel's Prophecy of the Temple? By Yehuda Shurpin, 2020:

"Dear Rabbi,

"I read, with great interest, chapters 40-48 of Ezekiel in the Bible. Is it true that the Jews never built the Temple that is described there?

"If it is true, why did the Jews disregard Ezekiel's prophecy when they built the second Temple? And why was it relevant for the prophet to describe, in great detail, something that they didn't even end up building?

"Answer:

"It was in the twenty-fifth year of the Babylonian exile that Ezekiel prophesied that the Holy Temple would be rebuilt. The prophecy spans a number of chapters, describing in great detail how this future Temple would look. And yet, when we look at the descriptions of the second Temple, we see that it was not built according to those specifications.

"The famed commentator, Rabbi Sholomo Yitzchaki (Rashi), quotes from the sages to explain these verses:

'The second ascent to the Holy Land of Israel during the time of Ezra was meant to be like the first entry through Joshua—to come about by force and through a miracle. This is what the Talmud states, bringing proof from the verse where it states twice [the words] "cross over," "Your people cross over, O G-d, until this nation that You have acquired crosses over."

"This building would have been fit for them then, when they emerged from exile, had there been an everlasting redemption. However, their sin caused this to not happen; for their repentance was not suitable. In other words, they did not resolve to stop sinning. Therefore, they were freed only through the sanction of Cyrus and his son.

<sup>2878</sup> It was God's will, God's plan, that the Israelites follow and obey all of his commandments and thus would receive abundant blessings. But if they did follow God's plan, they would receive curses: "A blessing, if you obey the commandments of the Lord your God, which I command you this day: A curse, if you obey not the commandments of the Lord your God, but revolt from the way which now I shew you, and walk after strange gods which you know not." (Deut. 11:27-28) It was God's plan that the Israelites enter the Promised Land by warfare. But they cowed and thus did not follow and obey God's plan. Hence God cursed them with a 40 year exile in the desert before they can again attempt to enter the Promised Land. (Num. 13) However, not all of God's promises and covenants are conditional, some are absolute, such as the first and second coming of the Messiah, Jesus Christ. (See RJMI Topic Index: Conditional promises and covenants.)

“Some say that their sin in Babylon was that they stumbled regarding gentile women.

“This, explain the commentators, is the reason why they did not build the second Temple according to the specifications in the prophecy in Ezekiel. That Temple was to be an everlasting edifice, as the verse there states, ‘and I shall dwell among them forever.’ Instead, when it came time to rebuild the second Temple, G-d commanded through his prophets Chaggai, Zechariah and Malachi not to build it according to the specifications in Ezekiel.

“Indeed, when the Rabbis referred to the second Temple period, they would say it was a partial redemption only.<sup>2879</sup> ...

“Rabbi Yehuda Shurpin

“Ask the Rabbi @ The Judaism Website – Chabad.org”

Rabbi Shurpin prophesied without knowing exactly what it means. Partial redemption was had when the second temple was standing when Jesus died on the Holy Cross. Jesus’ death redeemed both souls and bodies but at first only benefits souls. Not until Jesus’ second coming will bodies also benefit from the redemption. St. Paul says, “Even we ourselves groan within ourselves, waiting for the adoption of the sons of God, the redemption of our body.” (Rom. 8:23)

It was also God’s plan that the first temple would not be destroyed and thus remain at least until the end of the world if the Israelites remained faithful. But they did not, and thus the first temple was destroyed:

“And the Lord appeared to him [King Solomon] by night, and said: I have heard thy prayer, and I have chosen this place [the first temple] to myself for a house of sacrifice... For I have chosen and have sanctified this place that my name may be there forever and my eyes and my heart may remain there perpetually. And as for thee, if thou walk before me, as David thy father walked, and do according to all that I have commanded thee, and keep my justices and my judgments: I will raise up the throne of thy kingdom, as I promised to David thy father, saying: There shall not fail thee a man of thy stock to be ruler in Israel. But if you turn away, and forsake my justices, and my commandments which I have set before you, and shall go and serve strange gods, and adore them, I will pluck you up by the root out of my land which I have given you: and this house which I have sanctified to my name, I will cast away from before my face, and will make it a byword, and an example among all nations. And this house shall be for a proverb to all that pass by, and they shall be astonished and say: Why hath the Lord done thus to this land, and to this house? And they shall answer: Because they

<sup>2879</sup> Here the Rabbi prophesied without knowing exactly what it means. Partial redemption was had when the second temple was standing. Jesus’ death redeemed both souls and bodies but at first only benefits souls. Not until Jesus’ second coming will bodies benefit from the redemption. St. Paul says, “Even we ourselves groan within ourselves, waiting for the adoption of the sons of God, the redemption of our body.” (Rom. 8:23)

forsook the Lord the God of their fathers, who brought them out of the land of Egypt, and laid hold on strange gods, and adored them, and worshipped them: therefore all these evils are come upon them.” (2 Par. 7:12-22)

That the second temple and the Jerusalem in which it stood was also meant to last forever and thus not be destroyed is proved when Jesus said the following:

“And when he drew near, seeing the city [Jerusalem], he [Jesus] wept over it, saying: If thou also hadst known, and that in this thy day, the things that are to thy peace; but now they are hidden from thy eyes. For the days shall come upon thee, and thy enemies shall cast a trench about thee, and compass thee round, and straiten thee on every side, And beat thee flat to the ground, and thy children who are in thee: and they shall not leave in thee a stone upon a stone: because thou hast not known the time of thy visitation.” (Lk. 19:41-44)

Hence if Jerusalem had known the “time of [its] visitation,” it would have known “peace” instead of being destroyed. Indeed, if enough Israelites would have remained faithful, the second temple would have remained forever; that is, at least until the end of this world.

One may ask, “How then would men be redeemed and thus have a hope to be saved if the bulk of the Israelites remained faithful and thus did not condemn and crucify Jesus? There are two solutions:

1) The most probable opinion (and most probably God’s first plan for his Son Jesus to die to redeem men) is that the faithful Israelites would have offered Jesus as a sacrifice to God the Father out of love and obedience to God, just as Abraham was prepared to offer up his beloved son Isaac as a sacrifice to God.

“After these things, God tried Abraham, and said to him: Abraham, Abraham. And he answered: Here I am. He said to him: Take thy beloved son Isaac, whom thou lovest, and go into the land of vision: and there thou shalt offer him for an holocaust upon one of the mountains which I will shew thee... And they came to the place which God had shewn him, where he built an altar, and laid the wood in order upon it: and when he had bound Isaac his son, he laid him on the altar upon the pile of wood. And he put forth his hand and took the sword, to sacrifice his son. And behold an angel of the Lord from heaven called to him, saying: Abraham, Abraham. And he answered: Here I am. And he said to him: Lay not thy hand upon the boy, neither do thou any thing to him: now I know that thou fearest God, and hast not spared thy only begotten son for my sake.” (Gen. 22:1-2, 9-12)

And the Paschal Lamb, which was a symbol and figure of Christ, was killed and offered up to God by faithful Israelites during Passover:

“Speak ye to the whole assembly of the children of Israel, and say to them: On the tenth day of this month let every man take a lamb by their families and houses... And you shall keep it until the fourteenth day of this month. And the whole multitude of the children of Israel shall sacrifice it in the evening. And they shall take of the blood thereof, and put it upon both the side posts, and on the upper door posts of the houses, wherein they shall eat it... And the blood shall be unto you for a sign in the houses where you shall be: and I shall see the blood, and shall pass over you: and the plague shall not be upon you to destroy you, when I shall strike the land of Egypt.” (Ex. 12:3, 6-7, 13)

Hence the faithful Israelites’ killing of Jesus (the ultimate Paschal Lamb) would not have been murder but a holy sacrifice offered to God the Father and thus an act of supreme love of and faithfulness to God the Father, as well as to God the Son, Jesus Christ. Therefore, Jesus death would not have been attended with mocks, insults, and torture but in the manner animals offered to God were killed.

Because the Christ-denying Jews murdered Christ instead it can be said of them that they offered up Christ as a sacrifice to the Father unwillingly and ignorantly: “And if he do good, he doth it ignorantly, and unwillingly.” (Eccus. 14:7) Hence God can bring good even out of evil motives.

2) The less probable opinion is that the Romans or some other Gentile race would have been the ones that would have been the adamant enemies of Jesus and hence would have condemned and crucified him against the will of the bulk of the Israelites. But God would have given the Israelites enough power so that the Romans or other Gentile race would not be able to destroy the second temple nor kill many of the Israelites, nor take them into exile.

Because God is all knowing and thus knows all things before they come to pass, he knew the Jews would not built the second temple as he commanded and knew that the Jews would condemn and crucify Jesus Christ. And hence the prophets prophesied as much. But God also allowed the record to show what would have happened had they obeyed him regarding this or that. For example,

“If then you obey my commandments, which I command you this day, that you love the Lord your God, and serve him with all your heart, and with all your soul, he will give to your land the early rain and the latter rain, that you may gather in your corn and your wine, and your oil, And your hay out of the fields to feed your cattle, and that you may eat and be filled. Beware lest perhaps your heart be deceived, and you depart from the Lord, and serve strange gods, and adore them: And the Lord being angry shut up heaven, that the rain come not down, nor the earth yield her fruit, and you perish quickly from the excellent land, which the Lord will give you... A blessing, if you obey the commandments of the Lord your God, which I command you this day: A curse, if you obey not the commandments of the Lord your God but revolt from the way which now I shew you, and walk after strange gods which you know not.” (Deut. 11:13-17, 27-28)

Not only spiritual but also physical water was meant to come from the second temple

If God’s plans had been fulfilled for the second temple, Jerusalem, and Israel, physical water would have flowed from a well below the temple, as recorded in Ezechiel, Chapter 47. From there, it would have flowed to the east side of the Temple into Kidron Valley and filled the valley southward to Engaddi into the Dead Sea and northward to Engallim into the Dead Sea. And the Dead Sea would have been healed and thus would have contained many fish. And it would have watered trees and other vegetation that would bear fruit all year, the 12 months of the year:

“And he brought me again to the gate of the house, and behold waters issued out from under the threshold of the house toward the east: for the forefront, of the house looked toward the east: but the waters came down to the right side of the temple to the south part of the altar. And he led me out by the way of the north gate, and he caused me to turn to the way without the outward gate to the way that looked toward the east: and behold there ran out waters on the right side. And when the man that had the line in his hand went out towards the east, he measured a thousand cubits: and he brought me through the water up to the ankles. And again he measured a thousand, and he brought me through the water up to the knees. And he measured a thousand, and he brought me through the water up to the loins. And he measured a thousand, and it was a torrent, which I could not pass over: for the waters were risen so as to make a deep torrent, which could not be passed over. And he said to me: Surely thou hast seen, O son of man. And he brought me out, and he caused me to turn to the bank of the torrent. And when I had turned myself, behold on the bank of the torrent were very many trees on both sides. And he said to me: These waters that issue forth toward the hillocks of sand to the east, and go down to the plains of the desert, shall go into the sea, and shall go out, and the waters shall be healed. And every living creature that creepeth whithersoever the torrent shall come, shall live: and there shall be fishes in abundance after these waters shall come thither, and they shall be healed, and all things shall live to which the torrent shall come. And the fishers shall stand over these waters, from Engaddi even to Engallim there shall be drying of nets: there shall be many sorts of the fishes thereof, as the fishes of the great sea, a very great multitude: But on the shore thereof, and in the fenny places they shall not be healed, because they shall be turned into saltpits. And by the torrent on the banks thereof on both sides shall grow all trees that bear fruit: their leaf shall not fall off, and their fruit shall not fail: every month shall they bring forth firstfruits, because the waters thereof shall issue out of the sanctuary: and the fruits thereof shall be for food, and the leaves thereof for medicine.” (Ez. 47:1-12)

These are some of the temporal blessing the Israelites would have had if most of the Israelites were faithful and obedient to God, which would have been proved if they had followed God's plans as given to Ezechiel.

One proof that the trees and other vegetation that would have been watered by water that flowed from the Temple would have bore fruit all year and thus out of their normal season is when Jesus cursed the fig tree for not bearing fruit out of season:

"And the next day when they came out from Bethania, he was hungry. And when he had seen afar off a fig tree having leaves, he came if perhaps he might find anything on it. And when he was come to it, he found nothing but leaves. For it was not the time for figs. And answering he said to it: May no man hereafter eat fruit of thee any more forever. And his disciples heard it." (Mk. 11:12-14)

Jesus was telling the Israelites that if they had followed God's plan for the second temple, this fig tree would have bore fruit because it would have bore fruit all year. Indeed, if enough Israelites were faithful and thus followed God's plans for the second temple, this fig tree would have been watered by the water that would have flowed from the temple and bore fruit all year. The curse of this fig tree is the curse that fell upon the unfaithful Jews when they did not follow God's plan for the second temple, Jerusalem, and Israel, which was bore out when they denied and crucified Jesus Christ, for they did not know what season it was, the season of the Messias, the season of redemption.

"And he said also to the multitudes: When you see a cloud rising from the west, presently you say: A shower is coming: and so it happeneth: And when ye see the south wind blow, you say: There will be heat: and it cometh to pass. You hypocrites, you know how to discern the face of the heaven and of the earth: but how is it that you do not discern this time?" (Lk. 12:54-56)

Even though physical water did not flow from the second temple, spiritual water did flow from Jerusalem and watered the whole world when the second temple was standing. This spiritual water is sanctifying grace that Christ made available by his death on the Holy Cross. And this spiritual water was symbolized when Christ's right side was pierced with a lance in which not only blood but also water flowed from his side:

"And behold there ran out waters on the right side." (Ez. 47:2)

"But after they were come to Jesus, when they saw that he was already dead, they did not break his legs. But one of the soldiers with a spear opened his side and immediately there came out blood and water." (Jn. 19:33-34)

The physical water that flowed from Jesus' side is symbolic of sanctifying grace, which is spiritual water for souls. It gives everlasting life to men by making them worthy of entering heaven by remitting their sins and the punishment due to their sins. And this spiritual water flowed from Jerusalem from the side of Christ into the whole world and gives life all year to those who are baptized into the Catholic Church and to the faithful who are guilty of sin when they receive the sacrament of penance by sincerely confessing their sins to a Catholic priest. Hence the fishes watered by sanctifying grace represent Catholics. Jesus said to his apostles, "I will make you to be fishers of men." (Mt. 4:18-19)

"And the fishers shall stand over these waters [meant to flow from the second temple], from Engaddi even to Engallim there shall be drying of nets: there shall be many sorts of the fishes thereof, as the fishes of the great sea, a very great multitude:" (Ez. 47:10)

Hence Ezechiel's vision of water flowing from the second temple in Jerusalem was meant to be literal and spiritual but was only fulfilled spiritually.

And the physical water that was meant to flow from the second temple will flow from the throne of Christ the King in the New Jerusalem and water the earth and make it bear fruit all year, as recorded by St. John and Apocalypse, Chapters 22 and 23:

"And I saw a new heaven and a new earth. For the first heaven and the first earth was gone, and the sea is now no more. And I John saw the holy city, the new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a great voice from the throne, saying: Behold the tabernacle of God with men, and he will dwell with them. And they shall be his people; and God himself with them shall be their God... And he that sat on the throne, said: Behold, I make all things new. And he said to me: Write, for these words are most faithful and true." (Apoc. 21:1-3, 5)

"And he shewed me a river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding from the throne of God and of the Lamb. In the midst of the street thereof, and on both sides of the river, was the tree of life, bearing twelve fruits, yielding its fruits every month, and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations. And there shall be no curse any more; but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it, and his servants shall serve him." (Apoc. 22:1-3)

And this water, too, is not only literal water that gives physical life to fruits and other foods for the enjoyment of the elect but also spiritual water that gives spiritual life to the elect. This spiritual water is graces that flow from Christ the King for the benefit of the souls and glorified bodies of the elect. It gives their souls spiritual life by maintaining them in a state of grace and giving their souls joy, happiness, and all other good spiritual things. And it gives their glorified bodies physical life by maintaining their bodies in a state of purity, health, and vigor and by giving their bodies other good physical things.

The twelve tribes of Israel were meant to be given portions of land in Israel

If God's plans had been fulfilled for the second temple, Jerusalem, and Israel, the twelve tribes would have been allotted land in Israel and occupied it according to Ezechiel vision, as mentioned in Chapters 47 and 48:

“Thus saith the Lord God: This is the border, by which you shall possess the land according to the twelve tribes of Israel... And you shall divide this land unto you by the tribes of Israel:” (Ez. 47:13, 21)

Chapter 48 gives the details of the portions that each tribe was to possess and occupy. This is what would have happened if most of the Israelites were faithful and obedient to God, which would have been proved if they had followed God's plans as given to Ezechiel. But they were not! Hence this apportionment of land and the occupying of it by most of the tribes did not occur.

If they did follow God's plan, then many of the members of the ten tribes of the once Northern Kingdom of Israel that were taken into captivity by Assyrians would have returned to occupy the land allotted to them and thus would not have lost their tribal identity down until today, as only a few of the members of these tribes kept their tribal identity down until today.<sup>2880</sup>

However, in the new earth and the new Israel, which Jesus will create during his second coming, the members of the twelve tribes who are saved will then have their allotted land in the New Israel and occupy it forever.<sup>2881</sup> That is when God's promise to Abraham and faithful Israelites will finally be accomplished:

“And the Lord said to Abram after Lot was separated from him: Lift up thy eyes, and look from the place wherein thou now art, to the north and to the south, to the east and to the west. All the land which thou seest, I will give to thee and to thy seed forever.” (Gen. 13:14-15)

“And I will bring back the captivity of my people Israel, and they shall build the abandoned cities and inhabit them. And they shall plant vineyards and drink the wine of them and shall make gardens and eat the fruits of them. And I will plant them upon their own land, and I will no more pluck them out of their land which I have given them, saith the Lord thy God.” (Amos 9:14)

The area of the temple, Jerusalem, and tribal land in Ezechiel's vision

The specifications for the area of the temple and of the city of Jerusalem, according to the vision of Ezechiel, is 500 square cubits (.16 sq. miles) for the temple and 5000 square cubits (1.6 sq. miles) for

Jerusalem. And the specifications for the land allotted to each tribe were also given to Ezechiel, even though it never came to pass.

The Jerome Biblical Commentary, 1999: “100 (b) Portions for Each Tribe (48:1-29). Each tribe in turn is given a strip of land that reaches from the coast to the E border, so that all territories are equal in size. Seven are fitted N of the special section reserved for the Temple, priests, Levites, and prince. Five are fitted below this portion. 7. Judah is placed closest to the special holy section on the N side, while Benjamin is placed closest on the S. These are the sons of the favorite wife of Jacob, Rachel. But their place in Ezechiel's scheme reverses their real geographical position, in which Judah was just below Benjamin.

“Verses 8-22 treat of the dimensions and borders of the portions reserved for the priests, Levites, and prince. See comment on 43:1-7. 17. open land: With this common space, the total dimensions of the city come to 5,000 cubits on a side, precisely 10 times the Temple square [500 cubits].”<sup>2882</sup>

Against the error that Ezechiel's vision was only symbolic or spiritual

Beware of the error that Ezechiel's vision was only spiritual or symbolic and thus not literal. Ezechiel's visions was mostly literal but in parts it is literal and spiritual (such as the water that was meant to flow from the second temple (Ez. 47))<sup>2883</sup> and in other parts it is literal and symbolic (such as the Eastern Gate of the temple which is symbolic of the Blessed Virgin Mary, the Incarnation, and her ever virginity (Ez. 44:1-3)). Hence while some parts of Ezechiel's vision are spiritual and symbolic, they are also literal and thus are both literal and spiritual or literal and symbolic, just as the Paschal Lamb offered by the Israelites was literal and symbolic. It was a literal lamb sacrificed and symbolic of Christ, the ultimate Paschal Lamb.

Those who hold the error that Ezechiel's vision is not literal but only spiritual and symbolic do not consider that this plan for the temple was God's literal plan for the second temple, even though the Israelites did not fulfill God's plan.

Because they did not consider this, the only other solution for those who hold the dogma that since the New Covenant and the fall of the second temple there can no longer be a temple in which there will be a legal and valid Levitical Priesthood and animal sacrifices is that Ezechiel's vision was only symbolic and spiritual and thus not literal. While this error is not heretical, it is greatly scandalous and undermines the very basics of Biblical interpretation. Anyone with common sense can know that Ezechiel's vision was literal (even though parts are literal and spiritual and other parts literal and symbolic). His specifications are so numerous and detailed regarding the temple and its surroundings, the Levitical Priesthood, and the animal sacrifices that it is impossible to explain them all in only a spiritual or symbolic way and thus believe that none of it was meant to be literal. It would have been better for those who hold this non-heretical error to simply say they do not know the meaning Ezechiel's vision and leave it at that.

However, the problem for those who correctly believe that the plan for the temple is literal but incorrectly believe it will be the third temple is heresy. It is heresy because the Old Covenant Levitical Priesthood and rituals have ended and are not only dead but also deadly. Hence to believe correctly that the temple specifications and all that pertains to it are literal but to heretically believe it will be the third temple is a denial of Jesus Christ and the New Covenant because the temple, as described by Ezechiel, will have a Levitical Priesthood and animal sacrifices.

Faith and Works Are Necessary for Salvation

"For if thou confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus and believe in thy heart that God hath raised him up from the dead, thou shalt be saved; for with the heart we believe unto justice, but with the mouth confession is made unto salvation. For the scripture saith: Whosoever believeth in him shall not be confounded." (Rom. 10:9-11)

Rom. 10:9. Confess...the Lord Jesus...and be saved: There are two kinds of belief in God: A faithful belief and a bare belief:

1) A faithful belief is when a person not only believes that God exists but also believes in all that God does, says, and commands and thus has faith and trust in the true God. This is the kind of belief that saves men, a faithful belief in which they believe not only that Jesus Christ exists and is God, man, and Messiah, but also believe in all that Jesus does, says, and commands.

2) A bare belief is when a person believes that God exists but does not believe in all that God does, says, and commands and thus does not have a faithful belief in God. This is the kind of belief the devils have in God. They believe that God exists and that he is God. "Thou dost well: the devils also believe and tremble." (Ja. 2:19) But the devils do not believe in all that God does, says, and commands and thus do not have faith and trust in God.

This is the kind of faith that Protestants and other baptized non-Catholics have in Jesus Christ, that is, a bare belief. They believe that Jesus Christ exists but do not believe in all the things that Jesus does, says, and commands and thus do not have true faith or trust in the true Jesus Christ. This is evident in every heresy or schism that they hold, in this case their heresy that men can be saved by a bare belief or bare faith in Jesus without also obeying all of God's commandments and doing other good works. Their bad will and heretical misinterpretation of St. Paul's teachings in Rom. 10:9, 13; Eph. 2:8-9, Heb. 10:38, and elsewhere is manifest by all the Bible verses they ignore in which Jesus Christ and his disciples teach that men are not saved by faith alone but also by obedience to all of God's commandments and doing other good works. For example, Jesus says,

"If thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments." (Mt. 19:17)

Conversely, if a man does not keep all of God's commandments, he cannot enter into life and thus cannot be saved.

Jesus says that not all that call upon his name and believe in him (and thus even Catholics) will be saved:

"Not every one that saith to me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doth the will of my Father who is in heaven, he shall enter into the kingdom of heaven. Many will say to me in that day: Lord, Lord, have not we prophesied in thy name, and cast out devils in thy name, and done many miracles in thy name? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you. Depart from me, you that work iniquity." (Mt. 7:21-23)

Therefore all those who died professing belief in Jesus but did not keep one or more of his commandments and thus died in mortal sin, in iniquity, were not saved. Hence St. Paul teaches,

"For not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified." (Rom. 2:13)

Therefore men who hear the law and thus are believers are not justified if they do not do the law and thus do not obey the law. Addressing men who profess belief in Jesus, St. Paul lists some sins that will send them to hell:

"Know you not that the unjust shall not possess the kingdom of God? Do not err: neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor the effeminate, nor liars with mankind, nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor railers, nor extortioners shall possess the kingdom of God." (1 Cor. 6:9-10)

Hence even Catholics who die as drunkards or in any other mortal sin are not saved. (See Gal. 5:19-20, Eph. 5:5, and Apoc. 21:8.)

St. Paul includes himself among those who could be cast off from God and go to hell if he does not keep all of God's commandments, in this case God's commandment that men must do penance to be saved:

"But I chastise my body and bring it into subjection lest perhaps when I have preached to others, I myself should become a castaway." (1 Cor. 9:27)

This is why St. Paul says,

"Wherefore, my dearly beloved [Catholics],...with fear and trembling, work out your salvation." (Phili. 2:12)

If all Catholics could be saved simply by believing in Jesus and thus could be saved by faith alone, then why should they work out their salvation—let alone work it out with fear and trembling!

Hence St. Paul teaches that a man could even have true faith in Jesus Christ and thus be Catholic and not be saved if he does not have true charity:

“And if I should have prophecy and should know all mysteries and all knowledge, and if I should have all faith so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing.” (1 Cor. 13:2)

Therefore St. Paul teaches that even a Catholic who has true faith in Jesus but mortally breaks one of God’s commandments does not have charity and thus is nothing and hence cannot be saved in such a condition.

And St. John teaches that true charity is not only feeding the poor but also obeying all of God’s commandments:

“For this is the charity of God, that we keep his commandments. (1 Jn. 5:3) And this is charity, that we walk according to his commandments. (2 Jn. 1:6)”

And that is why St. James teaches that “Faith without works is dead.” (Ja. 2:26)

And Jesus teaches,

“Behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me to render to every man according to his works.” (Apoc. 22:12)

Generation, Meanings

The word “generation” can mean several things: a span of time, a group of people, or procreation.

Span of time

Generation can mean a certain span of time, short or long. Hence it can mean 7, 10, 15, 20, 30, 40, 50, or 100 years; or a whole era, such as the New Testament era; or the whole span of a man’s life. For example,

In the following verse, generation means 10 years, since the Babylonian Captivity lasted for 70 years:

“And when you are come into Babylon, you shall be there many years, and for a long time, even to seven generations: and after that I will bring you away from thence with peace.” (Bar. 6:2)

In the following verses, generation means the whole New Covenant era:

“And they will say to you: See here, and see there. Go ye not after, nor follow them: For as the lightning that lighteneth from under heaven, shineth unto the parts that are under heaven, so shall the Son of man be in his day. But first he must suffer many things, and be rejected by this generation.” (Lk. 17:23-25)

“But you are a chosen generation, a kingly priesthood, a holy nation, a purchased people: that you may declare his virtues, who hath called you out of darkness into his marvellous light.” (1 Pt. 2:9)

“Amen I say to you, that this generation shall not pass until all these things be done.” (Mk. 13:30)

In the following verses, generation means the whole span of a man’s life:

“Some grow, and some fall off: so is the generation of flesh and blood, one cometh to an end, and another is born.” (Eccus. 14:19)

“My generation is at an end, and it is rolled away from me, as a shepherd’s tent. My life is cut off, as by a weaver: whilst I was yet but beginning, he cut me off: from morning even to night thou wilt make an end of me.” (Isa. 38:12)

“For David, when he had served in his generation, according to the will of God, slept: and was laid unto his fathers, and saw corruption.” (Acts 13:36)

Catholic Commentary on Acts 13:36: “In his generation: That is, in his lifetime. And when his generation came to an end when he died, his body saw corruption in the grave.”

A group of people

And generation can mean a certain group of people. For example, in the following verses generation means the evil Pharisees who were living in the time of Jesus’ first coming:

“Woe to you scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites; that build the sepulchres of the prophets, and adorn the monuments of the just, and say: If we had been in the days of our Fathers, we would not have been partakers with them in the blood of the prophets. Wherefore you are witnesses against yourselves, that you are the sons of them that killed the prophets. Fill ye up then the measure of your fathers. You serpents, generation of vipers, how will you flee from the judgment of gehenna?” (Mt. 23:29-33)

In the following verses, generation means the people who were living during the time of Jesus’ first coming:

“And sighing deeply in spirit, he saith: Why doth this generation seek a sign? Amen, I say to you, a sign shall not be given to this generation.” (Mk. 8:12)

“The queen of the south shall rise in the judgment with the men of this generation, and shall condemn them: because she came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and behold more than Solomon here.” (Lk. 11:31)

“But whereunto shall I esteem this generation to be like? It is like to children sitting in the market place.” (Mt. 11:16)

In the following verse, generation means believers who are holy and chaste:

“O how beautiful is the chaste generation with glory: for the memory thereof is immortal: because it is known both with God and with men.” (Wis. 4:1)

Procreation

Generation can mean procreation, when children are conceived and born. For example, in the following verse generation means birth:

“This is the book of the generation [birth] of Adam. In the day that God created man, he made him to the likeness of God.” (Gen. 5:1)

Adam’s body was not born of a woman but of the slime of the earth. In the following verses, generation means birth records of succeeding procreations; that is, genealogies:

“Of Ruben the eldest son of Israel, by their generations and families and houses and names of every head...” (Num. 1:20)

“These are the generations of Aaron and Moses in the day that the Lord spoke to Moses in mount Sinai.” (Num. 3:1)

“The book of the generation of Jesus Christ, the son of David, the son of Abraham.” (Mt. 1:1)

“Tell ye of this to your children, and let your children tell their children, and their children to another generation.” (Joel 1:3)

Hard Hearts

“Blind the heart of this people and make their ears heavy and shut their eyes lest they see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and be converted and I heal them.” (Isa. 6:10)

“And the prophecy of Isaias is fulfilled in them, who saith: By hearing you shall hear and shall not understand, and seeing you shall see and shall not perceive. For the heart of this people is grown gross and with their ears they have been dull of hearing and their eyes they have shut lest at any time they should see with their eyes and hear with their ears and understand with their heart, and be converted and I should heal them.” (Mt. 13:14-15)

“Therefore he hath mercy on whom he will; and whom he will, he hardeneth.” (Rom. 9:18)

Rom. 9:18. He hardeneth: Not by being the cause or author of his sin, but by withholding his grace and so leaving him in his sin in punishment of his past demerits and obstinately evil heart. Hence God hardens hard hearts; that is, hearts that have been given many graces and chances to repent but would not; and thus because of their obstinacy, God withdraws his grace and hardens their hearts even more:

“Great pains have been taken and the great rust thereof is not gone out, not even by fire. Thy uncleanness is execrable because I desired to cleanse thee and thou art not cleansed from thy filthiness, neither shalt thou be cleansed before I cause my indignation to rest in thee.” (Ez. 24:12-13)

“Hear, O foolish people and without understanding, who have eyes and see not; and ears and hear not. Will not you then fear me, saith the Lord, and will you not repent at my presence?” (Jer. 5:21-22)

“But the house of Israel will not hearken to thee because they will not hearken to me, for all the house of Israel are of a hard forehead and an obstinate heart.” (Ez. 3:7)

St. Paul warns God’s chosen people: “Harden not your hearts, as in the provocation in the day of temptation in the desert where your fathers tempted me, proved and saw my works... Take heed, brethren, lest perhaps there be in any of you an evil heart of unbelief to depart from the living God. But exhort one another every day, whilst it is called today, that none of you be hardened through the deceitfulness of sin.” (Heb. 3:8-9, 13)

The danger of men with hard hearts is that God will pull all his grace from them and leave them in a graceless state until they die and thus they will end up in hell. If God takes away all of his grace from an obstinate (hard) heart, then that heart is as hard as it can get and thus cannot repent or do anything good with a good motive in such a condition unless God returns to it by bestowing his grace upon it. And if God lets a hard-hearted man die in such a state, then that is a sure sign that this man was an ultimately evil soul (of the reprobate), as known to God even before the world was created, and thus is justly damned to hell:

“I have wounded thee with the wound of an enemy, with cruel chastisement; by reason of the multitude of thy iniquities, thy sins are hardened. Why criest thou for thy affliction? Thy sorrow is incurable; for the multitude of thy iniquity and for thy hardened sins, I have done these things to thee.” (Jer. 30:14-15)

“He hath seen the presumption of their heart that it is wicked, and hath known their end that it is evil. (Eccus. 18:10) For all things were known to the Lord God before they were created. (Eccus. 23:29)”

Therefore, it cannot be said that God wants ultimately hard-hearted men (the reprobates) to be damned, as God wants all men to be saved (1 Tim. 2:3-4), but that God in his foreknowledge knows all things and thus knows who will cooperate with his grace and be saved and who will not. Above all, let no one say that God is unjust in anything that he does, even though we may not be able to comprehend all that he does because of our lowly knowledge and comprehension compared to God's:

"In unnecessary matters be not over curious, and in many of his works thou shalt not be inquisitive. For many things are shewn to thee above the understanding of men." (Eccus. 3:24-25)

Let us say with King David,

"Thou art just, O Lord: and thy judgment is right." (Ps. 118:137)

St. Cyril of Jerusalem First Catechetical Lecture, Lecture 6, 4th century: "28. Then Manes answers him: 'And what sort of God causes blindness? For it is Paul who saith, In whom the God of this world hath blinded the minds of them that believe not, lest the light of the Gospel should shine unto them.' (2 Cor. 4:3-4) But Archelaus made a good retort, saying, 'Read a little before: But if our Gospel is veiled, it is veiled in them that are perishing.' Seest thou that in them that are perishing it is veiled? For it is not right to give the things which are holy unto the dogs. Again, is it only the God of the Old Testament that hath blinded the minds of them that believe not? Hath not Jesus himself said, For this cause speak I unto them in parables, that seeing they may not see? Was it from hating them that he wished them not to see? Or because of their unworthiness, since their eyes they had closed. For where there is willful wickedness, there is also a withholding of grace; for to him that hath shall be given, but from him that hath not shall be taken even that which he seemeth to have."

St. Irenaeus of Lyons, Against Heresies, c. 180-199: "If, therefore, in the present time also, God, knowing the number of those who will not believe, since he foreknows all things, has given them over to unbelief, and turned away his face from men of this stamp, leaving them in the darkness which they have themselves chosen for themselves, what is there wonderful if he did also at that time give over to their unbelief, Pharaoh, who never would have believed, along with those who were with him? And for the reason that the Lord spoke in parables and brought blindness upon Israel, that seeing they might not see since he knew the spirit of unbelief in them, for the same reason did he harden Pharaoh's heart."<sup>2884</sup>

St. Augustine Tractates on the Gospel of John, Tractate 53 (Jn. 12:37-43), 413: "6. They could not believe as Isaiah the prophet foretold it; the prophet foretold it because God foreknew that such would be the case. But if I am asked why they could not, I reply at once, because they would not; for certainly their depraved will was foreseen by God, and foretold through the prophet by him from whom nothing that is future can be hid... For God thus blinds and hardens simply by letting alone and withdrawing his aid; and God can do this by a judgment that is hidden, although not by one that is unrighteous... This is a doctrine which the piety of the God-fearing ought to preserve unshaken and inviolable in all its integrity, even as the apostle, when treating of the same intricate question, says, 'What shall we say then? Is there unrighteousness with God? God forbid.' (Rom. 9:14) If, then, we must be far from thinking that there is unrighteousness with God, this only can it be, that, when he giveth his aid, he acteth mercifully; and, when he withholdeth it, he acteth righteously; for in all he doeth, he acteth not rashly but in accordance with judgment. And still further, if the judgments of the saints are righteous, how much more those of the sanctifying and justifying God? They are therefore righteous, although hidden. Accordingly, when questions of this sort come before us, why one is dealt with in such a way and another in such another way, why this one is blinded by being forsaken of God and that one is enlightened by the divine aid vouchsafed to him, let us not take upon ourselves to pass judgment on the judgment of so mighty a judge, but tremblingly exclaim with the apostle, 'O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out!' (Rom. 11:33) As it is also said in the psalm, 'Thy judgments are as a great deep.' (Ps. 35:7)"

Holy Eucharist

The Holy Eucharist is the body, blood, and divinity of Jesus Christ under the appearance of bread and wine

"And whilst they were at supper, Jesus took bread, and blessed, and broke: and gave to his disciples, and said: Take ye, and eat. This is my body. And taking the chalice, he gave thanks, and gave to them, saying: Drink ye all of this. For this is my blood of the new testament, which shall be shed for many unto remission of sins." (Mt. 26:26-28)

Mt. 26:26-28. This is my body...this is my blood: Jesus does not say that this is the "figure" of my body and blood but that this is my body, this is my blood. Neither does he say "in this" or "with this" is my body and blood but absolutely this is my body, this is my blood, which plainly implies transubstantiation; that is, the changing of the bread into the body of Christ and the wine into the blood of Christ in which the bread and wine no longer exist at all but only appear to exist. Hence the appearances of the bread and wine are illusions.

And because Jesus' dead body and blood are divine and because they also contain his divine nature, the Holy Eucharist contains the divinity of God in the body and blood of Christ. But it does not contain Jesus' human soul because his soul was not in his dead body but in the Limbo of the Fathers. The Holy Eucharist is not the live human body and blood of Christ but the dead human body and blood of Christ, the victim of the sacrifice. Hence Jesus Christ's body, blood, and divinity but not his soul are in the Holy Eucharist under the appearance of bread and wine. This is the unbloody and clean sacrifice that is offered everywhere, not only in Jerusalem and among the Jews but everywhere and among the Gentiles also, as prophesied by Malachias:

"For from the rising of the sun even to the going down, my name is great among the Gentiles, and in every place there is sacrifice, and there is offered to my name a clean oblation: for my name is great among the Gentiles, saith the Lord of hosts."
(Mala. 1:11)

Let no one doubt that God can change bread and wine into his body and blood, "for all things are possible with God." (Mk. 10:27) Also, let no one doubt that men cannot understand how God does this because this is a supernatural mystery that is above the understanding of men:

"For many things are shewn to thee above the understanding of men." (Eccus. 3:25)

"Thy knowledge is become wonderful to me: it is high, and I cannot reach to it." (Ps. 138:6)

"And I understood that man can find no reason of all those works of God that are done under the sun: and the more he shall labour to seek, so much the less shall he find: yea, though the wise man shall say that he knoweth it, he shall not be able to find it." (Ectes. 8:17)

Hence men must believe the dogma of the Holy Eucharist by an act of faith alone, unaided by reason. After all, acts of faith in things that are above the understanding of men are the highest and most pure and perfect acts of faith that men can make.

Not only is the miracle of the Holy Eucharist above the understanding of men, it is also contrary to human science, which in this case fails because it cannot possibly discover the body and blood of Christ under the appearance of bread and wine. God allows the Holy Eucharist to appear as bread and wine as an ultimate test of our faith. While human science says that the Holy Eucharist is bread and wine because it tastes and acts like bread and wine, faith says it is not. God simulates the effects of bread and wine to perpetuate the illusion as an ultimate test of faith, to see if we put God and his science above human science. Hence to perpetuate the illusion that it is wine from a mere human scientific perspective, God allows the priest to get drunk if he drinks too much of Christ's blood. Speaking for God, the Prophet Isaias says that God will make men drunk with their own blood: "I will feed thy enemies with their own flesh: and they shall be made drunk with their own blood, as with new wine." (Isa. 49:26) Regarding the Holy Eucharist, God makes the priest drunk with Christ's blood if he drinks too much. Where would the test of faith be if any one of these things that bread and wine are were absent? If the bread or wine did not look, taste, or act like bread and wine, then there would be no test of faith because men would know for sure by human science that a miracle took place. St. Paul says,

"Now faith is the substance of things to be hoped for, the evidence of things that appear not." (Heb. 11:1)

In the Bible there are many examples of miracles that are above the understanding of men and thus above and some contrary to human science. For example, a rod turned into a serpent (Ex. 7:10); water turned into blood (Ex. 7:19); fire burned in hail and the hail did not melt (Ex. 8:24; Wis. 16:22); the Red Sea parted for the Israelites and closed upon the Egyptians (Ex. 14); the sun stood still (Jos. 10:13; Eccus. 46:5); the sun moved backwards (Isa. 38:8; Eccus. 48:26); men were raised from the dead (3 Ki. 17:17-22; Jn. 11:39-44); a virgin conceived and gave birth to a son, Jesus Christ, and remained a virgin (Mt. 1:23); and the Archangel Raphael hid his angelic nature under the appearance of a man:

"And Raphael the angel answered...I am Azarias the son of the great Ananias." (Tob. 5:17-18)

Human science says that St. Raphael was a man because he looked like a man, felt like a man, and ate like a man; but angelic and divine science says that he was not a man at all but an angel under the appearance of a man, his apparent human nature was an illusion, just as the apparent bread and wine in the Holy Eucharist are illusions while the reality is that they are the body and blood of Christ. Human science contradicts all of these supernatural mysteries and in so doing falls short because angelic science and divine science are above the understanding of human science. Some other supernatural mysteries that men must believe by faith alone because they are above the understanding of men are the Incarnation, the Holy Trinity, God's creation of things out of nothing, the creation of Adam's body from slime, and the creation of Eve from Adam's rib.

There are many things that are understood only by God and not even by angels, which I call the divine science. For example, an angel can see God create something out of nothing and thus know for certain that God creates things out of nothing; but angels will never be able to understand how God does this because they are not God and it is above their understanding. Hence Catholics believe in the Holy Eucharist by a pure and perfect act of faith because God taught it, because God said it is so:

"Then Jesus said to them: Amen, amen I say unto you: Except you eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, you shall not have life in you." (Jn. 6:54)

And the apostles believed and taught the dogma of the Holy Eucharist, and the Catholics after them believe and teach this dogma. St. Paul says,

"The chalice of benediction which we bless, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? And the bread which we break, is it not the partaking of the body of the Lord?" (1 Cor. 10:16)

“For I have received of the Lord that which also I delivered unto you, that the Lord Jesus, the same night in which he was betrayed, took bread, and giving thanks, broke, and said: Take ye, and eat: this is my body, which shall be delivered for you: this do for the commemoration of me. In like manner also the chalice, after he had supped, saying: This chalice is the new testament in my blood: this do ye, as often as you shall drink, for the commemoration of me. For as often as you shall eat this bread and drink the chalice, you shall shew the death of the Lord until he come. Therefore, whosoever shall eat this bread or drink the chalice of the Lord unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and of the blood of the Lord.” (1 Cor. 11:23-27)

And all the other Church Fathers believed in and taught the dogma of the Holy Eucharist. For example, St. Ignatius, bishop of Antioch, who was a disciple and contemporary with some of the Apostles and died a martyr at Rome in a very advanced age, speaking of certain heretics of those times, says:

St. Ignatius of Antioch, Epistle to the Philadelphians, 2nd century: “Take ye heed, then, to have but one Eucharist. For there is one flesh of our Lord Jesus Christ, and one cup to show forth the unity of his blood; one altar; as there is one bishop, along with the presbytery and deacons...”<sup>2885</sup>

St. Ignatius of Antioch, Epistle to the Romans, 2nd century: “I desire the bread of God, the heavenly bread, the bread of life, which is the flesh of Jesus Christ, the Son of God, who became afterwards of the seed of David and Abraham; and I desire the drink of God, namely his blood, which is incorruptible love and everlasting life.”<sup>2886</sup>

And St. Irenaeus of Lyons, who knew St. Ignatius who knew the Apostles and disciples, says the following:

St. Irenaeus, Against Heresies, c. 180-199: “5. ...He took that created thing, bread, and gave thanks, and said, ‘This is my body.’ And the cup likewise, which is part of that creation to which we belong, he confessed to be his blood, and taught the new oblation of the new covenant; which the Church receiving from the apostles...”<sup>2887</sup>

“2. ...He has acknowledged the cup (which is a part of the creation) as his own blood, from which he bedews our blood; and the bread (also a part of the creation) he has established as his own body, from which he gives increase to our bodies.”<sup>2888</sup>

St. Cyril, bishop of Jerusalem, who was born in the beginning of the 4th century and died in 386, when explaining the mystery of the Blessed Eucharist to the newly baptized, says:

St. Cyril of Jerusalem, Catechetical Lectures, Lecture 22: “6. Do not look upon the bread and wine as bare and common elements, for they are the body and blood of Christ, as our Lord assures us. Although thy senses suggest this to thee, let faith make thee firm and sure. Judge not of the thing by the taste, but be certain from faith that thou has been honoured with the gift of Christ’s body and blood. When he has pronounced and said of the bread ‘This is my body,’ who will after this dare to doubt? And when he has assured, and said ‘This is my blood,’ who can ever hesitate, saying, it is not his blood? He changed water into wine at Cana, and shall we not think him worthy of our belief when he changed wine into blood?”

Wherefore, let us receive them with an entire belief as Christ’s body and blood; for under the figure of bread is given to thee his body, and under the figure of wine his blood; that when thou hast received Christ’s body and blood, thou be made one body and blood with him; for so we carry him about in us, his body and blood being distributed through our bodies... 9. Having learned these things, and been fully assured that the seeming bread is not bread, though sensible to taste, but the Body of Christ; and that the seeming wine is not wine, though the taste will have it so, but the Blood of Christ.”

The words are spirit and life, for flesh profiteth nothing - in context (Jn. 6:64)

Beware of the heretics who take out of context Jn. 6:64 in order to defend their heresy that the Holy Eucharist is only bread and wine and not the body and blood of Christ. They misinterpret the following verse to mean that Jesus is spiritually but not physically in the bread and wine and thus the bread and wine are not the body, blood, and divinity of Jesus:

“Then Jesus said to them: Amen, amen I say unto you: Except you eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, you shall not have life in you... It is the spirit that quickeneth: the flesh profiteth nothing. The words that I have spoken to you are spirit and life.” (Jn. 6:54-64)

And Jesus is telling his Apostles that his dead human flesh and blood are not enough to give life everlasting, the mere flesh and blood of a human, but it is his spirit, his divine nature, united to his dead flesh and blood that gives life:

“It is the spirit [my divine nature] that quickeneth: the flesh [alone] profiteth nothing. The words that I have spoken to you are spirit and life.” (Jn. 6:64)

Some did not understand how the eating of mere flesh could give men everlasting life when it only sustains physical life for a short period of time till more must be eaten. Hence Jesus tells them that mere flesh indeed profiteth nothing to everlasting life, and he implies that his flesh is not mere flesh but also spirit and life—not just body and blood but also divinity which gives everlasting life. Hence they did not understand Jesus' words in a spiritual way but only in a temporal way in which flesh only sustains physical life until one eats again. And it certainly does not make men live forever, as the manna that Jews ate did not make them live forever. That is why Jesus said that the bread he gives is not exactly like the manna which only sustained physical life. His bread, his body and blood, gives everlasting life:

“Our fathers did eat manna in the desert, as it is written: He gave them bread from heaven to eat. Then Jesus said to them: Amen, amen I say to you; Moses gave you not bread from heaven, but my Father giveth you the true bread from heaven. For the bread of God is that which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life to the world. They said therefore unto him: Lord, give us always this bread. And Jesus said to them: I am the bread of life; he that cometh to me shall not hunger, and he that believeth in me shall never thirst... Your fathers did eat manna in the desert and are dead. This is the bread which cometh down from heaven, that if any man eat of it he may not die.” (Jn. 6:31-35. 49-50)

One may ask, “If receiving the Holy Eucharist causes us to no longer hunger and thirst, why do we still hunger and thirst after receiving the Holy Eucharist?” Again, those who say this are only looking upon Christ's flesh as physical food that sustains their current bodies, not as spiritual food that gives everlasting life to the resurrected, glorified bodies of the elect that they get during the General Judgment in which their glorified bodies will have everlasting life and no longer hunger and thirst and thus will always be filled.

In the same way, some may ask, “If baptism gives us everlasting life, why do the baptized die?” Those who ask this only understand the water of baptism as something that can cleanse the flesh or give some other temporary benefit but not give everlasting life because the baptized still die. They do not understand that the water of baptism gives spiritual life to souls and thus places souls in a state of grace and hence their souls are in a state of everlasting life as long as they remain in a state of grace. And when their bodies die, their souls enter into everlasting life. This is the water that Jesus spoke of to the Samaritan woman at Jacob's Well:

“Jesus answered, and said to her: If thou didst know the gift of God, and who he is that saith to thee, Give me to drink; thou perhaps wouldst have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water. The woman saith to him: Sir, thou hast nothing wherein to draw, and the well is deep; from whence then hast thou living water? Art thou greater than our father Jacob, who gave us the well, and drank thereof himself, and his children, and his cattle? Jesus answered, and said to her: Whosoever drinketh of this water, shall thirst again; but he that shall drink of the water that I will give him, shall not thirst for ever: But the water that I will give him, shall become in him a fountain of water, springing up into life everlasting. The woman saith to him: Sir, give me this water, that I may not thirst, nor come hither to draw.” (Jn. 4:10-15)

Indeed, the water of baptism is not mere water, which profits nothing unto everlasting life, but living water (spiritual water), water that when used in the sacrament of baptism gives everlasting life to souls. It is this water that causes the souls of men to no longer thirst, even though their corrupted bodies still thirst for mere water.

The water and bread that Christ gives to men is not only the water of baptism and the Holy Eucharist but is the incarnate Jesus himself and thus all that he is, teaches, does, and commands. That is why Jesus said that belief in him and his words also gives everlasting life:

“He that believeth in the Son hath life everlasting; but he that believeth not the Son shall not see life, but the wrath of God abideth on him.” (Jn. 3:36)

“Amen, amen I say unto you, that he who heareth my word, and believeth him that sent me, hath life everlasting and cometh not into judgment but is passed from death to life.” (Jn. 5:24)

And without belief (faith) in Jesus, the sacraments profit nothing. They are ineffective and thus do not bestow their gifts upon unbelieving recipients.

What follows are some commentaries on John 6:

Catholic Commentary on Jn. 6: “Ver. 64. The flesh profiteth nothing: Dead flesh separated from the spirit would profit nothing. Hence the flesh of itself profiteth nothing, not even the flesh of our Savior Christ, were it not united to the divine person of Christ.”

Catholic Commentary on Jn. 6:64: “The flesh profiteth nothing: First then Ss. Cyril and Augustine learnedly expound these words thus: they are as if Christ said, ‘My Flesh alone profits not to preserve him who eats it unto life everlasting, because it is not my mere flesh which confers life and resurrection but it is the Spirit, i.e., my divinity united to the flesh which quickens first the soul and then the body at the Resurrection. And thus my flesh profiteth very exceedingly, forasmuch as being united to the Spirit of the Word, it derives from it its quickening power.’ By a similar form of speech we are wont to say, The eye doth not see, the ear doth not hear, nor the body feel, but it is the spirit, i.e., the soul, which sees through the eye, and hears through the ear. Consequently, the words, i.e., the reality and the mystery of my flesh to be eaten in the Eucharist, which I speak unto you are spirit and life. That is, my Deity, which is a pure Spirit, is a living and quickening Spirit. For it will give you life in the Eucharist, not my bare flesh. So St. Augustine says, ‘This Flesh alone profiteth not, but let the Spirit be joined to the flesh, and it profiteth greatly. For if the flesh profiteth nothing, the Word would not have become Flesh.’ The same (City of God, b. 10) says, ‘The flesh of itself cleanseth not but through the Word by which it hath been assumed.’ And St. Cyril, ‘If the flesh be understood alone, it is by no means able to quicken, forasmuch as it needs a Quickener, but because it is conjoined with the life-giving Word, the whole is made life-giving.”

St. Augustine, Tractates on the Gospel of John, Tractate 27 (Jn. 6:60-72): “5. ... ‘It is the Spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing.’ ... O Lord, good Master, in what way does the flesh profit nothing, whilst thou hast said, ‘Except a man eat my flesh and drink my blood, he shall not have life in him’? Or does life profit nothing? And why are we what we are, but that we may have everlasting life, which thou dost promise by thy flesh? Then what means ‘the flesh profiteth nothing’? It profiteth nothing, but only in the manner in which they understood it. They indeed understood the flesh, just as when cut to pieces in a carcass, or sold in the shambles; not as when it is quickened by the Spirit. Wherefore it is said that ‘the flesh profiteth nothing,’ in the same manner as it is said that ‘knowledge puffeth up.’ Then, ought we at once to hate knowledge? Far from it! And what means ‘Knowledge puffeth up’? Knowledge alone without charity. Therefore he added, ‘but charity edifieth.’ Therefore add thou to knowledge charity, and knowledge will be profitable, not by itself but through charity. So also here ‘the flesh profiteth nothing,’ only when alone. Let the Spirit be added to the flesh, as charity is added to knowledge, and it profiteth very much. For if the flesh profited nothing, the Word would not be made flesh to dwell among us. If through the flesh Christ has greatly profited us, does the flesh profit nothing? But it is by the flesh that the Spirit [of the Godhead] has done somewhat for our salvation. Flesh was a vessel; consider what it held, not what it was... 6. ... Therefore ‘it is the Spirit that quickeneth,’ for it is the Spirit [the divine nature of the Son united to his human flesh and blood] that makes living members.”

St. Augustine comments on how Nicodemus took Jesus’ words about being born again in a physical and not spiritual sense and thus thought that Jesus meant being born again from parents and not being born again in the soul:

St. Augustine, Tractates on the Gospel of John, Tractate 11: “5. Therefore mark, my brethren, what answer this man who came to Jesus by night makes. Although he came to Jesus, yet because he came by night, he still speaks from the darkness of his own flesh. He understands not what he hears from the Lord, understands not what he hears from the Light, ‘which lighteth every man that cometh into this world.’ (Jn. 1:9) Already hath the Lord said to him, ‘Except a man be born again, he shall not see the kingdom of God. Nicodemus saith unto him, How can a man be born again when he is old?’ The Spirit speaks to him, and he thinks of the flesh. He thinks of his own flesh, because as yet he thinks not of Christ’s flesh. For when the Lord Jesus had said, ‘Except a man eat my flesh and drink my blood, he shall not have life in him,’ some who followed him were offended, and said among themselves, ‘This is a hard saying; who can hear it?’ ... The Lord, however, expounded to them, and said, ‘It is the Spirit that quickeneth.’ After he had said, ‘Except a man eat my flesh and drink my blood, he shall not have life in him,’ lest they should understand it carnally, he said, ‘It is the Spirit that quickeneth, but the flesh profiteth nothing: the words which I have spoken unto you are spirit and life.’

“6. This Nicodemus, who had come to Jesus by night, did not savor of this spirit and this life. Saith Jesus to him, ‘Except a man be born again, he shall not see the kingdom of God.’ And he, savoring of his own flesh, while as yet he savored not of the flesh of Christ in his mouth, saith, ‘How can a man be born a second time, when he is old? Can he enter a second time into his mother’s womb, and be born?’ This man knew but one birth, that from Adam and Eve; that which is from God and the Church he knew not yet; he knew only those parents that bring forth to death, knew not yet the parents that bring forth to life; he knew but the parents that bring forth successors, knew not yet the ever-living parents that bring forth those that shall abide. Whilst there are two births, then, he understood only one. One is of the earth, the other of heaven; one of the flesh, the other of the Spirit; one of mortality, the other of everlasting life; one of male and female, the other of God and the Church.”

The Holy Eucharist tests one’s faith

If men do not make pure and perfect acts of faith on earth, then God will never let them into heaven because they would constantly doubt and deny dogmas that are above their understanding and would constantly question and challenge God, as Lucifer did, because even in heaven among the angels and the elect there are many things above the understanding of angels and men because angels and men are not God. Hence God tests men’s faith on earth before he lets them into heaven. This supernatural mystery, the dogma of the Holy Eucharist, is one such test of faith.

“O the depth of the riches of the wisdom and of the knowledge of God! How incomprehensible are his judgments, and how unsearchable his ways!”
(Rom. 11:33)

Oh, what a great test of faith the Holy Eucharist is as one of the methods in which God separates the wheat from the chaff! And the humble who believe things by faith that they cannot know by human reason or human science are separated from the proud who believe in nothing unless they can understand it by human reason or explain it by human science. The one religion rests upon God, and the other upon mere humans who get sick and die, who cannot even save their own physical life, who, try as they may, cannot bring paradise upon earth or create one single thing or make it live forever.

Holy Spirit, On the

The Holy Spirit is God

“But the Paraclete, the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name, he will teach you all things, and bring all things to your mind whatsoever I shall have said to you.” (Jn. 14:26)

Commentary on Jn. 14:26: The Holy Spirit: The Holy Spirit, also called a Paraclete, is God. He is the third divine Person of the Most Holy Trinity. See commentary on Mt. 28:19.

St. John teaches that the Holy Spirit is one of the three divine Persons in the one God:

“And there are three who give testimony in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Spirit. And these three are one.” (1 Jn. 5:7)

Jesus commanded his disciples to baptize in the name of not only God the Father but also of God the Son and of God the Holy Spirit, thus teaching the dogma of the Holy Trinity:

“Going therefore, teach ye all men: baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit.” (Mt. 28:19)

St. Peter says that Ananias lied to the Holy Spirit and thus lied to God, and therefore St. Peter is teaching that the Holy Spirit is God:

“But Peter said: Ananias, why hath Satan tempted thy heart, that thou shouldst lie to the Holy Spirit, ... Thou hast not lied to men but to God.” (Acts 5:3-4)

St. Peter says that the angels desire to look upon the Holy Spirit: “...the Holy Spirit being sent down from heaven, on whom the angels desire to look.” (1 Pt. 1:12) And St. Paul says that the Spirit is the Lord, the Spirit is God:

“Now there are diversities of graces, but the same Spirit; and there are diversities of ministries, but the same Lord; and there are diversities of operations, but the same God, who worketh all in all.” (1 Cor. 12:4-6)

St. Paul speaks of the divine Person of the Holy Spirit, that the Holy Spirit sanctifies men; that the Holy Spirit gives him the power to do signs and wonders; and thus, by implication, that the Holy Spirit is God:

“Now the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing that you may abound in hope and in the power of the Holy Spirit... That the oblation of the Gentiles may be made acceptable and sanctified in the Holy Spirit... I have therefore glory...by the virtue of signs and wonders, in the power of the Holy Spirit...” (Rom. 15:13-19)

Pope St. Damasus and the Athanasian Creed infallibly teach the following:

Pope St. Damasus, Council of Rome, 382: “(16) If anyone does not say that the Holy Spirit, just as the Son, is truly and properly of the Father, of divine substance, and is not true God, he is a heretic.

“(20) If anyone does not say that there is one divinity of Father, and Son, and Holy Spirit,...he is a heretic.”

Athanasian Creed, 4th century: “Now the Catholic faith is this, that we worship one God in Trinity and Trinity in unity, neither confounding the Persons nor dividing the substance. For there is one Person of the Father, another of the Son, and another of the Holy Spirit. But the divine nature of the Father, of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit is one, their glory equal, their majesty co-eternal.”

The Bible describes the form of the Holy Spirit as a Dove:

“Now it came to pass when all the people were baptized, that Jesus also being baptized and praying, heaven was opened and the Holy Spirit descended in a bodily shape, as a dove, upon him; and a voice came from heaven: Thou art my beloved Son; in thee I am well pleased.” (Lk. 3:21-22)

This may only be symbolic and thus the Holy Spirit may have the form of a human, as does God the Father and God the Son.

The Holy Spirit proceeds from the Father and the Son

The Holy Spirit eternally proceeds from the Father and the Son. The Bible teaches that the Holy Spirit is the Spirit of the Father and the Spirit of the Son and thus proceeds from both the Father and the Son.

Jesus says that the Holy Spirit is the Spirit of the Father and thus proceeds from the Father:

“For it is not you that speak, but the Spirit of your Father that speaketh in you.” (Mt. 10:20)

“The Paraclete cometh, whom I will send you from the Father, the Spirit of truth, who proceedeth from the Father...” (Jn. 15:26)

St. Paul says that the Holy Spirit is the Spirit of Jesus and thus also proceeds from the Son:

“And because you are sons, God hath sent the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying: Abba, Father.” (Gal. 4:6)

“For I know that this shall fall out to me unto salvation, through your prayer, and the supply of the Spirit of Jesus Christ...” (Phili. 1:19)

“And when they had passed through Phrygia and the country of Galatia, they were forbidden by the Holy Spirit to preach the word in Asia. And when they were come into Mysia, they attempted to go into Bithynia; and the Spirit of Jesus suffered them not.” (Acts 16:6-7)

“But you are not in the flesh, but in the spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his.” (Rom. 8:9)

“For by him [Jesus] we have access both in one Spirit to the Father... In whom you also are built together into an habitation of God in the Spirit.” (Eph. 2:18, 22)

The dogma that the Holy Spirit proceeds from the Father and the Son was first infallibly defined by Pope St. Damasus at the Council of Rome in 382:

Pope St. Damasus, Council of Rome, 382: “...For the Holy Spirit is not only the Spirit of the Father or not only the Spirit of the Son, but the Spirit of the Father and of the Son. For it is written: If anyone love the world, the Spirit of the Father is not in him (1 Jn. 2:15). Likewise it is written: Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his (Rom. 8:9). When the Father and the Son are mentioned in this way, the Holy Spirit is understood, of whom the Son himself says in the Gospel, that the Holy Spirit proceedeth from the Father (Jn. 15:26), and he shall receive of mine and shall announce it to you. (Jn. 16:14)” (D. 83)

The Holy Spirit enables men to be holy, gives spiritual life, and lives in holy men

The Holy Spirit works in the souls of all men. And he dwells (lives) in the souls of holy believers; that is, men who are pleasing to God, which under the Old Covenant were good Israelites and under the New Covenant are good Catholics.

God the Holy Spirit bestows in the souls of men the graces, inspirations, and other gifts which enable them to think, believe, and do holy things and other good things, and thus become or remain pleasing to God. Therefore the Holy Spirit enables unbelievers to become believers, unholy believers to become holy believers, and holy believers to remain holy believers. Without the grace and other gifts of the Holy Spirit, a holy man cannot remain holy; for “The Lord preserveth the souls of his saints” (Ps. 96:10) and “The Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly from temptation” (2 Pt. 2:9) and the faithful “by the power of God are kept by faith unto salvation.” (1 Pt. 1:5)

However, if men do not cooperate with the grace and other gifts of the Holy Spirit, then unbelievers will not become believers, or unholy believers will not become holy believers, or holy believers will not remain holy believers but will become either unholy believers or unbelievers. All unbelievers are unholy. Jesus says,

“He that believeth not the Son shall not see life, but the wrath of God abideth on him. (Jn. 3:36) He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall be condemned. (Mk. 16:16)”

The Holy Spirit, then, bestows gifts upon unholy men to move them toward holiness and thus to move their souls from being unholy to holy, from spiritual death to spiritual life. While Jesus creates souls and thus gives them physical life, the Holy Spirit gives worthy souls spiritual life. Hence the souls of unholy men do not have spiritual life and are said to be dead even though their souls still exist. (See commentaries on Jn. 1:3 and Jn. 11:26.)

When men become pleasing to God (that is, when they become holy believers), the Holy Spirit then gives their souls spiritual life and dwells (lives) within their souls. Regarding holy men,

St. Job says, “God was secretly in my tabernacle...” (Job 29:4-5)

St. Paul says, “Know you not that you are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? (1 Cor. 3:16) Know you not that your members are the temple of the Holy Spirit, who is in you, whom you have from God... (1 Cor. 6:19) God...hath given his Holy Spirit in us. (1 Thes. 4:8) Keep the good thing committed to thy trust by the Holy Spirit, who dwelleth in us. (2 Tim. 1:14)”

The Holy Spirit's gift of actual grace

The Holy Spirit first gives men actual graces which enable them to believe and do what he is going to teach them:

“For it is God [the Holy Spirit] who worketh in you, both to will and to accomplish, according to his good will.” (Phili. 2:13)

“Not that we are sufficient to think any thing of ourselves, as of ourselves; but our sufficiency is from God [the Holy Spirit].” (2 Cor. 3:5)

Therefore without the grace and other gifts of God the Holy Spirit, men cannot think, believe, or do anything good with a good motive and hence can only think and do evil. I say “with a good motive” because it is possible for an evil man to do a good thing but with an evil motive, and thus even the good thing he does is not for a good reason and thus is attributed to him as an evil. St. Jesus, son of Sirach, says, “If he do good, he doth it ignorantly and unwillingly.” (Eccus. 14:7) St. Paul speaks of evil men who preach the gospel for evil motives, and thus their preaching of the gospel is attributed as an evil even though good comes from it:

“And many of the brethren in the Lord, growing confident by my bands, are much more bold to speak the word of God without fear. Some indeed, even out of envy and contention; but some also for good will preach Christ. Some out of charity, knowing that I am set for the defence of the gospel. And some out of contention preach Christ not sincerely, supposing that they raise affliction to my bands. But what then? So that by all means, whether by occasion or by truth, Christ be preached; in this also I rejoice, yea, and will rejoice.” (Phili. 1:14-18)

Therefore every thought of a man who is either void of God's grace or who does not cooperate with God's grace is set upon evil. No matter how many good things he may do, he does them for an evil motive. This is the meaning of the dogma that men cannot do anything good without God's grace:

"I know, O Lord, that the way of a man is not his; neither is it in a man to walk and to direct his steps. (Jer. 10:23) No man of himself [without God's grace] is innocent before thee. (Ex. 34:7) Say not: I am sufficient for myself. (Eccus. 11:26) Not that we are sufficient to think any thing of ourselves, as of ourselves; but our sufficiency is from God. (2 Cor. 3:5)"

Catholic Commentary on 2 Cor. 3:5: "Of ourselves: This maketh first against the heretics called Pelagians that hold our meritorious actions or thoughts to be of freewill only and not assisted by God's special grace..."

Pope St. Zosimus (418) and Pope St. Celestine (431): "For no one is good of himself... God thus operates in the hearts of men and in the free will itself, so that a holy thought, a pious plan, and every motion of good will is from God, because we can do anything good through him, without whom we can do nothing (Jn. 15:5)... Whoever says...that what we are ordered to do through free will, we may be able to accomplish more easily through grace, just as if, even if grace were not given, we could nevertheless fulfill the divine commands without it, though not indeed easily, let him be anathema."<sup>2889</sup>

The Holy Spirit's gift of wisdom

The Holy Spirit grants grace to men and then teaches them the true wisdom of temporal things, such as the knowledge he gave to Beseleel and Ooliab to build the temple and its furniture:

"And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying: Behold, I have called by name Beseleel the son of Uri the son of Hur of the tribe of Juda, and I have filled him with the spirit of God, with wisdom and understanding, and knowledge in all manner of work, to devise whatsoever may be artificially made of gold, and silver, and brass, of marble, and precious stones, and variety of wood. And I have given him for his companion Ooliab the son of Achisamech of the tribe of Dan. And I have put wisdom in the heart of every skilful man, that they may make all things which I have commanded thee..." (Ex. 31:1-6)

But, more importantly, the Holy Spirit grants grace to men and then teaches them the true wisdom of spiritual things that they need to know and believe in order to be pleasing to God and be saved. This spiritual wisdom is the one true faith, the one true religion, which under the Old Covenant was Judaism and now under the New Covenant is Catholicism (the Catholic faith). Jesus says that this is "the truth [that] shall make you free." (Jn. 8:32) In fact, God is truth itself and thus Jesus says, "I am the way, and the truth, and the life." (Jn. 14:6) This truth, this wisdom, is given to men by the teachings and inspirations of the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit teaches men all the things they need to know and believe in order to be holy and thus be saved. Jesus says,

"I will ask the Father, and he shall give you another Paraclete, that he may abide with you for ever. The spirit of truth, whom the world cannot receive because it seeth him not, nor knoweth him; but you shall know him because he shall abide with you and shall be in you. (Jn. 14:16-17) The Paraclete, the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name, he will teach you all things, and bring all things to your mind whatsoever I shall have said to you. (Jn. 14:26)"

"The Holy Spirit...will teach you all truth." (Jn. 16:13)

Because God "will have all men to be saved, and to come to the knowledge of the truth," (1 Tim. 2:4) the Holy Spirit teaches and inspires men not only during the New Testament era but also taught and inspired men during the Old Testament era:

"Thou gavest them thy good Spirit to teach them..." (2 Esd. 9:20)

"I have filled him with the spirit of God, with wisdom and understanding and knowledge..." (Ex. 31:3)

"And who shall know thy thought except thou give wisdom, and send thy Holy Spirit from above, and so the ways of them that are upon earth may be corrected, and men may learn the things that please thee?" (Wis. 9:17-18)

"And I will put my spirit in the midst of you, and I will cause you to walk in my commandments, and to keep my judgments, and do them." (Ez. 36:27)

The Holy Spirit teaches men directly and indirectly. He teaches men directly either by internal inspirations (putting thoughts into their minds) or by audibly speaking to them (speaking in their ears or in their minds):

- By putting thoughts into their minds: The holy woman Anna, the mother of the Prophet Samuel, says, "The Lord is a God of all knowledge, and to him are thoughts prepared." (1 Ki. 2:3) King Solomon says, "God [the Holy Spirit] hath given to me to speak as I would, and to conceive thoughts worthy of those things that are given me, because he is the guide of wisdom and the director of the wise." (Wis. 7:15)

- By audibly speaking to men:
Speaking to the Prophet Ezechiel, God says, “Son of man, I have made thee a watchman to the house of Israel: and thou shalt hear the word out of my mouth, and shalt tell it them from me.” (Ez. 3:17)
Speaking to his disciples, Jesus says, “But when they shall deliver you up, take no thought how or what to speak: for it shall be given you in that hour what to speak. For it is not you that speak, but the Spirit of your Father [the Holy Spirit] that speaketh in you.” (Mt. 10:19-20) “And the Spirit said to Philip: Go near, and join thyself to this chariot.” (Acts 8:29)

And the Holy Spirit teaches men indirectly, most commonly, through God’s ministers who teach men the truth by the spoken or written word. Hence Jesus told the apostles, “Going therefore, teach ye all peoples... Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you.” (Mt. 28:19-20) And St. Paul says,

“How then shall they call on him, in whom they have not believed? Or how shall they believe him, of whom they have not heard? And how shall they hear without a preacher? ...Faith then cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of Christ.” (Rom. 10:14, 17)

“Therefore, brethren, stand fast; and hold the traditions which you have learned, whether by word or by our epistle.” (2 Thes. 2:14)

However, without the grace, the desire to know, the spirit of understanding, the spirit of faith, and other gifts from the Holy Spirit, men cannot believe or understand the truth even when it is externally presented to them:

“For if it shall please the great Lord, he will fill him with the spirit of understanding.” (Eccus. 39:8)

After his resurrection, Jesus “opened their [the apostles’ and other disciples’] understanding, that they might understand the scriptures.” (Lk. 24:45)

“For the Lord will give thee in all things understanding.” (2 Tim. 2:7)

“And his disciples came and said to him: Why speakest thou to them in parables? Who answered and said to them: Because to you it is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it is not given.” (Mt. 13:10-11)

Hence if a man is very obstinate and thus greatly displeasing to the Lord, then the Holy Spirit will not fill him with grace, the spirit of understanding, the spirit of faith, and other gifts; and thus even when he hears the truth he will not be able to understand or believe it. Such are the hard-hearted whom God abandons:

“For it was the sentence of the Lord that their hearts should be hardened...and should not deserve any clemency...” (Jos. 11:20)

“And he said: Go, and thou shalt say to this people: Hearing, hear, and understand not: and see the vision, and know it not. Blind the heart of this people, and make their ears heavy, and shut their eyes...” (Isa. 6:9-10)

“For the Lord hath mingled for you the spirit of a deep sleep, he will shut up your eyes, he will cover your prophets and princes that see visions. And the vision of all shall be unto you as the words of a book that is sealed, which when they shall deliver to one that is learned, they shall say: Read this, and he shall answer: I cannot, for it is sealed.” (Isa. 29:10-11)

“As it is written: God hath given them the spirit of insensibility: eyes that they should not see, and ears that they should not hear, until this present day. And David saith: Let their table be made a snare, and a trap, and a stumbling block, and a recompense unto them. Let their eyes be darkened that they may not see, and bow down their back always.” (Rom. 11:8-10)

The Holy Spirit’s gift of prophecy

It is God the Holy Spirit who gives holy men the gift of prophecy:

“And when the spirit had rested on them [seventy disciples of Moses] they prophesied...” (Num. 11:25)

“And Zachary...was filled with the Holy Spirit, and he prophesied...” (Lk. 1:67)

“Men, brethren, the scripture must needs be fulfilled which the Holy Spirit spoke before by the mouth of David concerning Judas, who was the leader of them that apprehended Jesus.” (Acts 1:16)

“For prophecy came not by the will of man at any time; but the holy men of God spoke, inspired by the Holy Spirit.” (2 Pt. 1:21)

“Who, when he was come to us, took Paul’s girdle, and binding his own feet and hands, he said: Thus saith the Holy Spirit: The man whose girdle this is, the Jews shall bind in this manner in Jerusalem, and shall deliver him into the hands of the Gentiles.” (Acts 21:11)

The Holy Spirit’s gift of sanctifying grace

The Holy Spirit’s gift of sanctifying grace, which Jesus made available by his sacrificial death on the cross, enables holy men to enter heaven. St. Peter says,

“According to the foreknowledge of God the Father, unto the sanctification of the Spirit unto obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ: Grace unto you and peace be multiplied.” (1 Pt. 1:2)

Before Jesus died, holy men, such as Abraham and Moses, could not enter heaven even though they were pleasing to God and the Holy Spirit dwelt in them. They had to wait in the highest level of hell, called the Limbo of the Fathers or Abraham’s Bosom, because their sins were not yet remitted but only forgiven and covered. They were only partially justified. Their sins were forgiven by covering grace but not remitted because sanctifying grace did not exist until Jesus died on the cross. It is sanctifying grace that remits sins and thus makes men completely justified and thus enables them to enter heaven. See commentary on Heb. 10:4.

The Holy Spirit grants worthy men sanctifying grace through the sacraments of baptism and penance

The two ways that sanctifying grace remits sins and makes men pleasing to God are by the power of the sacrament of baptism and by the power of the sacrament of penance. By the power of God the Holy Spirit, these two sacraments bestow sanctifying grace and remit sins when received in the Catholic Church by worthy catechumens and Catholics.

Jesus teaches that a man is born again (sanctified) by the water of baptism and the power of the Holy Spirit:

“Jesus answered: Amen, amen I say to thee, unless a man be born again of water and the Holy Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God.” (Jn. 3:5)

On Pentecost Day, St. Peter taught that the sacrament of baptism remits sins by the Holy Spirit’s gift of sanctifying grace:

“Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of your sins. And you shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit.” (Acts 2:38)

The gifts of the Holy Spirit received during baptism by worthy candidates are not only sanctifying grace and thus the remission of sins but also the indelible mark of baptism (also called the character of baptism) and membership in the Catholic Church.<sup>2890</sup>

After Jesus’ resurrection and before his ascension into heaven, he instituted the sacrament of penance by giving his disciples and their priest-successors the power to remit or retain the sins of Catholics by the power and sanctifying grace of the Holy Spirit:

<sup>2890</sup> Unworthy candidates (such as Protestants baptized into Protestant sects) also receive the indelible mark and thus their baptisms are valid. But their baptisms are illegal, and hence they do not receive sanctifying grace and thus the remission of their sins nor membership in the Catholic Church. They can only receive these other gifts if they enter the Catholic Church because there is no remission of sins outside of the Catholic Church.

“He said therefore to them again: Peace be to you. As the Father hath sent me, I also send you. When he had said this, he breathed on them, and he said to them: Receive ye the Holy Spirit. Whose sins you shall forgive, they are forgiven them; and whose sins you shall retain, they are retained.” (Jn. 20:21-23)

See commentary on Jn. 20:23.

The Holy Spirit’s gifts bestowed by the sacraments

The Holy Spirit bestows gifts to catechumens and Catholics not only through the sacraments of baptism and penance but also through the other five sacraments. All these gifts were made available by God the Son’s death on the cross and are distributed by God the Holy Spirit. St. Paul says, “The charity of God [God’s grace and gifts to men] is poured forth in our hearts by the Holy Spirit, who is given to us.” (Rom. 5:5)

The sacrament of Holy Orders

Regarding the sacrament of Holy Orders, St. Paul teaches that it is the Holy Spirit who makes bishops:

“Take heed to yourselves, and to the whole flock, wherein the Holy Spirit hath placed you bishops, to rule the Church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood.” (Acts 20:28)

And St. Paul teaches that he and the other bishops have the authority to ordain priests by the power of the Holy Spirit:

“For this cause I left thee in Crete that thou shouldest set in order the things that are wanting and shouldest ordain priests in every city, as I also appointed thee.” (Titus 1:5)

“And when they had ordained to them priests in every church and had prayed with fasting, they commended them to the Lord, in whom they believed.” (Acts 14:22)

“Neglect not the grace [of the Holy Spirit] that is in thee, which was given thee by prophecy, with imposition of the hands of the priesthood.” (1 Tim. 4:14)

Catholic priests not only receive special graces and other gifts from the Holy Spirit to carry out their functions, but they also receive a priestly character or mark on their souls which can never be taken away.

The sacrament of Confirmation

Through the sacrament of Confirmation, the Holy Spirit bestows particular graces and other gifts to Catholics to enable them to boldly, confidently, and convincingly profess the Catholic faith. Speaking of the Holy Spirit’s bestowal of special graces and other gifts in the sacrament of Confirmation, Jesus told the apostles that they would not receive these gifts until he was glorified; that is, until he rose from the dead:

“He that believeth in me, as the scripture saith, out of his belly shall flow rivers of living water [special and abundant graces and other gifts]. Now this he said of the Spirit which they should receive who believed in him, for as yet the Spirit was not given because Jesus was not yet glorified.” (Jn. 7:38-39)

After Jesus was glorified and just before he ascended into heaven, he told the apostles and other disciples to stay in the city and not begin preaching until they were endued with power from on high; that is, until they received the special graces and other gifts of the Holy Spirit in the sacrament of Confirmation:

“And I send the promise of my Father upon you, but stay you in the city till you be endued with power from on high.” (Lk. 24:49)

“He [Jesus] commanded them that they should not depart from Jerusalem but should wait for the promise of the Father, which you have heard (saith he) by my mouth. For John indeed baptized with water, but you shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit not many days hence... But you shall receive the power of the Holy Spirit coming upon you, and you shall be witnesses unto me in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and Samaria, and even to the uttermost part of the earth. And when he had said these things, while they looked on, he was raised up and a cloud received him out of their sight... Then they returned to Jerusalem from the mount that is called Olivet... And when they were come in, they went up into an upper room... All these were persevering with one mind in prayer with the women, and Mary the mother of Jesus, and with his brethren.” (Acts 1:4-5, 8-14)

The apostles and other brethren waited and prayed for nine days, the first novena of the Catholic Church, and on the tenth day they were endued with this power from on high, on Pentecost Day, when the sacrament of Confirmation was instituted. And when the apostles and other disciples received the sacrament, the Holy Spirit bestowed upon them the special graces and other gifts of this sacrament:

“When the days of the Pentecost were accomplished, they were all together in one place. And suddenly there came a sound from heaven, as of a mighty wind coming, and it filled the whole house where they were sitting. And there appeared to them parted tongues as it were of fire, and it sat upon every one of them. And they were all filled with the Holy Spirit, and they began to speak with divers tongues, according as the Holy Spirit gave them to speak. Now there were dwelling at Jerusalem, Jews, devout men, out of every nation under heaven... But Peter, standing up with the eleven, lifted up his voice and spoke to them: Ye men of Judea, and all you that dwell in Jerusalem, be this known to you, and with your ears receive my words. For these are not drunk, as you suppose, seeing it is but the third hour of the day: But this is that which was spoken of by the prophet Joel: And it shall come to pass in the last days, (saith the Lord,) I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh, and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams. And upon my servants indeed, and upon my handmaids, will I pour out in those days of my spirit, and they shall prophesy. And I will shew wonders in the heaven above, and signs on the earth beneath...” (Acts 2:1-5, 14-19)

And this is Joel’s prophecy that St. Peter referred to, as fulfilled on Pentecost Day:

“And you shall know that I am in the midst of Israel; and I am the Lord your God, and there is none besides; and my people shall not be confounded for ever. And it shall come to pass after this, that I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh: and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, and your young men shall see visions. Moreover, upon my servants and handmaids in those days I will pour forth my spirit. And I will shew wonders in heaven and in earth...” (Joel 2:27-30)

The Holy Spirit’s gifts that enable men to be good and do good

The Holy Spirit gives gifts (also known as fruits or virtues) to men who cooperate with his grace, and these gifts enable them to be good and do good. St. Paul mentions twelve of them:

“But the fruit of the Spirit is charity, joy, peace, patience, benignity, goodness, longanimity, mildness, faith, modesty, continency, chastity.” (Gal. 5:22-23)

And the Prophet Isaias mentions some other gifts of the Holy Spirit:

“And the spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him: the spirit of wisdom, and of understanding, the spirit of counsel, and of fortitude, the spirit of knowledge, and of godliness. And he shall be filled with the spirit of the fear of the Lord.” (Isa. 11:2-3)

These gifts (also known as fruits or virtues) enable men, by the grace of the Holy Spirit, to do good deeds:

Chief Spiritual Works of Mercy: “1. To admonish sinners; 2. To instruct the ignorant; 3. To counsel the doubtful; 4. To comfort the sorrowful; 5. To bear wrongs patiently; 6. To forgive all injuries; 7. To pray for the living and the faithful departed.”

Chief Corporal Works of Mercy: “1. To feed the hungry; 2. To give drink to the thirsty; 3. To clothe the naked; 4. To ransom the captive; 5. To give shelter to the homeless; 6. To visit the sick; 7. To bury the dead.”

The Holy Spirit's extraordinary gifts

The extraordinary gifts of the Holy Spirit are also called charismata. Some of the extraordinary gifts that the Holy Spirit gives to men are the power to prophesy, to do miracles, to heal the sick, to cast out devils, to understand deep mysteries, to teach the faith, to take care of the poor and sick, to rule the Church, to administer the sacraments. St. Paul mentions some of the extraordinary gifts that the Holy Spirit gives to believers:

“And there are diversities of operations, but the same God, who worketh all in all. And the manifestation of the Spirit is given to every man unto profit. To one indeed, by the Spirit, is given the word of wisdom; and to another, the word of knowledge, according to the same Spirit; to another, faith in the same spirit; to another, the grace of healing in one Spirit; to another, the working of miracles; to another, prophecy; to another, the discerning of spirits; to another, diverse kinds of tongues; to another, interpretation of speeches. But all these things one and the same Spirit worketh, dividing to every one according as he will. For as the body is one and hath many members, and all the members of the body, whereas they are many yet are one body, so also is Christ. For in one Spirit were we all baptized into one body, whether Jews or Gentiles, whether bond or free; and in one Spirit we have all been made to drink. For the body also is not one member, but many...

“Now you are the body of Christ, and members of member. And God indeed hath set some in the Church; first apostles, secondly prophets, thirdly doctors; after that miracles; then the graces of healings, helps, governments, kinds of tongues, interpretations of speeches. Are all apostles? Are all prophets? Are all doctors? Are all workers of miracles? Have all the grace of healing? Do all speak with tongues? Do all interpret? But be zealous for the better gifts. And I shew unto you yet a more excellent way.” (1 Cor. 12:6-14, 27-31)

The Holy Spirit gives extraordinary gifts not only to holy believers (that is, to holy Catholics and holy catechumens) but also to unholy believers, nominal believers, and self-professed unbelievers for their own benefit or the benefit of others, provided there is no scandal given. But he never gives them the power to truly cast out devils. And the only extraordinary gift he gives to self-professed unbelievers is the gift of prophecy:

Nominal Catholic Encyclopedia, “Holy Spirit”:
“The gifts of the Holy Spirit are of two kinds: the first are especially intended for the sanctification

“Going therefore, teach ye all nations; baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit.” (Mt. 28:19)

Mt. 28:19. In the name of The Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit: After Jesus' resurrection, of the person who receives them: the second, more properly called charismata, are extraordinary favors granted for the help of another, favors, too, which do not sanctify by themselves, and may even be separated from sanctifying grace. ... The charismata, being extraordinary favours and not requisite for the sanctification of the individual... the charismata were extremely useful, and even morally necessary, to strengthen the faith of believers, to confound the infidels, to make them reflect, and to counterbalance the false miracles...”

Nominal Catholic Encyclopedia, “Grace”: “Yet there are also interior graces which do not procure the individual sanctification of the recipient, but the sanctification of others through the recipient... To this class belong the extraordinary charismata of the miracle-worker, the prophet, the speaker of tongues, etc., as well as the ordinary powers of the priest and confessor. As the object of these graces is, according to their nature, the spread of the kingdom of God on earth and the sanctification of men, their possession in itself does not exclude personal unholiness.”

Even though the Holy Spirit gives extraordinary gifts to nominal believers, unholy believers, and self-professed unbelievers, the Devil also gives them gifts to do demonic signs and wonders in order to lead them and others away from the faith or morality. Hence one must try the spirits to know if the gifts come from God or from the Devil. See commentary on Mk. 9:37. And see RJMI Topic Index: Signs and Wonders. ## RJMI's Daily Thanksgiving to God the Holy Spirit

Thank you for all the great, good, and wonderful gifts thou hast given me, O Holy Spirit, hopefully my nearest and dearest friend. If not, may everything in my life be directed toward that end, for nothing else matters more than that.

Holy Trinity, On the ### Proof from the Bible and infallible Tradition

he explicitly taught his disciples the dogma of the Holy Trinity, which states that the one, true God exists in three divine Persons: God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit. Even though each divine Person is God, there is only one God. The dogma of the Holy Trinity can only be believed by faith because it is above human reason and thus also above human science:

“For many things are shewn to thee above the understanding of men.” (Eccus. 3:25)

Before Jesus rose from the dead and explicitly taught the dogma of the Holy Trinity (as recorded in Matthew 28:19), he hinted at it, as recorded in John 14:26:

“But the Paraclete, the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name, he will teach you all things, and bring all things to your mind, whatsoever I shall have said to you.”

Before Jesus’ resurrection, the Holy Trinity was manifest at several events:

1) The Holy Trinity was manifest during the Incarnation: “And the angel answering, said to her: The Holy Spirit shall come upon thee, and the power of the most High shall overshadow thee. And therefore also the Holy which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God.” (Lk. 1:35)

2) The Holy Trinity was manifest when Jesus was baptized: “Now it came to pass, when all the people were baptized, that Jesus also being baptized and praying, heaven was opened; and the Holy Spirit descended in a bodily shape, as a dove upon him; and a voice came from heaven: Thou art my beloved Son; in thee I am well pleased.” (Lk. 3:21-22)

3) God the Father and God the Son were manifest during Jesus’ Transfiguration: “And after six days Jesus taketh unto him Peter and James, and John his brother, and bringeth them up into a high mountain apart: And he was transfigured before them... And...behold a bright cloud overshadowed them. And lo, a voice out of the cloud, saying: This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased: hear ye him.” (Mt. 17:1-5)

Before Jesus’ resurrection, he hinted and even explicitly taught that he is God and one with the Father. See commentary on Jn. 1:1.

After Jesus’ resurrection, when belief in the dogma of the Holy Trinity was necessary for salvation, the apostles and other Catholics taught the dogma of the Most Holy Trinity. St. John explicitly teaches this dogma when he says:

“There are three who give testimony in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Spirit. And these three are one.” (1 Jn. 5:7)

And St. John teaches that the Word (God the Son) is God and is with God the Father and God the Holy Spirit: “The Word was with God and the Word was God.” (Jn. 1:1) St. Paul speaks of the Holy Trinity when he says: “God hath sent the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying: Abba, Father.” (Gal. 4:6)

And all the Church Fathers and infallible papal decrees from AD 33 onward teach the dogma of the Holy Trinity. For example, the Nicene Creed, composed in 325, says,

“I believe in One God, the Father Almighty... And in one Lord Jesus Christ, the only-begotten Son of God, born of the Father before all ages. God of God, light of light, true God of true God, begotten not made, being of one substance with the Father... And I believe in the Holy Spirit, the Lord and giver of life, who proceedeth from the Father and the Son, who together with the Father and the Son is adored and glorified...”

And the Athanasian Creed, also composed in the 4th century, says:

“Now the Catholic faith is this, that we worship one God in Trinity and Trinity in unity, neither confounding the Persons nor dividing the substance. For there is one Person of the Father, another of the Son, and another of the Holy Spirit. But the divine nature of the Father, of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit is one, their glory equal, their majesty co-eternal... This is the Catholic faith, which except a man believe faithfully and firmly he cannot be saved.”

During the Old Testament era, God did not explicitly reveal that he existed in a Trinity of persons. But he did give hints, which when reflected upon can be seen very clearly after Jesus revealed the dogma of the Holy Trinity to men during the New Covenant era.

When God created man, he speaks to and of himself in a plurality of persons:

“And he said: Let us make man to our image and likeness.” (Gen. 1:26)

The “us” is God speaking to himself in the divine three persons of the Holy Trinity. And “image and likeness” is that of God and thus the “our image and likeness” means there is more than one person in the one God. (See Gen. 3:22, Gen. 11:7, Isa. 6:8.)

God also hinted that he exists in a Trinity of persons when some his titles and some events and exaltations are in threes:

Three heavenly spirits appeared to Abraham. It is certain that one was God and the other two may also have been God and thus all three divine persons of the Holy Trinity appeared to Abraham. If one was only God, then the other two were angels and symbolic of the other two divine persons. “And the Lord appeared to him [Abraham] in the vale of Mambre as he was sitting at the door of his tent, in the very heat of the day. And when he had lifted up his eyes, there appeared to him three men standing near him: and as soon as he saw them he ran to meet them from the door of his tent, and adored down to the ground. And he said: Lord, if I have found favour in thy sight, pass not away from thy servant.” (Gen. 18:1-3)

During the Old Covenant era, God was referred to as the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob: “The Lord God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath appeared to thee.” (Ex. 4:5)

Aarons’ blessing invokes the Lord’s name three times: “Say to Aaron and his sons: Thus shall you bless the children of Israel, and you shall say to them: The Lord bless thee, and keep thee. The Lord shew his face to thee, and have mercy on thee. The Lord turn his countenance to thee, and give thee peace.” (Num. 6:23-26)

Three Hebrew children were thrown in the fire and were unharmed. And a fourth appeared in the fire, an angel to protect them. This could be symbolic of the three divine persons in one God. “But the angel of the Lord went down with Azarias and his companions into the furnace: and he drove the flame of the fire out of the furnace, And made the midst of the furnace like the blowing of a wind bringing dew, and the fire touched them not at all, nor troubled them, nor did them any harm. Then these three as with one mouth praised, and glorified, and blessed God in the furnace, saying:” (Dan. 3:49-51)

In Old Testament verses, the word “holy” is mentioned three times hinting at the dogma that there are three holy persons in the one God: For example, “And they cried one to another, and said: Holy, holy, holy, the Lord God of hosts, all the earth is full of his glory.” (Isa. 6:3)—three holies in one Lord God. We read in Luke 1:35 that the Holy Trinity was present during the Incarnation and Jesus is called one of the “holy” persons of the Holy Trinity, along with the Spirit which is called “holy,” and the Father, referred to as the most high, is the other holy: “And the angel answering, said to her: The Holy Spirit shall come upon thee, and the power of the most High shall overshadow thee. And therefore also the Holy which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God.” (Lk. 1:35) And the three holy’s in one God is also mentioned in the Book of the Apocalypse: “Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty.” (Apoc. 4:8)

During the Old Covenant era the Holy Temple represented God’s presence on earth. The Prophet Jeremias says that Israelites invoked the Temple of the Lord three times, hinting at the three persons in the one God, in the one Temple: “Trust not in lying words, saying: The temple of the Lord, the temple of the Lord, it is the temple of the Lord.” (Jer. 7:4)

The holy prophets, at times, invoked God with three Alas’. The Prophet Jeremias “said: Alas, alas, alas, O Lord God, . . .” (Jer. 4:10) And “Alas, alas, alas, O Lord God, behold thou hast made heaven and earth by thy great power . . .” (Jer. 32:17) And the Prophet Ezechiel “said: Alas, alas, alas, O Lord God, wilt thou then destroy all the remnant of Israel . . .” (Ez. 9:8)

The Prophet Elias laid upon the dead child three times at which point the child rose from the dead. “And he stretched, and measured himself upon the child three times, and cried to the Lord, and said: O Lord my God, let the soul of this child, I beseech thee, return into his body. And the Lord heard the voice of Elias: and the soul of the child returned into him, and he revived.” (3 Ki. 17:21-22)

The three divine persons are united in one nature but are distinct in personhood

Jesus said that the Father is in the Son and the Son is in the Father and both are united and one with one another, and this is dogma:

“Do you not believe that I am in the Father and the Father in me? (Jn. 14:10) “I and the Father are one.” (Jn. 10:30)

But Jesus also said that the Father was in heaven and thus not on earth with the Son, and this is also dogma:

“So let your light shine before men that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father who is in heaven.” (Mt. 5:16) “Thus therefore shall you pray: Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name.” (Mt. 6:9)

“Jesus saith to her: Do not touch me, for I am not yet ascended to my Father. But go to my brethren, and say to them: I ascend to my Father and to your Father, to my God and your God.” (Jn. 20:17)

How, then, was the Father in the Son and thus on earth with the Son when the Son said the Father was in heaven and that he was going to ascend to the Father? If the Father was in the Son before he ascended into heaven, then the Son did not need to ascend to the Father because the Father was already in him.

This riddle, this apparent contradiction, is solved when one knows the following dogmas on the Holy Trinity. In the Holy Trinity there is one God in three divine persons. Hence in the Holy Trinity there is one divine nature (one divine substance, one Godhead) shared by all three persons. Yet each person is distinct from one another. But the three persons are not distinct from one another in the one nature they share in common. Hence while united in nature, they are distinct in personhood. Hence the person of the Father is not the person of the Son nor the person of the Holy Spirit; and the person of the Son is not the person of the Father nor the person of the Holy Spirit; and the person of the Holy Spirit is not the person of the Father nor the person of the Son:

Athanasian Creed, 4th century: “Now the Catholic faith is this, that we worship one God in Trinity and Trinity in unity, neither confounding the persons nor dividing the substance. For there is one person of the Father, another of the Son, and another of the Holy Spirit. But the divine nature of the Father, of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit is one, their glory equal, their majesty co-eternal . . .”

Pope St. Damasus, Council of Rome, 382: “(2) We anathematize those also who follow the error of Sabellius, saying that the same one is Father as well as Son.” (D. 60)

Hence the personhoods of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit are distinct from one another but united to one another in the one nature they share in common.

Therefore when Jesus says he is in the Father and the Father is in him and they are one with one another, he means by way of the divine nature they share in common but not by way of their personhoods. And when Jesus says the Father is in heaven while he was on earth and thus separate from one another, he means by way of their divine personhoods but not by way of their divine nature which they share in common.

Therefore when the person of the Son was on earth as God and man, the divine nature of the Father was on earth in the Son while the personhood of the Father was not on earth but in heaven. Likewise, when the person of the Father was in heaven and not on earth and the person of the Son was on earth and not in heaven, the divine nature of the Son was in heaven with the person of the Father, as they share the same one divine nature of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. This explains the dogma that while Jesus was on earth as God and man, he was also in heaven with the Father:

While on earth Jesus said, “And no man hath ascended into heaven, but he that descended from heaven, the Son of man who is in heaven.” (Jn. 3:13)

St. Augustine, Lectures on the Gospel of John, Tractate 12 (John 3:16-21), 413: “8. And He goes on: ‘And no man hath ascended into heaven, but He that came down from heaven, the Son of man who is in heaven.’ Behold, he was here, and was also in heaven; was here in his flesh, in heaven by his divinity.”

Pope St. Damasus, Council of Rome, 382: “(13) If anyone says that because he was established in the flesh when he was on earth, he was not in heaven with the Father, he is a heretic.” (D. 71)

Therefore when the person of the Son was on earth as God and man, he was in heaven with the person of the Father by way of the divine nature they share in common. Yet he was not in heaven by way of his personhood. Hence while the divine nature of Jesus was in heaven with the person of the Father, the person of the Father was not on earth and the person of the Son was not in heaven, or else Jesus’ human nature (which is wholly united to his divine personhood) would also be in heaven with the Father, which is heresy because Jesus did not enter heaven with his human nature until the ascension:

“Jesus saith to her: Do not touch me, for I am not yet ascended to my Father.” (Jn. 20:17)

Apostles’ Creed, 1st century: “I believe... in Jesus Christ...who...ascended into heaven...”

Therefore when Jesus was on earth as God and man, his divine nature was in heaven with the Father but not in his personhood which was on earth in his human nature. Jesus’ personhood (consisting of God and man, of his divine nature united to his human nature) did not enter heaven until Jesus ascended into heaven.

This also upholds the dogma that the divine person of the Incarnate Jesus Christ, when he is ruling in heaven, literally sits at the right hand of the Father and thus not on the same throne and in the same place as the Father:

“And the Lord Jesus, after he had spoken to them, was taken up into heaven and sitteth on the right hand of God.” (Mk. 16:19)

Apostles’ Creed, 1st century: “I believe in...Jesus Christ...who...ascended into heaven, and sitteth at the right hand of God the Father almighty...”

Pope St. Damasus, Council of Rome, 382: “(15) If anyone does not say that he sits at the right hand of the Father in the flesh, in which he will come to judge the living and the dead, he is a heretic.” (D. 73)

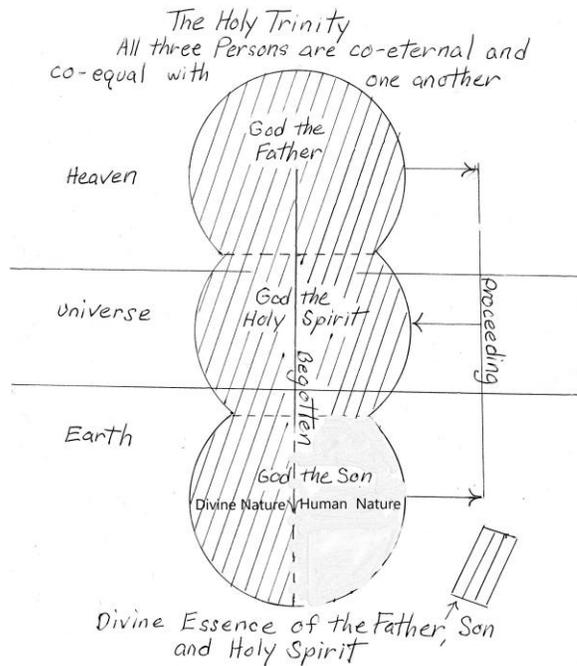

While the throne of the person of Jesus is at the right hand of the throne of the person of the Father and hence in separate places, Jesus is also in the same place as the Father, united to the Father, one with the Father, and in the Father, in the divine nature he shares in common with the Father. They are separate in personhood but united in the divine nature. In their personhoods, they sit on different thrones and thus in different places; but in the divine nature they share in common, they are in the same place and united with one another.

The divine nature, then, of each divine person extends beyond his divine personhood and into the personhood of the other two divine persons. Hence each person consists of the same one nature (substance) of the other two and thus each divine person contains the divine nature of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit (which nature is one and undivided). Therefore,

- The divine person of the Father contains the divine nature of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit but not the divine personhoods of the Son and the Holy Spirit
- The divine person of the Son contains the divine nature of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit but not the divine personhoods of the Father and the Holy Spirit
- And the divine person of the Holy Spirit contains the divine nature of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit but not the divine personhoods of the Father and the Son.

Therefore, while the three persons of the Holy Trinity are united to one another by way of the one divine nature of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit that they share in common, they are distinct from one another by way of their personhoods. Therefore, the divine nature of each person extends beyond his own personhood into the other two persons.

As the saying goes, “A picture is worth a thousand words”; and in this case, it certainly applies:

The three divine persons have one will and operation but act separately

“And he [Jesus] came and took the book out of the right hand of him [God the Father] that sat on the throne.” (Apoc. 5:7)

The Word of God, then, teaches that the person of God the Son and the person of God the Father were in different places and performed different actions. The person of God the Father was on his throne and was holding the book. While the person of God the Son was next to the person of God the Father and took the book from his right hand.

Beware, then, of the heresy which states that whatever one person of the Holy Trinity does the other two also do. According to this heresy, the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit created all things, became man during the Incarnation, died on the cross, and are in the Holy Eucharist. This is the heresy of the Monarchians, Patipassians, Modalists, and Sabellians, which teaches there is only one person in the Holy Trinity and thus the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit are only one person pretending to be three persons:

Nominal Catholic Encyclopedia, Modalists: “The Monarchians properly so-called (Modalists) exaggerated the oneness of the Father and the Son so as to make them but one Person... God the Father appears on earth as Son; hence... the Monarchians made the Father suffer and die. In the West they were called Patipassians, whereas in the East they are usually called Sabellians. The first to visit Rome was probably Praxeas, who went on to Carthage some time before 206-208”

The History of Heresies, by apostate Alphonsus de Liguori, 18th century: “Praxeas, a native of Phrigia...denied the mystery of the Trinity, saying that in God there was but one person and one nature, which he called the Father. This sole person, he said, descended into the womb of the Virgin, and being born of her by means of the incarnation, was called Jesus Christ. According to this impious doctrine, then, it was the Father who suffered death, and on that account his followers were called Patripassionists. The most remarkable among his disciples were Berillus, Noetus, and Sabellius.”<sup>2891</sup>

And those who profess belief in the three divine persons of the Holy Trinity but teach that they all perform the same acts deny, by implication, the three distinct persons of the Holy Trinity and thus, in effect, present only one person in the Holy Trinity.

This heresy was infallibly condemned on Pentecost Day in AD 33 by the unanimous consensus of the apostles and other Church Fathers and at least by Popes St. Zephyrinus (d. 217), St. Callistus (d. 222), St. Damasus in 382, and Pope John III in 561:

Jesus said to the apostles, “Going therefore, teach ye all nations; baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit.” (Mt. 28:19)

St. John said, “And there are three who give testimony in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Spirit. And these three are one.” (1 Jn. 5:7)

Nominal Catholic Encyclopedia, Pope Callistus I (3rd century): “It is certain that Zephyrinus and Callistus condemned various Monarchians and Sabellius himself...”

First Council of Constantinople, 381: “It [the Council of Nicea] tells us how to believe in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the holy Spirit: believing also, of course, that the Father, the Son and the holy Spirit have a single Godhead and power and substance, a dignity deserving the same honour and a co-eternal sovereignty, in three most perfect hypostases, or three perfect persons. So there is no place for Sabellius’ diseased theory in which the hypostases are confused and thus their proper characteristics destroyed.”

Pope St. Damasus, Council of Rome, 382: “(2) We anathematize those also who follow the error of Sabellius, saying that the same one is Father as well as Son.” (D. 60)

Pope John III, Second Council of Braga, 561: “If anyone does not confess that the Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit are three persons of one substance, and virtue, and power, just as the Catholic and apostolic Church teaches, but says there is only one and a solitary person, so that he himself is the Father who is the Son, and also he himself is the Paraclete, the Spirit, just as Sabellius and Priscillian have asserted, let him be anathema.” (D. 231)

St. Gregory of Tours, History of the Franks, 6th century: “As persons the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit are distinct. It was not the Father who took on flesh, nor the Holy Spirit, but the Son, so that he who was Son of God became the son of a virgin also for the redemption of man. It was not the Father who suffered, nor the Holy Spirit, but the Son, so that he who had taken on flesh in the world, was himself offered for the world... [However,] in these three persons, there is one glory, one eternity, one power.”<sup>2892</sup>

Eleventh Council of Toledo, Creed of Faith, 675: “[The Incarnation] Of these three persons we believe that for the liberation of the human race only the person of the Son became true man.” (D. 282)

Even though Innocent III was an apostate antipope, he nevertheless correctly condemned this heresy:

Apostate Antipope Innocent III, Fitts Exemplo (Profession of Faith Prescribed for Durand of Osca and His Waldensian Companions), 1208: “By the heart we believe and by the mouth we confess that the Incarnation of the divinity took place neither in the Father, nor in the Holy Spirit, but in the Son only...” (D. 422)

It is also dogma that the divine nature of the three divine persons of the Holy Trinity is one and the same substance (essence) in each and thus each person has the one and same divine will and divine power (operation). Hence the Holy Trinity consists of one substance (one divine nature) and three subsistences (three divine persons)<sup>2893</sup>:

Pope St. Damasus, Council of Rome, 382: “(20) If anyone does not say that there is one divinity of Father, and Son, and Holy Spirit, one sovereignty, one majesty, one power [operation], one glory, one dominion, one kingdom, and one will and truth, he is a heretic.” (D. 78)

Pope Pelagius, Second Council of Constantinople, 553, confirmed by Pope Pelagius in 556: [Anathemas concerning the Three Chapters] Canon 1. If anyone does not confess that there is one nature or substance of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, and one power and one might, and that the Trinity is consubstantial, one Godhead being worshipped in three subsistences, or persons, let such a one be anathema...”

Pope St. Martin, Lateran Council, 649: “Canon 1. If anyone does not confess properly and truly in accord with the holy Fathers that the Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit are a Trinity in unity and a unity in Trinity; that is, one God in three subsistences, consubstantial and of equal glory, one and the same Godhead, nature, substance, virtue, power, kingdom, authority, will, operation of the three, uncreated, without beginning, incomprehensible, immutable, creator and protector of all things, let him be condemned [see n. 78-82, 213].” (D. 254)

One may ask, “How, then, does each person perform different actions and exist in separate places (which is also dogma) while at the same time each person shares the same one divine nature and thus the same one divine will and one divine power (operation)?” For example, only the person of the Son became man, died on the cross, and exists in the Holy Eucharist. Hence the persons of the Father and Holy Spirit did not become man, die on the Cross, and do not exist in the Holy Eucharist. Therefore, the person of the Son performed a separate action and was in a different place than the persons of the Father and Holy Spirit when he became man, died on the cross, and is in the Holy Eucharist. Yet all three persons have the same one divine nature and thus the same one divine will and the same one divine power (operation).

The one nature (the one substance or essence) of the Holy Trinity is common to all three persons. But the existence, the portion, of the one nature that makes up each person is unique to that person, as each person is distinct from one another. They are distinct in personhood but united in one nature. For example, this is similar to a county that contains the exact same soil but is divided into three cities (three parts). The one same soil is in all three parts but each part is separated from one another by partition while being united in the one county and one soil. If one part of the county and its soil begot the other and the other part proceeded from the two parts and its soil, then you would have three parts (cities) in the one county sharing the one same soil.

The one will of the Holy Trinity is shared in common with all three persons. Hence whatever the Father wills so does the Son and so does the Holy Spirit. For example, the Father willed that the Son would die to redeem men, the Holy Spirit willed that the Son would die to redeem men, and the Son willed they he would die to redeem men. They all willed the same thing (that the Son would die to redeem men). But it was the Son who would be the only person who would die and redeem men. Hence the person of God the Son willed the same thing as the persons of God the Father and God the Holy Spirit, but he acted separately and was in a different place than from them when he died on the cross to redeem men.

The one power (or operation) of the Holy Trinity is shared in common with all three persons. One may ask, “How did the Son create all physical things and not also the Father and the Holy Spirit if they all have the one same divine power (operation)?” We can compare this to a human creature. A human creature has one nature and one power (one operation). Yet he can be doing one thing with his left hand and another with his right hand even though he has one nature and one power (one operation). His left hand can be holding a glass while his right hand is writing. Even though each hand is in a different place and performing a different action, the man only has one nature and one power (one operation). In the similar way, even though the Holy

<sup>2893</sup> I am speaking here of the divine nature of God the Son. Since the Incarnation, God the Son also has a human nature, which has its own will and power (operation) separate from his divine nature. (See Long Commentaries: “Jesus’ Human Nature Has a Distinct Will and Power Than His Divine Nature,” p. 1093.)

Trinity has one divine power (one operation), God the Son creates physical life, God the Holy Spirit creates spiritual life, and God the Father oversees creation. While each was performing different actions, it was by the power of the one operation of their one divine nature. Therefore, even though the person of God the Son and the person of God the Father were in different places and performing different actions when the person of God the Son was on earth and died on the cross and the person of God the Father was in heaven overseeing it, they both did so by the same one divine power (operation) that they have in common with one another. Certainly, if the parts of a human creature, who is one person with one nature and one power (operation), can perform different actions and be in different places, so also can the three parts (persons) of the Holy Trinity, who has one divine nature and one divine operation, perform different actions and be in different places.

(See Long Commentaries: “Jesus’ Human Nature Has a Distinct Will and Power Than His Divine Nature,” p. 1093.)

How God Created the World

God creates things out of nothing

“In the beginning, God created heaven and earth.” (Gen. 1:1)

“Praise the name of the Lord. For he spoke and they were made; he commanded and they were created.” (Ps. 148:5)

“I beseech thee, my son, look upon heaven and earth and all that is in them and consider that God made them out of nothing and mankind also.” (2 Mac. 7:28)

When only God existed, there was only God and thus not even space. Hence God created things out of nothing. For God to be God, he must be able to create things out of nothing, by a mere act of his will, by his mere word. For if God needed anything such as a tool or space to create things, then who created the tool or the space. Logic dictates that God creates out of nothing. But to understand how he does this requires an act of faith because creatures can never reasonably understand how God does this. For example, if God creates a full grown tree out of nothing in front of me, I can then know by empirical evidence that God creates things out of nothing. Yet I, as well as any creature, will never be able to reasonably understand how God does this. No scientist, no matter how smart he is, will be able to make something out of nothing.

The first thing God created was space

The first thing God created was space in which to place his creatures. The first space God created was the heaven of God’s home (God’s heaven), in which he then created the angels in that space.

The universes sits in a circular pool of water

Under God’s heaven, God created a circular pool of water, which was encompassed by God’s heaven. The universe is encased within this circular pool of water outside of which is God’s home in heaven:

“The voice of the Lord is upon the waters; the God of majesty hath thundered, the Lord is upon many waters.” (Ps. 28:3)

“And in the sight of the throne [God’s throne] was, as it were, a sea of glass like to crystal.” (Apoc. 4:6)

Not only the earth but the whole universe is God’s footstool:

“Thus saith the Lord: Heaven is my throne and the earth my footstool. (Isa. 66:1)

“Heaven is my throne and the earth my footstool.” (Acts 7:49)

God sits above the waters that encompass the universe. It is similar to an infant who is conceived in his mother’s womb and encompassed in water. Not until he is born does he exit the water. In the same way, not until men are born again and enter heaven do they exit the waters that encompass the universe and enter heaven. So if God ever allowed scientists to discover the end of the universe, they would find a barrier of which on the other side is water:

“Praise ye him, O sun and moon; praise him, all ye stars and light; praise him, ye heavens of heavens; and let all the waters that are above the heavens praise the name of the Lord. For he spoke, and they were made; he commanded, and they were created.” (Ps. 148:3-5)

God created the world in literally six days

1st day: God sitting over the circular body of water that would contain the universe, created light over the waters and made day and night in the waters:

“In the beginning God created heaven and earth. And the earth was void and empty [did not yet exist], and darkness was upon the face of the deep; and the spirit of God moved over the waters. And God said: Be light made. And light was made. And God saw the light that it was good; and he divided the light from the darkness. And he called the light Day, and the darkness Night; and there was evening and morning one day.” (Gen. 1:1-5)

2nd day: God made a circular firmament (space) which separated the waters above from the waters below. Hence the waters that were below, which were to become the earth, was in the circular shape, the shape of a globe.<sup>2894</sup> The firmament blocked the light from the waters above and thus the waters below were dark. And God called the firmament between the waters above and the waters below, heaven; that is, not God's heaven but outer space where God would place the planets and stars:

“And God said: Let there be a firmament made amidst the waters, and let it divide the waters from the waters. And God made a firmament and divided the waters that were under the firmament from those that were above the firmament, and it was so. And God called the firmament, heaven; and the evening and morning were the second day.” (Gen. 1:6-8)

3rd day: God gathered the waters under the firmament and made dry land with seas and oceans and thus the earth was created. The space that is above the earth but below the firmament (below the heaven of outer space) is earth's heaven. There are, then, three heavens, which St. Paul mentions:

“I know a man in Christ above fourteen years ago (whether in the body, I know not, or out of the body, I know not; God knoweth), such a one caught up to the third heaven.” (2 Cor. 12:2)

The third heaven, then, is God's home. The second heaven is outer space. And the first heaven is the space (the sky) above earth and below outer space. After God created the earth, he made plants, fruit trees, and seed bearing things:

“God also said: Let the waters that are under the heaven be gathered together into one place, and let the dry land appear. And it was so done. And God called the dry land, Earth; and the gathering together of the waters, he called seas. And God saw that it was good. And he said: Let the earth bring forth the green herb, and such as may seed, and the fruit tree yielding fruit after its kind, which may have seed in itself upon the earth. And it was so done. And the earth brought forth the green herb, and such as yieldeth seed according to its kind, and the tree that beareth fruit, having seed each one according to its kind. And God saw that it was good. And the evening and the morning were the third day.” (Gen. 1:9-13)

4th day: God created light in the firmament (outer space) to shine upon the earth. The Sun and other stars, and God created the Moon and other planets. This is irrefutable proof that the earth was literally created in six days, as the trees, plants, and herbs that were created on the 3rd day need the sun to live and survive. For example, if one day were one thousand years, then the trees, plants, and herbs would not have the sun for one thousand years and thus would die:

“And God said: Let there be lights made in the firmament of heaven, to divide the day and the night, and let them be for signs, and for seasons, and for days and years, to shine in the firmament of heaven [outer space], and to give light upon the earth. And it was so done. And God made two great lights: A greater light to rule the day and a lesser light to rule the night and the stars. And he set them in the firmament of heaven to shine upon the earth. And to rule the day and the night, and to divide the light and the darkness. And God saw that it was good. And the evening and morning were the fourth day.” (Gen. 1:14-19)

5th day: God created fish and birds:

“God also said: Let the waters bring forth the creeping creature having life, and the fowl that may fly over the earth under the firmament of heaven. And God created the great whales, and every living and moving creature, which the waters brought forth, according to their kinds, and every winged fowl according to its kind. And God saw that it was good. And he blessed them, saying: Increase and multiply, and fill the waters of the sea: and let the birds be multiplied upon the earth. And the evening and morning were the fifth day.” (Gen. 1:20-23)

6th day: God created animals and other land creatures and then made man, Adam:

“And God said: Let the earth bring forth the living creature in its kind, cattle and creeping things, and beasts of the earth, according to their kinds. And it was so done. And God made the beasts of the earth according to their kinds, and cattle, and every thing that creepeth on the earth after its kind. And God saw that it was good. And he said: Let us make man to our image and likeness, and let him have dominion over the fishes of the sea, and the fowls of the air, and the beasts, and the whole earth, and every creeping creature that moveth upon the earth. And God created man to his own image, to the image of God he created him; male and female he created them. And God blessed them, saying: Increase and multiply, and fill the earth, and subdue it, and rule over the fishes of the sea, and the fowls of the air, and all living creatures that move upon the earth. And God said: Behold I have given you every herb bearing seed upon the earth and all trees that have in themselves seed of their own kind to be your meat: And to all beasts of the earth, and to every fowl of the air and to all that move upon the earth and wherein there is life that they may have to feed upon. And it was so done. And God saw all the things that he had made, and they were very good. And the evening and morning were the sixth day.” (Gen. 1:24-31)

7th day: God rested from his work of creation, as it was completed:

“So the heavens and the earth were finished and all the furniture of them. And on the seventh day God ended his work which he had made. And he rested on the seventh day from all his work which he had done. And he blessed the seventh day and sanctified it because in it he had rested from all his work which God created and made.” (Gen. 2:1-3)

“Thou thyself, O Lord alone, thou hast made heaven, and the heaven of heavens and all the host thereof; the earth and all things that are in it; the seas and all that are therein: and thou givest life to all these things, and the host of heaven adoreth thee.” (2 Esd. 9:6)

God created the world old

One who believes God’s word regarding creation knows the answer to the famous following question: “What came first the chicken or the egg? - The chicken and then the egg. Hence God created the world old. For example, God created Adam as an adult, probably of the age of a man who is around 30 years old. If a scientist or doctor examined Adam, he would say that he was 30 years old when in fact he was less than one minute old. Likewise, God created full grown trees that appeared to be many years old but were less than one minute old.

God created Adam’s body from slime and Eve’s body from the Adam’s rib

God created Adam’s body from the slime (the clay or dust) of the earth and then created his soul within his body:

“And the Lord God formed man of the slime of the earth and breathed into his face the breath of life, and man became a living soul.” (Gen. 2:7)

Jesus hinted that the body of man was created from the slime of the earth when he used clay to heal a blind man. He also hinted that he is God because it was God who created Adam from the clay of the earth:

“When he had said these things, he spat on the ground and made clay of the spittle, and spread the clay upon his eyes, And said to him: Go, wash in the pool of Siloe, which is interpreted, Sent. He went therefore, and washed, and he came seeing.” (Jn. 9:6-7)

After God created Adam, he created the body of Eve from the rib of Adam and then created her soul within her body:

“Then the Lord God cast a deep sleep upon Adam. And when he was fast asleep, he took one of his ribs and filled up flesh for it. And the Lord God built the rib which he took from Adam into a woman and brought her to Adam. And Adam said: This now is bone of my bones and flesh of my flesh; she shall be called woman, because she was taken out of man.” (Gen. 2:21-23)

“Thou madest Adam of the slime of the earth, and gavest him Eve for a helper.” (Tob. 8:8)

Pope Pelagius I, Humani Generis, 557: “For I confess that all men from Adam, even to the consummation of the world, having been born and having died with Adam himself and his wife, who were not born of other parents but were created, the one from the earth, the other, however, from the rib of the man (Gen. 2:7, 22), will then rise again and stand before the Judgment seat of Christ...”<sup>2895</sup>

“I myself also am a mortal man, like all others, and of the race of him that was first made of the earth, and in the womb of my mother I was fashioned to be flesh.” (Wis. 7:1)

Some creatures are extinct and others are newly created

Some of God’s creatures are extinct, such as dinosaurs that existed before the Great Flood.<sup>2896</sup> Although there may be evidence that some exist today. And since the creation of the world, God continues to create new creatures.

“See now all the things which thou hast heard. But have you declared them? I have shewn thee new things from that time, and things are kept which thou knowest not. They are created now and not of old; and before the day when thou heardest them not, lest thou shouldst say: Behold I knew them.” (Isa. 48:6-7)

For example, sometime after the creation of the world, God created fire breathing dragons which no longer exist. The Word of God says that this was a new animal and thus not created during the original creation of the world, as this is also evident because there was no need of fearful and dangerous creatures in the Garden of Paradise that Adam and Eve were created in. God created fire breathing dragons, no doubt, to punish and frighten men:

“For thy almighty hand which made the world of matter without form was not unable to send upon them a multitude of bears, or fierce lions, or unknown beasts of a new kind, full of rage, either breathing out a fiery vapour or sending forth a stinking smoke or shooting horrible sparks out of their eyes.” (Wis. 11:18-19)

“And there was a great dragon in that place, and the Babylonians worshipped him. And the king said to Daniel: Behold thou canst not say now, that this is not a living god: adore him therefore. And Daniel said: I adore the Lord my God: for he is the living God: but that is no living god. But give me leave, O king, and I will kill this dragon without sword or club. And the king said: I give thee leave. Then Daniel took pitch, and fat, and hair, and boiled them together: and he made lumps, and put them into the dragon’s mouth, and the dragon burst asunder. And he said: Behold him whom you worshipped.” (Dan. 14:22-26)

<sup>2896</sup> Some hold the allowable opinion that dinosaurs never existed. I hold the allowable opinion that they did. It is not relevant to get into a debate regarding dinosaurs in this article. Two things are certain, some creatures are extinct, and God created new creatures after he created the world.

Job, Chapter 41, describes a fire breathing dragon:

“His sneezing is like the shining of fire and his eyes like the eyelids of the morning. Out of his mouth go forth lamps like torches of lighted fire. Out of his nostrils goeth smoke like that of a pot heated and boiling. His breath kindleth coals, and a flame cometh forth out of his mouth.” (Job 41:9-12)

Fire breathing dragons still existed during the New Covenant era. A tradition of the Catholic Church teaches that St. Martha and St. George slew dragons. Even though The Golden Legend is an apocryphal book that contains heresies and other errors, it tells the truth in regard to saints slaying dragons. For example,

First Century: The Golden Legend, St. Martha:
“There was that time upon the river of Rhone, in a certain wood between Aries and Avignon, a great dragon, half beast and half fish, greater than an ox, longer than an horse, having teeth sharp as a sword, and horned on either side, head like a lion, tail like a serpent, and defended him with two wings on either side, and could not be beaten with cast of stones ne with other armour, and was as strong as twelve lions or bears; which dragon lay hiding and lurking in the river, and perished them that passed by and drowned ships. He came thither by sea from Galicia, and was engendered of Leviathan, which is a serpent of the water and is much wood, and of a beast called Bonacho, that is engendered in Galicia. To whom Martha, at the prayer of the people, came into the wood, and found him eating a man. And she cast on him holy water, and showed to him the cross; which [dragon] anon was overcome, and standing still as a sheep, she bound him with her own girdle; and then was slain with spears and glaives of the people.”

Third Century: The Golden Legend, St. George:
“George, a native of Cappadocia, held the military rank of tribune. It happened that he once traveled to the city of Silena in the province of Lybia. Near this town there was a pond as large as a lake where a plague-bearing dragon lurked; and many times the dragon had put the populace to flight when they came out armed against him, for he used to come up to the city walls and poison everyone who came within reach of his breath. To appease the fury of this monster the townspeople fed him two sheep every day ... But George, mounting his horse and arming himself with the sign of the cross, set bravely upon the approaching dragon and, commending himself to God, brandished his lance, dealt the beast a grievous wound, and forced him to the ground.”

Quail was also new creature that God created to feed the Israelites in the desert:

“And at length, they saw a new generation of birds; when being led by their appetite, they asked for delicate meats. For to satisfy their desire, the quail came up to them from the sea.” (Wis. 19:11-12)

Idols vs Lawful Images

The First Commandment condemns all idols. An idol is an image or graven thing that is worshipped or adored as if it were God or a god:

“Thou shalt not have strange gods before me. Thou shalt not make to thyself an idol (a graven image), nor the likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or in the earth beneath, nor of those things that are in the waters under the earth. Thou shalt not adore them, nor serve them: I am the Lord thy God, mighty, jealous, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me:” (Ex. 20:3-5)

“I am the Lord your God, ye shall not make to yourselves gods made with hands or graven, neither shall ye rear up a pillar for yourselves, neither shall ye set up a stone for an object in your land to worship it. I am the Lord your God. (Lev. 26:1)

Therefore an image or graven thing is not an idol if it does not represent a false god or it is not worshipped or adored as if it were God or a god. One proof of this is that God commanded that images and graven things be placed in his Temple. For example, God ordained that his Temple have images of cherubs, lions, oxen, and faces of men:

“Thou shalt make also two cherubims of beaten gold on the two sides of the oracle. Let one cherub be on the one side and the other on the other. Let them cover both sides of the propitiatory, spreading their wings and covering the oracle; and let them look one towards the other, their faces being turned towards the propitiatory wherewith the ark is to be covered.” (Ex. 25:18-20)

“And he put them into the rings that were at the sides of the ark to carry it. He made also... Two cherubims also of beaten gold, which he set on the two sides of the propitiatory: One cherub in the top of one side, and the other cherub in the top of the other side: two cherubims at the two ends of the propitiatory, Spreading their wings, and covering the propitiatory, and looking one towards the other, and towards it.” (Ex. 37:5-9)

“And even to the inner house [of the Temple], and without all the wall round about within and without, by measure. ...there were cherubims and palm trees wrought, so that a palm tree was between a cherub and a cherub, and every cherub had two faces. The face of a man was toward the palm tree on one side, and the face of a lion was toward the palm tree on the other side: set forth through all the house round about...” (Ez. 41:17-20)

“And a graven work under the brim of it compassed it, for ten cubits going about the sea: there were two rows cast of chamfered sculptures [statutes]. And it stood upon twelve oxen... And between the little crowns and the ledges were lions, and oxen, and cherubims ... He engraved also in those plates, which were of brass, and in the corners, cherubims, and lions, and palm trees, in likeness of a man standing, so that they seemed not to be engraven, but added round about.” (3 Ki. 7:24-25, 29, 36)

“And there was nothing in the temple that was not covered with gold; the whole altar of the oracle he covered also with gold. And he made in the oracle two cherubims of olive tree of ten cubits in height... And he overlaid the cherubims with gold.” (3 Ki. 6:22-28)

“After the second veil [is] the tabernacle, which is called the Holy of holies, over it were the cherubims of glory overshadowing the propitiatory.” (Heb. 9:3-5)

Beware, then, of the heretics who condemn all images and graven things as evil and sinful. If this were true, then God sinned by commanding images and graven things be made and placed in his Temple. And thus God would have violated his own First Commandment!

These heretics are also hypocrites because they have pictures of living or dead loved ones. Certainly these are images “of anything that is in heaven or in the earth.” Some even set up statues of loved ones or of famous men. Certainly, these are graven things. And they rightly believe that these are not idols as long as they do not worship the images as if they are God or a god or as if they are alive (as if the image itself is alive). But, in their lying hypocrisy, they condemn images or graven things that represent the true God, angels, and saints. If it is good for men to have pictures and statues of loved ones, how much more good is it for them to have pictures and statues of the true God, angels, and saints, as long as they do not look upon the pictures and statues as if they are alive and as long as they do not worship a creature the image or statue represents as if it were God or a god.

When Catholics pray in front of or venerate a holy image or statue, they do not believe that image or statue is living; and if the image is of a creature, they do address the person or angel it represents as God or a god. When Catholics are venerating or praying before an image or statue, they pray to, talk to, and petition the person or angel it represents. In the same way, when a person who looks upon an image of a loved relative, living or dead, speaks to the loved one that the image represents through the picture and this is not idolatry, no matter if the loved one hears them or not.

The legitimate use of images and graven things was a dogma during the Old Testament era and thus is a dogma during the New Covenant era. Therefore, it is an ordinary magisterium dogma of the Catholic Church from Pentecost Day in AD 33 because it was held by the unanimous consensus of the Church Father (the apostles being the first Church Fathers of the Catholic Church). And it was also made a solemn magisterium dogma of the Catholic Church. For example,

Solemn Magisterium Definition: Pope Hadrian I, Second Council of Nicea, 797: “We decree with full precision and care that, like the figure of the honoured and life-giving cross, the revered and holy images, whether painted or made of mosaic or of other suitable material, are to be exposed in the holy churches of God, on sacred instruments and vestments, on walls and panels, in houses and by public ways, these are the images of our Lord, God and saviour, Jesus Christ, and of our Lady without blemish, the holy God-bearer, and of the revered angels and of any of the saintly holy men. The more frequently they are seen in representational art, the more are those who see them drawn to remember and long for those who serve as models, and to pay these images the tribute of salutation and respectful veneration... Further, people are drawn to honour these images with the offering of incense and lights, as was piously established by ancient custom. Indeed, the honour paid to an image traverses it, reaching the model, and he who venerates the image, venerates the person represented in that image.”

To summarize:

- An idol is an image that represents a false god; such as an image of the false god Jupiter.
- An idol is an image that is thought to represent a false god even though it was not meant to represent a false god; such as a statue that was meant to honor a mere man in which some looked upon it as a god and thus adored it.
- An idol is an image that is good in and of itself (such as an image of God the Father, God the Son, or a saint) but is looked upon as God himself or the saint himself. And thus the image or statue is thought to be alive.

Here are some examples of an idol that is not only worshipped as God or a god but is thought to be alive:

“But the idol that is made by hands is cursed, as well it, as he that made it; he because he made it, and it because being frail it is called a god.” (Wis. 14:8)

“But unhappy are they and their hope is among the dead who have called gods the works of the hands of men, gold and silver, the inventions of art and the resemblances of beasts or an unprofitable stone the work of an ancient hand... and by the skill of his art fashioneth it and maketh it like the image of a man or the resemblance of some beast, laying it over with vermilion, and painting it red and covering every spot that is in it... and maketh a convenient dwelling place for it, and setting it in a wall, and fastening it with iron; providing for it lest it should fall, knowing that it is unable to help itself; for it is an image and hath need of help. And then maketh prayer to it, inquiring concerning his substance and his children or his marriage. And he is not ashamed to speak to that which hath no life.” (Wis. 13:10-17)

“He hath cut down cedars, taken the holm, and the oak that stood among the trees of the forest. He hath planted the pine tree which the rain hath nourished. And it hath served men for fuel. He took thereof and warmed himself, and he kindled it and baked bread but of the rest he made a god and adored it. He made a graven thing and bowed down before it. Part of it he burnt with fire, and with part of it he dressed his meat. He boiled pottage and was filled and was warmed, and said: Aha, I am warm, I have seen the fire. But the residue thereof he made a god and a graven thing for himself; he boweth down before it and adoreth it and prayeth unto it, saying: Deliver me, for thou art my God.” (Isa. 44:14-17)

Here is an example of an image of a creature that of itself is not sinful but became sinful for those who looked upon it as God or a god or as representing God or a god:

“For a father, being afflicted with bitter grief, made to himself the image of his son who was quickly taken away; and him who then had died as a man, he began now to worship as a god and appointed him rites and sacrifices among his servants. Then in process of time, wicked custom prevailing, this error was kept as a law and statues were worshipped by the commandment of tyrants. And those whom men could not honour in presence because they dwelt far off, they brought their resemblance from afar and made an express image of the king whom they had a mind to honour, that by this their diligence, they might honour as present, him that was absent. And to the worshipping of these, the singular diligence also of the artificer helped to set forward the ignorant. For he being willing to please him that employed him, laboured with all his art to make the resemblance in the best manner. And the multitude of men, carried away by the beauty of the work took him now for a god that a little before was but honoured as a man.” (Wis. 14:15-20)

Infallibility of the Catholic Church

God gave his Catholic Church the ability to teach infallibly on faith and morals. If this were not true, there would be no way for men on earth to know with all certainty the supernatural truths on faith and morals. God’s Church, then, would give uncertain teachings:

“For if the trumpet give an uncertain sound who shall prepare himself to the battle?” (1 Cor. 14:8)

Because Protestants and schismatics do not believe that any group of men or any one man can teach infallibly, they have as many different beliefs as they do churches and sects. Hence their leaders are trumpets who make uncertain sounds. Not one of them can say that what he believes is infallible and thus absolutely true because they do not believe any group of men or any one man can teach infallibly.

Hence, by implication, they have the Holy Spirit lying. How so? While they rightly believe that the Holy Spirit does not lie for “It is impossible for God to lie”

(Heb. 6:18), they contradict their belief by heretically and illogically believing that the Holy Spirit teaches all men the truth without the need of a Church to infallibly teach the truth. If, according to them, the Holy Spirit teaches the truth to each Protestant individually and the Holy Spirit always tells the truth, then how come Protestants and schismatics disagree with one another regarding many of their official doctrines? Among their many different interpretations of a revelation, either none or only one interpretation could be correct. Logic dictates that all of the different interpretations cannot be true. Consequently, the Holy Spirit would be lying to all of the Protestants and schismatics whose interpretations are wrong. They have, indeed, accused the Holy Spirit of lying and have no way to know with certainty the supernatural truths regarding faith and morals. Hence the Holy Spirit that the Protestants and schismatics believe in is a liar and thus is an anti-Holy Spirit.

Therefore, not only dogma but also logic dictates that God’s Church has to have the ability to teach infallibly. That is why St. Paul says,

“The Church of the living God [is] the pillar and ground of the truth.” (1 Tim. 3:15)

For God’s Church to be the “pillar and ground of truth,” it has to have the ability to infallibly teach the truth. God’s Catholic Church infallibly teaches truths on faith and morals in two ways: by the unanimous teachings of the Church Fathers (known as the ordinary magisterium) and by infallible papal decrees (known as the solemn magisterium). The Bible teaches of this power that God gave to the apostles (Church Fathers) and to St. Peter (the popes):

“But the Paraclete, the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name, he will teach you all things and bring all things to your mind, whatsoever I shall have said to you.” (Jn. 14:26)

“When he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will teach you all truth.” (Jn. 16:13)

The ordinary magisterium is all the dogmas on faith and morals that were taught by the unanimous consensus of the Church Fathers. The twelve apostles were the first Church Fathers during the New Covenant era and thus their unanimous teachings on faith and morals are infallible and were the first dogmas of the Catholic faith. Jesus Christ gave the unanimous teachings of the apostles and disciples this authority and power when he told them,

“He that heareth you, heareth me; and he that despiseth you, despiseth me; and he that despiseth me, despiseth him that sent me.” (Lk. 10:16)

“And having called his twelve disciples together, he gave them power over unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal all manner of diseases, and all manner of infirmities... That which I tell you in the dark, speak ye in the light: and that which you hear in the ear, preach ye upon the housetops... And going, preach, saying: The kingdom of heaven is at hand... For it is not you that speak, but the Spirit of your Father that speaketh in you... He that receiveth you, receiveth me: and he that receiveth me, receiveth him that sent me... And whosoever shall not receive you, nor hear your words: going forth out of that house or city shake off the dust from your feet. Amen I say to you, it shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrha in the day of judgment, than for that city.” (Mt. 10:1, 27, 7, 20, 40, 14-15)

And just before Jesus ascended into Heaven, he said to the apostles,

“Going therefore, teach ye all nations; baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit. Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and behold I am with you all days, even to the consummation of the world.” (Mt. 28:19-20)

And after Jesus ascended into Heaven, the ordinary magisterium was taught by the apostles and disciples:

“And they were persevering in the doctrine of the apostles.” (Acts 2:42)

“Dearly beloved, ...contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints.” (Jude 1:3)

“And he went through Syria and Cilicia, confirming the churches, commanding them to keep the precepts of the apostles and the ancients.” (Acts 15:41)

While the ordinary magisterium is the unanimous teachings of the Church Fathers of faith and morals, no one Church Father has the ability to teach infallibly. The only man who has the power to teach infallibly on faith and morals is the pope. The solemn magisterium is all the infallible papal teachings on faith and morals. St. Peter, the first pope, and the following popes were given this authority and power by Jesus Christ when Jesus said to St. Peter,

“And I say to thee: That thou art Peter; and upon this rock I will build my church and the gates of gehenna shall not prevail against it. And I will give to thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven. And whatsoever thou shalt bind upon earth, it shall be bound also in heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt loose upon earth, it shall be loosed also in heaven.” (Mt. 16:18-19)

Popes, then, like Old Testament religious leaders and prophets, can teach infallibly:

“The heart of man disposeth his way, but the Lord must direct his steps. Divination is in the lips of the king, his mouth shall not err in judgment.” (Prov. 16:9-10)

“For prophecy came not by the will of man at any time: but the holy men of God spoke, inspired by the Holy Spirit.” (2 Pt. 1:21)

“God, ...spoke in times past to the fathers by the prophets.” (Heb. 1:1)

“If thou perceive that there be among you a hard and doubtful matter in judgment... and thou see that the words of the judges within thy gates do vary: arise, and go up to the place, which the Lord thy God shall choose.” (Deut. 17:8)

Catholic Commentary, on Deut. 17:8: “Here we see what authority God was pleased to give to the Church guides of the Old Testament, in deciding, without appeal, all controversies relating to the law; promising that they should not err therein; and surely he has not done less for the church guides of the New Testament.”

The biblically recorded fact that God spoke infallibly through mere men such as Abraham, Moses, and other prophets is guaranteed to confound Protestants when they say that God cannot or does not speak infallibly through mere men. For example, God spoke infallibly through a mere man, the prophet Ezechiel:

“Son of man, I have made thee a watchman to the house of Israel: and thou shalt hear the word out of my mouth, and shalt tell it them from me.” (Ez. 3:17)

The Old Covenant came from God through the hands and mouth of a mere man, Abraham. And the Ten Commandments came from God through the hands and mouth of a mere man, Moses. Just as Abraham and Moses had the charism of infallibility when they spoke for God, so do popes have the charism of infallibility when they speak for God.

Logic also dictates that one man must have the ability to infallibly teach on doctrines regarding faith and morals in order to settle legitimate disputes regarding allowable opinions on faith and morals that have not yet been infallibly defined or condemned.

“There is one that uttereth an exact word telling the truth.” (Eclclus. 19:23)

Common sense dictates that there could not be one faith and one Church (Eph. 4:5), which is the pillar and ground of truth (1 Tim. 3:15), if God did not give one man, the pope, the charism of infallibility and supreme authority over the flock to unite the Church in its sacraments, government, teachings, and laws. If God did not give the pope the charism of infallibility, there would be no way to know for certain what the truth is when legitimate disputes arise. Who, then, is the one that has the ultimate authority to infallibly condemn heresies and define the truth and thus end legitimate disputes? If more than one man decides and they disagree, there is no way for the truth to be known with certainty. Which man is right and which man is wrong? Consequently if one man were not given the charism of infallibility and supreme authority in God’s one Church, there would be a split in the Church as soon as a dispute arose, thus creating a new faith and new Church. This process would multiply into many faiths and thus many Churches, as has happened with the Protestants and schismatics who now number more than 30,000 faiths and thus 30,000 Churches worldwide.

Even though the pope can teach infallibly on faith and morals, he is not impeccable. He can commit any sin that other men commit and be condemned and punished when he does, which thus includes the mortal sin of idolatry or heresy, which causes him to automatically lose his office.<sup>2897</sup> Therefore, not only is the pope not immune from condemnation and punishment when he sins, but he must be condemned and punished more than other sinners, as he holds the highest office in the Church. To whom much is given, much is required. The Bible puts it this way:

“And unto whomsoever much is given of him much shall be required; and to whom they have committed much of him they will demand the more.” (Lk. 12:48)

“For God will not except any man's person, neither will he stand in awe of any man's greatness: for he made the little and the great, and he hath equally care of all. But a greater punishment is ready for the more mighty.” (Wis. 6:8-9)

“For there is no respect of persons with God.” (Rom. 2:11)

The fact that the pope can fall into heresy or idolatry (and several popes have) is one proof that not all of a pope's teachings on faith and morals are infallible. The pope's charism of infallibility is limited and must meet the following condition:

1. The pope has the charism of infallibility, which means that he can infallibly teach, decree, and judge on topics that deal with faith and morals; that is, on topics that deal with the Catholic faith.
2. The pope uses his charism of infallibility when he makes infallible definitions or infallible condemnations.
3. All the infallible papal teachings and decrees that thus belong to the solemn magisterium consist of the following:
  - a) Papally approved professions of faith (such as Creeds). No anathemas are necessary for infallibility.
  - b) Papally approved abjurations in the parts that deal with faith or morals. No anathemas are necessary for infallibility.
  - c) Papally approved council teachings and decrees that deal with faith or morals. It does not matter what kind of council it is—ecumenical, general, or local. No anathemas are necessary for infallibility. And the pope or papal legates do not need to call or preside over the council. The pope only needs to approve the teachings and decrees in the council to make them infallible.
  - d) Personal papal teachings, decrees, and judgments on faith or morals with anathemas attached to those who do not believe them. Hence these require anathemas for infallibility.
4. Popes make infallible teachings and decrees for the following reasons:

a) To infallibly settle a legitimate dispute over an allowable opinion regarding faith or morals either by infallibly defining it or infallibly condemning it, at which point it would become a dogma or a heresy for the first time.

b) To infallibly uphold a natural-law dogma or an ordinary magisterium dogma when it is significantly doubted, denied, or violated, at which point the dogma would also become part of the solemn magisterium for the first time unless a previous pope had already made it part of the solemn magisterium.

c) To infallibly uphold a solemn magisterium dogma by re-infallibly teaching or decreeing it when it is significantly doubted, denied, or violated.

d) To infallibly condemn sinners in order to protect the reputation of the Catholic Church, preserve the faith, protect Catholics, warn others, and prevent scandal.

Jesus Advanced in Wisdom, Age, and Grace, In Context

“And Jesus advanced in wisdom and age and grace with God and men.” (Lk. 2:52)

Advanced in wisdom: Not that Jesus' human nature was not wiser or more full of knowledge and grace at any future period of his human life than at the moment of the Incarnation because his human nature was divinized (deified) by the divine nature of his divine personhood at the instant of the Incarnation.<sup>2898</sup>

What, then, does this verse mean when it says that Jesus advanced in wisdom and grace? It means that from man's perspective Jesus appeared to advance in wisdom and grace in the eyes of God and men as he grew older.

At first, Jesus hid his divine nature from men and thus wanted to appear only as a man among men and to be treated and thought of as such. See commentary of Jn. 14:28. Hence as Jesus' humanity increased in years, he chose to manifest increasing signs of wisdom and grace, of which he was always endowed with from the moment of the Incarnation. For he went on producing greater acts of wisdom and virtue day by day that he might teach us to do the same. By this he excited men to the praise of God from the consideration of favors God had bestowed upon him and thus he conduced to the honor of God and the salvation of men.

St. Athanasius says that Jesus “advanced in that the Godhead was manifested in him more fully as time went on.” (Four Discourses against the Arians, Discourse 3, Chapter 28, Sec. 41.) Jesus' gradual manifestation of wisdom and grace to men can be compared to the sun, always equally brilliant in itself, but is said to increase in splendor till it has reached its meridian brilliancy. Hence just as the sun manifests its brightness in degrees upon the earth when it is rising but is always equally bright, so also Jesus Christ manifested his wisdom and grace in degrees to men as he grew older but always possessed the fulness of wisdom and grace in his human nature from the instant of the Incarnation. In the same way, Jesus' outward appearance to men was that he was only a man while he hid his divinity. However, he gave Peter, James, and John a glimpse of his divinity during the Transfiguration: "And after six days Jesus taketh unto him Peter and James, and John his brother, and bringeth them up into a high mountain apart: And he was transfigured before them. And his face did shine as the sun: and his garments became white as snow... And as they came down from the mountain, Jesus charged them, saying: Tell the vision to no man, till the Son of man be risen from the dead." (Mt. 17:1-2, 9)

Jesus condescended to his humanity and hid his divinity

When Jesus began his public ministry, he condescended to his humanity and hid his divinity. He did not at first reveal or even hint at his divinity to anyone, not even to his apostles. Therefore he pretended to be only a man so as to be treated as only a man and not also as God, which would have overwhelmed men and prevented them from treating him as they would other men. Even though St. Raphael is an Archangel, he pretended to be a man in order to be treated as a man among men. Hence he hid his angelic nature. He appeared to both the elder Tobias and his son Tobias and told them he was an Israelite:

"Tobias going forth found a beautiful young man, standing girded, and as it were ready to walk. And not knowing that he was an angel of God, he saluted him and said: From whence art thou, good young man? But he answered: Of the children of Israel." (Tob. 5:4-7)

Raphael and Jesus did not lie to men, since a lie is a sinful falsehood; but they did deceive men with non-sinful falsehoods.<sup>2899</sup> When Raphael revealed to Tobias and his son that he was an angel, they were so overwhelmed that they fell to the ground:

"For I am the angel Raphael, one of the seven, who stand before the Lord. And when they had heard these things they were troubled, and being seized with fear they fell upon the ground on their face." (Tob. 12:15-16)

Can you imagine the reaction of men if Jesus, without sufficiently preparing them, revealed his divine nature to men and thus said that he was not only a man but also God!

Another reason that Jesus at first did not tell men that he was not only man but also God was because they were not yet prepared to accept the dogma of the Holy Trinity, that there are three divine persons in the one true God. That is why Jesus told his apostles:

"I have yet many things to say to you, but you cannot bear them now." (Jn. 16:12)

At first, Jesus wanted only his apostles to know that he was the Messiah:

"He [Jesus] saith to them: But whom do you say that I am? Peter answering said to him: Thou art the Christ. And he strictly charged them that they should not tell any man of him." (Mk. 8:29-30)

Therefore Jesus wanted other men to believe he was only a prophet but not the Messiah:

"The multitudes...held him [Jesus] as a prophet." (Mt. 21:46)

Jesus silenced the devils because they knew Jesus was not only a man and a prophet but also the Messiah and God:

"And devils went out from many, crying out and saying: Thou art the Son of God. And rebuking them he suffered them not to speak, for they knew that he was Christ." (Lk. 4:41)

When Jesus gave St. Peter, John, and James a glimpse and strong hint of his divinity during the Transfiguration, he told them not to tell anyone until after his resurrection:

"And after six days Jesus taketh unto him Peter and James, and John his brother, and bringeth them up into a high mountain apart: And he was transfigured before them. And his face did shine as the sun: and his garments became white as snow... And as they came down from the mountain, Jesus charged them, saying: Tell the vision to no man, till the Son of man be risen from the dead." (Mt. 17:1-2, 9)

Hence even to this point, Jesus did not want men to know he was God. This explains several verses in which Jesus pretends to be only a man and not also God and thus hides his divine nature. For example,

- Jesus hid his divinity when he pretended that he did not know who touched him: "And Jesus said: Who is it that touched me? And all denying, Peter and they that were with him said: Master, the multitudes throng and press thee, and dost thou say, Who touched me? And Jesus said: Somebody hath touched me; for I know that virtue is gone out from me." (Lk. 8:45-46) Hence Jesus told a non-sinful falsehood.
- When Jesus said, "But of that day or hour no man knoweth, neither the angels in heaven, nor the Son, but the Father" (Mk. 13:32-33), he pretended to be only a man. Because the Incarnate Jesus is God, he did know the hour but did not want men to know lest they might think that he was God. Hence Jesus told a non-sinful falsehood. (See commentary on Mk. 13:32)

- When Jesus said “Why dost thou call me good? None is good but God alone” (Lk. 18:19), he pretended to be only a man. Obviously Jesus is goodness itself because he is God. Hence Jesus told a non-sinful falsehood. Or, it is more probable that Jesus was hinting that he is God by saying that “God is good, I am good, and therefore I am God,” as he was also called the good shepherd. “I am the good shepherd; and I know mine, and mine know me.” (Jn. 10:14)

And during the Old Testament era, God pretended to be ignorant and thus told non-sinful falsehoods. For example,

God pretended to be ignorant when he addressed Cain: “And the Lord said to Cain: Where is thy brother Abel?” (Gen. 4:9)

And regarding Sodom, “The Lord said: The cry of Sodom and Gomorrah is multiplied and their sin is become exceedingly grievous. I will go down and see whether they have done according to the cry that is come to me or whether it be not so that I may know.” (Gen. 18:20-21)

The main reason many men cannot correctly explain the verses in which Jesus condescended to his humanity and hides his divinity is because of the stoic belief that all intentional falsehoods are lies and thus sinful and thus can never be good and even, at times, necessary. Not only many of the anti-Church Fathers and most if not all of the scholastics were infected with this stoic belief but even some of the true Church Fathers. They deny or ignore the many examples in the Bible where holy angels and holy men told non-sinful falsehoods by the inspiration of God and were blessed for doing so. For example, Sarah, Joseph, Hebrew midwives, Rahab, Jahel, St. Raphael the Archangel, Judith, Michol, Chusai, David, the woman of Thecua, Jeremias, Eliseus, and Jesus told non-sinful falsehoods. And Jesus deceived the apostles by telling them that he was not going up to a feast in Jerusalem, but he went up anyway (See Jn. 7:8:14).<sup>2900</sup>

There is no credible explanation for the verses in which Jesus says “of that day or hour no man knoweth, neither the angels in heaven, nor the Son” and “Why dost thou call me good? None is good but God alone” other than that Jesus is telling non-sinful falsehoods and thus deceiving men, even his apostles, for a good reason; that is, because he wanted to hide his divinity and only at times did he chose to gradually reveal his divinity. It is certain that in these instances Jesus deceived men because Jesus can do all things, knows all things, is the source of all doctrine, is all-powerful, is all good, and is equal to the Father in his divine personhood because Jesus is not only a man but is also

God and even his human nature is divinized and thus is divine.<sup>2901</sup>

Jesus Created Physical Life and the Holy Spirit Creates Spiritual Life

Jesus Christ created physical life, which includes angels and humans (body and soul). And the Holy Spirit creates spiritual life in the spirits of angels and the souls of men.

Hence the dogma that God the Son, Jesus Christ, created all things; that is, the physical life or existence of all creatures:

“In the beginning was the Word [Jesus Christ], and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by him: and without him was made nothing that was made.” (Jn. 1:1-3)

St. Paul teaches that the Father made all things by his son Jesus Christ:

“God, who, at sundry times and in divers manners, spoke in times past to the fathers by the prophets, last of all, in these days hath spoken to us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by whom also he made the world.” (Heb. 1:1-2)

“Giving thanks to God the Father, who hath... translated us into the kingdom of the Son of his love, in whom we have redemption through his blood, the remission of sins; who is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of every creature: For in him were all things created in heaven and on earth, visible and invisible, whether thrones, or dominations, or principalities, or powers: all things were created by him and in him. And he is before all, and by him all things consist.” (Col. 1:12-17)

Therefore, the more recent form of the Apostles’ Creed must be taken in context or it would deny the dogma that God the Son created all things:

The More Recent Form of the Apostles’ Creed: “I believe in God, the Father almighty, Creator of heaven and earth, and in Jesus Christ his only Son, our Lord.” (D. 6)

In context, it means all things were created by God the Father through God the Son, Jesus Christ. The original Apostles’ Creed was more accurate. It did not say “God the Father, Creator of heaven and earth.”

Original Apostles’ Creed: “I believe in God the Father almighty; and in Jesus Christ, his only begotten Son, our Lord,” (D. 2)

The Nicene Creed must also be taken in context or it would deny the dogma in one place but profess it in another:

Nicene Creed, 325: “I believe in one God, the Father almighty, maker of heaven and earth and of all things visible and invisible; and in one Lord

Jesus Christ..., being of one substance with the Father, by whom all things were made...”

It is said that the Father created all things in the same way it can be said that a king won a battle even though he did not fight in the battle but oversaw it. In 2 Kings 6:38, it says that King Solomon built the first temple, but he did not do the actually building but oversaw it:

“And in the eleventh year in the month Bul (which is the eighth month) the house was finished in all the works thereof, and in all the appurtenances thereof: and he [King Solomon] was seven years in building it.” (3 Ki. 6:38)

And Zachary 4:9 says the following:

“The hands of Zorobabel have laid the foundations of this house, and his hands shall finish it.” (Zach. 4:9)

But Zorobabel, the prince, did not literally build the second temple but oversaw it. Hence when it is said the God the Father created all things it means as an overseeing and thus he created all things through God the Son. This is what St. Augustine means in the places where he says that God the Father made all things. In his following quote he tells you the correct context. In one place he says God the Father made all things but in another that God the Father made all things through God the Son:

St. Augustine, Lectures on the Gospel of St. John, Tractate 1 (John 1:1-5): “5. Accordingly, brethren, of these mountains was John also, who said, ‘In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God.’ This mountain had received peace; he was contemplating the divinity of the Word. Of what sort was this mountain? How lofty? He had risen above all peaks of the earth, he had risen above all plains of the sky, he had risen above all heights of the stars, he had risen above all choirs and legions of the angels. For unless he rose above all those things which were created, he would not arrive at him by whom all things were made. You cannot imagine what he rose above, unless you see at what he arrived. Dost thou inquire concerning heaven and earth? They were made. Dost thou inquire concerning the things that are in heaven and earth? Surely much more were they made. Dost thou inquire concerning spiritual beings, concerning angels, archangels, thrones, dominions, powers, principalities? These also were made. For when the Psalm enumerated all these things, it finished thus: ‘He spoke, and they were made; He commanded, and they were created.’ If ‘He spoke and they were made,’ it was by the Word that they were made; but if it was by the Word they were made, the heart of John could not reach to that which he says, ‘In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God,’ unless he had risen above all things that were made by the Word. What a mountain this! How holy! How high among those mountains that received peace for the people of God, that the hills might receive righteousness!”

While God the Son, Jesus Christ, gives physical life to men by creating their bodies and souls and physical life to angels by creating their spirits, the Holy Spirit gives spiritual life to the souls of men and to the spirits of angels. Hence the Nicene Creed says, “I believe in the Holy Spirit, the Lord and giver of life...”; that is, the giver of spiritual life.

- The souls of men that are not yet holy are said to be spiritually dead even though they physically exist. It is God the Holy Spirit who gives them graces and other spiritual gifts to move them toward holiness, provided men cooperate with the graces and other gifts.
- The souls of men that are holy are said to have spiritual life. It is God the Holy Spirit who gives them spiritual life by his grace. And he gives them graces and other spiritual gifts so that they may remain holy, provided they cooperate with the graces and other gifts.

“And Moses said to the children of Israel: Behold the Lord hath called by name Beseleel the son of Uri the son of Hur of the tribe of Juda. And hath filled him with the spirit of God, with wisdom and understanding and knowledge and all learning.” (Ex. 35:30-31)

“And hope confoundeth not because the charity of God is poured forth in our hearts by the Holy Spirit who is given to us.” (Rom. 5:5)

“But we all beholding the glory of the Lord with open face, are transformed into the same image from glory to glory as by the Spirit of the Lord.” (2 Cor. 3:18)

This is what Jesus meant when he told Nicodemus that men who are already born of the flesh must be born again to be saved:

“Jesus answered, and said to him: Amen, amen I say to thee, unless a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God. Nicodemus saith to him: How can a man be born when he is old? Can he enter a second time into his mother’s womb and be born again? Jesus answered: Amen, amen I say to thee, unless a man be born again of water and the Holy Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. That which is born of the flesh, is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit, is spirit.” (Jn. 3:3-6)

Jesus’ task was to make men born of the flesh by creating Adam and Eve and by creating souls. The job of the Holy Spirit is to make men born again by sanctifying souls; souls which were already created by Jesus Christ. While God the Holy Spirit is the dispenser of all grace, which thus includes sanctifying grace, God the Son, Jesus Christ, made sanctifying grace available by his sacrificial death.

The souls of the Old Testament elect were only partially justified. Part of their souls was justified, freed from sin. The other part contained forgiven sins that were covered by the grace of the Holy Spirit, which I call covering grace. But their souls were still considered dead in the sense that they could not get to heaven until their covered sins were remitted by sanctifying grace, which comes from the Holy Spirit and was made available by Christ's sacrificial death.

Therefore Jesus Christ creates physical life and the Holy Spirit creates spiritual life, and both do so by the Father. This dogma was infallibly defined by Pope St. Damasus in 382 at the Council of Rome:

Pope St. Damasus, Council of Rome, 382: "(19) If anyone does not say that the Father made all things through the Son and his Holy Spirit, that is, the visible and the invisible, he is a heretic." (D. 77)

The Father, then, is the overseer of creation while the Son and Holy Spirit did and do the actual creating. Even though Caesarius of Arles was a heretic, he teaches the truth in this regard:

Heretic Caesarius of Arles, Sermon 212, On the Mystery of the Holy Trinity, and the Divine Nature of the Holy Spirit, 6th century: "(2) We read in the Old Testament that 'in the beginning God created the heavens and the earth,' and 'a mighty wind swept over the waters.' In God understand the Father, in the beginning accept the Son, and recognize the Holy Spirit as spread over the waters. The excellence of the one in authority swept over the waters, prefiguring even then, I believe, the gifts of baptism. In creating man, too, the threefold repetition of the divine nature shows that there is need of not one but three persons. For thus we read: 'Then God said: Let us make man in our image, after our likeness.' Notice that the sentence is simple in its intention but manifold in its reply. 'Then God said: 'Let us make man.' What is this except the substance of unity speaking, and the power of the Trinity in operation! See how the name of God is mentioned three times in the creation of man, for we have it in Genesis: 'Then God said: 'Let us make man' again: 'God created man'; and a third time: 'God blessed him.' God said, God created, God blessed; the Father said [commanded and oversaw creation], the Son created [physical life], the Holy Spirit blessed [creates spiritual life]."

Jesus Delivers the Kingdom To the Father, In Context

"And of his [Jesus'] kingdom there shall be no end." (Lk. 1:33)

"Afterwards the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God and the Father, when he shall have brought to nought all principality, and power, and virtue." (1 Cor. 15:24)

"And when all things shall be subdued unto him, then the Son also himself shall be subject unto him that put all things under him, that God may be all in all." (1 Cor. 15:28)

Ambrosiaster, 4th century, commentary on 1 Cor. 15:24-27:

"Then comes the end, when he delivers the kingdom to God the Father after destroying every rule and every authority and power. For he must reign until he has put all his enemies under his feet. The last enemy to be destroyed is death. For God has put all things in subjection under his feet."

"Paul says this because when the kingdom is handed over, the end of the world will come, since the resurrection will have been brought to its conclusion. Some people are terrified by this and reject the literal meaning of the expression because, as they say, they want to think higher thoughts. They are shocked when they hear the sound of the expression 'When he shall have handed over the kingdom to [his] God and Father,' because they think that if you take it literally, it means that Christ will be left without anything for himself. They suppose that if he hands something over, then he will no longer have it, as if the Father had made himself destitute when he gave everything to the Son [in the first place]. For the Lord himself says: 'All things have been handed over to me by my Father.' (Jn. 13:3) Later he adds: 'This is eternal life, that they should recognize that you alone are the true God and he whom you have sent, Jesus Christ.' (Jn. 17:3) You see from this that while the Son is ruling, the Father is ruling also. How could anyone believe that when the Son hands everything back to the Father, he is thereby leaving himself with nothing, when the angel said to Mary: 'And the Lord God shall give to him the throne of his father David, and he will reign in the house of Jacob forever and there shall be no end of his kingdom.' (Lk. 1:32-33)

"Daniel also describes the same kingdom: 'The God of heaven shall summon up another kingdom, which shall never be destroyed, and this kingdom will last forever.' (Dan. 2:44) No one should doubt, therefore, that the Son will reign with his Father forever. This is the standard teaching about the kingdom, that once all things have been made subject to the Son and they have worshiped him as God, and once death has been destroyed, then Christ will make it clear to them that he is not the ultimate source of all things, but that it is only through him that all things exist. To hand over the kingdom to God the Father will be to show that the Father is the one 'from whom all fatherhood in heaven and on earth is named.' (Eph. 3:15) Then the end will come. Finally, the resurrection of the dead is the destruction of death."

Ambrosiaster, 4th century, Commentary on 1 Cor. 15:28: "But when it says, 'All things are put in subjection under him,' it is plain that he is excepted who put all things under him. 'When all things are subjected to him, then the Son himself will also be subjected to him who put all things under him, that God may be everything to every one.'

“Paul is here expounding the same idea as before, wanting to make clear what it means for the Son to hand the kingdom over to his God and Father. It does, however, add this to the sense: the Father, in handing the kingdom over to the Son, has not thereby subjected himself to the Son in the way that the Son has subjected himself to the Father.

“The Father has subjected everything to the Son in order for the Son to be honored in a way similar to that in which the Father is honored. Therefore, when everything has confessed that Christ is God and been subjected beneath his feet, Christ the Lord will also be made subject to God the Father, so that God may be all in all. What Paul is saying is that when the pride of all rulers and powers and dominions has been put down and they have all worshiped Christ as God, then even Christ, because of the Father’s unique authority, will show that although he is God, he is also from God, so that the sublime and ineffable authority of the single originating principle may be preserved.

“The subjection of Christ to the Father means that every creature will learn that he is subject to Christ, who in turn is subject to the Father, and will thus confess that there is only one God, from whom all things derive.”

Ambrosiaster, Questions of the Old and New Testaments, 4th century, “Question 26 on Luke 1:33: “We read in the gospel that the angel predicted to Mary, mother of the Lord, that the reign of Christ would ‘have no end.’ Daniel makes the same prediction: ‘Then will arise an eternal kingdom that will never be destroyed.’ On the contrary, the apostle speaking of the Lord says: ‘When he has given his kingdom to God his Father’ (1 Cor. 15:28); how will his Kingdom be eternal, since he must give it to God his Father?”

“In saying, the Son does not lose the kingdom by giving it to his Father, and so the words of the Apostle are true, without the angel and Daniel being in contradiction with them. Whoever thinks it their duty to call in question their testimony would bring unbelief to an excess. But we, whose faith cannot be shaken, see how it is to be understood that the Son hands the kingdom over to his Father, which the Apostle in another place explains in these terms: ‘Then the Son Himself will be subject to him who has subjected all things to him, that God may be all in all.’ (1 Cor. 15) This submission is the very act of surrender of the kingdom, so here is the interpretation that it is necessary to admit, not to deny that the Son is subject to his Father, and yet to recognize that his kingdom is eternal, that is to say, the kingdom of the Son, ‘for in the name of Jesus every knee shall bend in heaven, on the earth, and in the underworld.’ (Phil. 2:10) The Apostle St. Peter confirms this truth when he says: ‘No other name under heaven was given to men by which we must be saved.’ (Acts 4) And did not the Lord himself say to his disciples, ‘Until now you have not asked anything in my name, ask and I will answer you?’ (Jn. 16) The reign of the Son therefore consists in the fact that it is in his name that men are saved, and that all the prayers addressed to him until the end of the world are answered. But when all creatures have confessed Jesus Christ willingly or by force, and have been subjected to the power against which they have resisted, then the mystery of one God will be revealed to all men, and all thanksgivings will go back to God the Father, the principle of all things, that all preaching cease, one God be recognized in the mystery of the Trinity. Indeed, when all the powers, all the principalities and the dominions will have bowed their knee before Jesus Christ, then the Son will reveal that it is not the first principle from which all things come, but his Son in whom we see the Father. This is how he submits and gives the kingdom to his Father. In revealing that his Father is the first principle of all things, he submits to him by declaring that he comes from him. Indeed, the advent of the Son of God is surrounded by so much majesty and splendor that all the powers and choirs of the angels could believe that he is the only God par excellence. Now, the Savior declaring that he is not the one who is called the Father, but his Son, while continuing to reign, hands the kingdom over to his Father.”

Hence God the Father’s earthly Kingdom will be forever and will be also ruled by God the Son, who is in subjection to the Father by way of his eternal generation from the Father. Therefore, God the Son will reign as King of kings on earth forever by the authority of God the Father.<sup>2902</sup>

Jesus’ Human Nature Has a Distinct Will and Power Than His Divine Nature

While the divine nature of God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit is one and the same and thus each person has the one same will and power, the human nature of God the Son is distinct from the his divine nature, as the incarnate Jesus has two natures, a divine nature and human nature. Hence Jesus’ human nature has its own will and power distinct from his divine nature’s will and power. This is an ordinary magisterium dogma from Pentecost Day in AD 33. And it was also infallibly defined by solemn magisterium.

Beware, then, of the monothelite heresy, which teaches that the incarnate Jesus only has one will and power, a divine will and divine power, and thus not also human will and human power:

The History of Heresies, by apostate Alphonsus de Liguori, 18th century: “4. In the year 622, according to Noel Alexander (1), or 630, according to Fleury (2), the Monothelite Heresy sprung up; and this was its origin : Some Bishops who had received the Council of Chalcedon, recognizing two Natures in Christ, still asserted that as both Natures were but one Person, we should only recognize in him one operation (3). N. Alexander <sup>2902</sup> See Long Commentaries: “Jesus, the Ways He Is Less Than the Father and Was Less Than the Angels,” p. 1124.

(loco cit.) says that the founder of this error was Sergius, Patriarch of Constantinople; he communicated his opinions [heresy] to Theodore, Bishop of Pharan, in Arabia, and he answered him that his sentiments were the same.

“It happened also about this time that the Emperor Heraclius was in Gerapolis in Upper Syria, when he was visited by Athanasius, Patriarch of the Jacobites, a crafty and wicked man; he gained the Emperor’s confidence, who promised to make him Patriarch of Antioch, if he would receive the Council of Chalcedon. Athanasius pretended to receive it, and confessed the two Natures; he then asked the Emperor, if, having received the two Natures, it was necessary to recognize in the person of Christ two wills and two operations, or one alone. This question posed him, and he wrote to Sergius, Patriarch of Constantinople, and asked also the opinion of Cyrus, Bishop of Phasis, and both persuaded him, that he should confess in Christ one will alone, and only one operation, as he was only one Person.”<sup>2903</sup>

While the monothelite heretics profess belief in the dogma that Jesus has two natures, a divine nature and human nature, they, by implication, deny this dogma when they teach that he only has one will and power, the divine will and divine power. If that were true, then Jesus’ human nature is actually nothing or a lifeless robot because it has no will or power. The apostate Alphonsus de Liguori points out this contradiction:

Ibid, continued: “The Eutychian Athanasius was quite satisfied with this false doctrine, because, if we recognize in Christ only one operation, we should, according to the Eutychian system, only recognize one Nature also.”

The ordinary magisterium and the solemn magisterium condemn the monothelite heresy. In the Garden of Gethsemane Jesus’ human will petitioned his divine will, the divine will he shares with the Father and Holy Spirit:

“And going a little further, he fell upon his face, praying, and saying: My Father, if it be possible, let this chalice pass from me. Nevertheless not as I will, but as thou wilt.” (Mt. 26:39)

And all the Church Fathers teach the same. To my knowledge, the first time the ordinary magisterium dogma that the incarnate Christ has two wills and thus two powers (operations) was made a solemn magisterium dogma was by Pope St. Leo the Great in the Council of Chalcedon in 451. He first taught it in 449 in his Letter 28 (Lectis Dilectionis Tuae), to Flavian, Patriarch of Constantinople. This letter was then made infallible in the Council of Chalcedon in 451 and has since been called a dogmatic epistle:

Pope St. Leo the Great, Dogmatic Epistle 28 (Lectis Dilectionis Tuae), to Flavian, Bishop of Constantinople, 449: “(4) ...For He who is true God is likewise true man, and there is no falsehood in this unity, as long as there are alternately the lowliness of man and the exaltedness of the Divinity. For just as God is not changed by his compassion, so man is not destroyed by his dignity. For each nature does what is proper to it with the mutual participation of the other; the Word clearly effecting what belongs to the Word, and the flesh performing what belongs to the flesh. One of these gleams with miracles; the other sinks under injuries. And just as the Word does not withdraw from the equality of the paternal glory, so his body does not abandon the nature of our race.” (D. 144)

Denzinger 143: “St. Leo I, The Great (440-461)... [From the dogmatic epistle (28) ‘Lectis dilectionis tuae’ to Flavian, Patriarch of Constantinople, June 13, 449]”

Denzinger’s Footnote 1: “The Fathers of the Council IV of CHALCEDON received this epistle, crying, ‘PETER has spoken through Leo’ ”

Pope Leo the Great, Council of Chalcedon, 451: “The Creed of the 318 Fathers: To these it has suitably added, against false believers and for the establishment of orthodox doctrines the letter of the primate of greatest and older Rome, the most blessed and most saintly Archbishop Leo, written to the sainted Archbishop Flavian to put down Eutyches’s evil-mindedness, because it is in agreement with great Peter’s confession and represents a support we have in common. ...So, following the saintly fathers, we all with one voice teach the confession...”

“Second Session: ...Leo bishop of Rome to his beloved brother Flavian: 23. After the reading of the aforesaid letter the most devout bishops exclaimed: ‘This is the faith of the fathers. This is the faith of the apostles. We all believe accordingly. We orthodox believe accordingly. Anathema to him who does not believe accordingly! Peter has uttered this through Leo. The apostles taught accordingly [ordinary magisterium].”

It was again infallibly defined in 649:

Pope St. Martin I, The Lateran Council, Against the Monothelites, 649:

“Canon 10. If anyone does not properly and truly confess according to 263 the holy Fathers two wills of one and the same Christ our God, united uninterruptedly, divine and human, and on this account that through each of his natures the same one of his own free will is the operator of our salvation, let him be condemned. (D. 263)

“Canon 11. If anyone does not properly and truly confess according to 264 the holy Fathers two operations of one and the same Christ our God uninterruptedly united, divine and human, from this that through each of his natures he naturally is the same operator of our salvation, let him be condemned. (D. 264)

“Canon 12. If anyone according to the wicked heretics confesses one will and one operation of Christ our God, to the destruction of the confession of the holy Fathers and to the denial of the same dispensation of our Savior, let him be condemned. (D. 265)”

A History of the Councils of the Church (aka A History of the Christian Councils), by apostate Bishop Charles Joseph Hefele, D.D., 1894: “The first great act of the new Pope was the holding of that famous Synod, in importance almost oecumenical, which was opened on the 5th of October 649, in the Basilica of Constantine (Ecclesia Salvatoris) in the Lateran. It lasted until October 31, fell into five sessions, here called numbered 105 bishops, chiefly from Italy, Sicily, and Sardinia, with some Africans and other foreigners... The Pope presided, and had the Acts immediately translated into Greek, that he might be able to send them to the Emperor and the Oriental bishops.”<sup>2904</sup>

And it was again infallibly defined in the 9th century:

Pope Hadrian II, Fourth Council of Constantinople, 869-870: “Further, we accept the sixth, holy and universal synod (Constantinople III), which shares the same beliefs and is in harmony with the previously mentioned synods in that it wisely laid down that in the two natures of the one Christ there are, as a consequence, two principles of action and the same number of wills. So, we anathematize Theodore who was bishop of Pharan, Sergius, Pyrrhus, Paul and Peter, the unholy prelates of the church of Constantinople, and with these, Honorius of Rome, Cyrus of Alexandria as well as Macarius of Antioch and his disciple Stephen, who followed the false teachings of the unholy heresiarchs Apollinarius, Eutyches and Severus and proclaimed that the flesh of God, while being animated by a rational and intellectual soul, was without a principle of action and without a will, they themselves being impaired in their senses and truly without reason. For if the one and same Christ and God exists as perfect God and perfect man, it is most certain that none of the natures which belong to him can exist partially without a will or without a principle of action, but that he carried out the mystery of his stewardship when willing and acting in accordance with each substance; this is how the chorus of all God’s spokesmen, having knowledge of it from the apostles down to our own time [ordinary magisterium], have constructed a colorful representation of that human form, assigning to each part of the one Christ natural properties distinct from each other, by which the meanings and conceptions of his divine nature and of his human nature are believed beyond all doubt to remain without confusion.”

(See in Long Commentaries: “The three divine persons have one will and operation but act separately,” p. 1079.)

Jesus’ Human Nature Was Divinized and Thus Is Divine

Jesus’ human nature was divinized (deified) by his divine nature at the instant of the Incarnation. Hence, the instant his human body was conceived in the womb of Mary his human body was divinized. And the instant his human soul was created within his human body, his human soul was divinized:

Third Council of Constantinople, 680-681: “His [Jesus’] most holy and immaculate animated flesh deified has not been destroyed but in its own status and plan remained, so also his human will deified has not been destroyed, but on the contrary it has been saved... For...that one...entire deification, which is understood in the Savior, is not contrary to God. But we glorify two natural operations... in our Lord Jesus Christ himself, our true God, that is, the divine operation and the human operation...”<sup>2905</sup>

Pope St. Damasus, Faith of Damasus, 4th century: “He who was God was born a man; and he who was born a man operates as God...”<sup>2906</sup>

Pope St. Gelasius, Tome of Gelasius, 5th century: “For although one and the same person is the Lord Jesus Christ, and the whole God man and the whole man God, and whatever there is of humanity, the God man makes his own, and whatever there is of God, the man God possesses, nevertheless, granted that this remains a mystery and cannot be explained in any degree, thus the whole man continues to be what God is, as the whole God continues to be whatever man is.”<sup>2907</sup>

Therefore, since the Incarnation, Jesus added to his divine nature a divine human nature in the unity of one divine person. Even though Jesus now has a human nature, he is not a human person (a human being). He is a divine person (a divine being) with a divine human nature. He is a divine person with a divine nature from all eternity and a divine human nature from the instant of the conception of his human body and creation of his human soul. As such, Jesus’ human nature is divine. He has a divine human soul, a divine human body, divine human blood (as manifest in the Holy Eucharist), a divine human heart (as manifest in his Sacred Heart), a divine human will, and a divine human mind. Therefore, Jesus’ human nature, as well as his divine nature, is all-knowing, all-wise, all powerful, and contains the fulness of all graces.

This does not deny the dogma that the Incarnate Christ has two wills, a divine will and a human will. His divine will operates in accordance with his divine nature. But his human will operates in accordance with his human nature. Two different operations and thus two natures in one divine person!

Beware, then, of the blasphemous heretics who teach that Jesus' human nature was not divinized and that his human mind was ignorant from birth and had to learn things from others as he grew. This blasphemy and heresy was manifest in the movie The Last Temptation of Christ. Leporius held this heresy in the 5th century. But by the efforts of St. Augustine, he repented and abjured his heresy that Jesus human nature was ignorant:

The Faith of the Early Fathers, by apostate William Jurgens, 1979: "Leporius was a monk in Gaul, probably of the Diocese of Treves, when, because of his heretical doctrines, he was obliged to leave his monastery to become a homeless wanderer. His journeyings brought him to Africa where he met Augustine; and the great doctor of Hippo cured his heretical tendencies."<sup>2908</sup>

Leporius, Document of Amendment, 426: "(3) We confess, therefore, that our Lord and God, Jesus Christ, the only Son of God, born of the Father before the ages, and in times most recent, made man of the Holy Spirit and the Ever-Virgin Mary, was born God; and confessing each substance, we accept, in the light of pious faith, that his humanity and his divinity are united inseparably. And thus, from the time when he took flesh, we say that all that was of God passed into the Man, and all that was of man came into God; and that is what we mean when we say that the Word became flesh: not that by some conversion or change he began to be what he before was not, but that by the power of the divine economy the Word of the Father, never departing from the Father, deigned to become really man; and the Only-begotten was incarnate in that secret mystery which he understood; for it is ours to believe, his to understand..."

"(6) Our faith consists largely in this: that we believe that the only Son of God, not adoptive but his own, not a phantasm but real, not temporary but eternal, suffered all things for us according to the flesh... But so that I may leave no suspicion in anyone's mind in regard to this matter, I did formerly say, or rather, I answered to objections and said that our Lord Jesus Christ, as Man, was without [certain] knowledge. But now I not only do not presume to say such, but I even anathematize my earlier opinion advanced in this matter; for it is not allowed to be said that, even as Man, the Lord was ignorant of the Prophets."<sup>2909</sup>

This heresy that Jesus was not all knowing in his human nature, in his human mind, and thus was ignorant of things was called the Agnoetae heresy:

Nominal Catholic Encyclopedia, Agnoetae: "The name given to those who denied the omniscience either of God or of Christ.

"The Theophrontians, so named from their leader, Theophrontius of Cappadocia (370), denied that God knew the past by memory or the future with certainty; and taught that even for a knowledge of the past He required study and reflection.

"The Arians, regarding the nature of Christ as inferior to that of His Father, claimed that He was ignorant of many things.

"The Apollinarians, denying that Christ had a human soul, or, at least, that He had an intellect, necessarily regarded Him as devoid of knowledge.

"The Nestorians generally, and the Adoptionists who renewed their error, believed that the knowledge of Christ was limited; that He grew in learning as He grew in age."

Therefore, to believe the heresy that Jesus' human mind is not all-knowing is a Nestorian heresy which, at least by implication, teaches that Jesus' human nature is separate from his divine nature and thus not united to his divine nature:

Nominal Catholic Encyclopedia, Nestorius and Nestorianism: "Nestorius was a disciple of the school of Antioch, ... The Antiochenes insisted upon the completeness of the humanity which the Word assumed. Unfortunately, they represented this human nature as a complete man, and represented the Incarnation as the assumption of a man by the Word... But the Antiochene writers did not mean that the 'man assumed' (ho lephtheis anthropos) was taken up into one hypostasis with the Second Person of the Holy Trinity. They preferred to speak of synapheia, 'junction', rather than enosis, 'unification.'"

This heresy destroys the unity of the natures. Even though it is a dogma that Jesus' divine nature and human nature are distinct natures, it is also a dogma that they are united, which is how Jesus' human nature got divinized, by this union.

According to these heretics, Jesus human nature, in this way, is no different than the human nature of other men. Hence, they make no account of the fact that the Father of Jesus' human nature is God, while the fathers of the rest of men are mere human fathers. Jesus' human nature was conceived in the womb of Mary by God the Holy Spirit, and thus the Father of Jesus' human nature is God, and the mother of Jesus' human nature is the Blessed Virgin Mary. That means that not only did God the Son's divine nature take on a human nature in Mary and thus his divine nature and human nature are united in one divine person, but also that the human nature of Jesus contains a part of God, the part that a father gives to his offspring. A human creature gets the father part (the father's genes) from his human father and the mother part (the mother's genes) from his human mother:

Wikipedia: “Mother’s genes are usually 50% of a child’s DNA, and father’s genes are the other 50%.”

Jesus’ human nature got the mother part (the mother’s genes) from his human mother, Mary. And he got the Father part (the father’s genes) and the Y chromosome to make his human nature male from God, not in a carnal way but in a spiritual way. Hence, the male genes and Y chromosome of Jesus’ human nature is not exactly like ours but is of an infinitely higher order. If this were not true, then the following words of God would be false:

“And Mary said to the angel: How shall this be done, because I know not man? And the angel answering, said to her: The Holy Spirit shall come upon thee, and the power of the most High shall overshadow thee. And therefore also the Holy which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God.” (Lk. 1:34-35)

“Now the generation of Christ was in this wise. When as his mother Mary was espoused to Joseph, before they came together, she was found with child, of the Holy Spirit.” (Mt. 1:18)

This is my opinion as to how Jesus’ human nature was divinized at the instant of the conception of his human nature. But even if this opinion (this theology) is wrong, it is still a dogma that Jesus’ human nature is divinized and thus he has a divine human nature:

Third Council of Constantinople, 680-681: “His [Jesus’] most holy and immaculate animated flesh deified has not been destroyed but in its own status and plan remained, so also his human will deified has not been destroyed, but on the contrary it has been saved... For...that one...entire deification, which is understood in the Savior, is not contrary to God. But we glorify two natural operations... in our Lord Jesus Christ himself, our true God, that is, the divine operation and the human operation...”<sup>2910</sup>

Lastly, on this topic, if it were not for a miracle, Jesus’ human nature could not have suffered and been weak and died as other men do: First, because Jesus’ human nature is divinized and thus is a divine human nature; Second, because the Devil had no power over him and thus Jesus’ human nature never had sin nor concupiscence in his flesh, just as Adam and Eve were when they were created and before they fell. When Adam and Eve were created, they were not weak, they did not suffer, and they were not meant to die. All these things detrimental things were not due to them until after they sinned against God. Hence suffering, weakness, and death was not due to Jesus, as Jesus never sinned and never had concupiscence in his flesh. But he took suffering, weakness, and death upon himself to save us, and so it took a miracle for this to happen. Those who hold the heresy that Jesus’ human nature was weak in and of itself and thus did not die by a miracle, believe by implication that Jesus’ human nature was guilty of sin and had concupiscence in his flesh.

And even worse is the heresy that teaches Jesus’ human mind was ignorant and thus not all-knowing, which teaches by implication that Jesus’ human nature is not united to his divine nature, which is the heresy of Nestorius.

Jesus Is Eternally Begotten of the Father

“AND THE WORD WAS MADE FLESH, and dwelt among us, and we saw his glory, the glory as it were of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth.” (Jn. 1:14)

Jn. 1:14. The only begotten of the Father: Jesus Christ’s divine nature was begotten (born) from the substance (the essence) of God the Father from all eternity, and his human nature was begotten (born) in time in the womb and from the flesh of the Virgin Mary.

Jesus Christ’s divine nature was begotten (born) of the substance of God the Father from all eternity and hence there was not one instant when Jesus (God the Son) was not born, and thus he always existed. He is eternally born, not eternally being born nor, in the strict sense, eternally was born. St. Augustine teaches that “He [Jesus] is always born.”<sup>2911</sup> And he also teaches the following:

St. Augustine, On the Creed: A Sermon to Catechumens, 425: “8. ...Imagine to yourselves fire as father, its shining as son; see, we have found the coevals. From the instant that the fire begins to be, that instant it begets the shining: neither fire before shining nor shining after fire. And if we ask, which begets which? the fire the shining, or the shining the fire? Immediately ye conceive by natural sense, by the innate wit of your minds ye all cry out, The fire the shining, not the shining the fire. Lo, here you have a father beginning; lo, a son at the same time, neither going before nor coming after. Lo, here then is a father beginning, lo, a son at the same time beginning. If I have shown you a father beginning, and a son at the same time beginning, believe the Father not beginning and with him the Son not beginning either; the one eternal, the other coeternal... He was begotten without time, coeternal with the Father, long before all things, not in age, but in eternity. He then was begotten coeternal, of which generation the Prophet said, ‘His generation who shall declare?’ begotten of the Father without time.”

St. John teaches that Jesus is God and thus was always with God the Father:

“In the beginning was the Word [Jesus Christ], and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God.” (Jn. 1:1-2)

This is one of the deepest mysteries that cannot be understood by human reason and thus must be believed by faith alone:

After all, the eternity of God the Father who was not begotten is just as much a supernatural mystery and thus above the understanding of men as the eternal birth of God the Son. Hence these dogmas can only be believed by faith alone.

Scripture teaches that Jesus is the only-begotten of the Father:

“For God so loved the world as to give his only-begotten Son”... (Jn. 3:16)

While Jesus is eternally born of the substance of the Father and is of the same substance of the Father, the substance of the Father was neither diminished nor changed in any way. This is similar to the way that earthly parents beget the bodies of their children while their bodies are not diminished in any way. A human’s substance is given to his human offspring, just as God the Father’s divine substance is given to his divine offspring, God the Son. And because humans are not eternal, their offspring is not eternal. And because God is eternal, his offspring is eternal. Hence a human being’s son is human, and God’s son is God. Another difference is that the children humans beget have a separate human nature while the Son that God the Father begets has the same divine nature as his own:

St. Augustine and Alypius, Letter 170, to Maximus, 415: “But the only-begotten Son does not come of God the Father as the whole of creation came from him, which he created from nothing. He begot the Son of his own substance, he did not make him out of nothing; he did not beget him in time, through whom he instituted all time, for, as the flame is not antecedent to the brightness which it produces, so the Father has never been without the Son... And the Father did not diminish himself in order to have a Son of himself, but he begot him as another self so as to remain whole in himself, and to be as great in the Son as he is alone... Thus, in God the Father and God the Son, if we consider the nature of both, each one is God, but one is not more God than the other; if we consider their origin, the Father is God from whom the Son is God, but there is no god previous to God the Father.”

There are two births of Jesus, one from eternity as God the Son and the other in time as the Son of Man. Jesus Christ’s human nature was begotten (born) in time in the womb and from the flesh of the Virgin Mary. King David and St. Paul speak of the day of the Incarnation when God the Father, through the instrumentation of the Holy Spirit and the Virgin Mary, begot Jesus’ human nature and united Jesus’ divine nature to his human nature:

“The Lord hath said to me: Thou art my son, this day [Incarnation Day] have I begotten thee. Ask of me and I will give thee the Gentiles for thy inheritance, and the utmost parts of the earth for thy possession.” (Ps. 2:7-8)

“This same God hath fulfilled to our children, raising up Jesus, as in the second psalm also is written: Thou art my Son, this day [Incarnation Day] have I begotten thee.” (Acts 13:33)

St. Luke records the events of the Incarnation in which Jesus Christ’s human nature was born of the Virgin Mary:

“And the angel answering, said to her: The Holy Spirit shall come upon thee, and the power of the most High shall overshadow thee. And therefore also the Holy which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God.” (Lk. 1:35)

This is when “God hath sent his only-begotten Son [born from all eternity] into the world [born in time in the womb of the Virgin Mary]...” (1 Jn. 4:9)

St. Paul speaks of both natures of Jesus Christ, his divine nature from all eternity in which Jesus created all things, and his human nature born in time in which Jesus was made human, the son of Mary, the Messiah, the high priest, the redeemer, and heir to David’s kingly line.

In the following quote, St. Paul speaks again of both natures of Jesus Christ. He speaks of Jesus’ divine nature in which Jesus created all things and is the “image of the invisible God,” “the firstborn of every creature” (meaning firstborn from the Father from all eternity and thus before the creation and birth of any creature), and in whom the fullness of the Father dwells because Jesus is of the same divine substance of the Father. And St. Paul speaks of Jesus’ human nature in which Jesus is the redeemer who died for our sins and rose from the dead and thus is the firstborn from the dead; that is, the first human who came back from the dead from the Limbo of the Elect, during his resurrection when his human soul reunited with his human body. And this Jesus, in his divine and human natures, is the head of the Catholic Church:

“In whom we have redemption through his blood, the remission of sins; who is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of every creature: For in him were all things created in heaven and on earth, visible and invisible, whether thrones, or dominations, or principalities, or powers: all things were created by him and in him. And he is before all, and by him all things consist. And he is the head of the body, the Church, who is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead; that in all things he may hold the primacy: Because in him it hath well pleased the Father that all fullness should dwell.” (Col. 1:14-19)

The dogmas regarding the begetting of Jesus Christ’s divine and human natures are professed in the Nicene Creed and the Athanasian Creed:

Nicene Creed, 325: “I believe...in one Lord Jesus Christ, the only-begotten Son of God, born of the Father before all ages. God of God, light of light, true God of true God, begotten not made, being of one substance with the Father, by whom all things were made. Who for us men, and for our salvation, came down from heaven and was incarnate by the Holy Spirit of the Virgin Mary and was made man.”

Athanasian Creed, 4th century: “The Father is made of none, neither created nor begotten. The Son is of the Father alone, not made nor created but [eternally] begotten... But it is necessary for everlasting salvation [to] faithfully believe also the incarnation of our Lord Jesus Christ. Accordingly it is the right faith, that we believe and confess that our Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of God, is God and man. He is God [eternally] begotten of the substance of the Father, and he is man born of the substance of his mother in time: perfect God, perfect man, consisting of a rational soul and a human body, equal to the Father according to his Godhead, less than the Father according to his humanity. Although he is God and man, yet he is not two, but he is one Christ; one, however, not by the conversion of the divinity into a human body, but by the assumption of humanity into the Godhead.”

Jesus Is God

“In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God.” (Jn. 1:1)

Jn. 1:1. The Word was God: [RJMI: Here is a proof that Jesus, the Word, is God and that he was with God and thus with the other two divine Persons of the Holy Trinity, God the Father and God the Holy Spirit. Even though each of the three divine Persons is God, there is only one God. Jesus, son of Sirach, alludes to God the Father and God the Son when he says,

“I called upon the Lord [God the Father], the father of my Lord [Jesus Christ]...” (Eccus. 51:14)

Jesus Christ told the Jews that “I and the Father are one” (Jn. 10:30), one God even though the Father and the Son are two divine Persons. When speaking to St. Philip, Jesus said,

“Have I been so long a time with you, and have you not known me? Philip, he that seeth me seeth the Father also. How sayest thou, shew us the Father? Do you not believe that I am in the Father, and the Father in me?” (Jn. 14:9-10)

St. Paul refers to the Holy Trinity as the Godhead and to Jesus as part of the Godhead:

“For in him [Christ] dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead corporeally.” (Col. 2:9)

St. John saw in heaven God the Father on his throne, and the Lamb, Jesus Christ, next to God the Father, and both being referred to and adored as God:

“And I saw in the right hand of him that sat on the throne a book written within and without ... And I saw... a Lamb standing as it were slain... And he came and took the book out of the right hand of him that sat on the throne. And when he had opened the book, the four living creatures and the four and twenty ancients fell down before the Lamb... saying: Thou art worthy, O Lord, to take the book and to open the seals thereof because thou wast slain... And every creature, which is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, and all that are in them, I heard all saying: To him that sitteth on the throne [God the Father], and to the Lamb [God the Son], benediction, and honour, and glory, and power, for ever and ever.” (Apoc. 5:1, 6-9, 13)

Hence Jesus Christ (the Word) is God and thus was not made nor created and hence always existed.<sup>2912</sup>

One of the traits of God, then, is that he always existed (is from the beginning) and never changes:

“From the beginning I am the same...” (Isa. 43:13)

“For I am the Lord, and I change not...” (Mala. 3:6)

“But thou art always the selfsame, and thy years shall not fail.” (Ps. 101:28)

Hence because St. Paul knew that Jesus was God, he said,

“Jesus Christ is the same, yesterday, today, and forever.” (Heb. 13:8)

If Jesus Christ were not God, then he would not be the same yesterday and forever.

Daniel’s Seventy-Weeks Prophecy foretold that the Messiah would be God (the Holy of holies) and a man and the redeemer who would be slain for the sins of men. It also prophesied the exact time of Jesus’ baptism by St. John the Baptist and that Christ would be a purifier of the world upon his second coming, all of which can only apply to Jesus Christ. (See commentary on Dan. 9:21.)

At first Jesus only said that he was a man, and thus he hid his divinity. Then Jesus began to teach that he was more than a man. He taught that he was from above, from heaven, and thus implying that he was either God or an angel. Jesus said that he existed with God the Father before the creation of this world:

“And now glorify thou me, O Father, with thyself, with the glory which I had, before the world was, with thee.” (Jn. 17:5)

And Jesus said,

“I saw Satan like lightning falling from heaven.” (Lk. 10:18)

And Jesus said that he came from heaven:

“I came down from heaven...” (Jn. 6:38)

“No man hath ascended into heaven but he that descended from heaven, the Son of man who is in heaven.” (Jn. 3:13)

St. John the Baptist also teaches that Jesus came from above, from heaven:

Hence from these verses alone it is certain that Jesus is either God or an angel because he came from heaven and existed with God before the creation of this world.

Jesus then began to teach by hints, implications, and then explicitly that he was God. He told the Jews

“Amen, amen I say to you, before Abraham was made, I am.” (Jn. 8:58)

Not only did he say that he existed before Abraham but he also hinted that he is God when he said “I am,” which is one of God’s titles that God revealed to Moses:

“God said to Moses: I AM WHO AM.” (Ex. 3:14)

Jesus, by implication, told the Pharisees that he is God when he said to them:

“The Son of man is Lord also of the sabbath.” (Lk. 6:5)

The only Lord of the sabbath is God! And Jesus also implied that he is God when he told the Pharisees that he has the power to forgive sins, as they knew that only God has the power to forgive sins:

“And when Jesus had seen their faith, he saith to the sick of the palsy: Son, thy sins are forgiven thee. And there were some of the scribes sitting there, and thinking in their hearts: Why doth this man speak thus? He blasphemeth. Who can forgive sins, but God only? Which Jesus presently knowing in his spirit that they so thought within themselves, saith to them: ...the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins...” (Mk. 2:5-10)

Jesus was telling them by implication, “Yes, only God has power to forgive sins, and I have the power to forgive sins, and thus I am God.” The Prophet Micheas spoke of the Messiah to come and says that he will be not only a man but also God:

“And thou, Bethlehem Ephrata, art a little one among the thousands of Juda: out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be the ruler in Israel: and his going forth is from the beginning, from the days of eternity.” (Mich. 5:2)

When the Jews asked Jesus who he was, Jesus first said, “I am from above” (Jn. 8:23), and thus they knew that Jesus was either an angel or God. Then, referring to Micheas’ prophecy, Jesus said, I am “the beginning, who also speak unto you,” (Jn. 8:25) and thus was telling them that he is God because only God is “from the beginning, from the days of eternity.”<sup>2913</sup> Indeed, these Jews got the message. From all the hints, implications, and explicit testimonies of Jesus, they knew that Jesus said he is God:

“The Jews sought the more to kill him, because he did not only break the sabbath, but also said God was his Father, making himself equal to God.” (Jn. 5:18)

Hence when these Jews passed the death sentence on Jesus, they accused him of blasphemy, proving again that they knew that Jesus taught that he is God:

“Jesus held his peace. And the high priest said to him: I adjure thee by the living God, that thou tell us if thou be the Christ the Son of God. Jesus saith to him: Thou hast said it. Nevertheless I say to you, hereafter you shall see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of the power of God and coming in the clouds of heaven. Then the high priest rent his garments, saying: He hath blasphemed; what further need have we of witnesses? Behold, now you have heard the blasphemy: What think you? But they answering, said: He is guilty of death.” (Mt. 26:63-66)

Isaias prophesied that the Messiah would not only be a man but also almighty God:

“For a child is born to us, and a son is given to us, and the government is upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, God the Mighty, the Father of the world to come, the Prince of Peace.” (Isa. 9:6)

The Prophet Aggeus, who oversaw the building of the second temple, prophesied that the Messiah will come into the Second Temple and hinted that he would be God:

“For thus saith the Lord of hosts: Yet one little while, and I will move the heaven and the earth, and the sea, and the dry land. And I will move all nations: AND THE DESIRED OF ALL NATIONS SHALL COME: and I will fill this house with glory: saith the Lord of hosts.” (Agge. 2:7-8)

The desired of all nations is the Messiah. And the moving of heaven and earth means that God will come down from heaven and dwell upon earth and thus in the second temple. The High Priest who oversaw the building of the second temple was Jesus, son of Josedec. Hence it was a Jesus who built the second temple and it was a Jesus, the Christ, who will come into it and eventually destroy it.

The Prophet Zacharias began to prophesy in the same year as Aggeus, and upon the same occasion, the overseeing of the building of the second temple. He prophesied that God himself will come into the second temple:

“Therefore thus saith the Lord: I will return to Jerusalem in mercies: my house shall be built in it, saith the Lord of hosts: and the building line shall be stretched forth upon Jerusalem. (Zach. 1:16) ... And I will be to it, saith the Lord, a wall of fire round about: and I will be in glory in the midst thereof... Sing praise, and rejoice, O daughter of Sion: for behold I come, and I will dwell in the midst of thee: saith the Lord. And many nations shall be joined to the Lord in that day, and they shall be my people, and I will dwell in the midst of thee: and thou shalt know that the Lord of hosts hath sent me to thee. And the Lord shall possess Juda his portion in the sanctified land: and he shall yet choose Jerusalem. Let all flesh be silent at the presence of the Lord: for he is risen up out of his holy habitation." (Zach. 2:5, 10-13)

This applies to the first and second coming of Jesus Christ. Jesus needed to come the first time into the second temple in order to redeem men and thus open heaven to them. The second time he comes he will destroy this earth and create a new earth, an everlasting earthly paradise, and will rule it from the New Jerusalem.

The Prophet Malachias prophesied when the second temple was already built and was contemporary with Nehemias, who oversaw the building of the walls of Jerusalem. Malachias prophesied that the Messiah will come into the second temple and will be God:

"Behold I send my messenger [John the Baptist], and he shall prepare the way before my face. And presently the Lord [Jesus Christ], whom you seek, and the messenger of the testament, whom you desire, shall come to his temple. Behold he cometh, saith the Lord of hosts." (Mala. 3:1)

The first time that Jesus Christ (God, man, and Messiah) entered the second temple was during his presentation in the second temple forty days after he was born as man from the Virgin Mary. (See Lk. 2:22-34.)

The Prophet Baruch prophesied that God will come down to earth and live and converse among men:

"This is our God, and there shall no other be accounted of in comparison of him... Afterwards he was seen upon earth, and conversed with men." (Bar. 3:36, 38)

This was fulfilled during the Incarnation when Jesus (the Word) came down from heaven and became man in the womb of the Blessed Virgin Mary. This is when "The Word was made flesh and dwelt among us." (Jn. 1:14) From that point forward, Jesus was not only God, as he always was, but is now also a man. This answers the riddle that Jesus gave to the Jews:

"What think you of Christ? Whose son is he? They say to him: David's. He saith to them: How then doth David in spirit call him Lord (Ps. 109:1), saying: The Lord said to my Lord, Sit on my right hand, until I make thy enemies thy footstool? If David then call him Lord, how is he his son?" (Mt. 22:42-45)

The answer is that Jesus (the Messiah) is both God and man. He was David's Lord (David's God) from all eternity, and David's son when he became man in the womb of the Virgin Mary, who was from the line of David as was St. Joseph, Jesus' foster father. Hence Jesus natural line from David is from the Blessed Virgin Mary and his legal line from David is from St. Joseph. Hence Jesus' manhood is naturally and legally from the line of David.<sup>2914</sup> St. Elizabeth knew the answer to this riddle when Jesus was yet in the womb of the Blessed Virgin Mary, when she said to Mary:

"Blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb. And whence is this to me that the mother of my Lord should come to me?" (Lk. 1:42-43)

Hence St. Elizabeth testified that what was in Mary's womb was not only a human from the line of David but also the Lord God. What was in Mary's womb was both her infant and God. Therefore Mary is rightfully the mother of God. Even though she did not create God or come before him, she is called the mother of God because the incarnate Jesus Christ is a divine Person even though he has a human nature. His divine nature dominated and thus took up his human nature into his divine personhood:

The Athanasian Creed: "Who although he be God and man, yet he is not two but one Christ; one, however, not by conversion of the divinity into flesh but by taking of the manhood into God..."

Who would dare say that the "God [in whom] all things are possible" (Mt. 19:26) could not have created for himself a mother if he wanted to! Indeed, he wanted to, and he did. And this shows how much God loves humans, to live among us as one of us, to have a mother who loves and cares for him and whom he loves and cares for in the most intimate way.

From his birth, one of Jesus' many titles was Emmanuel, as prophesied by Isaias, which means "God with us":

"Therefore the Lord himself shall give you a sign. Behold a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and his name shall be called Emmanuel." (Isa. 7:14)

St. Matthew recorded the fulfillment of this prophecy:

"Now all this was done that it might be fulfilled which the Lord spoke by the prophet, saying: Behold a virgin shall be with child, and bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us." (Mt. 1:22-23)

Here, then, we have another proof that Jesus is God and thus Mary is the mother of God. The Prophet Isaias teaches again that the Savior who will come and heal men will be God himself:

"They shall see the glory of the Lord, and the beauty of our God... Say to the fainthearted: Take courage, and fear not: behold your God will bring the revenge of recompense: God himself will come and will save you. Then shall the eyes of the blind be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped." (Isa. 35:2, 4-5)

Referring to the fulfillment of this prophecy, Jesus said,

"Go and relate to John what you have heard and seen: the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are made clean, the deaf hear, the dead rise, to the poor the gospel is preached." (Lk. 7:22)

On another occasion, Jesus hinted to the apostles that he is God when he calmed the wind and sea:

"And when he entered into the boat, his disciples followed him: And behold a great tempest arose in the sea so that the boat was covered with waves, but he was asleep. And they came to him and awaked him, saying: Lord, save us, we perish. And Jesus saith to them: Why are you fearful, O ye of little faith? Then rising up he commanded the winds, and the sea, and there came a great calm. But the men wondered, saying: What manner of man is this, for the winds and the sea obey him?" (Mt. 8:23-27)

If the apostles had been mindful of David's following prophecy regarding this very event, they would have known that Jesus was not just a man and the Messias but also God:

"These have seen the works of the Lord, and his wonders in the deep. He said the word, and there arose a storm of wind: and the waves thereof were lifted up. They mount up to the heavens, and they go down to the depths: their soul pined away with evils. They were troubled, and reeled like a drunken man; and all their wisdom was swallowed up. And they cried to the Lord in their affliction: and he brought them out of their distresses. And he [God] turned the storm into a breeze: and its waves were still." (Ps. 106:24-29)

And Jesus, son of Sirach, teaches the same:

"At his [God's] word the wind is still..." (Eccus. 43:25)

God, speaking through the Prophet Zacharias, says that he, God himself, would be pierced; thus Jesus Christ, who would be pierced on the holy cross, is God:

"And I [God] will pour out upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace, and of prayers: and they shall look upon me [God], whom they have pierced: and they shall mourn for him as one mourneth for an only son, and they shall grieve over him, as the manner is to grieve for the death of the firstborn." (Zach. 12:10)

Jesus as God is the only natural Son of God, and as man is the only natural son of Mary; hence "they shall mourn for him [Jesus] as one mourneth for an only son, and they shall grieve over him, as the manner is to grieve for the death of the firstborn." It was Jesus human nature that died not his divine nature, as his divine nature can never die. After Christ died, St. John referred to Jesus' fulfillment of this prophecy:

"And again another scripture saith: They shall look on him whom they pierced." (Jn. 19:37)

And St. John says that during Jesus' second coming those who pierced him will look upon him and that he, whom they pierced, is the Alpha and Omega, the Almighty God, the First and the Last, only this time there will be no more time to repent and thus will bewail instead of morn and repent:

"Behold, he cometh with the clouds, and every eye shall see him, and they also that pierced him. And all the tribes of the earth shall bewail themselves because of him. Even so. Amen. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, saith the Lord God, who is, and who was, and who is to come, the Almighty." (Apoc. 1:7-8)

"Fear not. I am the First and the Last, and alive, and was dead, and behold I am living forever and ever, and have the keys of death and of gehenna." (Apoc. 1:8, 12-18)

"Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, who was, and who is, and who is to come." (Apoc. 4:8)

"We give thee thanks, O Lord God Almighty, who art, and who wast, and who art to come: because thou hast taken to thee thy great power, and thou hast reigned." (Apoc. 11:17)

The Prophet Isaias also teaches that the redeemer (Jesus Christ) is God, the First and the Last:

"Thus saith the Lord the king of Israel, and his redeemer the Lord of hosts: I am the first and I am the last, and besides me there is no God." (Isa. 44:6)

It was not until after Jesus' resurrection that men needed to believe that Jesus is God, man, and Messias to be saved. Hence after Jesus rose from the dead, the apostles and other followers of Jesus believed that Jesus was God, man, and Messias.

St. Peter says that Jesus Christ is God and Savior:

"Simon Peter, servant and apostle of Jesus Christ, to them that have obtained equal faith with us in the justice of our God and Savior Jesus Christ." (2 Pt. 1:1)

St. John teaches that Jesus knows all things and thus is God:

"Jesus therefore, knowing all things that should come upon him..." (Jn. 18:4)

And St. John says,

"The Word (Jesus Christ) was God." (Jn. 1:1)

St. Paul also says that Jesus Christ is God and Savior:

"Adorn the doctrine of God our Saviour in all things: For the grace of God our Saviour hath appeared to all men... Looking for the blessed hope and coming of the glory of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ." (Titus 2:10-13)

And St. Paul refers to Jesus Christ not only as the redeemer but also as God:

"Take heed to yourselves, and to the whole flock, wherein the Holy Spirit hath placed you bishops, to rule the Church of God, which he [Jesus] hath purchased with his own blood." (Acts 20:28)

Hence Jesus, who shed his blood to redeem men and create the Catholic Church, is not just a man but also God. And St. Paul teaches that Jesus is not only a man but also God, equal to God the Father:

"For let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus: Who being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God: But emptied himself, taking the form of a servant, being made in the likeness of men, and in habit found as a man.” (Phili. 2:5-7)

St. Jude teaches that Jesus Christ is God:

“For certain men are secretly entered in who were written of long ago unto this judgment, ungodly men, who turn the grace of our Lord God into riotousness and deny him who is the only Lord God and our Lord Jesus Christ.” (Jude 1:4)

And all the Church Fathers and many infallible papal decrees teach that since his incarnation, Jesus Christ is God, man, and Messiah. For example,

Nicene Creed, 325: I believe...in one Lord Jesus Christ, the only-begotten Son of God, born of the Father before all ages. God of God, light of light, true God of true God, begotten not made, being of one substance with the Father, by whom all things were made. Who for us men, and for our salvation, came down from heaven and was incarnate by the Holy Spirit of the Virgin Mary: and was made man.”

Jesus Is Made, In Context

In the following verses, St. Paul teaches that Jesus is God and man and that his manhood, his human nature, was made, created:

“Jesus, who is faithful to him [God the Father] that made him [in his human nature],<sup>2915</sup> as was also Moses in all his house. For this man [Jesus Christ] was counted worthy of greater glory than Moses, by so much as he [Jesus Christ] that hath built the house hath greater honour than the house. For every house is built by some man, but he [Jesus Christ] that created all things is God. ...But Christ as the Son [is] in his own house...” (Heb. 3:1-6)

Hence St. Paul teaches that Jesus created all things (created the house) and that only God created all things and thus Jesus is God. But he also teaches that Jesus was made man and thus his human nature was created. “For this man... is faithful to him who made him,” in his human nature. And when St. Paul says Christ is in his own house, he means that the divine person of Jesus dwells in his human nature that he himself created for himself.

Pope St. Leo the Great teaches that Jesus’ human nature was made:

Pope St. Leo the Great, Letter 28, to Flavian, 5th century: “For it must again and again be repeated that one and the same is truly Son of GOD and truly son of man. GOD in that ‘in the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with GOD, and the Word was GOD;’ man in that ‘the Word became flesh and dwelt in us.’ GOD in that ‘all things were made by Him, and without Him was nothing made:’ man in that ‘He was made of a woman, made under law.’

Some hold the opinion that the word “made” in Acts 2:36 means ordained, manifested, exalted, or glorified and thus God the Father ordained or manifested or exalted or glorified Jesus as Lord and Christ, as Jesus several times called upon the Father to glorify him: “Father, glorify thy name. A voice therefore came from heaven: I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again.” (Jn. 12:28) And St. John says, “If God be glorified in him, [Jesus Christ] God also will glorify him in himself; and immediately will he glorify him.” (Jn. 13:32)

St. Athanasius gives both opinions:

[Opinion 1] “For Peter, after saying ‘He hath made Lord and Christ,’ straightway added ‘this Jesus whom ye crucified,’ which makes it plain to anyone, ... provided they attend to the context, that not the Essence of the Word but he according to his manhood is said to have been made. For what was crucified but the body? And how could be signified what was bodily in the Word except by saying ‘He made?’”

[Opinion 2] “Especially has that phrase, ‘He made,’ a meaning consistent with orthodoxy, ...as much as to say ‘He manifested him.’ And this Peter himself, when he began this primary teaching, carefully expressed when he said to them: ‘Ye men of Israel, hear these words: Jesus of Nazareth, a man manifested of God towards you by miracles, and wonders, and signs, which God did by him in the midst of you, as ye yourselves know.’ Consequently the term which he uses, ‘made,’ this he has explained in the beginning by ‘manifested,’ for by the signs and wonders which the Lord did, he was manifested to be not merely man but God in a body and Lord also, the Christ. Such also is the passage in the Gospel according to John: ‘Therefore the more did the Jews persecute him because he not only broke the Sabbath but said also that God was his own Father, making himself God.’” (Four Discourses against the Arians, c. 15, Acts 2:36, n. 12)

Hence Acts 2:26 could be worded: “I have ordained or manifested or exalted or glorified him Lord and Christ...”

<sup>2915</sup> When it is said the God the Father created things, in context it means through God the Son. Hence God the Son created his human nature, his human soul. But he got his human body from the Blessed Virgin Mary. (See Long Commentaries: “Jesus Created Physical Life and the Holy Spirit Creates Spiritual Life,” p. 1090.)

Jesus Is Mary's Only Natural Child

"Is not this the carpenter's son? Is not his mother called Mary, and his brethren James, and Joseph, and Simon, and Jude?" (Mt. 13:55)

These were the children of Mary the wife of Cleophas, aunt to our Blessed Lady, and therefore according to the usual style of Scripture they were called brethren, that is, near relations to our Savior. For example,

In Genesis 13:8 Lot is called the brother of Abraham: "Abram therefore said to Lot: Let there be no quarrel, I beseech thee, between me and thee, and between my herdsmen and thy herdsmen: for we are brethren." (Gen. 13:8) But Lot was Abraham's nephew: "And these are the generations of Thare: Thare begot Abram, Nachor, and Aran. And Aran begot Lot." (Gen. 11:27) Hence in this case the word brother means nephew.

In 1 Par. 23:21-22 it says the daughters of Eleazar married their brothers. But in reality they married their cousins. "The sons of Merari: Moholi, and Musi. The sons of Moholi: Eleazar and Cis. And Eleazar died, and had no sons but daughters: and the sons of Cis their brethren took them." (1 Par. 23:21-22) Hence in this case the word brethren means cousin.

In Ruth 4:3 Booz calls Elimelech his brother: "He [Booz] spoke to the kinsman: Noemi, who is returned from the country of Moab, will sell a parcel of land that belonged to our brother Elimelech." (Ruth 4:3) But Elimelech was Booz's uncle: "He was named Elimelech, and his wife, Noemi: and his two sons, the one Mahalon, and the other Chelion, Ephrathites of Bethlehem Juda. And entering into the country of Moab, they abode there." (Ruth 1:2) Hence in this case the word brother means uncle.

If James, son of Alphaeus, were Jesus' direct brother instead of his cousin, he would be called James, son of Joseph instead: "And the names of the twelve apostles are these: ... James the son of Zebedee, ... and James the son of Alphaeus..." (Mt. 10:2-3) Hence James' brothers mentioned in Mt. 13:55, Joseph, Simon, and Jude are also Jesus' cousins. Hence in this case the word brother means cousins.

Other Bible verses prove that this Joseph was a brother in the strict sense to James the Less and hence their mother was Mary of Alphaeus: "And there were also women looking on afar off: among whom was Mary Magdalen and Mary the mother of James the Less and of Joseph and Salome." (Mk. 15:40-41) It does not say "Mary, the mother of Jesus, of James the Less, and of Salome." In another place this Mary is mentioned as the Mother of James but not of Jesus: "And it was Mary Magdalen, and Joanna, and Mary of James, and the other women that were with them, who told these things to the apostles." (Lk. 24:10)

If Mary had other sons, Jesus, before he died, would not have given St. John, son of Zebedee, to her to be her son: "When Jesus therefore had seen his mother and the disciple standing whom he loved, he saith to his mother: Woman, behold thy son. After that, he saith to the disciple: Behold thy mother. And from that hour, the disciple took her to his own." (Jn. 19:26-27)

"And Joseph rising up from sleep, did as the angel of the Lord had commanded him, and took unto him his wife. And he knew her not till she brought forth her firstborn son: and he called his name JESUS." (Mt. 1:24-25)

From these words Helvidius and other heretics most impiously inferred that the Blessed Virgin Mary had other children besides Christ; but this expression of the Evangelist was a manner of speaking usual among the Hebrews to denote by the word "until" only what is done, without any regard to the future. Thus it is said (Gen. 8:6-7) that Noe sent forth a raven which went forth and did not return till the waters were dried up on the earth; that is, it did not return anymore. Also (Isa. 46:4) God says: "I am till you grow old." Who dare infer that God should then cease to be. Also (1 Mac. 5:54): "And they went up to mount Sion with joy and gladness and offered holocausts because not one of them was slain till they had returned in peace." That is, not one was slain before or after they had returned. God saith to his divine Son: "Sit on my right hand till I make thy enemies thy footstool." Shall he sit no longer after his enemies are subdued? He shall rule, yea, and for all eternity! Hence just as the ever-virgin Mary was virgin until she gave birth to Jesus, so also she remained a virgin afterward and forever.

Jesus Is the Messias

The Messias will redeem fallen man

After the fall of Adam and Eve, when they committed the original sin, God punished them with pain, suffering, and death. (Gen. 3:1-6, 16-19) And Adam and Eve, as well as all mankind, would have suffered everlasting damnation and pain in the hell of the damned after they died if God did not have mercy on them. Thankfully, God had mercy on mankind and gave Adam and Eve and thus the rest of mankind a second chance. Whosoever turns back to God, confesses his sins, repents, amends his life, and obeys all of God's commandments will have all of his sins forgiven by God and gain everlasting life when he dies instead of everlasting damnation.

But a savior was needed to redeem men from sin and the Devil. The redemption made it possible for men's sins and the punishment due to their sins to be remitted and thus enable them to enter heaven. And this savior, this redeemer, is called the Messias.

The Messias will be born of a woman and crush the head of Satan

After Adam and Eve committed the original sin, God, speaking to Satan, promised to send mankind a redeemer, a man born of a woman, who would crush the power and right that Satan has over good-willed men:

Speaking to Satan, God said, "I will put enmities between thee and the woman and thy seed and her seed; he shall crush thy head, and thou shalt lie in wait for his heel." (Gen. 3:15)

This is the first prophecy of the Messiah, a man born of a woman, who will come to redeem men. During his first coming, he crushes the spiritual power and right that Satan has over the souls of good-willed men. During his second coming, he will crush the physical power of Satan and the other devils by casting them into hell forever, never to be released upon earth again. And after his second coming, he will give physical life to the bodies of the elect by resurrecting them in a glorified state.

The Messiah will be born of a virgin and will be not only a man but also God

The Prophet Isaias tells more about this woman who will give birth to the Messiah. She will give birth as a virgin and her son will be not only human but also God, as his name will be called Emmanuel, which means "God with us":

"Therefore the Lord himself shall give you a sign. Behold a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and his name shall be called Emmanuel." (Isa. 7:14)

The Incarnation fulfilled this prophecy when God the Son, Jesus Christ, came down from heaven and took on a human nature in the womb and from the flesh of the Virgin Mary without a human father, being conceived by the God the Holy Spirit. Hence Mary conceived and gave birth to the Messiah as a virgin:

"And in the sixth month, the angel Gabriel was sent from God into a city of Galilee, called Nazareth, to a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David. And the virgin's name was Mary. And the angel being come in, said unto her: Hail, full of grace, the Lord is with thee. Blessed art thou among women. Who having heard, was troubled at his saying, and thought with herself what manner of salutation this should be. And the angel said to her: Fear not, Mary, for thou hast found grace with God. Behold thou shalt conceive in thy womb and shalt bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus. He shall be great and shall be called the Son of the most High. And the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of David his father, and he shall reign in the house of Jacob forever. And of his kingdom there shall be no end. And Mary said to the angel: How shall this be done because I know not man? And the angel answering, said to her: The Holy Spirit shall come upon thee, and the power of the most High shall overshadow thee. And therefore also the Holy which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God." (Lk. 1:26-35)

An angel revealed this mystery to St. Joseph. And he told Joseph that Mary's son will "save his people from their sins," and thus he would be the redeemer, the savior, the Messiah. And St. Matthew says that the birth of Jesus was the fulfillment of Isaias' prophecy, as recorded in Isaias 7:14:

"Now the generation of Christ was in this wise. When as his mother Mary was espoused to Joseph before they came together, she was found with child of the Holy Spirit. Whereupon Joseph her husband, being a just man and not willing publicly to expose her, was minded to put her away privately. But while he thought on these things, behold the angel of the Lord appeared to him in his sleep, saying: Joseph, son of David, fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife, for that which is conceived in her, is of the Holy Spirit. And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name JESUS, for he shall save his people from their sins. Now all this was done that it might be fulfilled which the Lord spoke by the prophet [Isaias], saying: Behold a virgin shall be with child, and bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us." (Mt. 1:18-23)

Therefore, the women mentioned in Genesis 3:15 is the Blessed Virgin Mary and her seed is the Messiah (Jesus Christ) who is both God and man:

Catholic Commentary on Gen. 3:15. "I will put enmities between thee and the woman, between thy seed, and her seed: It is clear, that this enmity and battle pertained to the woman and her seed on the one party and to this Devil that spoke by the serpent and all the wicked on the other party, and that the victory should happen to mankind. Which being captive by Adam's sin, occasioned by a woman, should be redeemed by a man (Jesus Christ) occasioned by the cooperation of a woman (Mary). And so it is most true, that Christ by his own proper power and his blessed mother by her most immediate cooperating to his Incarnation (and consequently to other mysteries) did bruise the serpent's head, break and vanquish his power. As many ancient Fathers do excellently discourse. He shall crush thy head: Christ crushed the serpent's head by his death. His blessed mother crushed him likewise by her co-operation to the mystery of the Incarnation; and by rejecting, with horror, the very first suggestions of the enemy, to commit even the smallest sin."

And Isaias again prophesied that the Messiah will be not only a man but also God and will rule the world:

"For a CHILD IS BORN to us, and a son is given to us, and the government is upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called, Wonderful, Counsellor, God the Mighty, the Father of the world to come, the Prince of Peace. His empire shall be multiplied, and there shall be no end of peace: he shall sit upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom; to establish it and strengthen it with judgment and with justice, from henceforth and for ever: the zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this.” (Isa. 9:6-7)

St. Elizabeth refers to the child in Mary’s womb as her Lord and thus as not only a man but also God:

“And it came to pass that when Elizabeth heard the salutation of Mary, the infant leaped in her womb. And Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Spirit. And she cried out with a loud voice, and said: Blessed art thou among women and blessed is the fruit of thy womb. And whence is this to me that the mother of my Lord should come to me?” (Lk. 1:41-43)

The Messiah will come from the seed of Abraham

This promised seed, the Messiah, as mentioned in Gen. 3:15, will come from the seed of Abraham:

Moses: “And the angel of the Lord called to Abraham a second time from heaven, saying: ...In thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed, because thou hast obeyed my voice.” (Gen. 22:15, 18)

St. Paul: “To Abraham were the promises made and to his seed. He saith not: And to his seeds, as of many, but as of one; and to thy seed, which is Christ.” (Gal. 3:16)

The Messiah will come from the tribe of Juda and the line of David

It was prophesied during the Old Testament era that this seed, the Messiah, will come from the tribe of Juda and the line of David:

“And I will bring forth a seed out of Jacob and out of Juda a possessor of my mountains.” (Isa. 65:9)

“And thou, Bethlehem Ephrata art a little one among the thousands of Juda; out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be the ruler in Israel, and his going forth is from the beginning, from the days of eternity.” (Mich. 5:2)

David is Jesse’s son and thus the Messiah will come from the line of Jesse and then of David:

Isaias: “And there shall come forth a rod out of the root of Jesse and a flower shall rise up out of his root. And the spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him... He shall not judge according to the sight of the eyes nor reprove according to the hearing of the ears, but he shall judge the poor with justice and shall reprove with equity for the meek of the earth. And he shall strike the earth with the rod of his mouth; and with the breath of his lips, he shall slay the wicked... In that day the root of Jesse, who standeth for an ensign of the people, him the Gentiles shall beseech, and his sepulchre shall be glorious.” (Isa. 11:1-4, 10)

St. Paul, on its fulfillment: “And again Isaias saith: There shall be a root of Jesse, and he that shall rise up to rule the Gentiles; in him the Gentiles shall hope.” (Rom. 15:12) “And when he had removed him, he raised them up David to be king, to whom giving testimony, he said: I have found David, the son of Jesse, a man according to my own heart, who shall do all my wills. Of this man’s seed God according to his promise, hath raised up to Israel a Saviour, Jesus.” (Acts 13:22-23)

Jesus, son of Sirach: “And a covenant to David the king, the son of Jesse, of the tribe of Juda, an inheritance to him and to his seed [the Messias], that he might give wisdom into our heart to judge his people in justice, that their good things might not be abolished, and he made their glory in their nation everlasting. (Eccus. 45:31)

Jesus, son of Sirach: “He appointed to David his servant to raise up of him a most mighty king [the Messias], and sitting on the throne of glory for ever.” (Eccus. 24:34)

King David: “There will I bring forth a horn [the Messias] to David: I have prepared a lamp for my anointed [the Christ].” (Ps. 131:17)

Because the Messiah was to come from the line of David, he will be the son of David and many times was referred to as David. For example, in the days of the Prophets Ezechiel and Osee, David was dead and thus the King David they mention in the following passages is the Messiah, who will also be a king and the King of kings, the ultimate King David:

“And I will set up one shepherd over them [the Messias], and he shall feed them, even my servant David, he shall feed them, and he shall be their shepherd.” (Ez. 34:23)

“For the children of Israel shall sit many days without king and without prince and without sacrifice and without altar and without ephod and without theraphim. And after this the children of Israel shall return and shall seek the Lord their God and David their king, and they shall fear the Lord and his goodness in the last days.” (Osee 3:4-5)

As recorded in Psalm 109, King David prophesied that the Messiah would be his son and thus come from the line of David, and that the Messiah will also be his God” (See in this article “King David also prophesied the coming and superiority ” p. 1118.)

Indeed, the Messiah, Jesus Christ, was from the tribe of Juda and line of David. His human nature was naturally from the line of David from his mother, the Blessed Virgin Mary, and legally from the line of David from his foster father, St. Joseph. St. Matthew traces Joseph’s natural line and St. Luke traces his legal line, as St. Joseph also had two fathers, a natural father and a legal father:

Joseph’s Natural Line: “The book of the generation of Jesus Christ, the son of David, the son of Abraham... And Obed begot Jesse. And Jesse begot David the king... And Jacob begot Joseph the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus, who is called Christ.” (Mt. 1:1-16)

Joseph’s Legal Line: “And Jesus himself was beginning about the age of thirty years; being (as it was supposed) the son of Joseph, who was of Heli, who was of Mathat... who was of Nathan, who was of David, Who was of Jesse, who was of Obed... who was of Judas, who was of Jacob, who was of Isaac, who was of Abraham... who was of Seth, who was of Adam, who was of God.” (Lk. 3:23-38)

(For more information, see RJMI article Jesus’ Lineage Chart and RJMI video or audio Mary Ever Virgin and the Lineage of Jesus.)

And the Blessed Virgin Mary was also from the tribe of Juda and line of David. It was the general rule for the Israelites to marry within their own tribe. Hence, by this law, the Blessed Virgin Mary would have at least been from the tribe of Juda; that is, if this general law was followed. And, more importantly, it is certain that Mary was from the tribe of Juda and line of David because it was prophesied that the human seed of the Messiah will come from the tribe of Juda and line of David, as you have just read. And this seed refers to the natural line; and thus the Blessed Virgin Mary had to be from the tribe of Juda and line of David, as, indeed, the Angel Gabriel pronounced:

“Fear not, Mary, for thou hast found grace with God. Behold thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and shalt bring forth a son; and thou shalt call his name Jesus. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the most High; and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of David his father; and he shall reign in the house of Jacob for ever.” (Lk. 1:30-32)

St. Elizabeth’s lineage

St. Elizabeth was related to the Blessed Virgin Mary:

The Angel Gabriel said to Mary, “Behold thy kinswoman Elizabeth, she also hath conceived a son in her old age; and this is the sixth month with her that is called barren:” (Lk. 1:36)

And St. Elizabeth was from the tribe of Levi:

“There was in the days of Herod, the king of Judea, a certain priest named Zachary of the course of Abia; and his wife was of the daughters of Aaron, and her name Elizabeth.” (Lk. 1:5)

The question is “How is it, then, that the Blessed Virgin Mary is not also of the tribe of Levi? The answer is that the tribes of Israel, as an exception to the general rule, intermarried among other tribes. For example, Aaron, a Levite and first High Priest, married a woman from the tribe of Juda:

“And Aaron took to wife Elizabeth the daughter of Aminadab, sister of Nahason, who bore him Nadab, and Abiu, and Eleazar, and Ithamar. (Ex. 6:23)

“And there shall be with you the princes of the tribes, and of the houses in their kindreds, Whose names are these: Of Ruben, Elisur the son of Sedeur... Of Juda, Nahasson the son of Aminadab.” (Num. 1:4-5, 7)

Therefore, there are two ways that the Blessed Virgin Mary could be of the tribe of Juda even though her kinswoman, St. Elizabeth, is of the tribe of Levi. The first is the most probable:

- St. Elizabeth’s father was of the tribe of Levi and her mother was of tribe of Juda. Because a person’s race and line comes from the father and not the mother, St. Elizabeth was of the tribe of Levi. But her mother was nevertheless from the tribe of Juda. Hence the brother of the mother of St. Elizabeth was of the tribe of Juda. And Mary comes from his line, either directly or remotely. If directly, then the brother of the mother of St. Elizabeth was the father of the Blessed Virgin Mary, St. Joachim, who married the Good St. Anne, who gave birth to the Blessed Virgin Mary.
- St. Elizabeth’s father and mother were of the tribe of Levi. St. Anne was the sister of St. Elizabeth’s father or mother and thus was of the tribe of Levi. But St. Anne married a man from the tribe of Juda, St. Joachim, and gave birth to Mary. Hence Mary was of the tribe of Juda.

The reason this second opinion is less probable, is because it is more probable that the Messiah will be born of a woman who is of the tribe of Juda and also have a human father (foster father) who is of the tribe of Juda. And hence there is no mixed blood in Messiah.

The Messiah will be born in Bethlehem and will be not only a man but also God

Micheas prophesied that the Messiah will be born in Bethlehem and that he will be not only a man but also God:

“AND THOU, BETHLEHEM Ephrata art a little one among the thousands of Juda; out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be the ruler in Israel, and his going forth is from the beginning, from the days of eternity.” (Mich. 5:2)

He is born in Bethlehem and thus will be man but “his going forth is from the beginning, from the days of eternity” and thus he is also God.

Jesus hinted to the Pharisees that he fulfilled Micheas’ prophecy and that he is God:

“They [the Pharisees] said therefore to him: Who art thou? Jesus said to them: The beginning who also speak unto you.” (Jn. 8:25)

God inspired Caesar Augustus to decree a census in which the Jews had to return to their place of birth to be enrolled. This caused Joseph and Mary to leave Nazareth and go to Bethlehem, the place of Joseph's birth, in which their child Jesus was born in fulfillment of Micheas' prophecy:

"And it came to pass, that in those days there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that the whole world should be enrolled. This enrolling was first made by Cyrinus, the governor of Syria. And all went to be enrolled, every one into his own city. And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth into Judea, to the city of David, which is called Bethlehem: because he was of the house and family of David, To be enrolled with Mary his espoused wife, who was with child. And it came to pass, that when they were there, her days were accomplished, that she should be delivered. And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him up in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn." (Lk. 2:1-7)

The Messiah is the Word who created the world and became man

St. John says the Messiah was made flesh and thus is man, but he also says the Messiah is from the beginning and is God—the Word from eternity who created the world and become man by taking on a human nature:

"In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by him: and without him was made nothing that was made... AND THE WORD WAS MADE FLESH, and dwelt among us, and we saw his glory, the glory as it were of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth... He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not." (Jn. 1:1-3, 14, 10)

The Messiah will come into the second temple and will be not only a man but also God

Jeremias prophesied that Messiah (the bud of justice from the line of David) will come into the second temple. And he also says that he is "The Lord our just one" and thus is also God:

"And I will bring back the captivity of Juda and the captivity of Jerusalem, and I will build them as from the beginning [which includes the Second Temple]... In those days and at that time, I will make the bud of justice to spring forth unto David, and he shall do judgment and justice in the earth. In those days shall Juda be saved and Jerusalem shall dwell securely, and this is the name that they shall call him: The Lord our just one." (Jer. 33:7, 15-16)

Malachias also prophesied that the Messiah will be not only a man but also God, and he will come into the second temple:

"Behold I send my messenger [John the Baptist], and he shall prepare the way before my face. And presently the Lord [Jesus Christ] whom you seek, and the messenger of the testament whom you desire, shall come to his temple [the second temple]. Behold he cometh, saith the Lord of hosts." (Mala. 3:1)

Aggeus also prophesied that the Messiah (the desired of all nations) will come into the second temple, and thus the second temple will be more glorious than the first temple because God the Messiah will come into it, even though the second temple was less glorious physically than the first temple:

"Who is left among you that saw this house in its first glory? And how do you see it now? Is it not in comparison to that as nothing in your eyes? Yet now take courage... For thus saith the Lord of hosts: Yet one little while and I will move the heaven and the earth and the sea and the dry land. And I will move all nations. AND THE DESIRED OF ALL NATIONS SHALL COME, and I will fill this house [the second temple] with glory, saith the Lord of hosts... Great shall be the glory of this last house more than of the first, saith the Lord of hosts." (Agge. 2:4-5, 7-8. 10)

Catholic Commentary of Agge. 2:10: "Great shall be the glory of this house: The ancients who had seen the former [the First Temple] wept when that of Zorobabel was founded [the Second Temple], confessing its inferiority both in size and elegance. It was only 60 cubits high and broad, while the former was 120, built of polished stone and covered with cedar. Zorobabel had rough stones (1 Esd. 5:8), (1 Esd. 6:3), (2 Par. 3:4), and (3 Ki. 6:7). As for the same temple [the second temple], enlarged and adorned by Herod, it continued not long in that state; and its chief glory consisted of our Saviour's presence, when he was received in the arms of Simeon, and often preached there."

This was fulfilled, then, when the infant Jesus (the Messiah who is God and Man) was presented in the second temple forty days after he was born as man:

"And after eight days were accomplished, that the child should be circumcised, his name was called JESUS, which was called by the angel, before he was conceived in the womb. And after the days of her purification, according to the law of Moses, were accomplished, they carried him to Jerusalem, to present him to the Lord; as it is written in the law of the Lord: Every male opening the womb shall be called holy to the Lord. And to offer a sacrifice, according as it is written in the law of the Lord, a pair of turtledoves, or two young pigeons:" (Lk. 2:21-24)

Ezechiel also prophesied that the Messiah will come into the second temple and that he will be not only man but also God and tells us that he will enter in by the east gate:

“And he brought me to the gate that looked towards the east. And behold the glory of the God of Israel came in by the way of the east... And the majesty of the Lord went into the [second] temple by the way of the gate that looked to the east. And the spirit lifted me up and brought me into the inner court: and behold the house was filled with the glory of the Lord... “And the name of the city [Jerusalem] from that day [shall be called], The Lord is there.” (Ez. 43:1-5; 48:35)

Wikipedia, Golden Gate (Jerusalem): “The Golden Gate or Gate of Mercy...is the only eastern gate of the Temple Mount, and one of only two Gates of the Old City of Jerusalem that used to offer access into the city from the East side. In Jewish tradition the Messiah will enter Jerusalem through this gate. Christians and Muslims generally believe that this was the gate through which Jesus entered Jerusalem.”

The specifications of the second temple as given to Ezechiel by God were not fulfilled and thus it was less physically glorious than it should have been.<sup>2916</sup>

The Messiah will be adored by Gentile kings and wise men

King David and the Prophet Isaias prophesied that the Messiah will be adored by Gentile kings and wise men:

“The kings of Tharsis and the islands shall offer presents: the kings of the Arabians and of Saba shall bring gifts: And all kings of the earth shall adore him: all nations shall serve him.” (Ps. 71:10-11)

“The multitude of camels shall cover thee, the dromedaries of Madian and Ephraim; all they from Saba shall come bringing gold and frankincense and shewing forth praise to the Lord.” (Isa. 60:6)

The first gentiles to adore the Messiah were the wise men who came from the East to adore the infant Jesus:

“When Jesus therefore was born in Bethlehem of Juda, in the days of king Herod, behold, there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem. Saying, Where is he that is born king of the Jews? For we have seen his star in the east, and are come to adore him. And king Herod hearing this, was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him. And assembling together all the chief priests and the scribes of the people, he inquired of them where Christ should be born. But they said to him: In Bethlehem of Juda. For so it is written by the prophet: And thou Bethlehem the land of Juda art not the least among the princes of Juda: for out of thee shall come forth the captain that shall rule my people Israel. Then Herod, privately calling the wise men, learned diligently of them the time of the star which appeared to them; And sending them into Bethlehem, said: Go and diligently inquire after the child, and when you have found him, bring me word again, that I also may come and adore him. Who having heard the king, went their way; and behold the star which they had seen in the east, went before them, until it came and stood over where the child was. And seeing the star they rejoiced with exceeding great joy. And entering into the house, they found the child with Mary his mother, and falling down they adored him; and opening their treasures, they offered him gifts: gold, frankincense, and myrrh.” (Mt. 2:1-11)

After the resurrection of Christ and when the gospel was preached to the world, many Gentile kings also adored the Messiah, Jesus Christ:

“Thus saith the Lord the redeemer of Israel, his Holy One, to the soul that is despised, to the nation that is abhorred, to the servant of rulers: Kings shall see and princes shall rise up and adore for the Lord’s sake because he is faithful, and for the Holy One of Israel who hath chosen thee... Behold these shall come from afar, and behold these from the north and from the sea, and these from the south country.” (Isa. 49:7, 12)

And eventually, after the second coming when Jesus creates a new earth, all the kings of the earth will adore him because they will all be of the elect and saved.

“And I saw no temple therein [the New Jerusalem on the new earth]. For the Lord God Almighty is the temple thereof, and the Lamb. And the city hath no need of the sun, nor of the moon, to shine in it. For the glory of God hath enlightened it, and the Lamb is the lamp thereof. And the nations shall walk in the light of it: and the kings of the earth shall bring their glory and honour into it.” (Apoc. 21:22-24)

The Messiah’s birth incites Herod to murder the Holy Innocents

The birth of the Messiah incited Herod, who was jealous of the Messiah, to attempt to murder Jesus by murdering all the infants two years and under who were in Bethlehem:

“Then Herod perceiving that he was deluded by the wise men was exceeding angry and sending killed all the men children that were in Bethlehem and in all the borders thereof, from two years old and under, according to the time which he had diligently inquired of the wise men. Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Jeremias the prophet, saying: A voice in Rama was heard, lamentation and great mourning; Rachel bewailing her children, and would not be comforted, because they are not.” (Mt. 2:16-18)

Hence this was prophesied by Jeremias:

“Thus saith the Lord: A voice was heard on high of lamentation, of mourning and weeping, of Rachel weeping for her children and refusing to be comforted for them because they are not.” (Jer. 31:15)

Catholic Commentary on Mt. 2:18. “A voice was heard in Rama: Rachel, who was buried at Bethlehem (Gen. 35:19) is represented weeping (as it were in the person of those desolate mothers) the murder and loss of so many children; and Rama being a city not far from Bethlehem in the tribe of Benjamin built on a high place, it is said that the cries and lamentations of these children and their mothers reached even to Rama.”

The Messiah will flee to Egypt and come out of Egypt

The Holy Family (Jesus, Mary, and Joseph) fled from Bethlehem to Egypt to escape Herod’s attempt to murder the infant Jesus. Upon Herod’s death, they left Egypt and returned to Israel:

“And after they were departed, behold an angel of the Lord appeared in sleep to Joseph, saying: Arise and take the child and his mother and fly into Egypt, and be there until I shall tell thee. For it will come to pass that Herod will seek the child to destroy him. Who arose and took the child and his mother by night and retired into Egypt, and he was there until the death of Herod; That it might be fulfilled which the Lord spoke by the prophet, saying: Out of Egypt have I called my son.” (Mt. 2:13-15)

That prophet was Osee:

“As the morning passeth, so hath the king of Israel passed away. Because Israel was a child, and I loved him; and I called my son out of Egypt.” (Osee 11:1)

This prophecy was fulfilled when the Holy Family came out of Egypt and into Israel:

“But when Herod was dead, behold an angel of the Lord appeared in sleep to Joseph in Egypt, saying: Arise, and take the child and his mother and go into the land of Israel. For they are dead that sought the life of the child. Who arose, and took the child and his mother, and came into the land of Israel.” (Mt. 2:19-21)

The Messiah will be a light to Zabulon and Nephtali

Isaias prophesied that the Messiah will be a light to Zabulon and Nephtali:

“At the first time the land of Zabulon and the land of Nephtali was lightly touched: and at the last the way of the sea beyond the Jordan of the Galilee of the Gentiles was heavily loaded. The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light; to them that dwelt in the region of the shadow of death, light is risen.” (Isa. 9:1-2)

This was fulfilled when the Messiah, Jesus, preached in Capharnaum, which is in the borders of Zabulon and Nephtali:

“And leaving the city Nazareth, he came and dwelt in Capharnaum on the sea coast, in the borders of Zabulon and of Nephtali; That it might be fulfilled which was said by Isaias the prophet: Land of Zabulon and land of Nephtali, the way of the sea beyond the Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles. The people that sat in darkness hath seen great light; and to them that sat in the region of the shadow of death, light is sprung up. From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say: Do penance, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.” (Mt. 4:13-17)

The Messiah will do many miracles and be not only a man but also God

Isaias prophesied that the Messiah will do many miracles and will be not only a man but also God.

“The spirit of the Lord is upon me [Jesus the Messiah], because the Lord hath anointed me [Christ the anointed one]; he hath sent me to preach to the meek, to heal the contrite of heart, and to preach a release to the captives, and deliverance to them that are shut up.” (Isa. 61:1)

“Say to the fainthearted: Take courage and fear not. Behold your God will bring the revenge of recompense: God himself will come and will save you. Then shall the eyes of the blind be opened and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped. Then shall the lame man leap as a hart and the tongue of the dumb shall be free.” (Isa. 35:4-6)

This was fulfilled when Jesus performed many miracles. For example,

“Now when John [the Baptist] had heard in prison the works of Christ, sending two of his disciples, he said to him: Art thou he that art to come or look we for another? And Jesus making answer said to them: Go and relate to John what you have heard and seen. The blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead rise again, the poor have the gospel preached to them.” (Mt. 11:2-5)

The Messiah will come into Jerusalem sitting upon an ass

Zacharias prophesied that the Messiah will come into Jerusalem on an ass and be hailed as the king, the just one, and the savior:

“Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Sion, shout for joy, O daughter of Jerusalem, BEHOLD THY KING will come to thee, the just and saviour; he is poor and riding upon an ass, upon a colt, the foal of an ass.” (Zach. 9:9)

This was fulfilled on Palm Day:

“[Jesus] saying to them [the apostles]: Go ye into the village that is over against you and immediately you shall find an ass tied, and a colt with her. Loose them and bring them to me. And if any man shall say anything to you, say ye that the Lord hath need of them, and forthwith he will let them go. Now all this was done that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, saying: Tell ye the daughter of Sion: Behold thy king cometh to thee, meek and sitting upon an ass, and a colt the foal of her that is used to the yoke. And the disciples going did as Jesus commanded them. And they brought the ass and the colt and laid their garments upon them and made him sit thereon. And a very great multitude spread their garments in the way and others cut boughs from the trees and strewed them in the way: And the multitudes that went before and that followed, cried, saying: Hosanna to the son of David. Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord. Hosanna in the highest.” (Mt. 21:2-9)

The Messiah will be betrayed by one of his own and for thirty pieces of silver

Zacharias prophesied that Jesus would be betrayed for thirty pieces of silver and that the money would be cast into the house of the Lord, which was used to buy the Potter’s Field:

“And I said to them: If it be good in your eyes, bring hither my wages; and if not, be quiet. And they weighed for my wages thirty pieces of silver. And the Lord said to me: Cast it to the potter, a handsome price that I was prized at by them. And I took the thirty pieces of silver, and I cast them into the house of the Lord to the potter.” (Zach. 11:12-13)

Catholic Commentary on Zac. 11:13: “To the potter: Some texts have ‘statuary’ but the Hebrew word signifies also a potter, and this seems to be the true meaning. This became true when Judas betrayed Christ for thirty pieces of silver and when, after he regretted his betrayal, cast the silver into the temple in which it was used to purchase the Potter’s Field.

Judas Iscariot, the traitor, fulfilled this prophecy:

“Then went one of the twelve, who was called Judas Iscariot, to the chief priests, and said to them: What will you give me, and I will deliver him unto you? But they appointed him thirty pieces of silver. And from thenceforth he sought opportunity to betray him.” (Mt. 26:14-16)

“Then Judas who betrayed him, seeing that he [Jesus] was condemned, repenting himself, brought back the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and ancients, saying: I have sinned in betraying innocent blood. But they said: What is that to us? Look thou to it. And casting down the pieces of silver in the temple, he departed and went and hanged himself with an halter. But the chief priests having taken the pieces of silver, said: It is not lawful to put them into the corbona because it is the price of blood. And after they had consulted together, they bought with them the potter’s field to be a burying place for strangers. For this cause that field was called Haceldama; that is, The Field of Blood, even to this day. Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by the prophet, saying: And they took the thirty pieces of silver, the price of him that was prized whom they prized of the children of Israel. And they gave them unto the potter’s field, as the Lord appointed to me.” (Mt. 27:3-10)

King David prophesied that one of Jesus’ apostles, a bishop, would betray Jesus and be replaced by another:

“Let their habitation be made desolate: and let there be none to dwell in their tabernacles. Because they have persecuted him whom thou hast smitten; and they have added to the grief of my wounds.” (Ps. 68:26-27)

“O God, be not thou silent in my praise, for the mouth of the wicked and the mouth of the deceitful man is opened against me... Set thou the sinner over him, and may the devil stand at his right hand. When he is judged, may he go out condemned; and may his prayer be turned to sin. May his days be few, and his bishopric let another take.” (Ps. 108:2-8)

Judas Iscariot was the traitor bishop who was replaced by Mathias:

“Men, brethren, the scripture must needs be fulfilled, which the Holy Spirit spoke before by the mouth of David concerning Judas who was the leader of them that apprehended Jesus, who was numbered with us and had obtained part of this ministry. And he indeed hath possessed a field of the reward of iniquity; and being hanged, burst asunder in the midst, and all his bowels gushed out. And it became known to all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so that the same field was called in their tongue, Haceldama, that is to say, The Field of Blood. For it is written in the book of Psalms (68 and 108): Let their habitation become desolate, and let there be none to dwell therein. And his bishopric let another take. Wherefore of these men who have companied with us all the time that the Lord Jesus came in and went out among us, beginning from the baptism of John, until the day wherein he was taken up from us, one of these must be made a witness with us of his resurrection. And they appointed two, Joseph, called Barsabas, who was surnamed Justus, and Matthias. And praying, they said: Thou, Lord, who knowest the hearts of all men, shew whether of these two thou hast chosen to take the place of this ministry and apostleship from which Judas hath by transgression fallen that he might go to his own place. And they gave them lots, and the lot fell upon Matthias, and he was numbered with the eleven apostles.” (Acts 1:16-26)

The Messiah will be sacrificed and slain to redeem men

The animal sacrifices offered to the one true God during the Old Testament era were figures of the ultimate sacrifice of Jesus Christ, the Messiah, the spotless lamb, whose sacrifice would not only forgive sins but also remit them, as the animal sacrifices only forgave and covered sins but did not remit and abolish them.<sup>2917</sup> The Messiah, then, would be the ultimate redeemer!

Since the fall of Adam and Eve, animal sacrifices were offered to God to forgive sins, to thank God, to petition God for a favor, or to be protected by God. Because death came into the world by sin, something had to be sacrificed, shed its blood and die, to forgive sins. During the Old Testament era that something was animals:

Moses: "If any one shall sin... he shall offer for his offence a ram without blemish... delivering it to the priest, who shall pray for him, offering the ram, and it shall be forgiven him." (Lev. 5:15-16)

St. Paul says, "And almost all things, according to the law are cleansed with blood: and without shedding of blood there is no forgiveness." (Heb. 9:22)

Abrahams' offering up his son Isaac as a sacrifice to God was a figure of God the Father offering up God the Son. This proved Abraham's total faithfulness to God in that he did not put any creature above God, not even his beloved son. But in this case, God held the hand of Abraham and spared his son and provided an animal to be sacrificed instead of his son:

"After these things, God tried Abraham, and said to him: Abraham, Abraham. And he answered: Here I am. He said to him: Take thy beloved son Isaac, whom thou lovest, and go into the land of vision and there thou shalt offer him for an holocaust upon one of the mountains which I will shew thee... And they came to the place which God had shewn him, where he built an altar and laid the wood in order upon it. And when he had bound Isaac his son, he laid him on the altar upon the pile of wood. And he put forth his hand and took the sword to sacrifice his son. And behold an angel of the Lord from heaven called to him, saying: Abraham, Abraham. And he answered: Here I am. And he said to him: Lay not thy hand upon the boy, neither do thou any thing to him. Now I know that thou fearest God and hast not spared thy beloved son for my sake. And Abraham lifted up his eyes and saw behind his back a ram amongst the briers sticking fast by the horns, which he took and offered for a holocaust instead of his son." (Gen. 22:1-2. 9-13)

The original Paschal sacrifice was a figure of Christ in the form of a spotless lamb sacrificed to God whose blood was put on the door posts of the faithful. This protected them from the plague which God sent upon Egypt in which the first born of all the unbelievers were killed. When God's avenging angels came to the door of the faithful and saw the blood, they passed over the house:

"And the Lord said to Moses and Aaron in the land of Egypt: This month shall be to you the beginning of months: it shall be the first in the months of the year. Speak ye to the whole assembly of the children of Israel, and say to them: On the tenth day of this month let every man take a lamb by their families and houses... And it shall be a lamb without blemish, a male, ...And the whole multitude of the children of Israel shall sacrifice it in the evening. And they shall take of the blood thereof, and put it upon both the side posts and on the upper door posts of the houses wherein they shall eat it... for it is the Phase (that is the Passage) of the Lord. And I will pass through the land of Egypt that night and will kill every firstborn in the land of Egypt both man and beast; and against all the gods of Egypt, I will execute judgments, I am the Lord. And the blood shall be unto you for a sign in the houses where you shall be; and I shall see the blood and shall pass over you and the plague shall not be upon you to destroy you, when I shall strike the land of Egypt." (Ex. 12:1-13)

In memory of God's saving the life of Isaac by a sacrifice of an animal and saving the first born of his chosen people by the sacrifice of the Paschal Lamb, God ordained that the life of the first born males of the Israelites will be saved by offering up an animal sacrifice instead. Hence if they did not offer up the sacrifice, the first born males must be offered to God and thus be killed:

"And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying: Sanctify unto me every firstborn that openeth the womb among the children of Israel, as well of men as of beasts, for they are all mine." (Ex. 13:1-2)

"I have taken them instead of the firstborn that open every womb in Israel, For all the firstborn of the children of Israel, both of men and of beasts, are mine. From the day that I slew every firstborn in the land of Egypt, have I sanctified them to myself." (Num. 8:16-17)

"All of the male kind that openeth the womb shall be mine. Of all beasts, both of oxen and of sheep, it shall be mine. The firstling of an ass thou shalt redeem with a sheep: but if thou wilt not give a price for it, it shall be slain. The firstborn of thy sons thou shalt redeem, neither shalt thou appear before me empty." (Ex. 34:19-20)

God ordained this so that all men would know that they are worthy of death and of God's mercy in redeeming them, first by animal sacrifices during the Old Testament era and then by the ultimate and final sacrifice, the sacrificial death of the Messiah, during the New Covenant era.

While the blood of the Paschal lamb granted physical protection to the faithful and the blood of the other animal sacrifices forgave their sins, that blood could not remit sins and thus could not give men total spiritual freedom from the Devil. That is why the elect who died during the Old Testament era went down and not up, went down to the Limbo of the Fathers (aka Abraham's Bosom), which was in the highest level of the underworld, and could not go up to heaven. Only the sacrificial blood of the ultimate sacrifice, which fulfilled and ended all of the animals sacrifices, could do that. And that was the sacrificial blood of the Messiah, Jesus Christ, which did that by not only making it possible for sins to be forgiven, as they were during the Old Testament era, but now also remitted and thus abolished, which thus enabled the elect to go up and not down, to go up to heaven.

Hence the Bible teaches that sins are remitted only by Christ's sacrificial death:

"Jesus said that his blood "shall be shed for many unto remission of sins." (Mt. 26:26-28)

St. Paul said that "In...[Jesus] we have redemption through his blood, the remission of sins." (Col. 1:14)

Hence not until Jesus' sacrificial death could sins be remitted for those who were guilty of original sin and voluntary sins. This was the primary purpose of Jesus' birth:

"She [the Blessed Virgin Mary] shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus. For he shall save his people from their sins." (Mt. 1:21)

St. John the Baptist teaches that it is Christ who takes away (remits) the sin of the world:

"Behold the Lamb of God. Behold him who taketh away the sin of the world." (Jn. 1:29)

And the faithful of the Old Testament era knew this and prophesied and looked forward to the day when the Messiah would come and be sacrificed for the remission of their sins and thus abolish their sins and open heaven to them. What follows is a few of many of these prophecies.

Isaiah prophesied that the Messiah will suffer and die for our sins:

"Who hath believed our report? And to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed? And he shall grow up as a tender plant before him and as a root out of a thirsty ground. There is no beauty in him nor comeliness. And we have seen him, and there was no sightliness that we should be desirous of him: Despised, and the most abject of men, a man of sorrows, and acquainted with infirmity. And his look was as it were hidden and despised, whereupon we esteemed him not. Surely he hath borne our infirmities and carried our sorrows, and we have thought him as it were a leper and as one struck by God and afflicted. But he was wounded for our iniquities, he was bruised for our sins, the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and by his bruises we are healed. All we like sheep have gone astray, every one hath turned aside into his own way, and the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all. He was offered because it was his own will, and he opened not his mouth. He shall be led as a sheep to the slaughter and shall be dumb as a lamb before his shearer, and he shall not open his mouth. He was taken away from distress and from judgment. Who shall declare his generation? because he is cut off out of the land of the living; for the wickedness of my people, have I struck him. And he shall give the ungodly for his burial and the rich for his death because he hath done no iniquity, neither was there deceit in his mouth. And the Lord was pleased to bruise him in infirmity; if he shall lay down his life for sin, he shall see a long lived seed and the will of the Lord shall be prosperous in his hand. Because his soul hath laboured, he shall see and be filled; by his knowledge shall this my just servant justify many, and he shall bear their iniquities. Therefore will I distribute to him very many, and he shall divide the spoils of the strong because he hath delivered his soul unto death and was reputed with the wicked; and he hath borne the sins of many and hath prayed for the transgressors." (Isa. 53:1-12)

Daniel prophesied the same and more in his famous Seventy-Weeks Prophecy, as recorded in the Book of Daniel, chapter 9, Verses 21 to 27:

"As I was yet speaking in prayer, behold the man Gabriel, whom I had seen in the vision at the beginning, flying swiftly touched me at the time of the evening sacrifice. And he instructed me, and spoke to me, and said: O Daniel, I am now come forth to teach thee, and that thou mightest understand. From the beginning of thy prayers the word came forth, and I am come to shew it to thee, because thou art a man of desires; therefore do thou mark the word, and understand the vision. Seventy weeks are shortened upon thy people and upon thy holy city that transgression may be finished, and sin may have an end, and iniquity may be abolished, and everlasting justice may be brought, and vision and prophecy may be fulfilled, and the Holy of holies may be anointed. Know thou therefore, and take notice: that from the going forth of the word, to build up Jerusalem again, unto Christ the prince, there shall be seven weeks, and sixty-two weeks: and the street shall be built again, and the walls in straitness of times. And after sixty-two weeks Christ shall be slain, and the people that shall deny him shall not be his. And a people with their leader that shall come, shall destroy the city and the sanctuary, and the end thereof shall be waste; and after the end of the war the appointed desolation. And he shall confirm the covenant with many in one week, and in the half of the week the victim and the sacrifice shall fail, and there shall be in the temple the abomination of desolation: and the desolation shall continue even to the consummation, and to the end." (Dan. 9:21-27)

These six power-packed verses tell us that the person of the prophecy is God, Man, and Messiah. It says that

He will finish transgressions;

- He will end sin;

- He will abolish iniquity;
- He will bring everlasting justice;
- He will fulfill vision and prophecy;
- He will be called the Holy of holies and thus is God;
- He will get anointed and thus is a man under the law;
- He will be called “Christ the prince” and hence is the King of kings;
- He will be slain;
- He will be denied by unfaithful Jews;
- His death by evil Jews causes the destruction of the Second Temple;
- He will be slain three and one half years into his public ministry;
- He will end the Old Covenant sacrifices.

All of these things can only be literally applied to Jesus Christ, the one and only Messiah. Jesus has already fulfilled most of these prophecies. The rest he will fulfill during his second coming, such as putting an end to all transgressions, all sins, and all iniquities upon the whole face of the earth and thus bring everlasting justice upon the whole face of the new earth. Hence the person of Daniel’s Seventy-Weeks Prophecy is Jesus Christ, who is God, Man, and Messiah. And these six power-packed verses also give the exact time that the Messiah will be anointed and thus begin his public ministry to the exact time of his death 3½ years later. It tells us that from the beginning of the Seventy-Weeks Prophecy to Jesus Christ’s baptism by St. John the Baptist is 483 years. And it tells us that from the time of Christ’s baptism to his death on the holy Cross is 3½ years. (See RJMI video, audio, and book, Daniel’s Seventy-Weeks Prophecy.)

When the prophecies regarding the first coming of the Messiah were fulfilled, Jesus spoke of it, and faithful Jews acknowledged it. For example,

“She [the Blessed Virgin Mary] shall bring forth a son: and thou shalt call his name Jesus. For he shall save his people from their sins.” (Mt. 1:21)

“And thou, child [St. John the Baptist], shalt be called the prophet of the Highest: for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare his ways: To give knowledge of salvation to his people unto the remission of their sins.” (Lk. 1:76-77)

St. John the Baptist said, “Behold the Lamb of God. Behold him who taketh away the sin of the world.” (Jn. 1:29)

“He took our infirmities and bore our diseases.” (Mt. 8:17)

Jesus said that his blood “shall be shed for many unto remission of sins.” (Mt. 26:26-28)

St. Paul said, “In...[Jesus] we have redemption through his blood, the remission of sins.” (Col. 1:14)

St. Peter said, “Who his own self bore our sins in his body upon the tree that we, being dead to sins should live to justice: by whose stripes you were healed.” (1 Pt. 2:24) “Christ...died once for our sins.” (1 Pt. 3:18)

Zachary at the birth of his son St. John the Baptist prophesied that his son would be the forerunner and announcer of the Messiah, Jesus Christ. It is known as the Canticle of Zachary:

“And Zachary his father was filled with the Holy Spirit; and he prophesied, saying: Blessed be the Lord God of Israel; because he hath visited and wrought the redemption of his people: And hath raised up an horn of salvation to us, in the house of David his servant: As he spoke by the mouth of his holy prophets, who are from the beginning: Salvation from our enemies, and from the hand of all that hate us: To perform mercy to our fathers, and to remember his holy testament, The oath, which he swore to Abraham our father, that he would grant to us, That being delivered from the hand of our enemies, we may serve him without fear, In holiness and justice before him, all our days. And thou, child, shalt be called the prophet of the Highest: for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare his ways: To give knowledge of salvation to his people, unto the remission of their sins: Through the bowels of the mercy of our God, in which the Orient from on high hath visited us: To enlighten them that sit in darkness, and in the shadow of death: to direct our feet into the way of peace.” (Lk. 1:67-79)

Kings David and Solomon also prophesied Christ’s passion and death:

King David, Psalm 21:

King David: “2 My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken me and art far from my help at the words of my cry? 3 O my God, I shall cry by day and thou wilt not hear; and by night, and it shall not be reputed as folly in me.”

New Testament: “And going a little further, he fell upon his face, praying, and saying: My Father, if it be possible, let this chalice pass from me. Nevertheless not as I will, but as thou wilt.” (Mt. 26:39)

New Testament: “And about the ninth hour Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying: Eli, Eli, lamma sabacthani? That is, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?” (Mt. 27:46)

King David: “7. I am a worm and no man, the reproach of men and the outcast of the people. 8 All they that saw me have laughed me to scorn; they have spoken with the lips and wagged the head. 9 He hoped in the Lord, let him deliver him; let him save him seeing he delighteth in him.”

New Testament: “As it is written of the Son of man that he must suffer many things and be despised.” (Mk. 9:11) And see (Mt. 27:39-43)

King David: “14 They have opened their mouths against me, as a lion ravening and roaring. 15 I am poured out like water, and all my bones are scattered. My heart is become like wax melting in the midst of my bowels. 16 My strength is dried up like a potsherd, and my tongue hath cleaved to my jaws; and thou hast brought me down into the dust of death.”

New Testament: “Afterwards, Jesus knowing that all things were now accomplished, that the scripture might be fulfilled, said: I thirst. Now there was a vessel set there full of vinegar. And they, putting a sponge full of vinegar about hyssop, put it to his mouth. Jesus therefore, when he had taken the vinegar, said: It is consummated. And bowing his head, he gave up the spirit.” (Jn. 19:28-30)

King David: “17 For many dogs have encompassed me; the council of the malignant hath besieged me. They have dug my hands and feet.”

New Testament: “And after they had mocked him, they took off the cloak from him, and put on him his own garments, and led him away to crucify him.” (Mt. 27:31)

New Testament: “The other disciples therefore said to him: We have seen the Lord. But he said to them: Except I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the place of the nails, and put my hand into his side, I will not believe.” (Jn. 20:25)

King David: “18 They have numbered all my bones. And they have looked and stared upon me. 19 They parted my garments amongst them, and upon my vesture they cast lots.”

New Testament: “And after they had crucified him, they divided his garments, casting lots, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, saying: ‘They divided my garments among them; and upon my vesture they cast lots.’” (Mt. 27:35)

King Solomon, Wisdom 2

King Solomon: “12 Let us therefore lie in wait for the just because he is not for our turn, and he is contrary to our doings and upbraideth us with transgressions of the law and divulgeth against us the sins of our way of life. 13 He boasteth that he hath the knowledge of God and calleth himself the son of God. 14 He is become a censurer of our thoughts. 15 He is grievous unto us even to behold, for his life is not like other men’s and his ways are very different. 16 We are esteemed by him as triflers.

New Testament: “The world cannot hate you, but me [Jesus] it hateth because I give testimony of it that the works thereof are evil.” (Jn. 7:7)

King Solomon: “16 ...And he abstaineth from our ways as from filthiness, and he preferreth the latter end of the just and glorieth that he hath God for his father.”

New Testament: “Hereupon therefore the Jews sought the more to kill him because he did not only break the sabbath but also said God was his Father, making himself equal to God.” (Jn. 5:18)

King Solomon: “17 Let us see then if his words be true, and let us prove what shall happen to him; and we shall know what his end shall be. 18 For if he be the true son of God, he will defend him and will deliver him from the hands of his enemies.”

New Testament: “And they that passed by, blasphemed him [Jesus], wagging their heads and saying: Vah, thou that destroyest the temple of God and in three days dost rebuild it. Save thy own self. If thou be the Son of God, come down from the cross. In like manner also the chief priests with the scribes and ancients, mocking, said: He saved others; himself he cannot save. If he be the king of Israel, let him now come down from the cross, and we will believe him. He trusted in God; let him now deliver him if he will have him; for he said: I am the Son of God.” (Mt. 27:39-43)

King Solomon: “19 Let us examine him by outrages and tortures that we may know his meekness and try his patience. 20 Let us condemn him to a most shameful death, for there shall be respect had unto him by his words.”

New Testament: “Pilate saith to them: What shall I do then with Jesus that is called Christ? They say all: Let him be crucified.” (Mt. 27:22)

King Solomon: “21 These things they thought and were deceived, for their own malice blinded them. 22 And they knew not the secrets of God nor hoped for the wages of justice nor esteemed the honour of holy souls.”

King Solomon, Wisdom 3: “But the souls of the just are in the hand of God, and the torment of death shall not touch them. In the sight of the unwise they seemed to die, and their departure was taken for misery. And their going away from us for utter destruction, but they are in peace. And though in the sight of men they suffered torments, their hope is full of immortality.” (Wis. 3:1-4)

New Testament: “The God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, the God of our fathers, hath glorified his Son Jesus, whom you indeed delivered up and denied before the face of Pilate, when he judged he should be released. But you denied the Holy One and the Just, and desired a murderer to be granted unto you. But the author of life you killed, whom God hath raised from the dead, of which we are witnesses.” (Acts 3:13-15)

It was also prophesied that not one bone of the Messiah, the ultimate Paschal Lamb, will be broken: The bones of the Paschal Lamb offered during the Old Covenant era were not to be broken:

“In one house shall it [the Paschal Lamb] be eaten, neither shall you carry forth of the flesh thereof out of the house, neither shall you break a bone thereof.” (Ex. 12:46)

“In the second month, on the fourteenth day of the month in the evening, they shall eat it with unleavened bread and wild lettuce: They shall not leave any thing thereof until morning, nor break a bone thereof, they shall observe all the ceremonies of the phase.” (Num. 9:11-12)

Therefore, God prevented the guards from breaking the bones of the ultimate Paschal Lamb, Jesus Christ, when he was sacrificed:

“Then the Jews, (because it was the parasceve), that the bodies might not remain upon the cross on the sabbath day, (for that was a great sabbath day), besought Pilate that their legs might be broken and that they might be taken away. The soldiers therefore came, and they broke the legs of the first and of the other that was crucified with him. But after they were come to Jesus, when they saw that he was already dead, they did not break his legs... For these things were done, that the scripture might be fulfilled: You shall not break a bone of him. And again another scripture saith: They shall look on him whom they pierced.” (Jn. 19:31-37)

It was Zacharias who prophesied that that “They [unbelieving Jews] shall look on him whom they pierced.” He also prophesied that the Messiah would be not only a man but also God, that he would die, and that he would be a firstborn son and an only son and thus his mother will not have any other children:

“And it shall come to pass in that day that I will seek to destroy all the nations that come against Jerusalem. And I will pour out upon the house of David and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of prayers. And they shall look upon me whom they have pierced, and they shall mourn for him as one mourneth for an only son, and they shall grieve over him, as the manner is to grieve for the death of the firstborn.” (Zach. 12:9-10)

The “I” in “I will seek to destroy” is God. Hence the “me” in “They shall look upon me whom they have pierced” is God. Hence the Messiah who will be slain is God. And the “I” and “me” is also a first born son and an only son and thus is also a man, and his mother will have no other children. And the Christ-denying Jews and the Roman soldiers that were present during the crucifixion of Jesus looked upon him whom they pierced.

The Messiah will rise from the dead

What good would it be if the Messiah died for our sins but could not resurrect himself and thus also the elect from the underworld and enable himself and the elect to enter heaven and eventually to enter the everlasting earthly paradise to come? If he did not resurrect, then he could not have truly died for their sins because they would still be in the underworld, in the Limbo of the Fathers, and thus the Devil would still have a claim on their souls. St. Paul puts it this way:

“Now if Christ be preached, that he arose again from the dead, how do some among you say that there is no resurrection of the dead? But if there be no resurrection of the dead, then Christ is not risen again. And if Christ be not risen again, then is our preaching vain and your faith is also vain. Yea, and we are found false witnesses of God because we have given testimony against God that he hath raised up Christ whom he hath not raised up, if the dead rise not again. For if the dead rise not again, neither is Christ risen again. And if Christ be not risen again, your faith is vain for you are yet in your sins. Then they also that are fallen asleep in Christ are perished. If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable. But now Christ is risen from the dead, the firstfruits of them that sleep.” (1 Cor. 15:12-20)

The Old Testament prophecies regarding the Messiah first and second comings also prove that the Messiah rises from the dead and also prove that he ascends into Heaven. They teach that the Messiah dies during his first coming but he comes from Heaven to destroy and conquer the earth during his second coming. If he did not rise from the dead and ascend into Heaven during this first coming, he would not be in Heaven and thus would not be able to come from Heaven during the second coming.

Indeed, Old Testament prophecies speak of the resurrection of the Messiah. For example, the holy Prophet Sophonias says the following:

Sophonias: Therefore wait upon me, saith the Lord, until the day when I rise up for a witness: because my judgment shall be on the gatherings of the nations, to draw to me kings, to pour out upon them all my fierce anger: for the whole earth shall be consumed with the fire of my jealousy.” (Soph. 3:8)

King David, unknowingly, prophesied that the Messiah dead body would not see corruption and thus the Messiah would rise from the dead shortly after his death. David speaks for himself, but his body saw corruption, and thus he was unknowingly speaking of the Messiah:

“Therefore my heart hath been glad and my tongue hath rejoiced; moreover my flesh also shall rest in hope because thou wilt not leave my soul in the underworld nor wilt thou give thy holy one to see corruption.” (Ps. 15:9-10)

St. Paul speaks of this prophecy:

“This same God hath fulfilled to our children, raising up Jesus, as in the second psalm also is written: Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee. And to shew that he raised him up from the dead, not to return now any more to corruption, he said thus: I will give you the holy things of David faithful. And therefore, in another place also, he saith: Thou shalt not suffer thy holy one to see corruption. For David, when he had served in his generation, according to the will of God, slept and was laid unto his fathers and saw corruption. But he whom God hath raised from the dead, saw no corruption.” (Acts 13:33-37)

Jonas’ resurrection from the dead after three days was a figure of Jesus’ resurrection from the dead after three days:

Old Testament: “Now the Lord prepared a great fish to swallow up Jonas. And Jonas was in the belly of a fish for three days and three nights... I [Jonas] went down to the clefts of the mountains; I went down into the earth whose bars are the everlasting barriers, yet thou wilt bring up my life from corruption, O Lord my God... And the Lord spoke to the fish, and it vomited out Jonas upon the dry land.” (Jona. 2:1, 7, 11)

New Testament: “Who answering, [Jesus] said to them: An evil and adulterous generation seeketh a sign, and a sign shall not be given it but the sign of Jonas the prophet. For as Jonas was in the whale’s belly three days and three nights, so shall the Son of man be in the heart of the earth three days and three nights.” (Mt. 12:39-40)

New Testament: “For I delivered unto you first of all which I also received: How that Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures. And that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day, according to the scriptures.” (1 Cor. 15:3-4)

Old Testament prophecies also speak of the resurrection of the elect from the underworld, which will be accomplished by the Messiah who will die for their sins. For example,

“Though they [the elect] go down even to the underworld, thence shall my hand bring them out.” (Amos 9:2)

“For thou scourgest and thou savest; thou leadest down to the underworld and bringest up again.” (Tob. 13:2)

”But God will redeem my soul from the hand of the underworld, when he shall receive me.” (Ps. 48:16)

“But I will look towards the Lord. I will wait for God my Saviour. My God will hear me. Rejoice not, thou, my enemy, over me because I am fallen. I shall arise when I sit in darkness, the Lord is my light. I will bear the wrath of the Lord because I have sinned against him, until he judge my cause and execute judgment for me; he will bring me forth into the light, I shall behold his justice.” (Mich. 7:7-9)

“And when he was at the last gasp, he said thus: Thou indeed, O most wicked man, destroyest us out of this present life: but the King of the world will raise us up, who die for his laws, in the resurrection of everlasting life... And when he was now ready to die, he spoke thus: It is better, being put to death by men, to look for hope from God, to be raised up again by him; for, as to thee thou shalt have no resurrection unto life.” (2 Mac. 7:9, 14)

“Thy dead men [the elect] shall live, my slain shall rise again.” (Isa. 26:19)

Hence the Messiah, who died for their sins, must first resurrect himself and then the elect, as testified to in the Gospel of St. Matthew:

“And Jesus again crying with a loud voice yielded up the spirit. And behold the veil of the temple was rent in two from the top even to the bottom, and the earth quaked and the rocks were rent. And the graves were opened; and many bodies of the saints that had slept arose, And coming out of the tombs after his resurrection came into the holy city, and appeared to many.” (Mt. 27:50-53)<sup>2918</sup>

Isaias prophesied that the Messiah’s sepulchre would be glorious and thus, by implication, that the Messiah, Jesus Christ, will rise from the dead and thus leave his tomb empty:

“In that day the root of Jesse [the Messiah, Jesus Christ], who standeth for an ensign of the people, him the Gentiles shall beseech, and his sepulchre shall be glorious.” (Isa. 11:10)

Indeed, the Messiah’s empty tomb is venerated down until today. Beware, then, of the lie, hatched by Christ-denying Jews, that Jesus’ body was stolen from the tomb by his disciples and thus he did not rise from the dead. The gospel says that the Jewish guards saw Jesus’ rise from the tomb:

“And behold there was a great earthquake. For an angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and coming, rolled back the stone, and sat upon it. And his countenance was as lightning, and his raiment as snow. And for fear of him, the guards were struck with terror, and became as dead men.” (Mt. 28:2-4)

But the Christ-denying Jews bribed the guards to lie:

“Behold some of the guards came into the city and told the chief priests all things that had been done. And they being assembled together with the ancients, taking counsel, gave a great sum of money to the soldiers, Saying: Say you, his disciples came by night, and stole him away when we were asleep. And if the governor shall hear of this, we will persuade him and secure you. So they taking the money, did as they were taught; and this word was spread abroad among the Jews even unto this day.” (Mt. 28:11-15)

<sup>2918</sup> Regarding the resurrection of the Old Testament elect, see RJMI article Pilate’s Report to Tiberius Exalts Christ.

Take a moment to reflect upon this lying excuse. Do you see anything grossly illogical and about it? How could the guards have known that Jesus' disciples stole his body if they were asleep? St. Augustine points this out:

St. Augustine, Expositions on the Psalms, Psalm 63 [64]: "13. . . . They placed soldiers to guard the sepulchre. The earth shook and the Lord rose again. Such miracles were done at the sepulchre, that the very soldiers that came as guards might be witnesses of it if they would declare the truth. But that covetousness which possessed the disciple that was the companion of Christ blinded also the soldiers that were the guards of his sepulchre. 'We will give you money,' said they, 'and say that while ye were asleep his disciples came and took him away.' They truly failed in making diligent search. What is it thou hast said, O wretched craft? Dost thou shut thy eyes against the light of prudence and piety and plunge thyself so deep in cunning as to say this: Say that while ye were asleep his disciples came and took him away? Dost thou produce sleeping witnesses? Certainly thou thyself sleepest who failest in making search after such things."

The Messiah replaces the Old Covenant with the New Covenant

The Messiah replaces the animal sacrifices with a clean sacrifice and replaces the Levitical priesthood

The Holy Eucharist (Jesus' body and blood under the appearance of bread and wine) was prophesied and prefigured during the Old Testament era. The animal sacrifices were figures of the Holy Eucharist, their body and blood was replaced by the body and blood of Christ. And not only animals but also bread and wine were offered to God during the Old Testament era:

"This is what thou shalt sacrifice upon the altar: Two lambs of a year old every day continually. One lamb in the morning and another in the evening. With one lamb a tenth part of flour tempered with beaten oil, of the fourth part of a hin, and wine for libation of the same measure." (Ex. 29:38-40)

"And they shall eat the flesh that night roasted at the fire, and unleavened bread with wild lettuce." (Ex. 12:8)

"This is the law of the sacrifice of peace offerings that is offered to the Lord. If the oblation be for thanksgiving, they shall offer loaves without leaven tempered with oil, and unleavened wafers anointed with oil, and fine flour fried, and cakes tempered and mingled with oil: Moreover loaves of leavened bread with the sacrifice of thanks, which is offered for peace offerings:" (Lev. 7:11-13)

Another figure of the Holy Eucharist was the bread and wine that Melchisedec offered to Abram (later called Abraham). It is a very probable opinion that Melchisedec was God the Son and thus before his Incarnation. But it is a dogma that Melchisedec was greater than Abram because he blessed Abram, and Abram gave him tithes:

Old Testament: "But Melchisedec the king of Salem, bringing forth bread and wine, for he was the priest of the most high God, Blessed him, and said: Blessed be Abram by the most high God, who created heaven and earth." (Gen. 14:18-19)

New Testament: "For this Melchisedec was king of Salem, priest of the most high God, who met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings, and blessed him: To whom also Abraham divided the tithes of all; who first indeed by interpretation, is king of justice, and then also king of Salem, that is, king of peace, without father, without mother, without genealogy, having neither beginning of days nor end of life, but likened unto the Son of God, continueth a priest for ever." (Heb. 7:1-3)

Therefore, the New Covenant priesthood, of which Melchisedec was a figure, will be greater than the Old Covenant's Levitical priesthood because Melchisedec was greater than Abraham.

King David also prophesied the coming and superiority of the Melchisedec priesthood and that Christ will be the ultimate high priest according to the order of Melchisedec and thus not according to the order of the Levi. He also prophesied that the Messiah will be not only a man (his son) but also God (his Lord) and that God the Son was begotten of God the Father:

"The Lord said to my Lord: Sit thou at my right hand until I make thy enemies thy footstool.<sup>2919</sup> The Lord will send forth the sceptre of thy power out of Sion. Rule thou in the midst of thy enemies. With thee is the principality in the day of thy strength: in the brightness of the saints, from the womb before the day star I begot thee. The Lord hath sworn, and he will not repent: Thou art a priest for ever according to the order of Melchisedec." (Ps. 109:1-4)

St. Paul verified that Christ fulfilled this prophecy:

"So Christ also did not glorify himself that he might be made a high priest, but he that said unto

<sup>2919</sup> Jesus gave this riddle to the Pharisees: "What think you of Christ? Whose son is he? They say to him: David's. He saith to them: How then doth David in spirit call him Lord (Ps. 109:1), saying: The Lord said to my Lord, Sit on my right hand, until I make thy enemies thy footstool? If David then call him Lord, how is he his son? " (Mt. 22:42-45) The answer is that Jesus (the Messiah) is both God and man. He was David's Lord (David's God) from all eternity, and David's son when he became man in the womb of the Virgin Mary, who was from the line of David as was St. Joseph, Jesus' foster father. Hence Jesus natural line from David is from the Blessed Virgin Mary and his legal line from David is from St. Joseph. Hence Jesus' manhood is naturally and legally from the line of David.

him: Thou art my Son this day have I begotten thee. As he saith also in another place: Thou art a priest for ever, according to the order of Melchisedech.” (Heb. 5:5-6)

And St. Paul shows that all the tithes given to the Levitical priests went to Abraham and from Abraham to Melchisedech and thus proves that the New Covenant priesthood is greater than the Old Covenant priesthood:

“Now consider how great this man is to whom also Abraham the patriarch gave tithes out of the principal things. And indeed they that are of the sons of Levi who receive the priesthood have a commandment to take tithes of the people according to the law; that is to say, of their brethren though they themselves also came out of the loins of Abraham. But he whose pedigree is not numbered among them received tithes of Abraham and blessed him that had the promises. And without all contradiction, that which is less is blessed by the better... And (as it may be said) even Levi who received tithes, paid tithes in Abraham, for he was yet in the loins of his father when Melchisedech met him. If then perfection was by the Levitical priesthood (for under it the people received the law), what further need was there that another priest should rise according to the order of Melchisedech and not be called according to the order of Aaron? For the priesthood being translated, it is necessary that a translation also be made of the law. For he of whom these things are spoken is of another tribe of which no one attended on the altar. For it is evident that our Lord sprung out of Juda, in which tribe Moses spoke nothing concerning priests. And it is yet far more evident if according to the similitude of Melchisedech there ariseth another priest, who is made not according to the law of a carnal commandment but according to the power of an indissoluble life, for he testifieth: Thou art a priest for ever, according to the order of Melchisedech.” (Heb. 7:4-17)

Malachias prophesied that a time will come when the sacrifice to God will be offered everywhere and will be a clean oblation, and during that time many Gentiles shall come into the Church:

“For from the rising of the sun even to the going down, my name is great among the Gentiles; and in every place there is sacrifice, and there is offered to my name a clean oblation, for my name is great among the Gentiles, saith the Lord of hosts.” (Mala. 1:11)

The only time many Gentiles and Gentile nations came into the Church was during the New Covenant era. So this clean oblation is offered during the New Covenant era. During the Old Covenant era, the sacrifices were only allowed to be offered in the Temple, in one place. During the New Covenant era, the sacrifice is offered everywhere on Catholic altars. During the Old Testament era, the sacrifices were visibly bloody and messy. During the New Covenant era, the only sacrifice that was visibly bloody and messy was Christ’s passion and death. Since then, the sacrifice is renewed under the appearance of bread and wine and thus is clean.

The Messias will convert many Gentiles and Gentile nations

It was prophesied many times during the Old Covenant era that not until the Messias comes will the bulk of the Gentiles and Gentile nations convert and thus enter the Church. For example, King David prophesied this and also that the Messias will be not only a man but also God:

“The Lord hath said to me: Thou art my son [the incarnate God the Son], this day have I begotten thee. Ask of me, and I will give thee the Gentiles for thy inheritance and the utmost parts of the earth for thy possession. Thou shalt rule them with a rod of iron and shalt break them in pieces like a potter’s vessel. And now, O ye kings, understand; receive instruction, you that judge the earth. Serve ye the Lord with fear: and rejoice unto him with trembling.” (Ps. 2:7-11)

“And the Gentiles shall fear thy name, O Lord, and all the kings of the earth thy glory.” (Ps. 101:16)

“Bring ye to the Lord, O ye kindreds of the Gentiles, bring ye to the Lord glory and honour:” (Ps. 95:7)

Zacharias prophesied the same and also that the Messias will be not only a man but also God:

“Sing praise and rejoice, O daughter of Sion, for behold I [God] come, and I will dwell in the midst of thee, saith the Lord. And many nations shall be joined to the Lord in that day, and they shall be my people, and I will dwell in the midst of thee.” (Zach. 2:10-11)

Malachias also prophesied that many Gentiles will convert when the sacrifice is a clean oblation and offered everywhere on Catholic altars and thus after the Messias comes:

“For from the rising of the sun even to the going down, my name is great among the Gentiles, and in every place there is sacrifice, and there is offered to my name a clean oblation, for my name is great among the Gentiles, saith the Lord of hosts.” (Mala. 1:11)

And in many places Isaias prophesied the same. For example,

Isaias 42: “Behold my servant, I will uphold him; my elect, my soul delighteth in him. I have given my spirit upon him; he shall bring forth judgment to the Gentiles.” (Isa. 42:1)

Gospel of St. Luke: “Now it came to pass when all the people were baptized, that Jesus also being baptized and praying, heaven was opened. And the Holy Spirit descended in a bodily shape, as a dove upon him. And a voice came from heaven: Thou art my beloved Son; in thee I am well pleased.”

(Lk. 3:21-22)

Isaias 42: “He shall not cry nor have respect to person, neither shall his voice be heard abroad. The bruised reed he shall not break and smoking flax he shall not quench. He shall bring forth judgment unto truth.” (Isa. 42:2)

Gospel of St. Matthew: “Behold my servant whom I have chosen, my beloved in whom my soul hath been well pleased. I will put my spirit upon him, and he shall shew judgment to the Gentiles. He shall not contend, nor cry out, neither shall any man hear his voice in the streets. The bruised reed he shall not break; and smoking flax, he shall not extinguish till he send forth judgment unto victory. And in his name the Gentiles shall hope.” (Mt. 12:18-21)

Isaias 42: “I have given thee for a covenant of the people, for a light of the Gentiles. That thou mightest open the eyes of the blind and bring forth the prisoner out of prison, and them that sit in darkness out of the prison house.” (Isa. 42:1-7)

Gospel of St. Luke, the Canticle of Simeon: “And behold there was a man in Jerusalem named Simeon, and this man was just and devout, waiting for the consolation of Israel; and the Holy Spirit was in him. And he had received an answer from the Holy Spirit, that he should not see death, before he had seen the Christ of the Lord. And he came by the Spirit into the temple. And when his parents brought in the child Jesus, to do for him according to the custom of the law, He also took him into his arms, and blessed God, and said: Now thou dost dismiss thy servant, O Lord, according to thy word in peace; Because my eyes have seen thy salvation, Which thou hast prepared before the face of all peoples: A light to the revelation of the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel.” (Lk. 2:25-32)

Isaias 49: “And he said: It is a small thing that thou shouldst be my servant to raise up the tribes of Jacob and to convert the dregs of Israel. Behold, I have given thee to be the light of the Gentiles that thou mayest be my salvation even to the farthest part of the earth.” (Isa. 49:6-7)

Isaias 60: “Arise, be enlightened, O Jerusalem, for thy light is come and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee. For behold darkness shall cover the earth and a mist the people, but the Lord shall arise upon thee and his glory shall be seen upon thee. And the Gentiles shall walk in thy light and kings in the brightness of thy rising. Lift up thy eyes round about and see all these are gathered together, they are come to thee; thy sons shall come from afar, and thy daughters shall rise up at thy side. Then shalt thou see and abound, and thy heart shall wonder and be enlarged when the multitude of the sea shall be converted to thee, the strength of the Gentiles shall come to thee. The multitude of camels shall cover thee, the dromedaries of Madian and Ephraim. All they from Saba shall come bringing gold and frankincense and shewing forth praise to the Lord.” (Isa. 60:1-6)

The first Gentiles to adore the Messiah were the three wise men:

Gospel of St. Luke: “When Jesus therefore was born in Bethlehem of Juda, in the days of king Herod, behold, there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem, saying: Where is he that is born king of the Jews? For we have seen his star in the east and are come to adore him... And entering into the house, they found the child with Mary his mother, and falling down they adored him; and opening their treasures, they offered him gifts: gold, frankincense, and myrrh.” (Mt. 2:1-2, 11)

King David also prophesied that Gentiles would bring gifts to the Messias:

“In his days shall justice spring up and abundance of peace till the moon be taken away. And he shall rule from sea to sea and from the river unto the ends of the earth. Before him the Ethiopians shall fall down; and his enemies shall lick the ground. The kings of Tharsis and the islands shall offer presents; the kings of the Arabians and of Saba shall bring gifts. And all kings of the earth shall adore him; all nations shall serve him.” (Ps. 71:7-11)

Isaias prophesied that after the Messiah comes, the first conversion of many Gentiles would be accomplished by the preaching of the apostles and other Christian Jews:

“I come that I may gather them together with all nations and tongues, and they shall come and shall see my glory. And I will set a sign among them, and I will send of them that shall be saved [Christian Jews] to the Gentiles into the sea into Africa, and Lydia, them that draw the bow, into Italy, and Greece, to the islands afar off, to them that have not heard of me, and have not seen my glory. And they shall declare my glory to the Gentiles.” (Isa. 66:18-19)

(See Isaias 52:10, 15; 55:4-5)

And the historical proof (evidence) of the conversion of many Gentiles and Gentile nations to Christianity is proof that these prophecies have been fulfilled and thus that Jesus Christ is indeed the Messiah.

When the infant Jesus was presented in the Temple, forty days after his birth as a human, Simeon prophesied that Jesus would convert Gentiles. And he also prophesied that Jesus will bring salvation to mankind and thus he is the redeemer, and that many Jews will deny Christ, and that Mary will suffer from seeing her son persecuted and killed:

“And behold there was a man in Jerusalem named Simeon, and this man was just and devout, waiting for the consolation of Israel; and the Holy Spirit was in him. And he had received an answer from the Holy Spirit that he should not see death before he had seen the Christ of the Lord. And he came by the Spirit into the temple. And when his parents brought in the child Jesus, to do for him according to the custom of the law, he also took him into his arms and blessed God, and said: Now thou dost dismiss thy servant, O Lord, according to thy word in peace; because my eyes have seen thy salvation, Which thou hast prepared before the face of all peoples: A light to the revelation of the Gentiles and the glory of thy people Israel. And his father and mother were wondering at those things which were spoken concerning him. And Simeon blessed them, and said to Mary his mother: Behold this child is set for the fall, and for the resurrection of many in Israel, and for a sign which shall be contradicted; And thy own soul a sword shall pierce, that, out of many hearts, thoughts may be revealed.” (Lk. 2:25-35)

Contemplate the great difference between this faithful Jew, Simeon, and the unbelieving Jews who did not believe Jesus was the Messiah in spite of all the miracles and good teachings and works that Jesus did. Why did the Holy Spirit speak to Simeon and not to them? - Because Simeon was faithful and thus knew the true meaning of the prophecies regarding the Messiah and was obedient to all of God’s commandments whereas the unbelieving Jews were not.

The Messiah was spoken of by Moses and the other prophets

Moses and the other prophets spoke of the Messiah, Jesus Christ, many times. Regarding Moses, Jesus said,

“Think not that I will accuse you to the Father. There is one that accuseth you, Moses, in whom you trust. For if you did believe Moses, you would perhaps believe me also for he wrote of me. But if you do not believe his writings, how will you believe my words?” (Jn. 5:45-47)

These are some of Moses’ prophecies that Jesus is referring to, as recorded in the infallibly inspired books given to Moses by God:

“I will put enmities between thee and the woman [the Blessed Virgin Mary], and thy seed and her seed [the Messiah, Jesus Christ]; she shall crush thy head, and thou shalt lie in wait for his heel.” (Gen. 3:15)

“And in thy seed [the Messiah, Jesus Christ] shall all the nations of the earth be blessed, because thou hast obeyed my voice.” (Gen. 22:18)

“The sceptre shall not be taken away from Juda, nor a ruler from his thigh, till he come that is to be sent [the Messiah, Jesus Christ], and he shall be the expectation of nations.” (Gen. 49:10)

“The Lord thy God will raise up to thee a PROPHET [the Messiah, Jesus Christ] of thy nation and of thy brethren like unto me. Him thou shalt hear... I will raise them up a prophet out of the midst of their brethren like to thee: and I will put my words in his mouth, and he shall speak to them all that I shall command him. And he that will not hear his words, which he shall speak in my name, I will be the revenger.” (Deut. 18:15, 18-19)

Jesus’ apostles and disciples acknowledged that Jesus fulfilled these prophecies of Moses:

New Testament: “For Moses said: A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me: him you shall hear according to all things whatsoever he shall speak to you. And it shall be, that every soul which will not hear that prophet, shall be destroyed from among the people” (Acts 3:22-23)

Not only Moses but the other prophets also spoke of the Messiah, Jesus Christ:

New Testament: “Philip findeth Nathanael, and saith to him: We have found him of whom Moses in the law and the prophets did write, Jesus the son of Joseph of Nazareth.” (Jn. 1:45)

New Testament: “That when the times of refreshment shall come from the presence of the Lord, and he shall send him who hath been preached unto you, Jesus Christ, Whom heaven indeed must receive, until the times of the restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of his holy prophets, from the beginning of the world... And all the prophets, from Samuel and afterwards, who have spoken, have told of these days. You are the children of the prophets, and of the testament which God made to our fathers, saying to Abraham: And in thy seed shall all the kindreds of the earth be blessed. To you first God, raising up his Son, hath sent him to bless you; that every one may convert himself from his wickedness.” (Acts 3:20-21, 24-26)

Zachary, at the birth of his son St. John the Baptist, prophesied that his son would be the forerunner and announcer of the Messiah. He also prophesied that this is the Messiah, the true and only Messiah, that was spoken of by all the prophets and that the Messiah will redeem and save men. It is known as the Canticum of Zachary:

“And Zachary his father was filled with the Holy Spirit, and he prophesied, saying: Blessed be the Lord God of Israel because he hath visited and wrought the redemption of his people and hath raised up an horn of salvation to us, in the house of David his servant [of the tribe of Juda and thus the Messiah, as John was of the tribe of Levi], as he spoke by the mouth of his holy prophets, who are from the beginning. Salvation from our enemies and from the hand of all that hate us; to perform mercy to our fathers and to remember his holy testament, the oath which he swore to Abraham our father, that he would grant to us; that being delivered from the hand of our enemies, we may serve him without fear, in holiness and justice before him, all our days. And thou, child [John the Baptist], shalt be called the prophet of the Highest, for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare his ways [hence the Messiah is God and man]; to give knowledge of salvation to his people unto the remission of their sins [to let them know what they must do to have their sins remitted when he Messiah comes]; through the bowels of the mercy of our God, in which the Orient from on high hath visited us; to enlighten them that sit in darkness, and in the shadow of death: to direct our feet into the way of peace.” (Lk. 1:67-79)

Jesus Christ not only fulfilled the prophecies regarding his first coming, but will also fulfill the prophecies regarding his second coming. And Jesus is not only the Lord of lords, and the King of kings, but also the Prophet of prophets. All the holy prophets were figures of the Messiah, Jesus Christ, but Jesus Christ was the reality that they spoke of. Hence when the Jews killed the prophets, they killed the Messiah, Jesus Christ, whom they pre-figured. And when the Jews killed Christ, they killed not only the Prophet of prophets but also, in spirit, all the prophets who spoke of the Messiah. Hence the spirit of the Messiah, Jesus Christ, was in the prophets and the spirit of the prophets was in the Messiah, Jesus Christ.

That is why Jesus told the Christ-denying Jews that they were guilty of the blood of all the prophets because in denying and condemning him, the Messiah, they also denied and condemned all the prophets who prophesied about the Messiah, who were figures of the Messiah:

“Woe to you scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites that build the sepulchres of the prophets and adorn the monuments of the just, and say: If we had been in the days of our Fathers, we would not have been partakers with them in the blood of the prophets. Wherefore you are witnesses against yourselves, that you are the sons of them that killed the prophets. Fill ye up then the measure of your fathers... That upon you may come all the just blood that hath been shed upon the earth, from the blood of Abel the just, even unto the blood of Zacharias the son of Barachias, whom you killed between the temple and the altar.” (Mt. 23:29-32, 35)

This was confirmed when they killed Christ. And in so doing, they killed all the holy prophets who spoke of Christ and were figures of Christ. And when their faithless forefathers killed the prophets, they also killed Christ, the Messiah, whom the holy prophets prefigured.

The Messiah will come a second time to judge mankind and purify and rule the earth forever

It was prophesied several times during the Old Testament that the Messiah will come twice. The first time he comes to redeem men by his sacrificial death.<sup>2920</sup> The second time he comes to kill all the evildoers and cast them into hell forever, to resurrect the bodies of the dead in which the elect receive glorified bodies and the reprobates corrupted bodies, to preside over the General Judgment, and to destroy this earth and re-create it into an everlasting earthly paradise. Here are a few of many of these prophecies:

Daniel: “I beheld therefore in the vision of the night; and lo, one like the son of man came with the clouds of heaven, and he came even to the

Ancient of days; and they presented him before him. And he gave him power and glory and a kingdom; and all peoples, tribes and tongues shall serve him. His power is an everlasting power that shall not be taken away, and his kingdom that shall not be destroyed... And a judgment shall sit that his [the Antichrist’s] power may be taken away and be broken in pieces and perish even to the end. And that the kingdom and power and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven may be given to the people of the saints of the most High whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all kings shall serve him, and shall obey him.” (Dan. 7:13-14, 26-28)

Isaias: “For behold, the Lord will come with fire and his chariots are like a whirlwind to render his wrath in indignation and his rebuke with flames of fire. For the Lord shall judge by fire and by his sword unto all flesh, and the slain of the Lord shall be many.” (Isa. 66:15-16)

Isaias: “For behold I create new heavens and a new earth. And the former things shall not be in remembrance, and they shall not come upon the heart. But you shall be glad and rejoice for ever in these things which I create.” (Isa. 65:17-18)

Zacharias: “And the Lord shall be king over all the earth; in that day there shall be one Lord and his name shall be one... And people shall dwell in it, and there shall be no more an anathema.” (Zach. 14:9, 11)

And the same was prophesied in the New Testament:

“But the day of the Lord shall come as a thief in which the heavens shall pass away with great violence and the elements shall be melted with heat, and the earth and the works which are in it shall be burnt up. Seeing then that all these things are to be dissolved, what manner of people ought you to be in holy conversation and godliness? Looking for and hasting unto the coming of the day of the Lord by which the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved and the elements shall melt with the burning heat? But we look for new heavens and a new earth according to his promises, in which justice dwelleth.” (2 Pt. 3:10-13)

“Behold, he cometh with the clouds, and every eye shall see him, and they also that pierced him. And all the tribes of the earth shall bewail themselves because of him. Even so. Amen. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, saith the Lord God, who is, and who was, and who is to come, the Almighty.” (Apoc. 1:7-8)

“And I saw a new heaven and a new earth. For the first heaven and the first earth was gone. (Apoc. 21:1)

(See Long Commentaries: “The Everlasting Earthly Paradise,” p. 1179.)

One problem some Jews had during Jesus’ first coming is that they expected it to be his only coming, and thus that he would then destroy the earth and bring the everlasting paradise. They put the cart before the horse, the body before the soul. Men's souls first needed to be redeemed by Christ's sacrificial death and then given a chance to benefit from the redemption before they can dwell in the all holy, all pure, everlasting paradise. Hence these Jews overlooked, did not understand, or ignored the prophecies that the Messiah must first come and die for our sins and thus free the elect from the claim the Devil had over them so that they could enter heaven and eventually the everlasting earthly paradise.

Jesus, the Ways He Is Less Than the Father and Was Less Than the Angels

The Son’s divine nature is less than the Father in causation but not in nature

Jesus said, “The Father is greater than I.” (Jn. 14:28)

This applies not only to the Incarnate Jesus’ human nature, as you will read in the following section, but also his divine nature from all eternity, as you will read in this section.

God the Son and God the Holy Spirit are equal to the Father in nature (that is, in eternal existence, majesty, power, and virtue) but less than the Father in one way: Causation, by the manner of their eternal existence, by the manner of their eternal origin. The Father is not begotten nor proceeding and thus his eternal existence depends on no one. The Son’s eternal existence depends on the Father because the Son is eternally born of the Father. And the Holy Spirit’s eternal existence depends on the Father and the Son because the Holy Spirit eternally proceeds from the Father and the Son. That is why God the Father is called the Anchor of the Holy Trinity, as the eternal existence of God the Son and God the Holy Spirit finds their origin in God the Father.

Because the Son is eternally born of the Father, the Son’s eternal existence depends on the Father, while the Father’s eternal existence depends on no one:

“For God so loved the world as to give his only-begotten Son”... (Jn. 3:16)

The Athanasian Creed, 4th century: “Accordingly it is the right faith that we believe and confess that our Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of God, is God and man. He is God eternally begotten of the substance of the Father, and he is man born of the substance of his mother in time... The Father is made of none neither created nor begotten. The Son is of the Father alone, not made nor created but begotten. The Holy Spirit is of the Father and the Son, not made nor created nor begotten but proceeding.”

Even though the Council of Florence was invalid and heretical, it teaches the truth in this regard:

Invalid and heretical Council of Florence, Cantate Domino, 1442: “...Whatever the Father is or has, he does not have from another but from himself; ... Whatever the Son is or has, he has from the Father, ... Whatever the Holy Spirit is or has, he has simultaneously from the Father and the Son.” (D. 704)

While God the Father is God from no one, God the Son (Jesus Christ) is God from God (the Father) and light from light (of the Father):

Amended Nicene Constantinople Creed: “I believe...in one Lord Jesus Christ, the Only-begotten Son of God, eternally born of the Father. God of God; Light of Light; true God of true God; begotten, not made; being of one substance with the Father...”

Because the Father begot the Son with the exact same substance as he himself has, the nature of the Father and Son are equal and thus equal in eternal existence, power, majesty, and virtue. Hence the Son is an exact image, an exact copy of the Father. St. Paul says,

“[Jesus Christ] is the image of the invisible God.” (Col. 1:15)

“Christ...is the image of God.” (2 Cor. 4:4)

However, because the Father begot the Son and not the Son the Father, the Son is less than the Father in dependence or causation, as the Father is the cause of the Son and not the Son of the Father:

St. Alexander of Alexandria, Epistles on the Arian Heresy, 4th century: “That he [God the Son] is equally with the Father unchangeable and immutable, wanting in nothing, and the perfect Son, and like to the Father, we have learnt; in this alone is he inferior to the Father, that he is not unbegotten. For he is the very exact image of the Father, and in nothing differing from him. For it is clear that he is the image fully containing all things by which the greatest similitude is declared, as the Lord himself hath taught us, when He says, ‘My Father is greater than I.’ ...Father, indeed, we ought to preserve his proper dignity in confessing that no one is the cause of his being; but to the Son must be allotted his fitting honour, in assigning to him, as we have said, a generation from the Father without beginning, and allotting adoration to him, so as only piously and properly to use the words, ‘He was,’ and ‘always,’ and ‘before all worlds,’ with respect to him; by no means rejecting his Godhead, but ascribing to him a similitude which exactly answers in every respect to the Image and Exemplar of the Father. But we must say that to the Father alone belongs the property of being unbegotten, for the Saviour himself said, My Father is greater than I.’ ”

St. Hilary of Poitiers, On the Trinity, 4th century: “[b. 4] 9. ...The very fact that he bears the name of Father reveals him as the cause of his Son’s existence... [b. 9] 54. ...If, then, the Father is greater through his authority to give, is the Son less through the confession of receiving? The Giver is greater [RJMI: in independence or causation]: but the Receiver is not less [RJMI: in divine nature], for to him it is given to be one with the Giver... If it is given him to be in that glory in which the Father is, we see in the prerogative of giving that the Giver is greater and in the confession of the gift that the Two are One. The Father is, therefore, greater than the Son, for manifestly he is greater who makes another to be all that he himself is, who imparts to the Son by the mystery of the birth the image of his own unbegotten nature, who begets him from himself into his own form... 57. The birth, therefore, does not constitute his nature inferior, for he is in the form of God, as being born of God. And though... he does not indeed share in the supreme majesty of being unbegotten, he has received from the unbegotten God the nature of divinity.

“[b. 10] 6. ... We have taught that God the Son is God of the same [divine] nature with God the Father, not co-equal with the Unbegotten [RJMI: in independence or causation], for he was not himself unbegotten, but, as the only-begotten, not unequal [RJMI: in nature] because begotten; whose name and whose nature are in him [the Father], while the Father as his name implies abides in the Son, since a son cannot be spoken of or exist except as born of a father. Further, we say that he [the Son] is the living copy of the living nature, the impression of the divine seal upon the divine nature, undistinguished from God in power and kind...since the image by nature possesses the nature of its author... [b. 12] 24. And so God only-begotten, containing in himself the form and image of the invisible God, in all things which are properties of God the Father is equal to him by virtue of the fulness of true Godhead in himself. For, as we have shewn in the former books, in respect of power and veneration he is as mighty and as worthy of honour as the Father.”

Ambrosiaster, see Long Commentaries: “Jesus Delivers the Kingdom To the Father, In Context,” p. 1092.

St. Augustine and Alypius, Letter 170, to Maximus, 415: “But the only-begotten Son does not come of God the Father as the whole of creation came from him, which he created from nothing.<sup>2921</sup> He begot the Son of his own substance. He did not make him out of nothing. He did not beget him in time, through whom he instituted all time, for, as the flame is not antecedent to the brightness which it produces, so the Father has never been without the Son... And the Father did not diminish himself in order to have a Son of himself, but he begot him as another self so as to remain whole in himself, and to be as great in the Son as he is alone... Thus, in God the Father and God the Son, if we consider the nature of both, each one is God, but one is not more God than the other; if we consider their origin, the Father is God from whom the Son is God, but there is no god previous to God the Father... All he [God the Son] has and can do he attributes to his Father not to himself, because he is not of himself but of the Father. For, he is equal to the Father and this also he received from the Father, but he did not so receive his being equal as if he had previously been unequal and was born equal, but, as he is always born, so he is always equal.”

Even though John Damascene was an apostate, he teaches the truth in this regard:

<sup>2921</sup> In context, St. Augustine means that God the Father created all things out of nothing through God the Son, as St. Augustine professed this in creeds and in some other of his works. (See Long Commentaries: “Jesus Created Physical Life and the Holy Spirit Creates Spiritual Life,” p. 1090.)

Apostate John Damascene, An Exact Exposition of the Orthodox Faith, 8th century: “[b. 1, c. 1] The Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit are one in all respects, except in that of not being begotten, that of being begotten, and that of procession...”

“[b. 1, c. 8] But if we say that the Father is the origin of the Son and greater than the Son, we do not suggest any precedence in time or superiority in nature of the Father over the Son or superiority in any other respect save causation. And we mean by this, that the Son is begotten of the Father and not the Father of the Son, and that the Father naturally is the cause of the Son... All then that the Son and the Spirit have is from the Father, even their very being: and unless the Father is, neither the Son nor the Spirit is. And unless the Father possesses a certain attribute, neither the Son nor the Spirit possesses it...”

“[b. 3, c. 5] In the case, therefore, of the Godhead we confess that there is but one nature, but hold that there are three really existing persons... and recognise the difference of the persons only in the three properties of independence of cause and Fatherhood, of dependence on cause and Sonship, of dependence on cause and procession.”

Hence the Son owes the Father an eternal debt of gratitude and the honor a son gives to his father because the Son's eternal existence and power depends on the Father who eternally begot him. Hence God the Father is truly the Father of God the Son, even before the incarnation of the son. And the Holy Spirit owes the Father and the Son an eternal debt of gratitude and the honor one gives to those responsible for his origin (in this case eternal origin) because the Holy Spirit's eternal existence and power depends on the Father and the Son.

Therefore Jesus' following words not only apply to the time of his incarnation but also before that and forever:

“Then Jesus answered, and said to them: Amen, amen, I say unto you, the Son cannot do any thing of himself, but what he seeth the Father doing; for what things soever he doth, these the Son also doth in like manner.” (Jn. 5:19)

Truly, if there were no Father then there would be no Son. And the only reason the Son has almighty power is because he eternally obtained it from the Father. Hence the Son refers all things he does back to the Father from whom he got his eternal existence and eternal power. Jesus says,

“The works which the Father hath given me to perfect; the works themselves, which I do, give testimony of me, that the Father hath sent me.” (Jn. 5:36)

Yes, the Son is equal in power to the Father because the all-powerful God could only beget an all-powerful Son, and thus the Son can do whatever the Father does. But the Son's equal power is nevertheless from the Father from whom the Son's eternal existence and power came.

Therefore, just as the Son is eternally born of the Father so also he is eternally taught by the Father. The Son also got his all-knowing knowledge and wisdom from the Father from all eternity and thus there was not one instant in which the Son was not all-knowing. Yet the Son nevertheless got his all-knowing knowledge and wisdom from the Father and thus Jesus says the Father taught him:

“Jesus therefore said to them...I do nothing of myself, but as the Father hath taught me, these things I speak...” (Jn. 8:28-29)

The Son's human nature was less than the Father in six ways, and then in three ways

Jesus said, “The Father is greater than I.” (Jn. 14:28)

Because Jesus' human nature was divinized the instant it was created, his human nature is equal in power, knowledge, and virtue to the divine nature of the Father and thus to his own divine nature which he shares with the Father. However, after the incarnation and before his death and resurrection, Jesus' human nature was inferior to the Father's and thus to his own divine nature in six ways: genesis, time, mortality, obedience, confinement, and majesty. However, after his resurrection, Jesus' human nature is inferior to the Father in only three ways: genesis, time, and confinement:

- Genesis: Jesus' human nature was created. Whereas the Father's and Jesus' divine nature was not created nor made.
- Time: Jesus' human nature is not eternal because it did not always exist and hence his human nature had a beginning in time. Whereas the Father's and Jesus' divine nature is eternal and thus had no beginning and hence always existed.
- Mortality: Before his death, Jesus' human nature was capable of mortality and thus was able to die<sup>2922</sup> but the Father's and Jesus' divine nature cannot die. However, after Jesus resurrection his human nature is immortal thus can never die.
- Obedience: Before his death, Jesus' human nature was submissive and thus obedient to the God the Father, St. Joseph, the Blessed Virgin Mary, and to other humans. However, after his resurrection, Jesus human nature is submissive to no one.
- Confinement: Jesus' human nature is confined to his human body and soul but the Father's and Jesus' divine nature is not confined to a body and soul. Hence Jesus' divine nature extends outside of his human nature while his human nature does not extend outside of his divine nature. When Jesus' human nature was on earth it was not in heaven while his divine nature was in heaven with the Father and on earth united to his human nature. Pope St. Damasus says, "If anyone says that because he [Jesus] was established in the flesh when he was on earth, he was not in heaven with the Father, he is a heretic." (Council of Rome, 382, Anathema 13; D. 71.)
- Majesty: Before his death, Jesus' human nature was not glorified in the eyes of others, and he was submissive and obedient to others; and thus he was less than the Father in majesty in his human nature. And Jesus hid his divine nature (which is equal to the Father's divine majesty) and thus was not glorified on earth. After his resurrection, Jesus' divine nature was glorified (made manifest to his followers) and his human nature was made equal to the Father in majesty and thus glorified and sits at the right hand of the Father in heaven, where he sat before his incarnation in only his divine nature. Hence Jesus following prayer, which he prayed before his death, was fulfilled: "These things Jesus spoke, and lifting up his eyes to heaven, he said: Father, the hour is come, glorify thy Son, that thy Son may glorify thee... I have glorified thee on the earth; I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do. And now glorify thou me, O Father, with thyself, with the glory which I had, before the world was, with thee... Father, I will that where I am, they also whom thou hast given me may be with me; that they may see my glory which thou hast given me, because thou hast loved me before the creation of the world." (Jn. 17:1, 4-5, 24) That is when the divine person of Jesus Christ returned to heaven and his human nature entered heaven for the first time.

<sup>2922</sup> The Incarnate Jesus was not subject to death by way of nature or justice because he had no sin, but he did die out of mercy for our sins. Hence Jesus' death was a miracle. Jesus divine nature had to give permission to his human nature to die.

After his resurrection, Jesus' human nature is less than the Father in three ways: Genesis, Time, and Confinement.

The Son's human nature was less than the angels in two ways

St. Paul says that "Jesus...was made a little lower than the angels" in order that he may suffer death:

"But one in a certain place hath testified, saying: What is man, that thou art mindful of him or the son of man that thou visitest him? Thou hast made him a little lower than the angels; thou hast crowned him with glory and honour and hast set him over the works of thy hands. Thou hast subjected all things under his feet. For in that he hath subjected all things to him, he left nothing not subject to him. But now we see not as yet all things subject to him. But we see Jesus, who was made a little lower than the angels, for the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honour: that, through the grace of God, he might taste death for all." (Heb. 2:6-9)

Even though Jesus' human nature was divinized at the instant of his Incarnation and thus is a divine human nature and therefore greater than the angels in power, wisdom, and knowledge, his human nature was nevertheless lower than the angels in two ways: in mortality and obedience.

Mortality: Jesus' human nature was able to die. Angels cannot die. Indeed, Jesus in his human nature needed to die in order to redeem men. Hence St. Paul says, Jesus "was made lower than the angels for the suffering of death."

Obedience: Jesus' human nature was obedient and submissive to mere humans, to his human parents and human rulers. Whereas, the angels, at that time, were not obedient and submissive to any mere human. From the time Mary entered heaven, the angels were then obedient and submission to her, a mere human; the greatest, holiest and most blessed of all creatures. The queen of heaven and earth and of angels and saints.

Only in these two ways was the Incarnate Jesus lower than the angels, in mortality and obedience. Hence in every other way Jesus was greater than not only the angels but every creature. That is why St. Paul also says that when Jesus was on earth, he was better than the angels and adored by the angels in his human nature even though his human nature was lower than the angels in mortality and obedience. He says,

"[Jesus] being made so much better than the angels, as he hath inherited a more excellent name than they. For to which of the angels hath he said at any time, Thou art my Son, today [Incarnation Day] have I begotten thee? And again, I will be to him a Father, and he shall be to me a Son? And again, when he bringeth in the first begotten [from all eternity] into the world [as a human], he saith: And let all the angels of God adore him." (Heb. 1:4-6).

But after Jesus' resurrection, his human nature is no longer less than the angels in any way—not in mortality because his human nature will never die again; nor in obedience because he will never again be obedient and submissive to any creature.

Just Wars and Capital and Corporal Punishment

"Then Jesus saith to him: Put up again thy sword into its place: for all that take the sword shall perish with the sword." (Mt. 26:52)

Beware of those who take this verse out of context to defend the heresy that during the New Covenant era God does not condone just killings, just wars, and capital and corporal punishments. Note carefully that St. Peter was carrying a sword (which is equivalent to a modern-day gun) and hence Jesus had to approve of it. Therefore Jesus is not telling St. Peter that he can never use the sword because St. Peter had one and no one carries a sword unless they are prepared to use it if necessary. Instead, Jesus told St. Peter to put up his sword on this occasion because Jesus had to die:

"Then Simon Peter, having a sword, drew it, and struck the servant of the high priest, and cut off his right ear. And the name of the servant was Malchus. Jesus therefore said to Peter: Put up thy sword into the scabbard. The chalice which my Father hath given me, shall I not drink it?" (Jn. 18:10-11)

Jesus also told St. Peter to put up his sword because he did not want St. Peter to take up the sword and die at this time. This is proved because St. Peter did eventually die by the sword when he was martyred 34 years later in AD 67.

Jesus did not say that Catholics can never use the sword and thus never kill or punish anyone. Instead, he said, "Do not think that I came to send peace upon earth: I came not to send peace, but the sword." (Mt. 10:34) Hence Jesus is not telling the apostles that they can never use the sword, that they can never kill or punish anyone. Instead, he told the apostles that a time would come when they would have to take up the sword and thus kill and punish men:

"When I sent you without purse and scrip and shoes, did you want any thing? But they said: Nothing. Then said he unto them: But now he that hath a purse, let him take it and likewise a scrip; and he that hath not, let him sell his coat and buy a sword." (Lk. 22:35-36)

One does not buy a sword or a gun unless he intends to use it if necessary. Hence Jesus told his apostles, disciples, and other Christians that a time would come when they must kill his enemies:

"As for those my enemies who would not have me reign over them, bring them hither and kill them before me." (Lk. 19:27)

Indeed, the history of the Catholic Church, especially from the time of the Holy Roman Emperor St. Constantine, proves that many faithful Catholics obeyed this decree by killing or punishing evildoers who were worthy of such punishments. St. Paul teaches that God even uses pagan rulers to mete out his justice by justly killing or punishing men:

"Let every soul be subject to higher powers, for there is no power but from God; and those that are, are ordained of God. Therefore he that resisteth the power resisteth the ordinance of God. And they that resist purchase to themselves damnation. For princes are not a terror to the good work but to the evil. Wilt thou then not be afraid of the power? Do that which is good, and thou shalt have praise from the same. For he is God's minister to thee, for good. But if thou do that which is evil, fear: for he beareth not the sword in vain. For he is God's minister, an avenger to execute wrath upon him that doth evil." (Rom. 13:1-4)

After all, the God of the Old Testament is the same as the God of the New Testament. Hence the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob is the Most Holy Trinity; the God of Israel is the God of the Catholic Church. And God's rules regarding faith and morals never change. "For I am the Lord, and I change not." (Mala. 3:6) "Jesus Christ, yesterday, and today; and the same forever." (Heb. 13:8)

For example, God is a God of war and revenge in both the Old and New Testament era. God, during the Old Testament era, says,

“The Lord is as a man of war, Almighty is his name. (Ex. 15:3) That...their children [Israelites] might learn to fight with their enemies and to be trained up to war... (Jdg. 3:2)”

“Revenge is mine, and I will repay them in due time, that their foot may slide; the day of destruction is at hand, and the time makes haste to come.” (Deut. 32:35)

And God the Son, Jesus Christ, during the New Testament era, says,

“But as for those my enemies, who would not have me reign over them, bring them hither, and kill them before me.” (Lk. 19:27)

“Will not God revenge his elect who cry to him day and night, and will he have patience in their regard? I say to you, that he will quickly revenge them.” (Lk. 18:7-8)

God carries out his vengeance and punishments either by himself; by nature; or by the hands of angels or men, be they good or evil. See commentary on Rom. 12:19. Therefore God is a God not only of mercy but also of justice, wrath, and vengeance, not only during the Old Testament era but also now during the New Testament era. God, in his mercy, waits only so long for sinners to repent; if they do not, then, in his wrath, he kills them and sends them to hell forever:

“For mercy and wrath are with him. He is mighty to forgive, and to pour out indignation.” (Eccus. 16:12)

“For mercy and wrath quickly come from him, and his wrath looketh upon sinners. Delay not to be converted to the Lord, and defer it not from day to day. For his wrath shall come on a sudden, and in the time of vengeance he will destroy thee.” (Eccus. 5:7-9)

“But as to the wicked, even to the end there came upon them wrath without mercy. For he knew before also what they would do.” (Wis. 19:1)

“He hath mercy on whom he will; and whom he will, he hardeneth.” (Rom. 9:18)

For there is “a time to kill, and a time to heal; a time to destroy, and a time to build.” (Ectes. 3:3)

There is a time to punish with mercy and thus leave room for repentance, and a time to punish without mercy and thus unto utter destruction and everlasting damnation:

“For when they [the Israelites] were tried and chastised with mercy, they knew how the wicked were judged with wrath and tormented. For thou didst admonish and try them as a father, but the others [certain pagans] as a severe king thou didst examine and condemn.” (Wis. 11:10-11)

A time to chastise with mercy is when corporal punishment is inflicted on sinful children and adults with the hope of their correction. Corporal punishment of disobedient children is especially necessary because if they are not corrected when young they become evil adults and will be harder or impossible to correct. And if they are not corrected and die that way, they will be damned forever:

“He that loveth his son, frequently chastiseth him, that he may rejoice in his latter end, and not grope after the doors of his neighbours.” (Eccus. 30:1)

“A horse not broken becometh stubborn, and a child left to himself will become headstrong.” (Eccus. 30:8)

“Bow down his neck while he is young, and beat his sides while he is a child, lest he grow stubborn, and regard thee not, and so be a sorrow of heart to thee.” (Eccus. 30:12)

“Withhold not correction from a child: for if thou strike him with the rod, he shall not die. Thou shalt beat him with the rod, and deliver his soul from gehenna.” (Prv. 23:13-14)

“Chastise thy son, despair not; but to the killing of him, set not thy soul.” (Prv. 19:18)

And St. Paul says, “My son, neglect not the discipline of the Lord; neither be thou wearied whilst thou art rebuked by him. For whom the Lord loveth, he chastiseth; and he scourgeth every son whom he receiveth. Persevere under discipline. God dealeth with you as with his sons; for what son is there whom the father doth not correct? But if you be without chastisement, whereof all are made partakers, then are you bastards and not sons.” (Heb. 12:5-8)

King David says, “I shall not die, but live: and shall declare the works of the Lord. The Lord chastising hath chastised me, but he hath not delivered me over to death.” (Ps. 117:17-18)

A time to kill without mercy was when God commanded his angel to kill all the firstborn of the Egyptians:

“And he said: Thus said the Lord: At midnight I will enter into Egypt. And every firstborn in the land of the Egyptians shall die, from the firstborn of Pharaoh who sitteth on his throne, even to the firstborn of the handmaid that is at the mill, and all the firstborn of beasts.” (Ex. 11:4-5)

A time to kill without mercy was when God ordered the Israelites to kill all the inhabitants of Chanaan (men, women, and children) and to take possession of the Promised Land:

“Command the children of Israel, and say to them: When you shall have passed over the Jordan, entering into the land of Chanaan, destroy all the inhabitants of that land; beat down their pillars, and break in pieces their statues, and waste all their high places, cleansing the land, and dwelling in it. For I have given it you for a possession.” (Num. 33:51-53)

A time to kill without mercy was when God told Moses, Josue, and King Saul to kill all the men, women, children, and infants of certain evildoers:

Moses: “And the Lord our God delivered him [Sehon, king of the Amorrhites] to us: and we slew him with his sons and all his people. And we took all his cities at that time, killing the inhabitants of them, men and women and children. We left nothing of them.” (Deut. 2:33-34)

Josue: “So Josue conquered all the country of the hills and of the south and of the plain, and of Asedoth, with their kings: he left not any remains therein, but slew all that breathed, as the Lord the God of Israel had commanded him.” (Jos. 10:40)

King Saul: “And Samuel said to Saul: The Lord sent me to anoint thee king over his People Israel; now therefore hearken thou unto the voice of the Lord: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: I have reckoned up all that Amalec hath done to Israel, how he opposed them in the way when they came up out of Egypt. Now therefore go and smite Amalec, and utterly destroy all that he hath; spare him not, nor covet any thing that is his, but slay both man and woman, child and suckling, ox and sheep, camel and ass.” (1 Ki. 15:1-3)

A time to kill was when God allowed evil Medes to kill Babylonian infants, pillage Babylonian houses, and rape Babylonian women:

“Every one that shall be found shall be slain, and every one that shall come to their aid shall fall by the sword. Their infants shall be dashed in pieces before their eyes, their houses shall be pillaged, and their wives shall be ravished. Behold I will stir up the Medes against them, who shall not seek silver nor desire gold.” (Isa. 13:15-17)

A time to kill was when God commanded his angel to kill 185,000 Assyrians in one night:

“And I will protect this city, and will save it for my own sake and for David my servant’s sake. And it came to pass that night, that an angel of the Lord came and slew in the camp of the Assyrians a hundred and eighty-five thousand. And when he arose early in the morning, he saw all the bodies of the dead.” (4 Ki. 19:34-35)

A time to kill and punish with great severity was when God cursed faithless Jews with famine and eating their own children:

“But if thou wilt not hear the voice of the Lord thy God, to keep and to do all his commandments and ceremonies which I command thee this day, all these curses shall come upon thee and overtake thee... Thou shalt eat the fruit of thy womb, and the flesh of thy sons and of thy daughters, which the Lord thy God shall give thee, in the distress and extremity wherewith thy enemy shall oppress thee. The man that is nice among you and very delicate, shall envy his own brother, and his wife that lieth in his bosom, so that he will not give them of the flesh of his children, which he shall eat: because he hath nothing else in the siege and the want, wherewith thy enemies shall distress thee within all thy gates. The tender and delicate woman that could not go upon the ground nor set down her foot for over much niceness and tenderness, will envy her husband who lieth in her bosom, the flesh of her son, and of her daughter, and the filth of the afterbirths, that come forth from between her thighs, and the children that are born the same hour. For they shall eat them secretly for the want of all things, in the siege and distress, wherewith thy enemy shall oppress thee within thy gates.” (Deut. 28:15, 53-57)

“I will also go against you with opposite fury, and I will chastise you with seven plagues for your sins, so that you shall eat the flesh of your sons and of your daughters.” (Lev. 26:28-29)

“And I will feed them with the flesh of their sons and with the flesh of their daughters; and they shall eat every one the flesh of his friend in the siege and in the distress wherewith their enemies, and they that seek their lives, shall straiten them.” (Jer. 19:9)

“That the Lord would bring upon us great evils, such as never happened under heaven, as they have come to pass in Jerusalem, according to the things that are written in the law of Moses: That a man should eat the flesh of his own son, and the flesh of his own daughter.” (Bar. 2:2-3)

“And I will do in thee that which I have not done, and the like to which I will do no more, because of all thy abominations. Therefore the fathers shall eat the sons in the midst of thee, and the sons shall eat their fathers; and I will execute judgments in thee, and I will scatter thy whole remnant into every wind.” (Ez. 5:9-10)

“The hands of the pitiful women have sodden their own children; they were their meat in the destruction of the daughter of my people.” (Lam. 4:10)

“And he said: If the Lord doth not save thee, how can I save thee? out of the barnfloor, or out of the winepress? And the king said to her: What aileth thee? And she answered: This woman said to me: Give thy son, that we may eat him to day, and we will eat my son tomorrow. So we boiled my son, and ate him. And I said to her on the next day: Give thy son that we may eat him. And she hath hid her son. When the king heard this, he rent his garments, and passed by upon the wall. And all the people saw the haircloth which he wore within next to his flesh.” (4 Ki. 6:27-30)

Another time to kill and punish with great severity was when God cursed Christ-denying Jews with famine, eating their own children, and the destruction of the Temple in AD 70:

Catholic Commentary on Deut. 28:53: Thou shalt eat the fruit of thy womb: “A cruelty which the Jews were guilty of in the sieges of Samaria and of Jerusalem... This prophetic and terrible denunciation was realized in the siege of Samaria, when two women agreed to eat their own children, one of whom was actually boiled... (4 Ki. 6:29) And in the last siege of Jerusalem we read of a mother killing her own child to satisfy the craving of hunger... She also boiled her suckling infant, and actually devoured a part of it.”

Flavius Josephus, The War of the Jews, 1st century: “4. There was a certain woman that dwelt beyond Jordan... and it was now become impossible for her any way to find any more food, while the famine pierced through her very bowels and marrow, when also her passion was fired to a degree beyond the famine itself; nor did she consult with any thing but with her passion and the necessity she was in. She then attempted a most unnatural thing; and snatching up her son, who was a child sucking at her breast, she said, ‘O thou miserable infant! for whom shall I preserve thee in this war, this famine, and this sedition? As to the war with the Romans, if they preserve our lives, we must be slaves. This famine also will destroy us, even before that slavery comes upon us. Yet are these seditious rogues more terrible than both the other. Come on; be thou my food, and be thou a fury to these seditious varlets, and a by-word to the world, which is all that is now wanting to complete the calamities of us Jews.’ As soon as she had said this, she slew her son, and then roasted him, and ate the one half of him, and kept the other half by her concealed. Upon this the seditious came in presently, and smelling the horrid scent of this food, they threatened her that they would cut her throat immediately if she did not show them what food she had gotten ready. She replied that she had saved a very fine portion of it for them, and withal uncovered what was left of her son. Hereupon they were seized with a horror and amazement of mind, and stood astonished at the sight, when she said to them, ‘This is mine own son, and what hath been done was mine own doing! Come, eat of this food; for I have eaten of it myself! Do not you pretend to be either more tender than a woman, or more compassionate than a mother; but if you be so scrupulous, and do abominate this my sacrifice, as I have eaten the one half, let the rest be reserved for me also.’ After which those men went out trembling, being never so much affrighted at any thing as they were at this, and with some difficulty they left the rest of that meat to the mother...” (b. 6, c. 3)

A time not to kill was when God commanded Moses not to fight against the Edomites (the children of Esau) nor the Moabites (the children of Lot). If Moses had fought, they would have been unjust wars in the eyes of God:

“And the Lord said to me: You have compassed this mountain long enough: go toward the north: And command thou the people, saying: You shall pass by the borders of your brethren the children of Esau, who dwell in Seir, and they will be afraid of you. Take ye then good heed that you stir not against them. For I will not give you of their land so much as the step of one foot can tread upon, because I have given mount Seir to Esau, for a possession. You shall buy meats of them for money and shall eat: you shall draw waters for money, and shall drink... And when we had passed by our brethren the children of Esau, that dwelt in Seir, by the way of the plain from Elath and from Asiongaber, we came to the way that leadeth to the desert of Moab. And the Lord said to me: Fight not against the Moabites, neither go to battle against them: for I will not give thee any of their land, because I have given Ar to the children of Lot in possession.” (Deut. 2:2-9)

A time not to kill was when Roboam, king of Juda, wanted to fight against Jeroboam, king of Israel, but God commanded him not to. If Roboam had fought, it would have been an unjust war in the eyes of God:

“Speak to Roboam the son of Solomon, the king of Juda, and to all the house of Juda, and Benjamin, and the rest of the people, saying: Thus saith the Lord: You shall not go up nor fight against your brethren the children of Israel: let every man return to his house... They hearkened to the word of the Lord, and returned from their journey, as the Lord had commanded them.” (3 Ki. 12:23-24)

A time to kill and a time to be merciful was when the Prophet Elias killed the false prophets of Baal but spared the Jews who repented of their idolatry:

“Hear me, O Lord, hear me: that this people may learn, that thou art the Lord God, and that thou hast turned their heart again. Then the fire of the Lord fell, and consumed the holocaust, and the wood, and the stones, and the dust, and licked up the water that was in the trench. And when all the people saw this, they fell on their faces, and they said: The Lord he is God, the Lord he is God. And Elias said to them: Take the prophets of Baal, and let not one of them escape. And when they had taken them, Elias brought them down to the torrent Cison, and killed them there.” (3 Ki. 18:37-40)

A time to kill and a time to be merciful was when God commanded Abraham to kill his son Isaac in order to test Abraham’s faith to see if he loved God above his son. But when Abraham was about to kill his son, God stayed his hand and spared Isaac:

“After these things, God tried Abraham, and said to him: Abraham, Abraham. And he answered: Here I am. He said to him: Take thy beloved son Isaac, whom thou lovest, and go into the land of vision: and there thou shalt offer him for an holocaust upon one of the mountains which I will shew thee... And they came to the place which God had shewn him, where he built an altar, and laid the wood in order upon it: and when he had bound Isaac his son, he laid him on the altar upon the pile of wood. And he put forth his hand and took the sword to sacrifice his son. And behold an angel of the Lord from heaven called to him, saying: Abraham, Abraham. And he answered: Here I am. And he said to him: Lay not thy hand upon the boy, neither do thou any thing to him: now I know that thou fearest God, and hast not spared thy beloved son for my sake.” (Gen. 22:1-2, 9-12)

A time to mercifully kill a just man was when God commanded that the holy King Josias must be killed in order to spare him the evils that God was going to send upon the faithless Jews:

“But to the king of Juda [Josias], who sent you to consult the Lord, thus shall you say: Thus saith the Lord the God of Israel: For as much as thou hast heard the words of the book, and thy heart hath been moved to fear, and thou hast humbled thyself before the Lord, hearing the words against this place, and the inhabitants thereof, to wit, that they should become a wonder and a curse: and thou hast rent thy garments, and wept before me, I also have heard thee, saith the Lord: Therefore I will gather thee to thy fathers, and thou shalt be gathered to thy sepulchre in peace, that thy eyes may not see all the evils which I will bring upon this place... In his days Pharaoh Nechao king of Egypt went up against the king of Assyria to the river Euphrates: and king Josias went to meet him: and was slain at Mageddo, when he had seen him.” (4 Ki. 22:18-20; 23:29)

“He pleased God and was beloved, and living among sinners..., he was taken away lest wickedness should alter his understanding, or deceit beguile his soul.” (Wis. 4:10-11)

A time to kill with great mercy is when God allows martyrs to be killed by their enemies for the faith:

“The just perisheth, and no man layeth it to heart, and men of mercy are taken away, because there is none that understandeth; for the just man is taken away from before the face of evil. Let peace come, let him rest in his bed that hath walked in his uprightness.” (Isa. 57:1-2)

A time to have mercy instead of killing was when the sons of Zebedee, John and James, wanted to kill Samaritan schismatics but Jesus did not allow it in order to give these schismatics time to repent and convert:

“And he sent messengers before his face; and going, they entered into a city of the Samaritans to prepare for him. And they received him not, because his face was of one going to Jerusalem. And when his disciples James and John had seen this, they said: Lord, wilt thou that we command fire to come down from heaven and consume them? And turning, he rebuked them, saying: You know not of what spirit you are. The Son of man came not to destroy souls, but to save.” (Lk. 9:52-56)

However, a time to kill a sinner is when he does not repent and convert and becomes obstinate and dangerous. Jesus said to “bring them hither and kill them before me.” (Lk. 19:27). For example, there will be so many obstinate and dangerous evildoers in the final days that God will authorize his Two Witnesses to torture and kill a massive amount of humanity and thus leave them no more room for mercy:

“And I will give unto my two witnesses, and they shall prophesy a thousand two hundred sixty days, clothed in sackcloth... And if any man will hurt them, fire shall come out of their mouths, and shall devour their enemies. And if any man will hurt them, in this manner must he be slain. These have power to shut heaven, that it rain not in the days of their prophecy: and they have power over waters to turn them into blood, and to strike the earth with all plagues as often as they will... These two prophets tormented them that dwelt upon the earth.” (Apoc. 11:3, 5-6, 10)

And the time of the greatest killing is when Jesus Christ comes the second time and kills all the evildoers (men, women, children, and infants) and sends them to hell forever:

“And I saw heaven opened, and behold a white horse; and he that sat upon him was called faithful and true, and with justice doth he judge and fight. And his eyes were as a flame of fire, and on his head were many diadems, and he had a name written, which no man knoweth but himself. And he was clothed with a garment sprinkled with blood; and his name is called: THE WORD OF GOD. And the armies that are in heaven followed him on white horses, clothed in fine linen, white and clean. And out of his mouth proceedeth a sharp two edged sword; that with it he may strike the nations. And he shall rule them with a rod of iron; and he treadeth the winepress of the fierceness of the wrath of God the Almighty. And he hath on his garment, and on his thigh written: KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS. And I saw an angel standing in the sun, and he cried with a loud voice, saying to all the birds that did fly through the midst of heaven: Come, gather yourselves together to the great supper of God: That you may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of tribunes, and the flesh of mighty men, and the flesh of horses, and of them that sit on them, and the flesh of all freemen and bondmen, and of little and of great. And I saw the beast, and the kings of the earth, and their armies gathered together to make war with him that sat upon the horse, and with his army. And the beast was taken, and with him the false prophet, who wrought signs before him, wherewith he seduced them who received the character of the beast, and who adored his image. These two were cast alive into the pool of fire, burning with brimstone. And the rest were slain by the sword of him that sitteth upon the horse, which proceedeth out of his mouth; and all the birds were filled with their flesh.” (Apoc. 19:11-21)

“[And] the fearful, and unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars, they shall have their portion in the pool burning with fire and brimstone, which is the second death.” (Apoc. 21:8)

A time for mercy was when Jesus forgave the adulterous woman from sins she committed that were worthy of death and warned her to “Go, and now sin no more.” (Jn. 8:11)

A time to have mercy and heal was when Jesus healed a sinner but warned him that if he sinned again a worse punishment would befall him:

“Jesus findeth him in the temple, and saith to him: Behold thou art made whole: sin no more, lest some worse thing happen to thee.” (Jn. 5:14)

A time to kill was when God killed Ananias and Saphira for holding back money that they promised to the Catholic Church:

“But a certain man named Ananias, with Saphira his wife, sold a piece of land, and by fraud kept back part of the price of the land, his wife being privy thereunto: and bringing a certain part of it, laid it at the feet of the apostles. But Peter said: Ananias, why hath Satan tempted thy heart, that thou shouldst lie to the Holy Spirit, and by fraud keep part of the price of the land? Whilst it remained, did it not remain to thee? And after it was sold, was it not in thy power? Why hast thou conceived this thing in thy heart? Thou hast not lied to men, but to God. And Ananias hearing these words, fell down, and gave up the spirit. And there came great fear upon all that heard it. And the young men rising up, removed him, and carrying him out, buried him. And it was about the space of three hours after, when his wife, not knowing what had happened, came in. And Peter said to her: Tell me, woman, whether you sold the land for so much? And she said: Yea, for so much. And Peter said unto her: Why have you agreed together to tempt the Spirit of the Lord? Behold the feet of them who have buried thy husband are at the door, and they shall carry thee out. Immediately she fell down before his feet, and gave up the spirit. And the young men coming in found her dead, and carried her out, and buried her by her husband. And there came great fear upon the whole church, and upon all that heard these things.” (Acts 5:1-11)

After identifying certain kinds of sinners and those who consent to their sins (Rom. 1:18-31), St. Paul ends by saying that they are worthy of the death penalty:

“For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and injustice... Who, having known the justice of God, did not understand that they who do such things are worthy of death; and not only they that do them, but they also that consent to them that do them.” (Rom. 1:18, 32)

And St. Paul says that apostates, those who obstinately fall away from the faith, are not only to be put to death but tortured before they are put to death:

“A man making void the law of Moses dieth without any mercy under two or three witnesses: How much more, do you think, he deserveth worse punishments who hath trodden underfoot the Son of God and hath esteemed the blood of the testament unclean, by which he was sanctified, and hath offered an affront to the Spirit of grace?” (Heb. 10:28-29)

Jesus says it is a time to kill when a Catholic or nominal Catholic cleric scandalizes little ones by sins against the faith or morals:

“But he that shall scandalize one of these little ones that believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone should be hanged about his neck and that he should be drowned in the depth of the sea.” (Mt. 18:6)

Jesus says it is a time to kill when sinners abuse God’s mercy by not repenting after having been given many chances:

Jesus said, “I say to you: but unless you repent, you shall all likewise perish.” (Lk. 13:3)

St. John says that there are certain sins that are worthy of the death penalty without any hope of mercy and thus relieve:

“He that knoweth his brother to sin, a sin which is not to death, let him ask and life shall be given to him, who sinneth not to death. There is a sin unto death: for that I say not that any man ask. All iniquity is sin. And there is a sin unto death.” (1 Jn. 5:16-17) (See commentary on 1 Jn. 5:16.)

All these justified killings, which were condoned by God, are proof that the Fifth Commandment is “Thou shalt not murder” and not “Thou shalt not kill.” After all, right after Moses received the Ten Commandments, he killed 23,000 rebellious Israelites at the bottom of Mount Sinai by God’s will and approval. (See Ex. 32)

So we see that God punishes men, women, children, and infants with war, death, and corporal punishments. (See RJMI Topic Index: Capital and Corporal Punishment.)

Legitimate vs. Illegitimate Dispute Regarding Mosaic Laws

Until the Council of Jerusalem in AD 50, most if not all of the Christian Jews observed the Mosaic laws regarding circumcision and unclean meats.<sup>2923</sup>

A dispute arose as to whether Christian Gentiles also must observe the Mosaic laws regarding circumcision and unclean meats. St. Paul and others were on the side that they were not bound to these laws, and others took the opposing side:

“And some coming down from Judea, taught the brethren: That except you be circumcised after the manner of Moses, you cannot be saved. And when Paul and Barnabas had no small contest with them, they determined that Paul and Barnabas, and certain others of the other side, should go up to the apostles and priests to Jerusalem about this question.” (Acts 15:1-2)

The Council of Jerusalem settled the dispute by decreeing that Christian Gentiles were not bound to these Mosaic laws but must still observe the Mosaic laws that banned the eating of blood and strangled animals:

Decree from the Council of Jerusalem, AD 50:
“And when there had been much disputing, Peter,

rising up, said to them: Men, brethren, you know, that in former days God made choice among us, that by my mouth the Gentiles should hear the word of the gospel, and believe... For it hath seemed good to the Holy Spirit and to us, to lay no further burden upon you [Christian Gentiles] than these necessary things: That you abstain from things sacrificed to idols, and from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication; from which things keeping yourselves, you shall do well. Fare ye well.” (Acts 15:7, 28-29)

However, the council did not tell the Christian Jews that they must no longer observe the Mosaic laws regarding circumcision and unclean meats. Hence many continued to observe these laws. However, some Christian Jews did not observe the law regarding unclean meats because of St. Peter’s vision in AD 39 in which God told him that all meats are clean:

“And on the next day whilst they were going on their journey and drawing nigh to the city, Peter went up to the higher parts of the house to pray, about the sixth hour. And being hungry, he was desirous to taste somewhat. And as they were preparing, there came upon him an ecstasy of mind. And he saw the heaven opened and a certain vessel descending, as it were a great linen sheet let down by the four corners from heaven to the earth, wherein were all manner of four footed beasts and creeping things of the earth and fowls of the air. And there came a voice to him: Arise, Peter, kill and eat. But Peter said: Far be it from me, for I never did eat any thing that is unclean and polluted. And the voice spoke to him again the second time: That which God hath cleansed do not thou call unclean.” (Acts 10:9-15)

But St. Peter never bound the Christian Jews to this new law that all meats are clean as he did with the Christian Gentiles at the Council of Jerusalem. As a result, some Christian Jews believed that the Mosaic laws regarding unclean meats applied to them but not to Christian Gentiles. But in opposition to the decree of the Council of Jerusalem, others believed that these laws also applied or at least should apply to the Christian Gentiles.

After the Council of Jerusalem, the Christian Jews who believed that these laws still applied to the Christian Gentiles violated the council’s decree. What, then, was their sin? The Mosaic law regarding clean and unclean animals is a disciplinary law and hence not a dogmatic law; consequently, those who knowingly violated this law were not heretics but were guilty of the sin of disobedience, either mortal or venial.

However, the Christian Jews who believed that these laws should apply to the Christian Gentiles after the Council of Jerusalem did not violate the council’s decree because they did not try to impose their opinion on the Christian Gentiles and thus upheld the council’s decree even though they did not agree with it. While upholding the decree, they were appealing to the same pope, St. Peter, or a future pope to abolish the disciplinary law that allowed Christian Gentiles to eat all meats. This happens many times with disciplinary laws. A believer who disagrees with a valid disciplinary law but still upholds it does not sin at all; he upholds the valid law in submission to the lawmaker and to prevent a sinful schism on his part.<sup>2924</sup>

For example, in the early days of the Catholic Church, the disciplinary law that determines when Resurrection Day should be celebrated was greatly disputed. Before the dispute was settled by a papal decree, there were two opinions and two practices. After the dispute was settled, there were still two opinions. Some on the losing side obeyed the decree and thus did not sin while still holding their opinion that contradicted the decree while they worked to overturn the decree. But others did not obey the decree and thus were guilty of a sin of disobedience, mortal or venial. The reason some leeway was given and thus some were guilty of venial sin only and not mortal sin is because long standing customs die hard, especially when they are enshrined in holy religious laws, such as the Old Covenant disciplinary laws. As long as the customs are not intrinsically sinful, they are many times allowed to die hard.

Four years after the Council of Jerusalem, in AD 54, St. Paul refers to certain Christian Jews as weak in the faith for believing that Christian Gentiles should also be bound to the Old Covenant laws regarding unclean meats and certain fasting days:

“Now him that is weak in faith, take unto you: not in disputes about thoughts. For one believeth that he may eat all things: but he that is weak, let him eat herbs.” (Rom. 14:1-2)

St. Paul is saying that if Christian Jews who still observed the Mosaic laws regarding unclean meats were eating with Christian Gentiles and the only meat served was unclean according to the Mosaic law, then let them eat herbs instead. By calling them weak, St. Paul shows that he holds the opinion that Christian Jews should not observe these laws, as he says in Verse 14:

“I know, and am confident in the Lord Jesus, that nothing is unclean of itself; but to him that esteemeth any thing to be unclean, to him it is unclean.” (Rom. 14:14)

Hence St. Paul is teaching that no meat is intrinsically unclean but only made so by the law. Therefore it is the violation of the law and not the meat itself that causes sin. And he gives his opinion that under the New Covenant all meats are clean not only for Christian Gentiles but also for Christian Jews. But the Christian Jews who held the allowable opinion that it was a sin for them to eat unclean meats, according to the Mosaic law, must not eat it under pain of sin.

“All things indeed are clean: but it is evil for that man who eateth with offence... For he who eateth and doubteth is condemned because [he eateth] not in faith. For all that is not of faith is sin.” (Rom. 14:20, 23)

<sup>2924</sup> Even doctrines that deal with faith or morals can be disputed but only if they have not yet been infallibly defined. After they are infallibly defined, there can be no legitimate opposition to them ever and in any way.

Because in good faith these Christian Jews held the opinion that they were still bound to the Mosaic laws regarding unclean meats, they were bound to keep these laws under pain of sin.

St. Paul is teaching that the Mosaic laws regarding circumcision and unclean meats are disciplinary laws and not dogmatic laws because they can be abolished or modified, as they indeed were at the Council of Jerusalem regarding the Christian Gentiles. St. Paul could have also added the fact that all meats were clean from the time of Adam and Eve until the time God gave Moses the law which declared certain meats unclean. Hence under the New Covenant, God abolished the laws regarding unclean meats and once again declared all meats clean. And St. Paul is making the case that the law that all meats are clean, which God gave to St. Peter in AD 39 before St. Peter baptized Cornelius and his family and friends, also applied to Christian Jews.

The legitimate disputes, then, between those who upheld the decrees of the Council of Jerusalem are as follows:

1. All meats are clean for Christian Gentiles but not for Christian Jews.
2. All meats should also be unclean for Christian Gentiles, just as for the Christian Jews. While this opinion disagreed with the council's decree, those who held it did not impose it upon the Christian Gentiles and thus upheld the decree.
3. All meats are clean both for Christian Gentiles and Christian Jews, not because of the decree of the council which did not apply to Christian Jews, but because of St. Peter's vision. St. Paul held this opinion.

There was also a legitimate dispute regarding fasting days:

"For one judgeth between day and day: and another judgeth every day: let every man abound in his own sense." (Rom. 14:5)

Because these were legitimate disputes, St. Paul warned opposing sides not to impose their opinion on others:

"Let not him that eateth, despise him that eateth not; and he that eateth not, let him not judge him that eateth." (Rom. 14:3)

"He that regardeth the day, regardeth it unto the Lord. And he that eateth, eateth to the Lord: for he giveth thanks to God. And he that eateth not, to the Lord he eateth not, and giveth thanks to God." (Rom. 14:6)

And St. Paul warns that when eating together, those who eat all meats should not eat meats that others believe are unclean:

"It is good not to eat flesh, and not to drink wine, nor any thing whereby thy brother is offended, or scandalized, or made weak. Hast thou faith? Have it to thyself before God. Blessed is he that condemneth not himself in that which he alloweth." (Rom. 14:21-22)

The sinful and thus unallowable opinion which hence did not uphold the decree of the Council of Jerusalem was that Christian Gentiles were bound to the Mosaic laws regarding unclean meats. Hence those who held this sinful opinion tried to impose their opinion on the Christian Gentiles. These were the Christian Jews (known as Judaizers) whom St. Paul vehemently opposed and condemned. See Galatians 3:1-3 as an example of how the Christian Judaizers tried to impose the Old Covenant rituals (such as circumcision) and disciplinary laws (such as regarding unclean meats) on the Christian Gentiles. And see Galatians 2:1-4 and Titus 1:10-5 for other examples regarding the Christian Judaizers.

Even though Justin Martyr was an apostate, he teaches the truth in this regard:

Apostate Justin Martyr, Dialogue with Trypho the Jew, 2nd century: "And Trypho again inquired, 'But if someone, knowing that this is so, after he recognizes that this man is Christ, and has believed in and obeys him, wishes, however, to observe these [institutions], will he be saved?'"

"I said, 'In my opinion, Trypho, such an one will be saved, if he does not strive in every way to persuade other men, I mean the Gentile [converts] ...to observe the same things as himself, telling them that they will not be saved unless they do so. This you did yourself at the commencement of the discourse, when you declared that I would not be saved unless I observe these institutions.'

"Then he replied, 'Why then have you said, "In my opinion, such an one will be saved," unless there are some who affirm that such will not be saved?'"

" 'There are such people, Trypho,' I answered; 'and these do not venture to have any intercourse with or to extend hospitality to such persons; but I do not agree with them. But if some, through weak-mindedness, wish to observe such institutions as were given by Moses, from which they expect some virtue, but which we believe were appointed by reason of the hardness of the people's hearts, along with their hope in this Christ, and [wish to perform] the eternal and natural acts of righteousness and piety, yet choose to live with the Christians and the faithful, as I said before, not inducing them either to be circumcised like themselves, or to keep the Sabbath, or to observe any other such ceremonies, then I hold that we ought to join ourselves to such, and associate with them in all things as kinsmen and brethren. But if, Trypho,' I continued, 'some of your race, who say they believe in this Christ, compel those Gentiles who believe in this Christ to live in all respects according to the law given by Moses, or choose not to associate so intimately with them, I in like manner do not approve of them. But I believe that even those, who have been persuaded by them to observe the legal dispensation along with their confession of God in Christ, shall probably be saved. And I hold, further, that such as have confessed and known this man to be Christ, yet who have gone back from some cause to the legal dispensation, and have denied that this man is Christ, and have repented not before death, shall by no means be saved. Further, I hold that those of the seed of Abraham who live according to the law, and do not believe in this Christ before death, shall likewise not be saved, and especially those who have anathematized and do anathematize this very Christ in the synagogues, and everything by which they might obtain salvation and escape the vengeance of fire. For the goodness and the loving-kindness of God, and his boundless riches, hold righteous and sinless the man who, as Ezekiel tells, repents of sins; and reckons sinful, unrighteous, and impious the man who falls away from piety and righteousness to unrighteousness and ungodliness. Wherefore also our Lord Jesus Christ said, 'In whatsoever things I shall take you, in these I shall judge you.' " (c. 47)

Mary Is the Mother of God

The incarnate God the Son is God and man. He has two natures, a divine nature from God the Father and a human nature from the Blessed Virgin Mary. And his two natures are united to one another in one divine person.<sup>2925</sup> His divine nature dominated and thus took up his human nature into his divine personhood:

The Athanasian Creed: "Who although he be God and man, yet he is not two but one Christ; one, however, not by conversion of the divinity into flesh but by taking of the manhood into God..."

Hence the Blessed Virgin Mary gave birth to the whole incarnate divine person of God the Son not just half of him, not just to his human nature but also to his divine nature which was united to his human nature. Therefore, Mary is truly the Mother of God because she conceived and gave birth to the divine person of God the Son united to a human nature.

When we say Mary is truly the Mother of God, we do not mean she created God or existed before God. She is a creature and thus was created by God. We mean that she conceived and gave birth to the Word of God made flesh, to God the Son who united himself to a human nature that he got from Mary:

"In the beginning was the Word [Jesus Christ], and the Word was with God, and the Word was God... AND THE WORD WAS MADE FLESH, and dwelt among us." (Jn. 1:1, 14)

And

"Behold a virgin shall be with child, and bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us." (Mt. 1:23)

Because the divine nature and human nature of Jesus Christ is united in one divine person, the person whom Mary conceived and gave birth to is the incarnate divine person of God the Son.

And even Jesus' human nature, which he got from Mary, was divinized the instant his human body was conceived and his human soul was created. And thus even Jesus' human nature is divine. It is a divine human nature.<sup>2926</sup> Hence Mary is the Mother of God on two counts: 1) For giving birth to the Incarnate divine person of God that Son; and, 2) for giving birth to God the Son's human nature which is divine.

So we see that the divine person of God the Son entered Mary womb in order to be born of Mary in which he needed to unite his divine nature to a human nature which he got from Mary. Hence Mary gave birth to not only the human nature of God the Son but also to his divine nature both of which were united in one divine person.

Who would dare say that the "God [in whom] all things are possible" (Mt. 19:26) could not have created for himself a mother if he wanted to! Indeed, he wanted to, and he did. And this shows how much God loves humans, to live among us as one of us, to have a mother who loves and cares for him and whom he loves and cares for in the most intimate way.

From his birth, one of Jesus' many titles was Emmanuel, as prophesied by Isaias, which means "God with us":

"Therefore the Lord himself shall give you a sign. Behold a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and his name shall be called Emmanuel." (Isa. 7:14)

St. Matthew recorded the fulfillment of this prophecy:

"Now all this was done that it might be fulfilled which the Lord spoke by the prophet, saying: Behold a virgin shall be with child, and bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us." (Mt. 1:22-23)

Here, then, we have another proof that Jesus is God and thus Mary is the mother of God.

And there is a mystery in this in that part of what Mary gave birth to came before her, the divine person and divine nature of God the Son, similar to God the Father who gave birth to God the Son but did not come before him but is coeternal with him<sup>2927</sup>:

Athanasian Creed, 4th century: "[God the Son] is God eternally begotten [born] of the substance of the Father... And in this Trinity is nothing before or after, nothing is greater or less. But all three Persons are co-eternal and co-equal with one another."

Therefore, just as God the Son was truly born of the God the Father even though the Father did not come before the Son, so also the divine person and divine nature of God the Son was truly born of Mary even though Mary did not come before the divine person and divine nature of God the Son. The difference is that Mary came after the divine person and divine nature of God the Son but God the Father did not come after God the Son but is coeternal with him.

On God's Chosen People and Church

God's chosen people are faithful to him. Hence they not only know the true God but also love and obey him. Therefore, no one can be a child of God and thus be chosen person of God unless they are faithful. Adam and Eve, before they fell and after they fell and repented, were the first to be God's chosen people. Noe and his seven family members were God's chosen people and all his descendants that were faithful. Abraham and all of his descendants that were faithful were God's chosen people, as were his son Isaac and Isaac's son Jacob. During the time of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, all or almost all other men and races were unfaithful. Because of Abraham's faith, God chose the sons of one of his descendants to be his chosen race. Those sons were the twelve sons of Jacob, who was also called Israel. Each son was a tribe of Israel and thus there were twelve tribes of Israel. And they were God's special and unique chosen people:

"But thou Israel art my servant, Jacob whom I have chosen, the seed of Abraham my friend." (Isa. 41:8)

"For the Lord hath chosen Jacob unto himself, Israel for his own possession." (Ps. 134:4)

"O ye seed of Israel his servants, ye children of Jacob, his chosen. He is the Lord our God; his judgments are in all the earth." (1 Par. 16:13-14)

"And I will dwell in the midst of the children of Israel, and I will not forsake my people Israel." (3 Ki. 6:13)

"Hear, O my people, and I will speak, O Israel, and I will testify to thee; I am God, thy God." (Ps. 49:7)

The main job of God's chosen race was to be faithful to God and make his teachings and commandments manifest to other races, the rest of mankind. And from this chosen race would come forth the Redeemer, the Messiah, who would save men from their sins and make it possible for them to escape everlasting damnation.<sup>2928</sup>

Because this chosen race, the Israelite race, was so special and unique and thus showered with extra-special graces, protection, and other gifts from God, Israelites who were not faithful were doubly cursed, more cursed than men who were never faithful to God. Ss. Luke and Peter put it this way:

"To whom they have committed much [as the Israelite race was], of him they will demand the more." (Lk. 12:48)

"For if flying from the pollutions of the world through the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ they be again entangled in them and overcome, their latter state is become unto them worse than the former. For it had been better for them not to have known the way of justice than after they have known it, to turn back from that holy commandment which was delivered to them." (2 Pt. 2:20-21)

An Israelite who falls away is so cursed that the Prophet Isaias does even look upon him as a racial Israelite. He calls them children of Sodom and Gomorrha:

"Except the Lord of hosts had left us seed, we had been as Sodom, and we should have been like to Gomorrha. Hear the word of the Lord [you evil Israelites], ye rulers of Sodom, give ear to the law of our God, ye people of Gomorrha. To what purpose do you offer me the multitude of your victims, saith the Lord?" (Isa. 1:9-11)

Even apostate Jews continue the practice today by casting out those who fall away from their false religion of Apostate Judaism. They pray Shiva for them as if they were dead and treat them as no longer racial Jews:

Quora: "Is Shiva held for people who convert out of Judaism despite being alive (like symbolism of that person dying and being dead to the Jewish faith), and shun them, or is this just my synagogue? It used to be common, but it has largely fallen out of practice since the 1970s due to a Teshuvah by HaRav Moshe Feinstein stating it should not longer be done."

Denominational switching among U.S. Jews: Reform Judaism has gained, Conservative Judaism has lost, by Jacob Ausubel, Gregory A. Smith, and Alan Cooperman: "The American Jewish population, like other religious groups, is in constant flux. Some people who were raised as Jews have left the religion... Overall, nearly nine-in-ten U.S. adults who were raised Jewish (88%) are still Jewish today... On the other hand, 12% of U.S. adults who were raised as Jewish are no longer Jewish, including 5% who are now Christians."

So, these apostate Jews even admit that faithfulness is a condition to remain Jewish; and thus if one is unfaithful, he is no longer looked upon as a racial Jew. Sadly, their faith is false. But the principle is the same with the true religion. A racial Jew who is not faithful during the New Covenant era and thus is not a Christian is no longer worthy of being looked upon as a racial Jew.

I have firsthand experience of this when I was practicing as an optician in New Jersey. I was selling a pair of eyeglasses to a woman who was with her child and Christmas was a week away. I said to her, "Merry Christmas." And she said, "We do not celebrate Christmas. We are Jewish." And I said, "Just because you are Jewish does not mean you cannot be a Christian and celebrate Christmas." I said, "Jesus is a Jew and thus or all races the Jews should be Christians." And she, "Oh, no Jews cannot be Christians." In essence, what she was saying is that the Jewish faith is so linked to the Jewish race, as it truly was during the Old Covenant era, that when a Jew loses the faith he is no longer considered a racial Jew. Sadly, again, in this case, her religion was false but the principle is the same.

While Jews who fell away from the faith during the Old Covenant era were no longer considered racial Jews, Gentiles who converted to Judaism were no longer considered Gentiles but were considered racial Jews:

“And if any stranger [Gentile] be willing to dwell among you and to keep the Phase of the Lord, all his males shall first be circumcised, and then shall he celebrate it according to the manner; and he shall be as he that is born in the land.” (Ex. 12:48)

“If a stranger [a Gentiles] dwell in your land and abide among you, do not upbraid him. But let him be among you as one of the same country; and you shall love him as yourselves; for you were strangers in the land of Egypt. I am the Lord your God.” (Lev. 19:33-34)

(See Isaias, Chapter 56)

The unfaithfulness of Israelites during the Old Covenant era would have scandalized the whole Israelite race and thus given the God of Israel a bad name if they were not cast out of the race and thus treated as unbelieving Gentiles. This is what St. Paul means when he says,

“For all are not Israelites that are of Israel... That is to say, not they that are the children of the flesh are the children of God, but they that are the children of the promise are accounted for the seed.” (Rom. 9:6, 8)

Here St. Paul is saying that an Israelite according to the flesh and thus according to race is not to be considered an Israelite if he is not faithful to God; and thus he is not a child of God and hence he is not a chosen person of God. In God’s eyes, because he chose it out of all other races, the Israelite race is equivalent to the true faith, the Church. Hence when an Israelite fell away, he was not to be accounted as part of that race. He was still racially an Israelite but not spiritually. Thus, as St., Paul says, “All are not Israelites that are of Israel.” Jesus taught the same thing regarding the Jews who did not believe in him. Even though they were racial descendants of Abraham, Jesus said the Abraham was not their father but the Devil was:

“I speak that which I have seen with my Father and you [racial Jews who did not believe in Jesus] do the things that you have seen with your father. They answered and said to him: Abraham is our father. Jesus saith to them: If you be the children of Abraham, do the works of Abraham. But now you seek to kill me, a man who have spoken the truth to you which I have heard of God. This Abraham did not. You do the works of your father. They said therefore to him: We are not born of fornication. We have one Father, even God. Jesus therefore said to them: If God were your Father, you would indeed love me. For from God I proceeded and came, for I came not of myself but he sent me: Why do you not know my speech? Because you cannot hear my word. You are of your father the devil, and the desires of your father you will do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and he stood not in the truth because truth is not in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own, for he is a liar and the father thereof.” (Jn. 8:38-44)

Even though these Jews were racial children of Abraham, they were not spiritual children of Abraham and thus were not worthy of having Abraham as their father. Instead, Jesus says that the Devil was their father. And this applies to all Christ-denying Jews down until today and forever. Yet, the bastard, apostate Christian Zionists have the lying audacity to say that Christ-denying Jews are children of God and God’s chosen people. Not only Christ but also St. Paul condemns these bastard Christian Zionists and the apostate Jews whom they idolize:

“Know ye therefore, that they who are of the [Catholic] faith, the same are the children of Abraham.... For you are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus.” (Gal. 3:7, 26)

Ergo, because Christ-denying Jews do not have faith in Christ Jesus, they are not children of God; and because they are not children of God, they cannot be God’s chosen people. The Christian Zionists, then, are blind and are leading the blind Christ-denying Jews into the pit:

“They are blind and leaders of the blind. And if the blind lead the blind both fall into the pit.” (Mt. 15:14)

“And they that call this people [Christ-denying Jews] blessed shall cause them to err; and they that are called blessed, shall be thrown down headlong.” (Isa. 9:16)

Not only are Christ-denying Jews not God’s chosen people, but the whole Jewish race also ceased to be God’s chosen race. Isaias prophesied that at time would come when the Israelites would commit a sin of such enormity against God that the Israelite race would no longer be God’s chosen race. He prophesied that a time would come when God would slay the vast majority of Jews because of their unbelief and would call his chosen people by another name:

“I have spread forth my hands all the day to an unbelieving people [the unbelieving Jews then and those who would not believe in Jesus], who walk in a way that is not good after their own thoughts. Thus saith the Lord... Depart from me, come not near me because thou art unclean. These shall be smoke in my anger, a fire burning all the day. Behold it is written before me: I will not be silent, but I will render and repay into their bosom. ...And you shall leave your name for an execration to my elect, and the Lord God shall slay thee and call his servants by another name.” (Isa. 65:2-15)

The enormous sin the Jews committed that caused them to no longer be God’s chosen race and people was when they murdered the Messiah, Jesus Christ. When, then, did this slaying, execration, and calling of God’s chosen people by another name come to pass? The slaying and execration came to pass when the Romans destroyed the Temple in AD 70 and killed hundreds of thousands of Christ-denying Jews. And the calling of God's chosen people by another name came to pass when Christ's followers were referred to as "disciples of Jesus" or "Nazarenes" or "Galileans" and then when they were first called "Christians" at Antioch. St. Luke says it was

"at Antioch the disciples were first named Christians." (Acts. 11:26)

Catholic commentary on Isaias 65:15: Christians: "God's chosen people shall be no longer called Jews. They shall be abhorred while the name of Christian shall point out God's servants."

And later God's chosen people were given the surname Catholic. Therefore, during the New Covenant era God's chosen people are called by the name Christian or Catholic instead of by the name Jew or Israelite. Jews lost their preeminence and hence there is no longer a spiritual distinction between faithful Jews and faithful Gentiles. St. Paul says,

"For as many of you as have been baptized in Christ have put on Christ. There is neither Jew nor Greek... For you are all one in Christ Jesus." (Gal. 3:27)

"There is neither Gentile nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision... But Christ is all and in all." (Col. 3:11)

"For there is no distinction of the Jew and the Greek, for the same is Lord over all, rich unto all that call upon him." (Rom. 10:12)

"That the Gentiles should be fellow heirs and of the same body and copartners of his promise in Christ Jesus by the gospel." (Eph. 3:6)

God did not only give a new name to his chosen people, but he also gave them a new covenant, a new priesthood, and a new name for his Church, the Christian Church, later called the Catholic Church.<sup>2929</sup> And all, the faithful Jews who lived during the Old Covenant era and are saved are in heaven and are Catholic Jews and thus are members of the Catholic Church.

For example, Moses, who was a faithful Israelite during the Old Covenant era, is now also a faithful Catholic. Hence the Moses Christ-denying Jews believe in is not the true Moses but a false Moses, a Moses who is not Catholic, a Moses who is a Talmudic Jew and thus an unfaithful Jew. Jesus told the Jews who did not believe in him that they did not believe in the true Moses either:

"Think not that I will accuse you to the Father. There is one that accuseth you, Moses in whom you trust. For if you did believe Moses, you would perhaps believe me also for he wrote of me. But if you do not believe his writings, how will you believe my words?" (Jn. 5:45-47)

So when you read of faithful Jews or faithful Israelites in the Old Testament, it applies to faithful

Catholics during the New Covenant era. And when you read of Gentiles in the Old Testament, it means unbelievers (non-Catholics) during the New Covenant era.

"But thou Israel [Catholics] art my servant, Jacob whom I have chosen, the seed of Abraham my friend." (Isa. 41:8)

"For the Lord hath chosen Jacob unto himself, Israel [Catholics] for his own possession." (Ps. 134:4)

"O ye seed of Israel [Catholics] his servants, ye children of Jacob, his chosen. He is the Lord our God; his judgments are in all the earth." (1 Par. 16:13-14)

"And I will dwell in the midst of the children of Israel [Catholics], and I will not forsake my people Israel." (3 Ki. 6:13)

"Hear, O my people, and I will speak, O Israel [Catholics], and I will testify to thee; I am God, thy God." (Ps. 49:7)

"I will bless them that bless thee [faithful Catholics], and curse them that curse thee."

"Thus saith the Lord God: Behold I will lift up my hand to the Gentiles [non-Catholics], and will set up my standard to the people. And they shall bring thy [Catholic] sons in their arms and carry thy daughters upon their shoulders. And kings shall be thy nursing fathers, and queens thy nurses; they shall worship thee [Catholics] with their face toward the earth, and they shall lick up the dust of thy feet. And thou shalt know that I am the Lord, for they shall not be confounded that wait for him." (Isa. 49:22-23)

"We [faithful Jews then and Catholics now] have heard, O God, with our ears. Our fathers have declared to us the work thou hast wrought in their days and in the days of old. Thy hand destroyed the Gentiles [unbelieving racial Gentiles then and non-Catholics now] and thou plantedst them [faithful Jews then and Catholics now]." (Ps. 43:2-3)

And when you read of unfaithful Jews or unfaithful Israelites in the Old Testament, it means non-Catholic Jews and nominal Christians, which includes nominal Catholics, during the New Covenant era; that is, it refers to God's chosen people who fell away and thus are no longer God's chosen people. And the word Gentile, as used during the Old Covenant and which means unbelievers, now means all non-Catholics and thus applies to unbelieving Jews, nominal Christians, Moslems, pagans, etc. during the New Covenant era. For example,

"And the children of Israel [unbelieving Israelites and nominal Christians] again did evil in the sight of the Lord." (Jdg. 4:1-3)

"Thus saith the Lord: What is this bill of the divorce of your mother [unbelieving Jews and nominal Christians] with which I have put her away? Or who is my creditor to whom I sold you.

Behold you are sold for your iniquities, and for your wicked deeds have I put your mother away.” (Isa. 50:1)

“The ox knoweth his owner and the ass his master's crib, but Israel [unbelieving Jews and nominal Christians] hath not known me and my people hath not understood. Woe to the sinful nation, a people laden with iniquity, a wicked seed, ungracious children; they have forsaken the Lord, they have blasphemed the Holy One of Israel, they are gone away backwards.” (Isa. 1:3-4)

“Woe to you, apostate children [apostate Jews and nominal Christians, especially apostate Catholics], saith the Lord, that you would take counsel and not of me, and would begin a web and not by my spirit, that you might add sin upon sin.” (Isa. 30:1)

“That because the rebellious Israel [unbelieving Jews and nominal Christians] had played the harlot, I had put her away and given her a bill of divorce.” (Jer. 3:8)

“Thy hand destroyed the Gentiles [non-Catholics].” (Ps. 43:3)

“And he brought them [believing Jews then and Catholics now] into the mountain of his sanctuary, the mountain which his right hand had purchased. And he cast out the Gentiles [unbelieving racial Gentiles then and non-Catholics now] before them; and by lot divided to them their land by a line of distribution.” (Ps. 77:54)

And when you read of faithful Israel in the Old Testament, it applies to Christian Church, which later was called the Catholic Church, during the New Covenant era.

“Blessed art thou, Israel [Catholic Church]. Who is like to thee?” (Deut. 33:29)

“Give ye glory to God for Israel [the God of the Catholic Church], his magnificence, and his power is in the clouds.” (Ps. 67:35)

“I have brought my justice near, it shall not be afar off; and my salvation shall not tarry. I will give salvation in Sion [to Catholics], and my glory in Israel [the Catholic Church].” (Isa. 46:12)

And when you read of unfaithful Israel in the Old Testament, it applies to the Churches and sects of non-Catholic Jews and to the Churches and sects of nominal Christians during the New Covenant era.

“And he said to me: Son of man, dost thou see, thinkest thou, what these are doing, the great abominations that the house of Israel [apostate Jews in Jerusalem and apostate Catholics in Rome] committeth here that I should depart far off from my sanctuary?” (Ez. 8:6)

“I found Israel [Judaism during the Old Covenant era and Catholicism during the New Covenant era] like grapes in the desert, I saw their fathers like the firstfruits of the fig tree in the top thereof. But they went in to Beelphegor and alienated themselves to that confusion and became abominable [became apostate Judaism and apostate Catholicism], as those things were which they loved. (Osee 9:10)

“Israel [the Churches and sects of apostate Jews and nominal Christians] is swallowed up, now is he become among the nations like an unclean vessel.” (Osee 8:8)

And when you read of faithful Jerusalem in the Old Testament, it applies to the home of the Christian Church during the New Covenant era (which was first in Jerusalem, then at Antioch, and then Rome); and it sometimes applies to the Catholic Church herself:

“Blessed be the Lord the God of our fathers, who hath put this in the king's heart, to glorify the house of the Lord, which is in Jerusalem [Jerusalem then and Rome now]. (1 Esd. 7:27)

“Arise, arise, put on thy strength, O Sion, put on the garments of thy glory, O Jerusalem [Jerusalem then and Rome now], the city of the Holy One.” (Isa. 52:1)

Regarding the second coming of Jesus Christ: “And this shall be the plague wherewith the Lord shall strike all nations that have fought against Jerusalem [the Catholic Church]: The flesh of every one shall consume away while they stand upon their feet, and their eyes shall consume away in their holes, and their tongue shall consume away in their mouth” (Zach. 14:12)

And when you read of unfaithful Jerusalem in the Old Testament, it applies to the home of the Catholic Church when it is unfaithful, as Rome (Vatican City) is today, which is apostate Rome; and it also applies to the physical land of Jerusalem when it is controlled by non-Catholic Jews, as it is today and thus is apostate Jerusalem. For example,

“How is the faithful city [Rome and Jerusalem] that was full of judgment become a harlot [apostate]? Justice dwelt in it, but now murderers.” (Isa. 1:21)

“Therefore thus saith the Lord the God of Israel [the God of the Catholic Church]: Behold I will bring on evils upon Jerusalem [apostate Jerusalem and apostate Rome].” (4 Ki. 21:12)

“And I have seen the likeness of adulterers and the way of lying in the prophets of Jerusalem [apostate Judaism and nominal Christians, which includes nominal Catholics], and they strengthened the hands of the wicked that no man should return from his evil doings; they are all become unto me as Sodom and the inhabitants thereof as Gomorrha. (Jer. 23:14)

And when you read of the Temple (God's sanctuary) in the Old Testament, it now applies to the church in Rome or other Catholic churches, as every Catholic church is a Temple of God. If the temple is holy, that means the Catholic church in Rome or other Catholic churches are holy. For example,

“But as for me in the multitude of thy mercy, I will come into thy house; I will worship towards thy holy temple [the holy Church in Rome], in thy fear.” (Ps. 5:8)

But when the temple is unholy, that means the nominal Catholic church in Rome or other nominal Catholic churches are unholy:

“Therefore as I live, saith the Lord God: Because thou hast violated my sanctuary [the nominal Catholic church in Rome or other nominal Catholic Churches] with all thy offences and with all thy abominations, I will also break thee in pieces and my eye shall not spare, and I will not have any pity. (Ez. 5:11)

“In that you have brought in strangers [non-Catholics]... to be in my sanctuary [the nominal Catholic church in Rome or other nominal Catholic churches] and to defile my house... and you have broken my covenant by all your wicked doings. (Ez. 44:7)

A place becomes unholy when the people who occupy the place become unholy. God is more concerned about people than inanimate places, even if they be holy:

“God did not choose the people for the place’s sake, but the place for the people’s sake.” (2 Mac. 5:19)

Sometimes the words Israel, Jerusalem, and Temple refer to the physical land or place, but in some cases can also have a symbolic meaning:

“This is what the children of Israel possessed in the land of Chanaan, which Eleazar the priest, and Josue the son of Nun, and the princes of the families by the tribes of Israel gave to them.” (Jos. 14:1)

“Thus saith the Lord God: This is the border by which you shall possess the land according to the twelve tribes of Israel, for Joseph hath a double portion” (Ez. 47:13)

“And the king went up to the temple of the Lord and all the men of Juda and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem.” (4 Ki. 23:2)

And sometimes the words Israelite and Gentile refer to that race, but in some cases can also have a symbolic meaning.

“All these are the twelve tribes of Israel. These things their father [Jacob] spoke to them, and he blessed every one, with their proper blessings.” (Gen. 49:28)

“By these were divided the islands of the Gentiles in their lands, every one according to his tongue and their families in their nations.” (Gen. 10:5)

Regarding the final day conversion of Jews: “And after this the children of Israel [racial Jews] shall return and shall seek the Lord their God, and David their king: and they shall fear the Lord, and his goodness in the last days.” (Osee 3:5)

Even though the Jews are no longer God’s chosen race and chosen people, the Jewish or Israelite race is the most beloved race in the eyes of God, for the sake of the faithful Jews who made God manifest to the world, prepared for the coming of the Messias, and from whom the Messias was born:

“For salvation is of the Jews.” (Jn. 4:22)

St. Paul speaks of this, as recorded in Romans, Chapter 11. In that chapter, St. Paul refutes the Gentile Christians who believed that God had utterly cast off the unbelieving Jews after the initial influx of Jewish converts so that they can no longer convert and be saved. They probably took out of context St. Paul’s following words:

“Then Paul and Barnabas said boldly: To you [unbelieving Jews] it behoved us first to speak the word of God; but because you reject it and judge yourselves unworthy of everlasting life, behold we turn to the Gentiles.” (Acts 13:46)

St. Paul was referring to the obstinate Jews he was preaching to, not to all unbelieving Jews in other areas or in future generations. So St. Paul starts out, as recorded in Romans 11, by teaching that God has not utterly cast off the unbelieving Jews so that none of them can convert and be saved:

“I say then: Hath God cast away his people? God forbid. For I also am an Israelite of the seed of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin. God hath not cast away his people, which he foreknew.” (Rom. 11:1-2)

St. Paul is teaching that there will be unbelieving Jews, such as he was, until the end of this world that will convert and be saved and thus are of the elect. And St. Paul says that God still loves the Jewish race above other races. And he teaches that unbelieving Jews will convert and thus be of the elect, and hence God’s calling of the Jews to repent and convert is in effect until the end of the world, when many unbelieving Jews will convert:

“As concerning the gospel, indeed, they are enemies for your sake; but as touching the election, they are most dear for the sake of the fathers, for the gifts and the calling of God are without repentance... And...if they abide not still in unbelief, shall be grafted in, for God is able to graft them in again.” (Rom. 11:28-29, 23)

As God says,

“And I will dwell in the midst of the children of Israel, and I will not forsake my people Israel.” (3 Ki. 6:13)

While God no longer dwells in the midst of the children of Israel but instead in the midst of Catholics, both Catholic Jews and Catholic Gentiles, God has not forsaken the Jews. He still loves them with a special love and calls them to conversion.

St. Paul, in the above quote, teaches that Jews who abide not in unbelief will be converted and saved. Take note that he is not teaching that all unbelieving Jews will convert but only those who abide not in unbelief. Conversely, those who abide in unbelief will not be saved. Therefore, the following statement of St. Paul must be taken in correct context or else it may seem that he is teaching that all Jews in the final days will convert and be saved and thus even those who abide in unbelief:

“For I would not have you ignorant, brethren, of this mystery, (lest you should be wise in your own conceits), that blindness in part has happened in Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles should come in. And so all Israel should be saved, as it is written: There shall come out of Sion, he that shall deliver, and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob.” (Rom. 11:25-26)

But in the same chapter, St. Paul teaches that only a remnant of Jews (Israelites) will convert:

“Even so then at this present time also, there is a remnant [of Israelites] saved according to the election of grace... [Hence] if, by any means, I may provoke to emulation them who are my flesh and may save some of them.” (Rom. 11:5, 14)]

And in Roman 9, St. Paul quotes the Prophet Isaias:

“And Isaias cried out concerning Israel: If the number of the children of Israel be as the sand of the sea, a remnant shall be saved.” (Rom. 9:27)

“For if thy people, O Israel, shall be as the sand of the sea, a remnant of them shall be converted.” (Isa. 10:22)

So what does St. Paul mean when he says in Romans 11:26 “all Israel should be saved”? St. Paul is teaching that all the lands that belonged to Israel shall be saved and thus restored to the faithful Israelites, all of whom are good Catholics, after the second coming of Jesus Christ. That is when the faithful Israelites shall finally possess the Holy Land, Israel, forever. Beware of the heretics, then, who believe that this verse means that all of the Israelites alive in the final days just previous to the second coming of Jesus will be saved; or, even worse, that all the Israelites that ever lived will be saved.

In Roman 11, St. Paul warns the Christian Gentiles not to be highminded toward the unbelieving Jews but rather they should fear that the same thing will happen to them if they fall away as did the unbelieving Jews. And it was prophesied that the Gentile Nations, indeed, will fall away in great numbers, as we see today. St. Paul says,

“For I would not have you ignorant, brethren, of this mystery, (lest you should be wise in your own conceits), that blindness in part has happened in Israel, until the fulness of the Gentiles should come in.” (Rom. 11:25)

Therefore, the Gentile Christians must not be highminded and think themselves better than the Jews simply because of their race. St. Paul teaches that it is more natural for a Jew to convert and be grafted into the Church than a Gentile because faithful Jews are the ones who make up the root of the tree which became Christianity:

“For if the firstfruit [faithful Jews] be holy, so is the lump also [the Jewish Church then]; and if the root be holy, so are the branches. And if some of the branches [non-Catholic Jews] be broken, and thou [Catholic Gentiles], being a wild olive, art ingrafted in them and art made partaker of the root and of the fatness of the olive tree, boast not against the branches. But if thou boast, thou bearest not the root, but the root thee. Thou wilt say then: The branches were broken off, that I might be grafted in. Well: because of unbelief they were broken off. But thou standest by faith; be not highminded, but fear. For if God hath not spared the natural branches [racial Jews], fear lest perhaps he also spare not thee [Gentile Catholics]. See then the goodness and the severity of God: towards them indeed that are fallen, the severity; but towards thee, the goodness of God, if thou abide in goodness, otherwise thou also shalt be cut off. And they also, if they abide not still in unbelief, shall be grafted in, for God is able to graft them in again.” (Rom. 11:16-23)

That does not mean unbelieving Jews must not be condemned. They must be condemned. And the more obstinate and dangerous they are, they more they must be condemned, abhorred, and even killed if necessary and possible. But they must also be called to conversion. To condemn them and not call them to conversion is the sin of being highminded toward the Jews for believing they cannot convert, or worse for not wanting them to convert. And that would be the sin of racism for condemning Jews simply because of their race. Does not Christ’s command to love all men and even our enemies apply to Jews?

“But I say to you, Love your enemies: do good to them that hate you: and pray for them that persecute and calumniate you:” (Mt. 5:44)

Yes, a Catholic must love the most evil of Jews. But he must also never forget that they are his enemy regarding the Catholic faith and thus regarding God. Hence he must condemn them, punish them if necessary and possible, and call them to conversion.

St. Paul then ends by teaching that no man is saved by race and that the majority of men from every race end up in hell, which includes the Jewish race:

“For God hath concluded all in unbelief, that he may have mercy on all.” (Rom. 11:32)

Therefore, let no man boast of his race as if he can be saved by his race. And this includes men of the Jewish race. Even though God loves the Jewish race above other races that does not mean all Jews will be saved. In fact, most Jews will end up in hell, just as most Gentiles.

However, it can be said that one race is better than another based upon the number of believers in a race and thus it is not their race that made the race better but the faith of the members in the race. Men are saved not by race and blood, but by grace and faith.<sup>2930</sup> Some racers are so evil that God has had them obliterated, what today is called genocide.

Lastly, and again, beware of Christian Zionism, of which the Vatican II Church is the foremost and the most influential promoter. The Vatican II Church made popular the apostate belief that Christ-denying Jews are holy, God's chosen people, and under a covenant with God; and hence they do not have to believe in Jesus Christ to be saved. Two of many Bible verses that condemn them are as follows:

“He that believeth in the Son hath life everlasting; but he that believeth not the Son shall not see life but the wrath of God abideth on him.” (Jn. 3:36)

“[The Jews] both killed the Lord Jesus, and the prophets, and have persecuted us, and please not God, and are adversaries to all men;” (1 Thes. 2:15)

(See RJMI Topic Index: Zionism.)

On the Word Gods

The word “gods” is most often used in the evil sense to mean false gods. However, the word “gods” is also used in the good sense to mean rulers or to mean men who are pleasing to God and thus said to be god-like or sons of God or children of God. For example,

God called Moses a god to mean a ruler of Pharaoh:

“And the Lord said to Moses: Behold I have appointed thee the god of Pharaoh, and Aaron thy brother shall be thy prophet.” (Ex. 7:1)

And the word “gods” in the following verses mean men who are pleasing to God who are also called sons of God because they are like God:

“God hath stood in the congregation of gods; and being in the midst of them, he judgeth gods...I have said: You are gods and all of you the sons of the most High.” (Ps. 81:1, 6)

Jesus says, “If he called them gods to whom the word of God was spoken and the scripture cannot be broken; Do you say of him whom the Father hath sanctified and sent into the world: Thou blasphemest, because I said, I am the Son of God?” (Jn. 10:34-36)

“But as many as received him, he gave them power to be made the sons of God, to them that believe in his name. (Jn. 1:12)

“Being justified therefore by faith, let us have peace with God, through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom also we have access through faith into this grace wherein we stand and glory in the hope of the glory of the sons of God.” (Rom. 5:1-2)

But Christ is the Son of God by birth and nature whereas as mere men can become sons of God only by grace and adoption. Hence when some of the Church Fathers said that “God became man so that man may become god or become gods,” they mean that men can become like God and thus become sons of God by grace and adoption but not by birth and nature. For example,

St. Athanasius, On the Incarnation, 4th century: “For he [Jesus] was made man that we might be made god (or become gods).” (54, 3)

St. Augustine, Exposition on the Psalms, Psalm 50: “2. ...Another Psalm [Ps. 81:1] saith, ‘God hath stood in the synagogue of gods, but in the midst he judgeth gods.’ ...It is evident, then, that he hath called men gods that are deified of his grace not born of his substance... See in the same Psalm those to whom he saith, ‘I have said, ‘Ye are gods, and children of the Highest all; but ye shall die like men, and fall like one of the princes.’ It is evident then, that he hath called men gods that are deified of his grace, not born of his substance.”

On the Word “Hell” as Used in Some Bibles

The Latin word for the underworld is Infernus, the Hebrew word is Sheol, the Greek word is Hades, and the Germanic word is Hell:

World Dictionary: Infernus: 1. Infernus, inferni (masculine noun) inhabitants of the lower world. 2. infernus, inferna, infernum (Adjective) lower, under; underground, the lower regions.”

Wikipedia: “Sheol (/ˈʃiː.ʊəl, -ə/ SHEE-ohl, -əl; Hebrew: שְׁאוֹל šəʾōl) in the Hebrew Bible... Although not well defined in the Tanakh, Sheol in this view was a subterranean underworld where the souls of the dead went after the body died. Within the Hebrew Bible, there are few – often brief and nondescript – mentions of Sheol, seemingly describing it as a place where both the righteous and the unrighteous dead go.”

Merriam-Webster Dictionary: “Hades: ...2. The underground abode of the dead in Greek mythology.”

Wikipedia: “Hell: The modern English word hell is derived from Old English hel, helle (first attested around 725 AD to refer to a nether world of the dead) reaching into the Anglo-Saxon pagan period. The word has cognates in all branches of the Germanic languages, including Old Norse hel.”

Hence the word “hell” as used in many Bibles literally means the underworld and thus does not necessarily mean the place where the damned are. It also included the Limbo of the Fathers which only existed during the Old Testament era and includes purgatory which still exists. Therefore, places in hell are as follows:

- The hell of the damned, which exists forever
- The hell of the Limbo of the Fathers, which only existed during the Old Testament era, and was also known as Abraham's Bosom

- The hell of Purgatory, which existed during the Old Testament era and exists during the New Covenant era.

Every place in hell is under the dominion of the Devil and thus even the Limbo of the Fathers and Purgatory, and therefore every place in hell is a prison. But the Devil only has a passive claim on the elect in Purgatory and the Limbo of the Fathers. The Limbo of the Fathers was a peaceful and joyful place where no sins were committed and no devils and damned humans resided.

Because the most common meaning of word hell is the place where the damned are (the hell of the damned), it is not prudent to use the word hell in the Bible. And, more importantly, it is a mistranslation of the Hebrew, Latin, and Greek texts.

The use of the word hell, then, for all three places can cause confusion because most people believe the word means the hell of the damned. For example, the following English translation of Genesis 37:35 could be taken to mean that Jacob wants to go to the hell of the damned to mourn for his son Joseph, who he believed was dead. And thus it could be taken to mean that he believed Joseph was in the hell of the damned:

“I [Jacob] will go down to my son [Joseph] into hell, mourning.” (Gen. 37:35)

Because we know that Jacob and Joseph were faithful and just, we know that the word hell means the place in the underworld where the elect are, known as the Limbo of the Fathers. But if words such as the “underworld” or the “lower regions” were used, then there would be no confusion as these words incorporate all the places without specifying which place. The reader would then need to know more information about the person spoken of or see if other words in the text are more specific as to which place is referred to. And that is precisely the word used in the Latin text: infernus, which means “lower regions” or “the underworld”:

World Dictionary: Infernus: 1. Infernus, inferni (masculine noun) inhabitants of the lower world. 2. infernus, inferna, infernum (Adjective) lower, under; underground, the lower regions.”

For example, the Latin text for Genesis 37:35 is as follows, followed by the correct English translation:

“Et ait descendam ad filium meum lugens in infernum.” (Gen. 37:35)

“I will go down to my son into the underworld (or lower regions), mourning.” (Gen. 37:35)

The word underworld incorporates all the places in the underworld and thus the place where the damned are cannot be implied, which would be the case if the word hell were used because most people believe that hell is the place where the damned are. Knowing that Jacob and Joseph were faithful and just, we know that the place in the underworld that Jacob is referring to is the Limbo of the Fathers.

Hence the English translations of the Bible should use the word “underworld” or “lower regions” for the Latin word infernus instead of the word hell. Another good English translation would also be to use the Hebrew word Sheol. I use the English word “the underworld” in the Catholic Bible I revised.

There is a specific Hebrew and Greek word for the place in the underworld where the damned are. The Hebrew word is gehenna, and the Greek word is tartarus.

Encyclopedia Britannica: Gehenna, also called Gehinnom, abode of the damned in the afterlife in Jewish and Christian eschatology.”

Wikipedia: Tartarus: In Greek mythology, Tartarus (/ˈtɑːrtərəs/; Ancient Greek: Τάρταρος, Tártaros) is the deep abyss that is used as a dungeon of torment and suffering for the wicked... Tartarus is the place where, according to Plato's Gorgias (c. 400 BC), souls are judged after death and where the wicked received divine punishment.”

Therefore, when the Latin or Hebrew or Greek text uses the words gehenna or tartarus, it means the place in the underworld where the damned are. And the English translation must reflect this and thus not simply translate it as hell or as the underworld, as most English translations do. Take for example the incorrect English translation of Matthew 23:15:

“Woe to you scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites; because you go round about the sea and the land to make one proselyte; and when he is made, you make him the child of hell twofold more than yourselves.” (Mt. 23:15)

It is clear from the context that the place in hell that these Pharisees are going is the hell of the damned, and thus in context the word “hell” means the hell of the damned. However, the Latin text does not have the word infernus (the underworld) but is more specific. It has the word gehenna, which means the place in hell where the damned are:

“Vae vobis scribae et Phariseae hypocritae quia circuitis mare et aridam ut faciatis unum proselytum et cum fuerit factus facitis eum filium gehennae duplo quam vos.” Mt. 23:15)

Hence the English should be as follows:

“...you make him the child of gehenna twofold more than yourselves.” (Mt. 23:15)

The English translation of 2 Pt. 2:4 is also not correct but is more specific about the place in hell that the fallen angels are:

“For if God spared not the angels that sinned, but delivered them, drawn down by infernal ropes to the lower hell, unto torments, to be reserved unto judgment.” (2 Pt. 2:4)

The lower hell, then, is the place in hell where the damned are. However, the Latin text does not say lower hell but gives the specific name for the place, tartarum:

“Si enim Deus angelis peccantibus non pepercit sed rudentibus inferni detractos in tartarum tradidit in iudicium cruciatus reservari.” (2 Pt. 2:4)

“For if God spared not the angels that sinned, but delivered them, drawn down by infernal ropes to tartarus unto torments, to be reserved unto judgment.” (2 Pt. 2:4)

I prefer to use the Hebrew word—“to gehenna unto torments,” as all the other Latin texts of the New Testament use the word “gehenna” instead of tartarus and because the Greek word tartarus is too closely associated with Greek mythology.

The following English translation of 2 Pter. 2:4 is also acceptable even though it is wordier because it gives the English definition of word gehenna or tartarus:

Common English Bible: “God didn’t spare the angels when they sinned but cast them into the lowest level of the underworld and committed them to chains of darkness, keeping them there until the judgment.”

To be precise, then, the word hell is not contained in the original text of the Bible. The words used are either infernus or sheol to mean underworld or lower regions or the word gehenna (in several places) or the word tartarum (in one place) for the place in the underworld where the damned are.

Hence, the most accurate English translation is to use the word “underworld” or “lower regions” for the Latin word “infernus” or the Hebrew word “sheol.” I will use the word “underworld” instead of “lower regions” as it is more concise.

And the more accurate English translation is to use the word gehenna or tartarus for the place in the underworld where the damned are. I will use the word gehenna, as it is a Hebrew word and thus not use the word Tartarus which is a Greek word that is too easily associated with Greek mythology. If one still wants to use the word hell in lectures or extra-biblical works, it should only be used to mean the place where the damned are and thus no qualifications have to be made such as saying “the hell of the damned” or “the place in the underworld where the damned are.”

In my works before this article (6-2022), I used the word hell to mean all three places in the underworld

“And I say to thee: That thou art Peter; and upon this rock I will build my Church, and the gates of gehenna shall not prevail against it. And I will give to thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven. And whatsoever thou shalt bind upon earth, it shall be bound also in heaven: and whatsoever thou shalt loose upon earth, it shall be loosed also in heaven.” (Mt. 16:18-19)

Mt. 16:19. I will give to thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven: St. Peter was the first Apostle to proclaim Jesus Christ as the Messiah. Hence Jesus rewarded him by decreeing that St. Peter would be the supreme visible head (the first pope) of God’s Catholic Church on earth. He would be the rock of the Catholic Church on earth and would be given the keys of the Catholic Church in which he would have supreme power of binding men to doctrines and against heresies and of binding and loosing disciplinary laws, judgments, and punishments.

Before Jesus’ passion and death, Jesus foretold that St. Peter would convert from his three-time denial of unless otherwise noted. But because the word hell is commonly believed to mean the place where the damned are, I will now use the word hell to mean the place where the damned are or I will use the word gehenna to avoid confusion. And I will use the word the underworld or sheol for all the places under the earth, in the lower regions of the earth, unless otherwise noted.

Lastly, on this topic, most English translations of the later version of the Apostles’ Creed are incorrect:

“I believe in God the Father... in Jesus Christ, his only son, our Lord who... suffered under Pontius Pilate, crucified, died, and was buried, and descended into hell.”

Because most people believe the word hell means the hell of the damned, they may believe that Jesus did not go to the Limbo of the Fathers but went to the hell of the damned. But Catholics know that Jesus went to the Limbo of the Fathers to free them and thus the word hell means the underworld and more specifically the Limbo of the Fathers. And some, such as myself, hold the allowable that Jesus also went to the place in the underworld where the damned are to chain up Satan and the other devils and thus limit their power. Hence, the word hell as used in this later version of the Apostles’ Creed means “the underworld.” And this is the correct translation of the Latin text with has the word “infernus”:

Latin: “Descendit ad inferos” = English: “descended into the underworld”

Hence the accurate Apostles’ Creed in English is as follows:

“I believe in God the Father... in Jesus Christ, his only son, our Lord who... suffered under Pontius Pilate, crucified, died, and was buried, and descended into the underworld.”

Papal Supremacy

him and then would be the one to confirm the brethren and thus be the head of the Apostles and the Catholic Church:

“But I [Jesus] have prayed for thee [St. Peter] that thy faith fail not; and thou, being once converted, confirm thy brethren.” (Lk. 22:32)

Hence St. Peter was not yet head of the Catholic Church until he converted from his three-time denial of Jesus Christ. Therefore St. Peter was not made the pope until after Jesus Christ rose from the dead and St. Peter made his triple confession of his love for Jesus for his mortal sins against the faith for denying Christ three times, and when Jesus made his triple confirmation of St. Peter as the head of the Catholic Church when he told St. Peter to “feed my lambs..., feed my lambs..., feed my sheep.” (Jn. 21:15-17) The feeding of God’s sheep was always the task of the head of God’s Church, and thus this was the task of the High Priest during the Old Covenant era:

“I will save my flock...and I will set up one shepherd over them...he shall feed them, and he shall be their shepherd.” (Ez. 34:22-23)

More proofs of St. Peter’s primacy and supremacy over the other Apostles are as follows:

- 1) Whenever a list of the apostles is given in the Bible, St. Peter is always mentioned first. (Mt. 10:2-4; Mk. 3:14-19; Lk. 3:13-16; Jn. 21:2; Acts 3:1-2) It cannot be said that St. Peter is mentioned first because he was the first apostle that Jesus chose because St. Andrew was chosen before St. Peter. (Jn. 1:40-42)
- 2) The Bible mentions three occasions that Jesus took Peter, James, and John with him and St. Peter is always mentioned first: At Jesus’ Transfiguration (Mt. 17:1); when Jesus raised Jairus’ daughter from the dead (Mk.5:35-37); and in the Garden of Gethsemane (Mt. 26:36-38). And St. Peter is mentioned first among Ss. James, John, and Andrew. (Mk. 13:2-4)
- 3) Jesus Christ preached from St. Peter’s boat when other boats were available. (Lk. 5:3)
- 4) Jesus commanded St. Peter to pay the tax. (Mt. 17:23-26)
- 5) St. Peter was the only apostle who walked on water. (Mt. 14:28)
- 6) When all the apostles were sleeping in the Garden of Gethsemane, Jesus addressed St. Peter. (Mt. 26:40)
- 7) After Jesus’ resurrection, the angel told the women to tell “the disciples and Peter” about the resurrection and thus did not mention by name any other disciple. (Mt. 16:5-7)
- 8) St. Peter was the first apostle to enter the empty tomb while St. John waited for St. Peter to enter first. (Jn. 20:1-6)
- 9) After his resurrection, Jesus appeared to St. Peter before he appeared to any other apostle. (Lk. 24:34; 1 Cor. 15:5)
- 10) St. Peter was the first and main preacher on Pentecost Day. (Acts 2:14)
- 11) St. Peter called and presided over the appointment of an apostle to replace Judas Iscariot. That apostle was St. Matthias. (Acts 1:15-23)
- 12) While the other apostles were present, St. Peter passed sentence upon Ananias and Saphira for holding back their promised donations. (Acts 5:1-5)
- 13) St. Peter, and not St. John, spoke before the High Priest. (Acts 4:6-8)
- 14) In AD c. 39, God revealed to St. Peter that all meats could now be eaten under the New Covenant and that it was time to evangelize the Gentiles. St. Peter, then, by the command of God, baptized the Roman centurion Cornelius and his family. (Acts 10)

15) In AD c. 37, three years after his conversion, St. Paul went to Jerusalem to meet with St. Peter and not with St. James who was also present in Jerusalem. Hence St. Paul acknowledged St. Peter’s authority over St. James. (Gal. 1:18-19)

16) In AD c. 42, Herod martyred St. James, son of Zebedee, at Jerusalem and imprisoned St. Peter, who miraculously escaped. St. Peter then made St. James, son of Alphaeus, bishop of Jerusalem and then fled and moved his See to Antioch. (Acts 12:1-3)

17) In AD c. 51 St. Peter, the head of the Catholic Church, was the first to speak and pass sentence at the Council of Jerusalem even though St. James was the bishop of Jerusalem. St. James also gave his judgment, which was the same as St. Peter’s, and all the other disciples present consented. It was St. Peter’s decision that was the deciding and infallible factor, as he was the head of the Catholic Church. However, there was never any dispute about the decision because all the disciples consented. (Acts 15)

18) In AD c. 58, St. Paul visited Jerusalem and met with St. James, the bishop of Jerusalem, as St. Peter was not present. (Acts 21:17-18)

There is only one God and hence only one faith, one religion, and one ruler of God’s Church:

“One Lord, one faith, one baptism. One God and Father of all, who is above all.” (Eph. 4:5-6)

“If he will not hear the Church, let him be to thee as the heathen and publican.” (Mt. 18:17)

“There shall be one fold [Church] and one shepherd [supreme ruler of the Church on earth].” (Jn. 10:16)

The only form of government approved by God is a hierarchy with one man ruling. This reflects God’s hierarchy in heaven in which God alone is the supreme ruler with lesser rulers under him and lesser rulers under them. Any form of government that does not have one man ruling, causes, by its very nature, confusion, divisions, rebellions, revolutions, instability, and uncertainty. Jesus said, “Every kingdom divided against itself shall be made desolate; and every city or house divided against itself shall not stand.” (Mt. 12:25)

During the Old Covenant era, the High Priest was the pope and thus the supreme head of the Church on earth:

“[God] chose him [Aaron] out of all men living, to offer sacrifice to God, incense, and a good savour, for a memorial to make reconciliation for his people. And he gave him power in his commandments, in the covenants of his judgments, that he should teach Jacob his testimonies and give light to Israel in his law.” (Eccus. 45:20-21)

Hence the High Priest had the power to bind and loose; that is, to make laws, bind men to them, judge men, punish offenders, and teach infallibly:

“The words of the wise are as goads and as nails deeply fastened in, which by the counsel of masters are given from one shepherd.” (Ectes. 12:11)

Even though the one shepherd might take counsel from many masters, it is his decisions that are binding. Likewise, during the New Covenant era the pope is the High Priest and head of God’s Catholic Church on earth. And Jesus teaches that his Church (his fold) will be ruled by one shepherd:

“And other sheep I have that are not of this fold: them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice, and there shall be one fold and one shepherd.” (Jn. 10:16)

In honor of the office, the High Priest was clothed in glory, which included “a crown of gold upon his mitre.” And he was called Holiness:

“And a crown of gold upon his mitre wherein was engraved Holiness, an ornament of honour: a work of power, and delightful to the eyes for its beauty.” (Eccus. 45:14)

“And thou shalt make a holy vesture for Aaron thy brother for glory and for beauty... Thou shalt make also a plate of the purest gold wherein thou shalt grave with engraver’s work, Holy to the Lord. And thou shalt tie it with a violet fillet, and it shall be upon the mitre.” (Ex. 28:2, 32-37)

If the head of the Church during the Old Covenant era was clothed in glory and called Holiness, how much more must the head of the Church during the New Covenant era be clothed in glory and called Holiness. The head of the Church is called holiness not because he is holy, even though he may be, but in honor of the holiness of the office. Hence the pope, like the Old Covenant High Priest, is the head of God’s Church on earth and therefore should be clothed in glory, wear a mitre, and be called “your Holiness.” And he, too, has the power to bind and loose; that is, to make laws, bind men to them, judge men, punish offenders, and teach and judge infallibly, even when many masters give him counsel, such as at ecumenical councils.

And there is an unbroken extra-biblical Tradition from the time of the Apostles onward that teaches the dogma of papal supremacy, as upheld by all the Church Fathers and popes from St. Peter onward. What follows is a brief list of the popes’ teachings. The quotes from Pope St. Anacletus to Pope St. Sylvester I are taken from the apostate Francisco Suarez’s work titled Defence of the Catholic and Apostolic Faith (Defensio Fidei Catholicae et Apostolicae), AD 1613, Book 3, Chapter 15. For more quotes from the popes from Pope St. Sylvester I onward, see his book. Even though he was an apostate, he teaches the truth in this regard:

Pope St. Anacletus (76-88), the 3rd pope: “In his Epistle 1, he says that the Apostolic See is that on which Christ has founded his Church and therefore the greater causes pertain to it; in Epistle 2, he says: ‘We hold the reins of government of the Church’; and in Epistle 3, he expressly confirms and declares this truth, saying that ‘the Roman and Apostolic Church has from the Savior himself obtained primacy and eminence of power over all churches.’ “

Pope St. Clement I (88-97): the 4th pope: “He says, ‘Accept our advice and you will have nothing to regret. For as God lives, and the Lord Jesus Christ lives, and the Holy Spirit... if certain people should disobey what has been said by him through us [popes], let them understand that they will entangle themselves in no small sin and danger... For you will give us great joy and gladness, if you obey what we have written through the Holy Spirit.’<sup>2931</sup>“

Pope St. Evaristus (97-105), the 5th pope: “In his Epistle 1, he calls ‘the Roman Bishop the head to whom in doubtful matters recourse must be had.’ “

Pope St. Alexander I (105-115), the 6th pope: “In his Epistle 1, he calls the Roman Bishop the ‘apex and head.’ “

Pope St. Sixtus I (115-125), the 7th pope: “He calls the Roman Bishop the ‘head of all churches.’ “

Pope St. Anicetus (155-166), the 11th pope: “In his sole letter he says that ‘to himself pertains all judgments of bishops.’ “

Pope St. Eleutherius (175-189), the 13th pope: “He says the same in his Epistle, c. 2.”

Pope St. Callistus (217-222), the 16th pope: “In his Epistle 1, commenting on Matthew 16, he calls the church in Rome the head of all the whole Catholic Church, and that it pertains to it by apostolic authority to instruct the rest, and at the end: ‘For I am mindful that I preside over the Church under his name whose confession is glorified by the Lord Jesus Christ, and whose faith always destroys all errors.’ “

Pope St. Anterus (235-236), the 19th pope: “He teaches the same to the bishops established in the province of Baetica and Toledo, replying to their consultation about the exchange of bishops. First he takes the occasion to say that Peter, whom he calls ‘our holy master and prince of the apostles,’ was transferred from Antioch to Rome for utility’s sake. And declaring that the same could be done in other bishoprics by apostolic authority, he subjoins: ‘These things, as you have requested them, though they are not unknown to you, we command to be observed.’ And at the end: ‘Therefore, brothers, stand and hold the traditions of the apostles and of the Apostolic See.’ “

Pope St. Fabian (236-250), the 20th pope: “In his Epistle 1, he says ‘We are admonished by the divine precepts and the Apostolic Institutions that for the state of all the churches we keep watch with tireless love. Hence, it follows, you must know the things that in the Roman Church are done in the sacred rite of the Church, so that, following her examples, you may be found true sons of her who is called your mother.’ In Epistles 2 and 3, he says, ‘On this account by divine grace we have been advanced to the sacerdotal summit and established on a certain watchtower of the priests of God, to prohibit what is illicit and to teach what is to be followed.’ “

Pope St. Cornelius (251-253), the 21st pope: “In his Epistle to Cyprian, which is the 46th among Cyprian’s letters, he relates that certain people, deceived by ignorance, made schism against him; but that afterwards, when they had realized the truth, they came to their senses in the following words, which he affirms are their own: ‘We know that Cornelius has been chosen Bishop of the most holy Catholic Church by the Almighty God and by Christ our Lord.’ And later: ‘Our mind was always in the Catholic Church, for neither are we ignorant that there is one God, that there is one Christ the Lord, whom we confess, one Holy Spirit, that there ought to be one Bishop over the Catholic Church.’ Which confession he himself so approves that he says: ‘Were we not moved by their profession?’ And later: ‘These letters we judge you should send to the rest of the churches.’ “

Pope St. Lucius I (253-254), the 22nd pope: “His epistle to the West begins thus: ‘The letters of your love, which you have sent to the See of the blessed apostle Peter for reason of your business, we have gladly received.’ And afterwards he replies as universal pastor and makes disposition of many things.”

Pope St. Sixtus II (257-248), the 24th pope: “In his first epistle, he first says that he ‘presides over the Church in the name of him whose confession is praised by Christ and whose faith never deceives anyone but destroys all heresies.’ But later he adds that it is licit for bishops to appeal to the Apostolic See, ‘to whose disposition all the more important ecclesiastical causes and the courts of the bishops have, by the ancient authority of the apostles, of their successors, and of the canons, been reserved; since bishops are held blameworthy who have done otherwise toward their brothers than it has pleased the Pope of the same See to be done.’ “

Pope St. Dionysius (256-268), the 25th pope: “The like (as stated by Pope St. Sixtus II) is contained in Epistle 2 of Dionysius to Bishop Severus: ‘From the beginning we have from blessed Peter, prince of the apostles, received trust so great that we have the authority, by the help of the Lord, to come to the aid of the Universal Church.’ And afterwards he prescribes a division of parishes to be carried out and the norm given by him to be made known to all. ‘So that this precept,’ he says, ‘might not be special but general.’ “

Pope St. Felix I (269-274), the 25th pope: “In his first epistle, he confirms that ‘the greater causes of the whole Church are reserved to himself.’ “

Pope St. Marcellus I (308-309), the 30th pope: “His first epistle to the bishops of the province of Antioch thus begins: ‘Carrying the care of all the churches, according to the apostle.’ Which thing he pursues at large by confirming everything said above, and he adds that ‘no synod can be legitimately made without the authority of the Roman See.’ And these things may be enough for confuting the assertion of the king, for Marcellus lived up to the year of Christ 310; but for the greater evidence of the truth, we must at least run through the other three centuries following.”

Pope St. Eusebius (309), the 31st pope: “Thus begins his third epistle: ‘Blessed be the Lord our God, who by his mercy has dedicated his Roman Church to the priesthood of the blessed apostle Peter, and has conceded, by exchange of love, to show us the way that concerns us, because of the universal care which is ours on account of the privilege of the same church.’ “

Pope St. Melchiades (aka Miltiades) (311-314), the 32nd pope: “In his epistle to the bishops of Spain, when saying that it pertains to himself to pass judgment on bishops, he adds: ‘For these the Lord has reserved for his own judgment, and this privilege he has committed to blessed Peter alone, the bearer of the keys and his vicar. Which prerogative has justly grown in his See, to be inherited and possessed by future times, since among the apostles too there was a certain discrimination of power.’ “

Pope St. Sylvester I (314-336), the 33rd pope: “We can adduce the final canon of the Roman Synod established under him, which runs thus: ‘No one will judge the first See, since all sees desire justice to be moderated by the first See. Nor by Augustus, nor by any cleric, nor by kings, nor by the people will the judge be judged.’ And it was subscribed to by 284 bishops with some priests and deacons, and even by Augustus Constantine himself.”

Pope St. Damascus I, (366-384), the 37th pope: “We have considered that it ought to be announced that although all the Catholic churches spread abroad through the world comprise but one bridal chamber of Christ, nevertheless, the holy Roman Church has been placed at the forefront not by conciliar decisions of other churches, but has received the primacy by the evangelic voice of our Lord and Savior, who says: ‘You are Peter, and upon this rock I will build my Church, and the gates of hell will not prevail against it; and I will give to you the keys of the kingdom of heaven, and whatever you shall have loosed on earth shall be loosed in heaven.’ ... The first See, therefore, is that of Peter the Apostle, that of the Roman Church, which has neither stain nor blemish nor anything like it.”<sup>2932</sup>

Pope St. Siricius (384-399), the 38th pope: “We bear the burdens of all who are heavy laden; nay, rather, the blessed apostle Peter bears them in us and protects and watches over us, his heirs, as we trust, in all the care of his ministry... Now let all your priests observe the rule here given, unless they wish to be plucked from the solid, apostolic rock upon which Christ built the universal Church.”<sup>2933</sup>

Pope St. Innocent I (401-417), the 40th pope: “In seeking the things of God...following the examples of ancient tradition...you have strengthened...the vigor of your religion with true reason, for you have acknowledged that judgment is to be referred to us, and have shown that you know what is owed to the Apostolic See, if all of us placed in this position are to desire to follow the Apostle himself from whom the episcopate itself and the total authority of this name have emerged.”<sup>2934</sup>

Pope St. Boniface I (418-422), the 42nd pope: “The universal ordering of the Church at its birth took its origin from the office of blessed Peter, in which is found both directing power and its supreme authority. From him as from a source, at the time when our religion was in the stage of growth, all churches received their common order.... So it is clear that this church is to all churches throughout the world as the head is to the members, and that whoever separates himself from it becomes an exile from the Christian religion, since he ceases to belong to its fellowship.”<sup>2935</sup>

Pope St. Celestine I, (422-432), the 43rd pope: “No one doubts, but rather it has been known to all generations, that the holy and most blessed Peter, chief and head of the Apostles, the pillar of the faith, the foundation stone of the Catholic Church, received the keys of the kingdom from our Lord Jesus Christ the Savior and Redeemer of the human race, and that the power of binding and loosing sins was given to him, who up to this moment and always lives in his successors, and judges.”<sup>2936</sup>

Pope St. Leo the Great (440-461), the 45th pope: “But this mysterious function the Lord wished to be indeed the concern of all the apostles, but in such a way that he has placed the principal charge on the blessed Peter, chief of all the Apostles: and from him as from the Head wishes his gifts to flow to all the body: so that any one who dares to secede from Peter’s solid rock may understand that he has no part or lot in the divine mystery.”<sup>2937</sup>

Pope St. Hormisdas (514-523), the 52nd pope: “‘Thou art Peter...’ (Matt. 16:18-19), whose throne holding the first place in all the world shines forth and holds its place as the head of the whole Church of God.”<sup>2938</sup>

Purgatory

The dogma of purgatory was infallibly defined during the Old Testament era and thus was also infallibly defined during the New Covenant era. Hence the Catholic Church from her promulgation in AD 33

has infallibly defined the dogma of purgatory by the unanimous consensus of the apostles and other Church Fathers (which is the ordinary magisterium) and later by several infallible papal decrees (which is the solemn magisterium).

That dogma teaches that purgatory is a place of purification in the underworld where the elect go who died guilty of venial sins and/or who did not expiate all the punishments due to their sins. Not until they were purified could they enter the Limbo of the Fathers during the Old Testament era and enter heaven during the New Covenant era:

“Lord, who shall dwell in thy tabernacle? Or who shall rest in thy holy hill? He that walketh without blemish and worketh justice:” (Ps. 14:1-2)

The Prophet Isaias was given a vision of God. And even though he was very holy, he had venial sins and the punishment due to sin that needed to be purged by fire before he was allowed to come into the presence of God:

“And I said: Woe is me, because I have held my peace; because I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people that hath unclean lips, and I have seen with my eyes the King the Lord of hosts. And one of the seraphims flew to me, and in his hand was a live coal, which he had taken with the tongs off the altar. And he touched my mouth, and said: Behold this hath touched thy lips and thy iniquities shall be taken away and thy sin shall be cleansed.” (Isa. 6:5-7)

The dogma on purgatory, then, teaches that the venial sins of those in purgatory and the punishment due to their sins can only be remitted by the pains of purgatory or by the prayers and other works of satisfaction of the faithful who have not died, as once men die they can no longer earn merit for themselves, they can no longer help themselves.

Even though God forgives the sins of the faithful who worthily confess, he, nevertheless, punishes them. This is known as the punishment due to sin. And each sin according to its kind incurs a just punishment:

“Nor bind sin to sin, for even in one thou shalt not be unpunished.” (Eccus. 7:8)

“For if the word spoken by angels became steadfast and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompense of reward, how shall we escape [sin and its punishment] if we neglect so great salvation? which having begun to be declared by the Lord was confirmed unto us by them that heard him.” (Heb. 2:2-3)

“For whom the Lord loveth, he chastiseth; and he scourgeth every son whom he receiveth.” (Heb. 12:6)

Therefore, during the Old Testament era and now during the New Covenant era, God punishes all men and thus even the faithful when they sin. And even when sins are forgiven, God still punishes the sinner, such as when God punished King David even though his sins of adultery and murder were forgiven. The punishment due to sins that are forgiven is compared to a wound that remains after a disease (such a cancer) is cut out of the body. The disease (sin) is cured (forgiven), but the wound and body needs to heal. Hence the patient suffers pain, discomfort, and inconvenience until his wound and body are healed:

“The blueness of a wound shall wipe away evils [caused by sin] and stripes in the more inward parts of the belly.” (Prv. 20:30)

However, if sin is not forgiven (cut out), then the punishment due to the sin cannot be remitted.

Jesus’ sacrificial death made it possible for men’s sins the punishment due to their sins to be remitted. Hence, without his sacrificial death, men’s sins and the punishment due to their sins could never be remitted no matter how faithful they were or how many good works they did. But Jesus’ sacrificial death alone is not enough for sins and the punishment due to sins to be remitted or else all men would be saved no matter what they believe and no matter how obstinately evil they are. Therefore, men must do something, must cooperate with God’s grace, in order to have their sins and the punishment due to their sin remitted. And that first something during the New Covenant era is to believe in the Catholic faith and get baptised into the Catholic Church. Jesus said,

“He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall be condemned.” (Mk. 16:16)

Worthy baptisms remit not only all sins but also all the punishment due to sins. However, sins committed by the faithful after baptism can only be remitted by sincere confession. And if the sins are mortal, they must be confessed to a Catholic priest if one is available. Jesus gave the apostles and their priest successors the power to remit the sins of the faithful:

“When he had said this, he breathed on them; and he said to them: Receive ye the Holy Spirit. Whose sins you shall forgive, they are forgiven them; and whose sins you shall retain, they are retained.” (Jn. 20:22-23)

If the faithful could no longer be guilty of sin and no longer incur the punishment due to sin after baptism, then this power would be meaningless and a lie. This is one proof that Jesus’ sacrificial death is not license for the faithful to sin and escape guilt and punishment. Therefore, if the faithful sin after they are baptised, they must worthily confess these sins to have them remitted. However, the punishment due to their sins will not be remitted as they were by baptism. The punishment due to sins that were committed after worthy baptism can only be remitted by prayer and other works of satisfaction or by worthy martyrdom. The reason is that by sinning after being worthily baptized is an affront to the sacrament and membership in the Catholic Church and the great benefits received by them. But God is still merciful and thus will remit the sins committed by the faithful when they worthily confess, but he will not remit the punishment due to their sins without prayer and other works of satisfaction or without worthy martyrdom, which is the ultimate work of satisfaction.

Therefore, the faithful whose sins are forgiven but die before they expiated all the punishment due to their sins go to purgatory to be purified, to have the punishment due to their sins purged by the fire of purgatory. St. Paul speak of this,

“For other foundation no man can lay, but that which is laid; which is Christ Jesus. Now if any man build upon this foundation, gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, stubble: Every man's work shall be manifest; for the day of the Lord shall declare it, because it shall be revealed in fire; and the fire shall try every man's work, of what sort it is. If any man's work abide, which he hath built thereupon, he shall receive a reward. If any man's work burn, he shall suffer loss; but he himself shall be saved, yet so as by fire.” (1 Cor. 3:11-15)

Catholic Commentary on 1 Cor. 3:12: “Upon this foundation: The foundation is Christ and his doctrine, or the true faith in him, working through charity. The building upon this foundation with gold, silver, and precious stones signifies the more perfect preaching and practice of the gospel; the wood, hay, and stubble, such preaching as that of the Corinthian teachers (who affected the pomp of words and human eloquence) and such practice as is mixed with much imperfection and many lesser sins. Now the day of the Lord and his fiery trial (in the particular judgment immediately after death (Heb. 9:27)) shall make manifest of what sort every man’s work has been, of which during this life it is hard to make a judgment. For then the fire of God’s judgment shall try every man’s work. And they whose works, like wood, hay, and stubble, cannot abide the fire shall suffer loss, these works being found to be of no value; yet they themselves, having built upon the right foundation (by living and dying in the true faith and in the state of grace, though with some imperfection), shall be saved yet so as by fire in purgatory, being liable to this punishment by reason of the wood, hay, and stubble which was mixed with their building.”

The prayers and other works of satisfaction by the faithful who have not yet died can also expiate the punishment due to sins for the suffering souls in purgatory and thus lessen their time in purgatory. Hence several places in the Bible speak of the faithful offering up prayers and other works of satisfaction for their dead brethren so that God would remit their venial sins and/or the punishment due to their sins:

“And stretch out thy hand to the poor that thy expiation and thy blessing may be perfected. A gift hath grace in the sight of all the living, and restrain not grace from the dead.” (Eccus. 7:36-37)

Catholic Commentary on Eccus. 7:37: “And restrain not grace from the dead: Withhold not from the dead in purgatory the benefit of alms, prayers, and sacrifices. Such was the doctrine and practice of the Church of God even in the time of the Old Testament; and the same has always been continued from the days of the apostles in the Church of the New Testament, the Catholic Church.”

“It is therefore a holy and wholesome thought to pray for the dead that they may be loosed from sins.” (2 Mac. 12:46)

Catholic Commentary on 2 Mac. 12:46: “It is therefore a holy and wholesome thought to pray for the dead: This upholds the Catholic dogma on purgatory. Here is an evident and undeniable proof, from the Old Law, of the practice of praying for the dead which was then strictly observed by the Jews. Consequently this practice could not have been introduced at that time by Judas, their chief and high priest, if it had not always been their custom.”

“O Lord Almighty, the God of Israel, hear now the prayer of the dead of Israel, and of their children, that have sinned before thee, and have not hearkened to the voice of the Lord their God, wherefore evils have cleaved fast to us. Remember not the iniquities of our fathers, but think upon thy hand, and upon thy name at this time:” (Bar. 3:4-5)

And St. Paul says,

“And when all things shall be subdued unto him, then the Son also himself shall be subject unto him that put all things under him, that God may be all in all. Otherwise what shall they do that are baptized for the dead, if the dead rise not again at all? why are they then baptized for them?” (1 Cor. 15:28-29)

Catholic Commentary on Cor. 15:29: “Baptized for the dead: To be baptized for the dead is to undertake self-denials, mortifications, and other works of satisfaction in order to help the poor souls in purgatory. Just as the pain and suffering that Catholic martyrs undergo, known as baptism of blood, expiates their venial sins and the punishment due to their sins, so likewise baptism for the dead, which can also be called baptism of afflictions and suffering offered for the poor souls in purgatory, helps the poor souls in purgatory have their venial sins and the punishment due to their sins remitted. Jesus referred to his passion and death as a baptism, a baptism of suffering and death: ‘I have a baptism wherewith I am to be baptized: and how am I straitened until it be accomplished?’ (Lk. 12:50)”

If these dead men were completely pure and thus were in the Limbo of the Fathers during the Old Testament era or in Heaven during the New Covenant era, then there would be no need to pray for them. And if these dead men needed prayers, then they were lacking something they needed. And that something was the remission of venial sins and/or the punishment due to their sins.

The faithful, then, who die guilty of venial sins are saved but must go to purgatory to have their venial sins remitted. Jesus speaks of this when he said,

“And whosoever shall speak a word against the Son of man, it shall be forgiven him; but he that shall speak against the Holy Spirit, it shall not be forgiven him, neither in this world, nor in the world to come.” (Mt. 12:32)

Catholic Commentary on Mt. 12:32: “Shall be forgiven: From these words, St. Augustine (City of God, b. 21, c. 13) teaches that venial sins may be remitted in the world to come and that consequently there is a purgatory or a temporary middle place where Catholics in a state of grace go to have their venial sins and the punishment due to their sins remitted, at which point they can then enter heaven. St. Augustine says that these words would not be true if some sins were not forgiven in the world to come. Another Church Father says that we are to believe, from these words, in the existence of the fire of purgatory, to expiate our smaller offences, before the day of judgment.”

Purgatory is also proved by the Traditions handed down from the original apostles that are not recorded in the Bible. From the time of the apostles, purgatory is proved by prayers that were offered for the dead in the Church’s liturgies and other prayers, by inscriptions on tombs, by diptychs that speak of prayers being offered for the dead, and by testimonies of the Church Fathers. For example,

Apostolic Constitutions, 1st to 4th centuries: “Let us pray for those that are departed in the faith.<sup>2939</sup> ...Let us pray for our brethren that are at rest in Christ, that God, the lover of mankind, who has received his soul, may forgive him every sin, voluntary and involuntary, and may be merciful and gracious to him and give him his lot in the land of the pious that are sent into the bosom of Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob [which is now in Heaven], with all those that have pleased him and done his will from the beginning of the world, whence all sorrow, grief, and lamentation are banished.<sup>2940</sup> ...Now, when you are invited to their memorials, do you feast with good order, and the fear of God, as disposed to intercede for those that are departed.<sup>2941</sup> ...These things we say concerning the pious; for as to the ungodly, if you give all the world to the poor, you will not benefit him at all. For to whom the Deity was an enemy while he was alive, it is certain it will be so also when he is departed.<sup>2942</sup>”

Epitaph of Abercius, c. 190: “The citizen of a prominent city, I erected this while I lived, that I might have a resting place for my body. Abercius is my name, a disciple of the chaste Shepherd who feeds his sheep on the mountains and in the fields, who has great eyes surveying everywhere, who taught me the faithful writings of life. Standing by, I, Abercius, ordered this to be inscribed: Truly, I was in my seventy-second year. May everyone who is in accord with this and who understands it pray for Abercius”

The Martyrdom of Perpetua and Felicity, 202:

“That very night, this was shown to me in a vision: I [Perpetua] saw Dinocrates going out from a gloomy place where also there were several others, and he was parched and very thirsty, with a filthy countenance and pallid color, and the wound on his face which he had when he died. This Dinocrates had been my brother after the flesh, seven years of age, who died miserably with disease. . . . For him I had made my prayer, and between him and me there was a large interval so that neither of us could approach to the other. . . and I knew that my brother was in suffering. But I trusted that my prayer would bring help to his suffering. . . I made my prayer for my brother day and night, groaning and weeping that he might be granted to me. Then, on the day on which we remained in fetters, this was shown to me: I saw that the place which I had formerly observed to be in gloom was now bright; and Dinocrates, with a clean body well clad, was finding refreshment. . . . [And] he went away from the water to play joyously, after the manner of children, and I awoke. Then I understood that he was translated from the place of punishment”<sup>2943</sup>

Heretic Tertullian, The Crown, 211: “We offer sacrifices for the dead on their birthday anniversaries.”<sup>2944</sup>

Heretic Tertullian, Monogamy, 216: “A woman, after the death of her husband. . . prays for his soul and asks that he may, while waiting, find rest; and that he may share in the first resurrection. And each year, on the anniversary of his death, she offers the sacrifice”<sup>2945</sup>

St. Cyril of Jerusalem, Catechetical Lectures, Lecture 23, 4th century: “9. . . Then we pray for the holy fathers and bishops that are dead; and in short for all those who have departed this life in our communion; believing that the souls of those for whom prayers are offered receive very great relief, while this holy and tremendous victim lies upon the altar. 10. And I wish to persuade you by an illustration. For I know that many say, what is a soul profited which departs from this world either with sins or without sins, if it be commemorated in the prayer? For if a king were to banish certain who had given him offence, and then those who belong to them should weave a crown and offer it to him on behalf of those under punishment, would he not grant a remission of their penalties? In the same way we, when we offer to him our supplications for those who have fallen asleep, though they be sinners, weave no crown, but offer up Christ sacrificed for our sins, propitiating our merciful God for them as well as for ourselves.”<sup>2946</sup>

St. Augustine, Sermon 159, 411: “1. There is an ecclesiastical discipline, as the faithful know, when the names of the martyrs are read aloud in that place at the altar of God, where prayer is not offered for them. Prayer, however, is offered for other dead who are remembered. It is wrong to pray for a martyr, to whose prayers we ought ourselves be commended.”

St. Augustine, Sermon 172, 411: “2. But by the prayers of the holy Church, and by the salvific sacrifice, and by the alms which are given for their spirits, there is no doubt that the dead are aided, that the Lord might deal more mercifully with them than their sins would deserve. The whole Church observes this practice which was handed down by the Fathers: that it prays for those who have died in the communion of the Body and Blood of Christ, when they are commemorated in their own place in the sacrifice itself; and the sacrifice is offered also in memory of them, on their behalf. If, then, works of mercy are celebrated for the sake of those who are being remembered, who would hesitate to recommend them, on whose behalf prayers to God are not offered in vain? It is not at all to be doubted that such prayers are of profit to the dead; but for such of them as lived before their death in a way that makes it possible for these things to be useful to them after death”

St. Augustine, City of God, 419: “Temporal punishments are suffered by some in this life only, by some after death, by some both here and hereafter, but all of them before that last and strictest judgment. But not all who suffer temporal punishments after death will come to eternal punishments, which are to follow after that judgment”<sup>2947</sup>

St. Augustine, On Faith, Hope, and Charity, 421: “That there should be some fire even after this life is not incredible, and it can be inquired into and either be discovered or left hidden whether some of the faithful may be saved, some more slowly and some more quickly in the greater or lesser degree in which they loved the good things that perish, through a certain purgatorial fire.”<sup>2948</sup> . . . The time which interposes between the death of a man and the final resurrection holds souls in hidden retreats, accordingly as each is deserving of rest or of hardship, in view of what it merited when it was living in the flesh. Nor can it be denied that the souls of the dead find relief through the piety of their friends and relatives who are still alive, when the Sacrifice of the Mediator [Mass] is offered for them, or when alms are given in the Church. But these things are of profit to those who, when they were alive, merited that they might afterward be able to be helped by these things. There is a certain manner of living, neither so good that there is no need of these helps after death, nor yet so wicked that these helps are of no avail after death.”<sup>2949</sup>

Even though the Council of Lyons was invalid because it was confirmed by apostate antipopes, it, nevertheless, teaches the dogma on purgatory:

Invalid First Council of Lyons, 1245: “23. Finally, since Truth in the Gospel asserts that ‘if anyone shall utter blasphemy against the Holy Spirit, neither in this life nor in the future will it be forgiven him’ (Mt. 12:32), by this it is granted that certain sins of the present be understood which, however, are forgiven in the future life, and since the Apostle says that ‘fire will test the work of each one of what kind it is,’ and ‘if any man’s work burn, he shall suffer loss, but he himself shall be saved, yet so as by fire’ (1 Cor 3:13,15), and since these same Greeks truly and undoubtedly are said to believe and to affirm that the souls of those who after a penance has been received yet not performed, or who, without mortal sin yet die with venial and slight sin, can be cleansed after death and can be helped by the suffrages of the Church, we, since they say a place of purgation of this kind has not been indicated to them with a certain and proper name by their teachers, we indeed, calling it purgatory according to the traditions and authority of the Holy Fathers, wish that in the future it be called by that name in their area. For in that transitory fire certainly sins, though not criminal or capital, which before have not been remitted through penance but were small and minor sins, are cleansed, and these weigh heavily even after death.”<sup>2950</sup>

Rich and Poor

“And again I say to you: It is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of heaven.” (Mt. 19:24)

Mt. 19:24. Rich man: [RJMI: This rich man that Jesus is speaking to was greedy and loved his riches more than he loved God and thus idolized them. To remedy his lust for riches, Jesus told him to sell his riches and follow him. The rich man, then, that Jesus speaks of here is the rich man who lusts after and covets riches and thus is evil. “There is not a more wicked thing than a covetous man.” (Eccus. 10:9) “For the love of money is the root of all these evils, which some coveting have erred from the faith and have entangled themselves in many sorrows.” (1 Tim. 6:10) The rich man who is greedy and uses his riches mostly for himself and not for others in need nor for good causes is the rich man spoken of here by Jesus. Evil rich men “hoard up silver and gold, wherein men trust, and there is no end of their getting.” (Bar. 3:18) “A covetous man shall not be satisfied with money; and he that loveth riches shall reap no fruit from them... There is also another grievous evil, which I have seen under the sun: riches kept to the hurt of the owner.” (Ectes. 5:9-12) “He that loveth gold shall not be justified; and he that followeth after corruption shall be filled with it. Many have been brought to fall for gold, and the beauty thereof hath been their ruin. Gold is a stumblingblock to them that sacrifice to it; woe to them that eagerly follow after it, and every fool shall perish by it.” (Eccus. 31:5-

7) For St. James’ condemnation of greedy rich men, see Ja. 5:1-5.

Whereas, the rich man who uses his riches as if they were not his own and thus shares his riches with the needy and for good causes is as if he were poor even though he hath great riches. “One...is as if were poor, when he hath great riches.” (Prv. 13:7) The good rich man does not lust after or covet riches. “Blessed is the rich man that is found without blemish and that hath not gone after gold nor put his trust in money nor in treasures. Who is he, and we will praise him? For he hath done wonderful things in his life. Who hath been tried thereby and made perfect, he shall have glory everlasting. He that could have transgressed and hath not transgressed, and could do evil things and hath not done them: Therefore are his goods established in the Lord, and all the church of the saints shall declare his alms.” (Eccus. 31:8-11) Jesus would not tell the good rich man to sell his riches because this rich man uses his riches well and already follows Jesus provided he keeps the faith and is not guilty of any mortal sins. “Riches are good to him that hath no sin in his conscience.” (Eccus. 13:30) This rich man does not idolize riches and thus does not put his riches over God. The good rich man trusts in God above all and not in his riches. “Charge the rich of this world not to be highminded nor to trust in the uncertainty of riches but in the living God, who giveth us abundantly all things to enjoy.” (1 Tim. 6:17) Whereas, an evil rich man trusts in his riches over God. Jesus says, “How hard is it for them that trust in riches to enter into the kingdom of God.” (Mk. 10:24) A faithful rich man is willing to lose all he has: his riches, his possessions, his family, and even his very life itself, if he must, in order to save his soul. That is what Jesus means when he says, “Every one of you that doth not renounce all that he possesseth cannot be my disciple.” (Lk. 14:33) This does not mean that every believer must sell all of his possessions, for that would be heretical communism, which forbids men to own or possess anything. It means that believers must spiritually renounce their possessions and choose God and the faith in preference to their possessions. They must not put them over God and the faith, and hence they must be willing to sell their possessions if they must in order to remain faithful and save their souls. Jesus, son of Sirach, wisely teaches that the rich man, “when thou hast enough, remember the time of hunger; and when thou art rich, think upon poverty and need.” (Eccus. 18:25) “He that is glorified in wealth, let him fear poverty.” (Eccus. 10:34) “In all thy works remember thy last end [heaven or hell], and thou shalt never sin.” (Eccus. 7:40) Abraham, Joseph, and Job are examples of holy and good rich men, as they had many possessions. See Job 31:16-28.

The poor man who covets and lusts after riches has the same evil spirit as the evil rich man. “Through poverty many have sinned, and he that seeketh to be enriched turneth away his eye.” (Eccus. 27:1) For want of riches the greedy poor man cannot commit the sins of the rich man but would if he had the power, the riches. “And if he be hindered from sinning for want of power, if he shall find opportunity to do evil, he will do it.” (Eccus. 19:25)

Jesus warns rich men more than poor men because riches are a great temptation since they can buy and cover up many sinful things and the lust after riches causes men to commit other mortal sins to get and keep their riches, such as stealing, fraud, murder, blackmail, etc. But that does not mean that poor men are good simply because they are poor. Even though we must not judge a person based upon the fact that he is poor (and thus we must "Do no violence to the poor because he is poor" (Prv. 22:22), we must do violence to the poor when he sins. Anyone who knows poor people knows that they commit many mortal sins. "Poverty is very wicked in the mouth of the ungodly." (Eccus. 13:30) Even though poor men are more apt to be humble than rich men because of their lowly state, not all poor men are humble. "My soul hateth...a poor man that is proud." (Eccus. 25:3) We know that most poor men are evil because God says many times that very few men are saved, whether rich or poor. "How narrow is the gate, and strait is the way that leadeth to life: and few there are that find it!" (Mt. 7:14) If all or most poor men were saved, then many men and not few would be saved because there are very many more poor men than rich men. In the final days, most of the rich as well as the poor will take the mark of the beast and thus serve the Antichrist. "And he shall make all, both little and great, rich and poor, freemen and bondmen, to have a character in their right hand or on their foreheads." (Apoc. 13:16)

Hence when Jesus says blessed are the poor (Lk. 6:20) and the poor in spirit (Mt. 5:3), he means the faithful who are poor and the faithful who are humble, whether rich or poor. And when Jesus says blessed are those who hunger (Lk. 6:21) and those who hunger for justice (Mt. 5:6), he means the faithful who are poor and the faithful who yearn for true justice, whether rich or poor.

Let no one, then, take out of context the word of God in order to idolize the rich or the poor and thus promote class warfare, the rich against the poor or the poor against the rich. "The rich and poor have met one another: the Lord is the maker of them both." (Prv. 22:1-2) "Rich or poor, if his heart is good his countenance shall be cheerful at all times." (Eccus. 26:4) "Thou shalt not do that which is unjust, nor judge unjustly. Respect not the person of the poor nor honor the countenance of the mighty. But judge thy neighbor according to justice." (Lev. 19:15) See RJMI Topic Index: Rich and Poor.]

Seals, Trumpets, and Vials of the Apocalypse

The seals, trumpets, and vials do not follow each other in chronological order

The events caused by the opening of the seven seals occur in chronological sequence, just as do the events announced by the blowing of the seven trumpets and the events caused by the pouring out of the seven vials. Hence the event caused by the opening of the first seal occurs before the event caused by the opening of the second seal. And the event announced by the sounding of the first trumpet occurs before the event announced by the sounding of the second trumpet. And the event caused by the pouring out of the first vial occurs before the event caused by the pouring out of the second vial.

The book of the Apocalypse records the seven seals in Chapters 6-8, then the seven trumpets in Chapters 8-10, and then the seven vials in Chapters 15-16. However, the opening of the seals and the sounding of the trumpets and the pouring out of the vials do not follow each other in chronological order. Some happen at the same time or before those that are recorded first. Hence the seven seals are not opened first, and then the seven trumpets sounded, and then the seven vials poured out.

The events mentioned in Apocalypse 6's sixth seal occur after those in Apocalypse 7

For example, Apoc. 6:12-17 records the sixth seal in which the earth is being destroyed:

Sixth seal: "And I saw when he had opened the sixth seal and behold there was a great earthquake, and the sun became black as sackcloth of hair and the whole moon became as blood. And the stars from heaven fell upon the earth, as the fig tree casteth its green figs when it is shaken by a great wind. And the heaven departed as a book folded up; and every mountain and the islands were moved out of their places. And the kings of the earth, and the princes, and tribunes, and the rich, and the strong, and every bondman, and every freeman, hid themselves in the dens and in the rocks of mountains. And they say to the mountains and the rocks: Fall upon us and hide us from the face of him that sitteth upon the throne and from the wrath of the Lamb. For the great day of their wrath is come, and who shall be able to stand?" (Apoc. 6:12-17)

Yet in Apoc. 7 the earth is not yet destroyed, as the angels are told to wait before they begin to destroy the earth and its heavens:

"After these things, I saw four angels standing on the four corners of the earth, holding the four winds of the earth, that they should not blow upon the earth, nor upon the sea, nor on any tree. And I saw another angel ascending from the rising of the sun, having the sign of the living God; and he cried with a loud voice to the four angels, to whom it was given to hurt the earth and the sea, saying: Hurt not the earth, nor the sea, nor the trees, till we sign the servants of our God in their foreheads." (Apoc. 7:1-3)

Hence the events mentioned in Apoc. 7:1-3 occur before the events mentioned in Apoc. 6:12-17. This is more proof that not all of the chapters and events in the Apocalypse are in chronological order.

The sixth seal is opened sometime after the seventh trumpet and the seventh vial

More proof is that the sixth seal is opened sometime after the seventh trumpet is sounded and the seventh vial is poured out even though the seals are mentioned in Apocalypse (Apoc. 6-8) before the trumpets (Apoc. 8-10) and the vials (Apoc. 15-16). The opening of the sixth seal ushers in the beginning of the destruction of this world after the Two Witnesses are resurrected and the Antichrist's army is defeated at Armagedon and after the death of the Antichrist. However, all the events that happen by the sounding of the trumpets and pouring out of the vials occur before those that take place when the sixth seal is opened.

For example, the heavens and thus the sun, moon, and stars are destroyed when the sixth seal is opened. Isaiah and St. Peter also prophesied that the heavens will pass away just prior to the second coming of Christ. (Isa. 34:2-4; 2 Pt. 3:10) Yet the heavens have not yet passed away and hence the sun, moon, and stars are still in the heavens when the trumpets are sounded and the vials are poured out. For example, the sun is still in the heavens when the fourth trumpet is sounded and the fourth vial is poured out:

Fourth trumpet: "And the fourth angel sounded the trumpet, and the third part of the sun was smitten, and the third part of the moon, and the third part of the stars, so that the third part of them was darkened, and the day did not shine for a third part of it, and the night in like manner." (Apoc. 8:12)

Fourth vial: "And the fourth angel poured out his vial upon the sun, and it was given unto him to afflict men with heat and fire: And men were scorched with great heat, and they blasphemed the name of God, who hath power over these plagues, neither did they repent to give him glory." (Apoc. 16:8-9)

This is more proof that not all of the seals, trumpets, and vials follow each other in chronological order. Another proof is that the Antichrist is still in power when the fifth vial is poured out and thus the earth has not yet been destroyed and the heavens have not yet passed away:

"And the fifth angel poured out his vial upon the seat of the beast; and his kingdom became dark, and they gnawed their tongues for pain. And they blasphemed the God of heaven because of their pains and wounds, and did not repent from their works." (Apoc. 16:10-11)

Yet when the sixth seal is opened, the Antichrist is dead and Jesus begins to destroy the earth and the heavens:

"And I saw, when he had opened the sixth seal, and behold there was a great earthquake, and the sun became black as sackcloth of hair: and the whole moon became as blood: And the stars from heaven fell upon the earth, as the fig tree casteth its green figs when it is shaken by a great wind: And the heaven departed as a book folded up; and every mountain, and the islands were moved out of their places." (Apoc. 6:12-14)

Hence the fifth vial is poured out before the opening of the sixth seal.

Another proof is that the sixth trumpet and the sixth vial usher in Armagedon and thus the heavens still exist and the earth has not yet begun to be destroyed as mentioned when the sixth seal is opened. Again, this is more proof that not all of the seals, trumpets, and vials follow each other in chronological order.

The events of the seven seals begin at different times from the seven trumpets and seven vials

The seven seals are opened at different times from the sounding of the seven trumpets and pouring out of the seven vials and hence are separate events.

- First to fourth seal: The first four seals are opened before any trumpet is sounded and any vial is poured out.
- Fifth seal: The fifth seal is opened during the time when the trumpets are being sounded and the vials are being poured out.
- Sixth seal: The sixth seal is not opened until sometime after the seventh trumpet is sounded and the seventh vial is poured out.
- Seventh seal: The seventh seal marks the end of time of this world and thus its opening ushers in the everlasting earthly kingdom.

Each sounding of the trumpet begins at the same time as the same numbered vial is poured out

The events that occur after the sounding of each trumpet and upon the pouring out of each vial begin at the same time and are either the same event or different events that begin at the same time. For example,

- The first trumpet is sounded and the first vial is poured out at the same time even though each is a separate event.
- The second trumpet is sounded and the second vial is poured out at the same time and are the same event.

However, it is a viable opinion (one I do not hold) that one or more of the events mentioned for the same numbered trumpet and vial may occur at different times.

| No one can open the seals but Christ “And I saw in the right hand of him that sat on the throne, a book written within and without, sealed with seven seals. And I saw a strong angel, proclaiming with a loud voice: Who is worthy to open the book, and to loose the seals thereof? And no man was able, neither in heaven, nor on earth, nor under the earth, to open the book, nor to look on it. And I wept much, because no man was found worthy to open the book, nor to see it. And one of the ancients said to me: Weep not; behold the lion of the tribe of Juda, the root of David, hath prevailed to open the book, and to loose the seven seals thereof. And I saw: and behold in the midst of the throne and of the four living creatures, and in the midst of the ancients, a Lamb standing as it were slain, having seven horns and seven eyes: which are the seven Spirits of God, sent forth into all the earth. And he came and took the book out of the right hand of him that sat on the throne. And when he had opened the book, the four living creatures, and the four and twenty ancients fell down before the Lamb, having every one of them harps, and golden vials full of odours, which are the prayers of saints: And they sung a new canticle, saying: Thou art worthy, O Lord, to take the book, and to open the seals thereof; because thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God, in thy blood, out of every tribe, and tongue, and people, and nation. And hast made us to our God a kingdom and priests, and we shall reign on the earth. And I beheld, and I heard the voice of many angels round about the throne, and the living creatures, and the ancients; and the number of them was thousands of thousands, saying with a loud voice: The Lamb that was slain is worthy to receive power, and divinity, and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, and benediction. And every creature, which is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, and all that are in them: I heard all saying: To him that sitteth on the throne, and to the Lamb, benediction, and honour, and glory, and power, for ever and ever. And the four living creatures said: Amen. And the four and twenty ancients fell down on their faces, and adored him that liveth for ever and ever.” (Apoc. 5:1-14) | The trumpets are sounded from the reign of the Antichrist onward “And when he had opened the seventh seal, there was silence in heaven, as it were for half an hour. And I saw seven angels standing in the presence of God; and there were given to them seven trumpets. And another angel came, and stood before the altar, having a golden censer; and there was given to him much incense, that he should offer of the prayers of all saints upon the golden altar, which is before the throne of God. And the smoke of the incense of the prayers of the saints ascended up before God from the hand of the angel. And the angel took the censer, and filled it with the fire of the altar, and cast it on the earth, and there were thunders and voices and lightning, and a great earthquake. And the seven angels, who had the seven trumpets, prepared themselves to sound the trumpet.” (Apoc. 8:1-6) | The vials are poured out from the reign of the Antichrist onward “And I saw another sign in heaven, great and wonderful: seven angels having the seven last plagues. For in them is filled up the wrath of God. And I saw as it were a sea of glass mingled with fire, and them that had overcome the beast, and his image, and the number of his name, standing on the sea of glass, having the harps of God: And singing the canticle of Moses, the servant of God, and the canticle of the Lamb, saying: Great and wonderful are thy works, O Lord God Almighty; just and true are thy ways, O King of ages. Who shall not fear thee, O Lord, and magnify thy name? For thou only art holy: for all nations shall come, and shall adore in thy sight, because thy judgments are manifest. And after these things I looked; and behold, the temple of the tabernacle of the testimony in heaven was opened: And the seven angels came out of the temple, having the seven plagues, clothed with clean and white linen, and girt about the breasts with golden girdles. And one of the four living creatures gave to the seven angels seven golden vials, full of the wrath of God, who liveth for ever and ever. And the temple was filled with smoke from the majesty of God, and from his power; and no man was able to enter into the temple, till the seven plagues of the seven angels were fulfilled.” (Apoc. 15:1-8) “And I heard a great voice out of the temple, saying to the seven angels: Go, and pour out the seven vials of the wrath of God upon the earth.” (Apoc. 16:1) |

| The first seal is opened on Pentecost Day when Christ, who conquered death, now conquers the world by the gospel “And I saw that the Lamb had opened one of the seven seals, and I heard one of the four living creatures, as it were the voice of thunder, saying: Come, and see. And I saw: and behold a white horse, and he that sat on him had a bow, and there was a crown given him, and he went forth conquering that he might conquer.” (Apoc. 6:1-2) | Hail mingled with fire and blood burns up a third part of the earth, along with trees and green grass “And the first angel sounded the trumpet, and there followed hail and fire, mingled with blood, and it was cast on the earth, and the third part of the earth was burnt up, and the third part of the trees was burnt up, and all green grass was burnt up.” (Apoc. 8:7) | Sores and grievous wounds fall upon those who have the mark of the beast “And the first went, and poured out his vial upon the earth, and there fell a sore and grievous wound upon men, who had the character of the beast; and upon them that adored the image thereof.” (Apoc. 16:2) |

|--|--|---|
| Great wars upon the earth, World Wars I and II “And when he had opened the second seal, I heard the second living creature, saying: Come, and see. And there went out another horse that was red: and to him that sat thereon, it was given that he should take peace from the earth, and that they should kill one another, and a great sword was given to him.” (Apoc. 6:3-4) | A great burning mountain (probably a meteor) is cast into the sea and turns a third part of the sea to blood and kills all the sea creatures and ships in it “And the second angel sounded the trumpet; and as it were a great mountain, burning with fire, was cast into the sea, and the third part of the sea became blood. And the third part of those creatures died which had life in the sea and the third part of the ships was destroyed.” (Apoc. 8:8-9) | The sea turns to blood “And the second angel poured out his vial upon the sea, and there came blood as it were of a dead man; and every living soul died in the sea.” (Apoc. 16:3) |

| A great famine comes upon the earth. It occurs just previous to the reign of the Antichrist and may be caused by him in which he then ends the famine and plays the hero. “And when he had opened the third seal, I heard the third living creature saying: Come, and see. And behold a black horse, and he that sat on him had a pair of scales in his hand. And I heard as it were a voice in the midst of the four living creatures, saying: Two pounds of wheat for a penny, and thrice two pounds of barley for a penny, and see thou hurt not the wine and the oil.” (Apoc. 6:5-6) | A burning great star called Wormwood falls from heaven upon a third part of the rivers and fountains of waters and makes the water bitter and poison and kills many men “And the third angel sounded the trumpet, and a great star fell from heaven, burning as it were a torch, and it fell on the third part of the rivers and upon the fountains of waters. And the name of the star is called Wormwood. And the third part of the waters became wormwood; and many men died of the waters because they were made bitter.” (Apoc. 8:10-11) | Rivers and fountains of waters turn to blood “And the third poured out his vial upon the rivers and the fountains of waters and there was made blood. And I heard the angel of the waters saying: Thou art just, O Lord, who art, and who wast, the Holy One, because thou hast judged these things. For they have shed the blood of saints and prophets and thou hast given them blood to drink; for they are worthy. And I heard another, from the altar, saying: Yea, O Lord God Almighty, true and just are thy judgments.” (Apoc. 16:4-7) |

Fourth

|---|---|--|
| The one who sits upon the pale horse is the Antichrist, who is given power over the whole earth, the four parts of the earth. (See Apoc. 20:7; Apoc. 13:4-8.) Upon the opening of the fourth seal, he begins a world war and sets about conquering the world and subjugating it to himself. His winning the war begins his 3½ year reign. “And when he had opened the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth living creature, saying: Come, and see. And behold a pale horse, and he that sat upon him, his name was Death, and gehenna followed him. And power was given to him over the four parts of the earth, to kill with sword, with famine, and with death, and with the beasts of the earth.” (Apoc. 6:7-8) | A third part of the sun, moon, and stars are darkened and thus a third part of the day that should have been light was dark “And the fourth angel sounded the trumpet, and the third part of the sun was smitten, and the third part of the moon, and the third part of the stars, so that the third part of them was darkened, and the day did not shine for a third part of it, and the night in like manner.” (Apoc. 8:12) The next three trumpets are three woes. And I beheld, and heard the voice of one eagle flying through the midst of heaven, saying with a loud voice: Woe, woe, woe to the inhabitants of the earth by reason of the rest of the voices of the three angels, who are yet to sound the trumpet.” (Apoc. 8:13) | The sun afflicts men with heat and fire in the places where the sun shines “And the fourth angel poured out his vial upon the sun, and it was given unto him to afflict men with heat and fire: And men were scorched with great heat, and they blasphemed the name of God, who hath power over these plagues, neither did they repent to give him glory.” (Apoc. 16:8-9) |

Fifth

| 5th Seal  | 5th Trumpet   | 5th Vial  |
|---|---|---|
| Martyrs under the altar of God cry out to him to avenge their blood. God tells them to wait till the blood of the last prophets is shed, which occurs when the Two Witnesses are killed “And when he had opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the souls of them that were slain for the word of God and for the testimony which they held. And they cried with a loud voice, saying: How long, O Lord (holy and true), dost thou not judge and revenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth? And white robes were given to every one of them one; and it was said to them, that they should rest for a little time, till their fellow servants and their brethren who are to be slain, even as they, should be filled up.” (Apoc. 6:9-11) | An angel of God is given the key to the bottomless pit to open it. Out of the pit comes black smoke that darkens the earth and sun and locusts, which are symbolic of devils and possibly damned humans with Satan as their king. And for five months they go about the earth to torment but not kill men who do not have the character of God on their forehead; that is, non-Catholics, which includes nominal Catholics because they are Catholic in name only. Satan does this to keep his followers in fear of him and mostly because he hates them, as he hates everything and thus even those who serve him. (See commentary on Apoc. 9:1-11) (1 Woe) “And the fifth angel sounded the trumpet, and I saw a star fall from heaven upon the earth. And there was given to him [the angel who sounded the fifth trumpet] the key of the bottomless pit. And he opened the bottomless pit; and the smoke of the pit arose, as the smoke of a great furnace; and the sun and the air were darkened with the smoke of the pit. And from the smoke of the pit there came out locusts upon the earth. And power was given to them, as the scorpions of the earth have power. And it was commanded them that they should not hurt the grass of the earth, nor any green thing, nor any tree, but only the men who have not the sign of God on their foreheads. And it was given unto them that they should not kill them, but that they should torment them five months; and their torment was as the torment of a scorpion when he striketh a man. And in those days men shall seek death, and shall not find it: and they shall desire to die, and death shall fly from them. And the shapes of the locusts were like unto horses prepared unto battle: and on their heads were, as it were, crowns like gold: and their faces were as the faces of men. And they had hair as the hair of women; and their teeth were as lions. And they had breastplates as breastplates of iron, and the noise of their wings was as the noise of chariots and many horses running to battle. And they had tails like to scorpions, and there were stings in their tails; and their power was to hurt men five months. And they had over them a king, the angel of the bottomless pit; whose name in Hebrew is Abaddon, and in Greek Apollyon; in Latin Exterminans...” (Apoc. 9:1-11) | Plagues of darkness and torments fall upon the seat of the Antichrist in Jerusalem and his kingdom “And the fifth angel poured out his vial upon the seat of the beast; and his kingdom became dark, and they gnawed their tongues for pain. And they blasphemed the God of heaven because of their pains and wounds, and did not repent from their works.” (Apoc. 16:10-11) |

Sixth

|--|--|---|
| It is opened at the death of the Antichrist, who is killed thirty days after the Two Witnesses are resurrected. It causes a great earthquake and darkness over the earth by the darkening of the sun. Christ then comes the second time with his heavenly army by appearing in the heavens and lighting up the earth. He then proceeds to destroy the earth and its heaven. And all the evildoers hide from the wrath of God. “And I saw when he had opened the sixth seal and behold there was a great earthquake, and the sun became black as sackcloth of hair, and the whole moon became as blood. And the stars from heaven fell upon the earth, as the fig tree casteth its green figs when it is shaken by a great wind. And the heaven departed as a book folded up; and every mountain and the islands were moved out of their places. And the kings of the earth, and the princes, and tribunes, and the rich, and the strong, and every bondman, and every freeman, hid themselves in the dens and in the rocks of mountains. And they say to the mountains and the rocks: Fall upon us and hide us from the face of him that sitteth upon the throne and from the wrath of the Lamb. For the great day of their wrath is come, and who shall be able to stand?” (Apoc. 6:12-17) | The final battle of this world at Armagedon in which the army of Christ defeats the army of the Antichrist (2 Woe) “Saying to the sixth angel, who had the trumpet: Loose the four angels who are bound in the great river Euphrates. And the four angels were loosed, who were prepared for an hour, and a day, and a month, and a year, for to kill the third part of men. And the number of the army of horsemen was twenty thousand times ten thousand. And I heard the number of them. And thus I saw the horses in the vision: and they that sat on them had breastplates of fire and of hyacinth and of brimstone and the heads of the horses were as the heads of lions; and from their mouths proceeded fire, and smoke, and brimstone. And by these three plagues was slain the third part of men, by the fire and by the smoke and by the brimstone, which issued out of their mouths. For the power of the horses is in their mouths and in their tails. For their tails are like to serpents and have heads, and with them they hurt. And the rest of the men who were not slain by these plagues did not repent from the works of their hands, that they should not adore devils, and idols of gold, and silver, and brass, and stone, and wood, which neither can see, nor hear, nor walk. Neither did they repent from their murders, nor from their sorceries, nor from their fornication, nor from their thefts.” (Apoc. 9:14-21) | The final battle of this world at Armagedon in which the army of Christ defeats the army of the Antichrist “And the sixth angel poured out his vial upon that great river Euphrates and dried up the water thereof, that a way might be prepared for the kings from the rising of the sun. And I saw from the mouth of the dragon, and from the mouth of the beast, and from the mouth of the false prophet, three unclean spirits like frogs. For they are the spirits of devils working signs, and they go forth unto the kings of the whole earth, to gather them to battle against the great day of the Almighty God. Behold, I come as a thief. Blessed is he that watcheth and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked and they see his shame. And he shall gather them together into a place, which in Hebrew is called Armagedon.” (Apoc. 16:12-16) |

Seventh

| 7th Seal  | 7th Trumpet   | 7th Vial  |
|---|---|---|
| The silence in heaven indicates that all prophecies and events regarding this fallen world are fulfilled and hence ushers in the everlasting earthly paradise with the New Jerusalem. The silence, then, indicates the everlasting peace of the everlasting earthly paradise. “And when he had opened the seventh seal, there was silence in heaven, as it were for half an hour.” (Apoc. 8:1) | Sounded within one hour after the Two Witnesses are resurrected, in which God punishes Jerusalem “In the days of the voice of the seventh angel, when he shall begin to sound the trumpet, the mystery of God shall be finished, as he hath declared by his servants the prophets.” (Apoc. 10:7) After the Two Witnesses are resurrected and taken to the heavens, there will be no more prophets on earth and thus prophecy will end. Hence there will be no more new prophecies. However, some prophecies are yet to be fulfilled, such as the killing of the Antichrist, the destruction of this world, the General Judgment, and the creation of the everlasting paradise. “And the seventh angel sounded the trumpet: and there were great voices in heaven, saying: The kingdom of this world is become our Lord’s and his Christ’s, and he shall reign for ever and ever. Amen. And the four and twenty ancients, who sit on their seats in the sight of God, fell on their faces and adored God, saying: We give thee thanks, O Lord God Almighty, who art, and who wast, and who art to come: because thou hast taken to thee thy great power, and thou hast reigned. And the nations were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged, and that thou shouldest render reward to thy servants the prophets and the saints, and to them that fear thy name, little and great, and shouldest destroy them who have corrupted the earth. And the temple of God was opened in heaven: and the ark of his testament was seen in his temple, and there were lightning, and voices, and an earthquake, and great hail.” (Apoc. 11:15-19) | Poured out within one hour after the Two Witnesses are resurrected and taken into the heavens. First, a great earthquake divides Jerusalem, the home of the Antichrist, into three parts and causes the cities of the Gentiles to fall (Verses 17-19). Shortly after, the islands and mountains of the worldwide kingdom of the Antichrist (called the Great Babylon) are destroyed and a great hail torments the members of his kingdom (Verses 19-21). “And the seventh angel poured out his vial upon the air, and there came a great voice out of the temple from the throne, saying: It is done. And there were lightning, and voices, and thunders, and there was a great earthquake, such an one as never had been since men were upon the earth, such an earthquake, so great. And the great city was divided into three parts; and the cities of the Gentiles fell. And great Babylon came in remembrance before God, to give her the cup of the wine of the indignation of his wrath. And every island fled away, and the mountains were not found. And great hail, like a talent, came down from heaven upon men: and men blasphemed God for the plague of the hail because it was exceeding great.” (Apoc. 16:17-21) |

Sequence of Christmas Season Events

- Christmas Day (12/25): The infant Jesus Christ was born in Bethlehem in a manger, a miraculous stationary star, brighter than the other stars and the planets, appeared in the sky above the manger. The Wise Men in the East saw the star and calculated its general location, which was Judea. Angels appeared to Jewish shepherds in Judea, and they came and venerated Christ in the manger. The star disappeared at the end of that day.
- The Circumcision of Jesus (1/1): Eight days after Jesus was born, he was circumcised according to the law.
- The Holy Family moves into a house: Shortly after the census, the Holy Family moved from the stable into a house in Bethlehem and planned to make Bethlehem their permanent home.
- The Presentation and Purification (1/4): Forty days after Jesus' birth, the Holy Family traveled from Bethlehem to Jerusalem to present Jesus in the temple and to fulfill the rite of purification for Mary. After the Holy Family had "performed all things according to the law of the Lord," they returned to their house in Bethlehem. (This event was out of sequence on 2/2.)
- Epiphany Day (1/6): Sometime between forty days to two years after Jesus' birth, the Wise Men arrived in Judea and went to Jerusalem to inquire of Herod about Jesus. Herod told the Wise Men to go to Bethlehem to find him. When they left Herod, the miraculous star reappeared and this time guided the Wise Men to Jesus' exact location in a house in Bethlehem. They then venerated him and gave him gifts.
- The Holy Family flees to Egypt: Soon after the Wise Men venerated Jesus, an angel told them to go home and not return to Herod. And an angel told Joseph to flee with Jesus and Mary to Egypt because Herod sought to kill the Child. We know that the Epiphany could not have occurred before Jesus' presentation in the temple, forty days after his birth, because the Holy Family was still in Israel at that time and not in Egypt. Hence the earliest day the Wise Men could have venerated Jesus was after his presentation in the temple, which was forty days after his birth. And the latest day would have been two years after the birth of Jesus, according to Herod's inquiry of when the Wise Men first saw the miraculous star.

- The Holy Innocents are murdered (1/13, Octave Day of the Epiphany): Shortly after the Holy Family fled to Egypt, the Holy Innocents were murdered by order of Herod. (This event was out of sequence on 12/28.)

St. Paul and the Law

All of St. Paul's teaching regarding the law must be considered

All of St. Paul's teachings regarding the law must be considered to understand his teachings regarding the law; which law is he speaking of (dogmatic law or non-dogmatic law), who are under the law, who is indebted to the law, and what is the purpose and effect of the law. A summary of St. Paul's teachings on the law are as follows:

- St. Paul teaches that faith and Old Testament rituals only forgave and covered sins and thus did not completely justify men and thus could not save them.
- St. Paul teaches that Old Testament rituals ended when Christ died on the cross and thus are no longer in force and hence are no longer necessary for salvation.
- St. Paul teaches that belief in the Christian faith and performance of the New Covenant rituals completely justifies and saves men by remitting their sins by sanctifying grace that Christ made available by Christ's sacrificial death.

- St. Paul teaches that the dogmatic law (which includes good works and avoiding sin) is still in force during the New Covenant era.
- St. Paul teaches that obeying dogmatic laws is necessary for salvation.
- However, St. Paul teaches that obeying dogmatic laws cannot justify or save anyone, only faith and sanctifying grace can justify and save men.
- While St. Paul teaches that the law cannot justify anyone, he teaches that once men are justified they must obey the dogmatic laws to be saved. Hence if they mortally violate a dogmatic law, they become un-justified and thus are on the road to damnation. "For not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified." (Rom. 2:13)
- While St. Paul teaches that the law cannot justify anyone, he teaches that it can prevent a man from being justified if when he comes to the faith he does not also have contrition for his mortal sins. "If I should have all faith so that I could remove mountains and have not charity [such as due to lack of contrition for mortal sin], I am nothing." (1 Cor. 13:2)
- Hence while dogmatic laws cannot justify men, they can un-justify men or prevent them from being justified.
- St. Paul teaches that men who violate a dogmatic law and thus are guilty of voluntary sin are under the law because the law condemns them. Hence, men who are not guilty of voluntary sin are not under the dogmatic law because the law does not condemn them. Hence even though the dogmatic law is still in force, not everyone is under this law.
- St. Paul teaches that men whose sins are not remitted are indebted to the dogmatic law and thus are under the law in this sense, the law of death and banishment from heaven. Hence all the Old Testament elect were under the law in this sense because even though their sins were forgiven and covered they were not remitted until Christ died on the cross. Therefore even though the dogmatic law is still in force men who are not indebted to the law are not under the law, in this sense. For a man not to be indebted to the law, all of his sins must be remitted.

What law is St. Paul speaking of, dogmatic laws or non-dogmatic laws

There are two kinds of laws: laws that can never change, and laws that can change:

- Dogmatic Laws: Dogmatic laws are laws that deal with faith or morals and can never change and thus can never be modified, abolished, dispensed of, or exempted from. The full deposit of the Catholic faith is all the infallibly defined dogmas regarding faith and morals.
- Non-Dogmatic Laws: Non-dogmatic laws can change and thus be modified, abolished, dispensed of, or exempted from. Laws that can change are governmental laws, disciplinary laws, and rituals in the parts that do not deal with faith or morals.

St. Paul teaches that the dogmatic laws are still in force

Jesus Christ and St. Paul teach that the dogmatic laws are still in force during the New Covenant era and thus men must obey them to be saved.

Jesus Christ said,

"Do not think that I am come to destroy the [dogmatic] law, or the prophets. I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil. For amen I say unto you, till heaven and earth pass, one jot, or one tittle shall not pass of the law, till all be fulfilled." (Mt. 5:17-18)

"If thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments." (Mt. 19:17)

St. Paul said,

"Do we, then, destroy the [dogmatic] law through faith? God forbid: but we establish the law." (Rom. 3:31)

“For not the hearers of the [dogmatic] law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified.” (Rom. 2:13)

Hence St. Paul’s teachings that seem to contradict this must be taken in correct context. For example,

“Wherefore by the works of the law no flesh shall be justified before him.” (Rom. 3:20)

St. Paul is not teaching that obeying the dogmatic law is not necessary for salvation but that obeying the dogmatic law only (which includes doing good works and avoiding sin) cannot justify anyone. However, once justified, men must keep the law to be saved. (See in this commentary, “The dogmatic law cannot forgive and remit sins, p. 1169.)

Therefore, any other teaching of St. Paul’s on the law that seems to contradict his teaching that the dogmatic law is still in force and obedience to it is necessary for salvation must be taken in correct context so as to not deny this basic dogma. The natural law alone tells men that they must obey laws or pay the consequences. The arch-heretic Martin Luther took St. Paul’s teachings on the law out of context to defend his infamous heresy that obedience to the dogmatic law is not necessary for salvation but only faith in Christ. St. Peter’s following words apply to Luther, as well as any heretic, who took St. Paul teachings out of context to defend a heresy:

“And account the longsuffering of our Lord, salvation; as also our most dear brother Paul, according to the wisdom given him, hath written to you: As also in all his epistles, speaking in them of these things; in which are certain things hard to be understood, which the unlearned and unstable wrest, as they do also the other scriptures, to their own destruction. You therefore, brethren, knowing these things before, take heed, lest being led aside by the error of the unwise, you fall from your own steadfastness.” (2 Pt. 3:15-17)

Indeed, some of St. Paul’s teachings are hard to be understood, so it is excusable as long as one’s misinterpretation does not teach a heresy. But woe to those who twist St. Paul’s teachings to defend a heresy.

St. Paul teaches that Old Testament rituals ended and did not remit sins

St. Paul taught that when Christ died on the cross, the Old Covenant ended and was replaced by the New Covenant.<sup>2951</sup> And he taught that the Old Covenant and its rituals did not remit sins but only forgave and covered them.<sup>2952</sup> Hence, when St. Paul teaches that the law is no longer in force and thus has ended, he is speaking of the Old Covenant and its rituals. And he teaches that this law, when it was in force, could not remit sins. For example,

“For the end of the law [the Old Covenant] is Christ, unto justice [complete justification by the remission of sins] to everyone that believeth.” (Rom. 10:4)

Therefore, St. Paul condemns the Judaizers; that is, nominal Christians who believed that the Old Covenant’s rituals were not only still in force (which was not heresy at that time as some faithful Christian Jews believed this) but that the Old Covenant rituals remitted sins and thus could save men, which is heresy.<sup>2953</sup> Hence, the Judaizers placed the Old Covenant and its rituals equal to or above the New Covenant and its rituals. In effect, the Judaizers nullified the New Covenant and its rituals as the only covenant and rituals that remits sins and saves men. Hence, they have in effect nullified the necessity of the Messiah, Jesus Christ, to remit sins and save men.

It the following verses from Galatians 3, the law that St. Paul is speaking of is the Mosaic laws regarding discipline and ritual (particularly circumcision), but the same also applies to the laws regarding discipline and rituals given to Adam, Noe, and Abraham, for none of these laws could remit sins and thus save men. And not even dogmatic laws can remit sins and save men,<sup>2954</sup> but this is not the law St. Paul is speaking of in the following verses:

“O senseless Galatians, who hath bewitched you that you should not obey the truth, before whose eyes Jesus Christ hath been set forth, crucified among you? This only would I learn of you: Did you receive the Spirit [of Christ, the New Covenant, and sanctifying grace bestowed by the Holy Spirit by baptism] by the works of the law or by the hearing of faith? Are you so foolish, that, whereas you began in the Spirit, you would now be made perfect by the flesh [the Mosaic laws, in particular circumcision]?” (Gal. 3:1-3)

“Why then was the law [the Mosaic disciplinary and ritual laws]? It was set because of transgressions [to forgive and cover sins but not remit them], until the seed [the Messiah, Jesus Christ] should come to whom he made the promise, being ordained by angels in the hand of a mediator. Now a mediator is not of one; but God is one. Was the law then against the promises of God? God forbid. For if there had been a law given which could give life, verily justice should have been by the law. But the scripture hath concluded all under sin [the sin debt] that the promise by the faith of Jesus Christ might be given to them that believe. But before the faith came we were kept under the law [the Old Covenant and Mosaic rituals] shut up unto that faith which was to be revealed. Wherefore the law was our pedagogue in Christ, that we might be justified by faith. But after the faith is come, we are no longer under a pedagogue [no longer under the Old Covenant]. For you are all the children of God by faith, in

Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized in Christ, have put on Christ.” (Gal. 3:19-27)

Therefore, the Old Testament rituals such as circumcision and the animal sacrifices are no longer in force and no longer necessary. The animal sacrifices were only able to forgive and cover sins but not remit them. It is faith in Christ that remits sins and saves men. Therefore, St. Paul teaches that so-called Christians who believe that circumcision is in force and can remit sins and save men have gone backward and “are made void of Christ”:

“Stand fast, and be not held again under the yoke of bondage [of the Old Covenant]. Behold, I Paul tell you, that if you be circumcised, Christ shall profit you nothing. And I testify again to every man circumcising himself, that he is a debtor to do the whole law. You are made void of Christ, you who are justified in the law [the Old Covenant]: you are fallen from grace.” (Gal. 5:1-4)

St. Paul says that if the Old Testament’s laws could completely justify men and thus remit their sins and save them, then there would be no need for Christ’s sacrificial death and the New Covenant; and thus Christ died in vain:

“I cast not away the grace of God. For if justice be by the law [the Old Testament’s dogmatic, disciplinary, and ritual laws], then Christ died in vain.” (Gal. 2:21)

Hence, St. Paul teaches that Judaizers nullified the promise given to Abraham that one of his seed, the Messiah, would come and remit sins and save men, not the Mosaic law, or any other law. While the Mosaic law had more laws than were given to Abraham, these laws could not remit sins and save men, as these Judaizers proposed and thus treated the Mosaic law as if it were the promised seed, the Messiah. Hence St. Paul teaches that the Mosaic law did not nullify nor fulfill the promise given to Abraham:

“To Abraham were the promises made and to his seed. He saith not, And to his seeds as of many, but as of one, and to thy seed, which is Christ. Now this I say: that the covenant which was previously confirmed by God [with Abraham], the [Mosaic] law which was four hundred and thirty years after cannot set it aside and nullify the promise. For if the inheritance be of the law, it is no more of promise. But God gave it to Abraham by promise.” (Gal. 3:16-18)

The promised seed, then, is Jesus Christ. He is the one, not the law or any other person, who redeemed men by his sacrificial death which made possible the remission of sins and thus the salvation of men. Therefore, St. Paul teaches that the Judaizers who believed that Old Testament rituals can remit sins and save men are still under the curse of the dogmatic law (which is the sin debt caused by inherited original sin and by violating dogmatic laws) because the Old Testament rituals could not remit sins and thus pay the sin debt.

It was Christ’s sacrificial death that freed men from the curse of the law by becoming a curse for men. It was Christ who took the sin debt upon himself by dying for our sins. St. Paul says,

“For on your account, he hath made him [Jesus] who knew no sin to be sin that we might by him become the righteousness of God [become completely justified].” (2 Cor. 5:21)

St. Paul teaches that Christ paid the sin debt for men while hanging upon the holy cross, made of wood, and dying for our sins. And thus he redeemed men from the curse of the law by being made a curse for us:

“For as many as are of the works of the law [the Old Testament’s disciplinary, ritual, and dogmatic laws] are under a curse. For it is written: Cursed is every one that abideth not in all things [by violating dogmatic laws] which are written in the book of the law to do them... But... Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law [the sin debt], being made a curse for us: for it is written: Cursed is every one that hangeth on a tree, that the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Christ Jesus, that we may receive the promise of the Spirit [sanctifying grace] by [the Christian] faith.” (Gal. 3:13-14)

It was Christ’s sacrificial death, then, that paid the sin debt for men while hanging upon the holy cross, made of wood, and dying for our sins. Therefore, Judaizers who believed they could have their sins remitted and thus be saved by the Old law were still under the curse (the sin debt).

When St. Paul says “Cursed is every one that abideth not in all things [by violating dogmatic laws] which are written in the book of the law to do them,” he means that so many of God’s chosen people commit mortal sins that it is said that no one keeps the law. Yet we know some men have not committed mortal sins, such as St. Joseph and St. Anne.<sup>2955</sup> Nevertheless, most men commit mortal sins and thus have a sin debt in this regard:

“Did not Moses give you the law, and yet none of you keepeth the law?” (Jn. 7:19)

“The Lord hath looked down from heaven upon the children of men, to see if there be any that understand and seek God. They are all gone aside, they are become unprofitable together: there is none that doth good, no not one.” (Ps. 13:2-3)

“And we are all become as one unclean, and all our justices as the rag of a menstruous woman: and we have all fallen as a leaf, and our iniquities, like the wind, have taken us away. There is none that calleth upon thy name: that riseth up, and taketh hold of thee: thou hast hid thy face from us, and hast crushed us in the hand of our iniquity.” (Isa. 64:6-7)

“How narrow is the gate, and strait is the way that leadeth to life: and few there are that find it!” (Mt. 7:14)

“Yet the Son of man when he cometh, shall he find, think you, faith on earth?” (Lk. 18:8)

Men who were never guilty of voluntary sin are still guilty of original sin, which was a voluntary sin of Adam and Eve that all men (except Jesus and Mary) inherit. Thus all men guilty of original sin (such as St. Joseph and St. Anne) are also under a sin debt and thus under the curse of the law in this regard as well, by way of original sin:

“Wherefore as by one man [Adam] sin entered into this world and by sin death; and so death passed upon all men in whom all have sinned.” (Rom. 5:12)

Hence Christ was made a curse and died on the cross to remove the curse men were under because of their sin debt due to the guilt of original sin and voluntary sin.

Who does St. Paul say is under the dogmatic law

Men can be under the dogmatic law in two ways: 1) by the guilt of voluntary sin or 2) by the sin debt incurred by unremitted sins.

Men guilty of voluntary sin are under the law

Regarding dogmatic laws, which thus are always in force, St. Paul teaches that only men who violate these laws are under these laws and thus subject to them because they are condemned by the law. Men who violate dogmatic laws are always condemned and punished by God and should be condemned and punished by men if possible.

If all men kept the dogmatic laws there would be no need for written laws to remind, warn, condemn, and punish them. Therefore, men who do not violate dogmatic laws are not condemned by the law and thus, in this sense, are not under these laws, as their will is conformed to keeping these laws.<sup>2956</sup> Take the following examples.

- Signs (laws) enforcing speed limits are placed on highways to let drivers know how fast they can go. A driver who is set on keeping these laws, such as by driving no faster than 75 miles per hour, drives no faster than that naturally, by instinct, and thus does not need the sign (the law) to warn and remind him. Hence the law will not condemn and punish him as long as he does not drive faster than 75 mph. If he drives faster than 75 mph, he then falls back under the power of the law and gets condemned and punished.

<sup>2956</sup> A member of the Catholic Church who is guilty of sin is condemned by the law and thus is under the law. If he worthily confesses his sin and thus his sin is remitted, he is no longer condemned by the law and so is no longer under the law. However, he will still be punished for sin, which is known as the punishment due to his sin.

- A child with use of reason can obey the law of not murdering or stealing without ever hearing or reading the written law that condemns these things. While the law is still in force, he is not under the law, not subject to the law, because he is not violating it.
- Before Adam and Eve fell, they were not only perfect and holy and obeyed the law naturally, but they also did not even know what sin was, such as murder and homosexuality. Hence, they were not only not under these laws but these laws did not even exist at that time in written form because there was no need for them. Only after they sinned, by disobeying God, did other sins enter the world.

Therefore, men who naturally do not violate dogmatic laws do not need the written law to remind, warn, condemn, and punish them. This is what St. Paul means when he says,

“Knowing this, that the law is not made for the just man, but for the unjust and disobedient, for the ungodly, and for sinners, for the wicked and defiled, for murderers of fathers, and murderers of mothers, for manslayers,” (1 Tim. 1:9)

“But if you are led by the spirit, you are not under the law. Now the works of the flesh are manifest, which are fornication, uncleanness, immodesty, luxury, Idolatry, witchcrafts, enmities, contentions, jealousies, wraths, quarrels, dissensions, sects, envies, murders, drunkenness, revellings, and such like. Of the which I foretold you, as I have foretold to you, that they who do such things shall not obtain the kingdom of God. But the fruit of the Spirit is, charity, joy, peace, patience, benignity, goodness, longanimity, mildness, faith, modesty, continency, chastity. Against such there is no law.” (Gal. 5:18-23)

“For the law worketh wrath. For where there is no law [no need of the written law to be reminded of the law], neither is there transgression.” (Rom. 4:15)

“Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body, so as to obey the lusts thereof. Neither yield ye your members as instruments of iniquity unto sin; but present yourselves to God, as those that are alive from the dead, and your members as instruments of justice unto God. For sin shall not have dominion over you; for you are not under the law, but under grace. What then? Shall we sin, because we are not under the law, but under grace? God forbid. Know you not, that to whom you yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants you are whom you obey, whether it be of sin unto death, or of obedience unto justice. But thanks be to God, that you were the servants of sin, but have obeyed from the heart, unto that form of doctrine, into which you have been delivered. Being then freed from sin, we have been made servants of justice... For when you were the servants of sin, you were free men to justice... But now being made free from sin and become servants to God, you have your fruit unto sanctification, and the end life everlasting. For the wages of sin is death. But the grace of God, life everlasting, in Christ Jesus our Lord." (Rom. 6:12-23)

Therefore, men who sin against the dogmatic law are servants of sin and thus of the Devil unto death and thus are under the law, condemned for violating it:

"Jesus answered them: Amen, amen I say unto you: that whosoever committeth sin is the slave of sin." (Jn. 8:34)

St. John says, "He that committeth sin is of the devil." (1 Jn. 3:8)

But men who obey the law and thus do not sin are servants of justice and thus of Christ unto life. So in this sense they are not under the law because they incur no condemnation and penalty for violating the law. St. Paul says that the dogmatic law is dead to them:

"For I, through the [dogmatic] law am dead to the law, that I may live to God, with Christ I am nailed to the cross." (Gal. 2:19)

But if he sins he falls back under the law and hence the law is no longer dead to him while he is dead to Christ:

"But if while we seek to be justified in Christ we ourselves also are found sinners; is Christ then the minister of sin? God forbid. For if I build up again the things which I have destroyed, I make myself a prevaricator." (Gal. 2:17-18)

What follows is a commentary from the Ambrosiaster:

Ambrosiaster, 4th century, On Romans 6:14: "If we walk according to the commandments which God gives, St. Paul says that sin will not rule over us, for it rules over those who sin. If we do not walk as God commands, we are under the law; but if we do not sin, we are not under the law but under grace. If, however, we sin, we fall back under the law, and sin starts to rule over us once more, for every sinner is a slave to sin. It is necessary for every person to be under the law as long as he does not receive forgiveness, for by the law's authority sin makes the sinner guilty. Thus the person to whom forgiveness is given and who keeps it by not sinning anymore will neither be ruled by sin or be under the [dogmatic] law. For the authority of the law no longer applies to him; he has been delivered from sin. Those whom the law holds guilty have been turned over to it by sin. Therefore the person who has departed from sin cannot be under the law."

Ambrosiaster, 4th century, On Romans 7: "For to die to the law is to live to God, since the law rules over sinners. Therefore the one whose sins are forgiven dies to the law; this is what it means to be set free from the law... We are set free from the law when we receive the forgiveness of sins. It has no power over us, but controls only unbelievers and sinners."

Men indebted to the law are under the law

Men who are guilty of voluntary sin are under the law in two ways: 1) because they are condemned by the law by their own fault (as mentioned in the last section) and 2) because they are indebted to the law because their sin has not been remitted. Men guilty of original sin are also indebted to the law.

Men whose sins are not remitted are indebted to the law and in this sense are under law, the dogmatic law on faith and morals. Sins were not remitted until Christ died on the cross. Hence, during the Old Testament era the sins of believers who confessed were forgiven and covered but not remitted. They still had the sin debt and thus they were not completely justified. Therefore, when the Old Testament elect died they could not enter heaven because their sin debt was not yet paid. Instead, they went to the highest level of the underworld called the Limbo of the Fathers which was a very beautiful and peaceful place. However, they were still under the law of death. It was Christ's sacrificial death that conquered death and thus remitted their sins and opened the gates of heaven to them:

"Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us: for it is written: Cursed is every one that hangeth on a tree:" (Gal. 3:13)

"[Jesus Christ] is on the right hand of God, swallowing down death, that we might be made heirs of life everlasting: being gone into heaven, the angels and powers and virtues being made subject to him." (1 Pt. 3:22)

"O death, where is thy victory? O death, where is thy sting? Now the sting of death is sin, and the power of sin is the law. But thanks be to God who hath given us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." (1 Cor. 15:55-57)

Ambrosiaster, 4th century, Commentary of Rom. 7:4: "Thus it happens that all who believe in Christ are delivered from the law [the sin debt] because sin has been condemned [remitted]. For sin, which is the devil, has been conquered by the body of Christ..., thereby destroying the penalty [the sin debt] which had been decreed because of the sin of Adam... Now he has no authority over those who belong to Christ [who thus have no sin debt], by whom he has been conquered."

Hence, even the holiest of saints such as Abraham, Moses, Job, St. Anne, and St. Joseph were indebted to the law and thus under the law of death until their sin debt was paid when Christ died on the cross. His sacrificial death caused their covered sins to be remitted which enabled them to enter heaven. Therefore, the Old Testament elect whose sins were forgiven and covered were still indebted to the law and thus under the law in this sense because their sin debt was not yet paid.

“For the law of the spirit of life, in Christ Jesus, hath delivered me from the law of sin and of death [the sin debt by remitting sins]. For what the [old] law could not do [remit sins and thus pay the sin debt] in that it was weak through the flesh, God sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh and of sin hath condemned sin [the sin debt by remitting sins] in the flesh.” (Rom. 8:2-3)

During the Old Testament era then, faith in God and the Old Testament rituals forgave and covered sins but did not remit sins. Therefore, even the elect were under the curse of death because their sin debt was not yet paid and thus their sins were not remitted. It was Christ who lifted this curse (which neither the Old Law nor any other law could do) when he died on the cross.<sup>2957</sup>

During the New Covenant era all men who are guilty of sin (original sin or voluntary sin) are also indebted to the law and thus under the law in two ways; 1) by the guilt of voluntary sin or original sin, and 2) by the sin debt, which can only be remitted by getting baptized into the Catholic Church if they are unbaptized or by worthily confessing their sins if they are members of the Catholic Church, for there is no remission of sins outside the Catholic Church.

What does St. Paul say is the purpose and effect of the dogmatic law

The dogmatic law condemns and punishes sinners and rewards the just

The purpose of the dogmatic law is to make men aware of what they must do to be justified and thus be saved. The effect of the law is to condemn and punish men who violate it and reward men who keep it. The reward men get for keeping a dogmatic law is to move them closer to God if they are unbelievers or believers in mortal sin, or to increase in holiness if they are believers in a state of grace.

The dogmatic law cannot forgive and remit sins

While the dogmatic law condemns and punishes sinners and rewards the just, it cannot justify and save men. St. Paul teaches that the law gives men the knowledge of sin and thus the knowledge that they are guilty if they violate it but it does not justify them. It does not forgive or remit their sin:

“Wherefore by the works of the law no flesh shall be justified before him. For by the law is the knowledge of sin.” (Rom. 3:20)

Ambrosiaster, 4th century, On Romans 7:5: “Paul says that the sins which rule over those who commit them in the flesh are revealed by the law; they are not caused by the law. For the law is the measure of sin, not its cause, and it makes sinners guilty.”

“But knowing that man is not justified by the works of the law, but by the faith of Jesus Christ; we also believe in Christ Jesus, that we may be justified by the faith of Christ, and not by the works of the law: because by the works of the law no flesh shall be justified.” (Gal. 2:16)

It is a man’s sincere faith in the true God, which God sees and then bestows upon him a special grace that justifies him. It is this special grace that forgives and remits sins. This special grace during the Old Testament era forgave and covered sins and can be called covering grace. Whereas, the special grace during the New Covenant era that forgives and remits sins is called sanctifying grace and can be called remitting grace.<sup>2958</sup> Sanctifying grace was made available to men when Christ redeemed men by his sacrificial death. St. Paul says that faith and this special grace, and not the law which includes good works and avoiding sin, justifies men:

“For by grace you are saved through faith and that not of yourselves, for it is the gift of God, not of works, that no man may glory.” (Eph. 2:8-9)

No man may glory because there is no work a human creature could do to cover or remit his sins, only faith in God and his special grace covers and remits sins. King David says,

“No brother can redeem, nor shall man redeem; he shall not give to God his ransom, nor the price of the redemption of his soul; and shall labour forever... But God will redeem my soul from the hand of the underworld when he shall receive me.” (Ps. 48:8-9, 16)

The infallible Council of Orange teaches the following:

Council of Orange, 529: “Canon 19. That no one is saved except by God’s mercy. Even if human nature remained in that integrity in which it was formed, it would in no way save itself without the help of its Creator; therefore, since without the grace of God it cannot guard the health which it received, how without the grace of God will it be able to recover what it has lost?"<sup>2959</sup>

While the law cannot forgive and remit sins and thus cannot justify and save men, it can un-justify them or prevent them from being justified.

The dogmatic law can un-justify a man

While the dogmatic law cannot forgive and remit sins and thus cannot justify and save men, it can cause a justified man to become unjustified if he violates the law. Hence, while obedience to the law cannot justify men, disobedience to the law can un-justify men. While faith and not the law justifies a man, faith and the obedience to the law is necessary to remain justified. Therefore, once men are justified they must keep the law (which includes doing good works and avoiding sins) in order to remain justified. For example, when God created Adam and Eve, they were perfect and holy and by no work of their own because they did not exist before God created them. Yet, after they were created they had keep faith in God and obey his laws or else they would lose their justification.

With these truths in mind, we can correctly interpret the Bible's teaching on grace, the purpose and effect of the law, and faith.

In the following verses, St. Paul teaches that men are justified and thus become believers by faith and not by the law, not by any works that they did:

"Where is then thy boasting? It is excluded. By what law? Of works? No, but by the law of faith. For we account a man to be justified by faith, without the works of the law." (Rom. 3:27-28)

He teaches this in regard to Abraham:

"What shall we say then that Abraham hath found, who is our father according to the flesh. For if Abraham were justified by works, he hath whereof to glory, but not before God. For what saith the scripture? Abraham believed God, and it was reputed to him unto justice." (Rom. 4:1-3)

St. Paul is taking about Abraham when he found God. Hence, he is speaking about the works Abraham did before he found God and thus before he was justified. No matter how many good works Abraham did before he knew God and before he had faith in God, these works could not justify him.<sup>2960</sup> He needed to have knowledge of God and faith in God to be justified. St. Paul says,

"Faith then cometh by hearing." (Rom. 10:17) "In him every one that believeth, is justified." (Acts 13:39)

However, the good works Abraham did before he knew God and thus before he was justified earned him the knowledge and assisting grace of God that enabled him to believe in God and make an act of faith in God, which then justified him by God's covering grace.

But once Abraham believed in God, he needed to obey the law and thus do good works and avoid sins in order to remain justified. His good works and avoidance of sin confirmed his faith and enabled him to remain justified. This is what St. James means when he says,

"But wilt thou know, O vain man, that faith without works is dead? Was not Abraham our father justified by works, offering up Isaac his son upon the altar? Seest thou that faith did cooperate with his works; and by works faith was made perfect?" (Jam. 2:20-22)

Abraham was already a believer and justified when he offered up Isaac; so his work of offering up Isaac did not justify him but instead confirmed and enabled him to remain justified and confirmed and perfected his faith and thus he become holier than he was before.

Hence St. James statement that "Abraham... was justified by works" (Ja. 2:20) does not contradict St. Paul's following words when taken in correct context: "We therefore conclude, that it is by faith a man is justified and not by the works of the law. (Rom. 3:28). St. James is speaking of the necessity of a justified man (Abraham) to do works in order to confirm and maintain his justification. Whereas St. Paul is speaking of an unjustified man (Abraham when he was an unbeliever) who can only be justified by faith and thus not by the law, not by works. This is proved elsewhere when St. Paul speaks to believers and tells them that they must keep the law in order to be just. This means that if they keep the law they will remain justified but if they violate it they will lose their justification:

"For not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified." (Rom. 2:13)

If St. Paul's words are not taken in the correct context it can seem that he contradicts himself when he says "the doers of the law shall be justified" (Rom. 2:13), as opposed to when he says "that it is by faith a man is justified and not by the works of the law." (Rom. 3:28). In the former case, St. Paul is speaking about believers who are already justified, while in the latter case about those who are not justified and then become justified by faith. With both of his teachings considered, St. Paul teaches that whereas the law cannot justify a man, it can un-justify him. Hence, in Rom. 2:13 St. Paul teaches that a believer who does not keep the law (which includes good works and avoiding sin) will lose his justification and thus be in a state of damnation: "For not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified." (Rom. 2:13)

Therefore, St. Paul is not teaching that the law is not necessary for salvation but only that the law cannot justify anyone. However, once justified, men must keep the law to remain justified and be saved. After all, this is what St. Paul's master, Jesus Christ, teaches. When speaking to believers and thus those who are already justified, Jesus says the following:

Hence Jesus teaches that the laws regarding faith and morals (dogmatic laws) are still in force during the New Covenant era and thus are not abolished and are necessary for salvation:

“Do not think that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets. I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil. For amen I say unto you, till heaven and earth pass, one jot, or one tittle shall not pass of the law, till all be fulfilled.” (Mt. 5:17-18)

And echoing this, St. Paul says,

“Do we, then, destroy the [dogmatic] law through faith? God forbid: but we establish the law.” (Rom. 3:31)

The dogmatic law can prevent a man from being justified

St. Paul teaches that to be justified a man must not only have faith but must also have contrition for his mortal sins. Contrition includes sorrow for sin and a firm purpose of amendment. A man who has faith is prevented from being justified if he lacks contrition for his mortal sins because he does not have charity:

“For this is the charity of God, that we keep his commandments.” (1 Jn. 5:3)

St. Paul teaches that men who have faith but do not have charity are nothing and thus cannot be justified:

“And if I should have prophecy and should know all mysteries, and all knowledge, and if I should have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing.” (1 Cor. 13:2)

Charity is the love of God. Men who do not have contrition for their sins do not truly love God and thus do not have charity:

“He that committeth sin is of the devil.” (1 Jn. 3:8)

“For this is the charity of God, that we keep his commandments.” (1 Jn. 5:3)

“He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them; he it is that loveth me... Jesus answered, and said to him: If any one love me, he will keep my word... He that loveth me not, keepeth not my words. (Jn. 14:21, 23-24)

Therefore, unbaptized men who believe in the Catholic faith but do not have contrition for their sins are unworthy candidates for baptism because they do not have charity, which is the love of God. They must not be baptized even if they are in danger of death. If they do get baptized, they receive the indelible mark and membership in the Catholic Church because they have the Catholic faith, but they do not get sanctifying grace. Thus their sins and the punishment due to their sins are not remitted until they worthily confess their sins to a Catholic priest,<sup>2961</sup> which includes what they were lacking, contrition for their sins. They will then get the remission of all their sins and the punishment due to their sins by the sanctifying grace of baptism. Even though the The Catechism of Christian Doctrine contains heresies and Pius X who approved it was an apostate antipope, they teach the truth in this regard:

The Catechism of Christian Doctrine (aka Catechism of Pius X), 1912:

“14 Q. When the person who is being baptised is an adult, what dispositions should he have? A. An adult who is being baptised, besides faith, should have at least imperfect contrition for the mortal sins he may have committed.

“15 Q. If an adult in mortal sin was baptised without such sorrow, what would he receive? A. If an adult was baptised in mortal sin without such sorrow he would receive the character of Baptism and membership in the Catholic Church but not the remission of his sins nor sanctifying grace. And these two effects would be suspended, until the obstacle is removed by the sacrament of Penance.”

Members of the Catholic Church, who thus have the Catholic faith, must also have contrition for their sins or else they cannot be remitted even when they confess them to a priest and receive absolution. If their sins are mortal, then they cannot be justified because they do not have charity.

Romans 7:1-13

The sin debt, old law, and new law

“Know you not, brethren, (for I speak to them that know the [Old Covenant] law,) that the law hath dominion over a man as long as it liveth? For the woman that hath an husband, whilst her husband liveth is bound to the law. But if her husband be dead, she is loosed from the law of her husband. Therefore, whilst her husband liveth, she shall be called an adulteress, if she be with another man: but if her husband be dead, she is delivered from the law of her husband; so that she is not an adulteress, if she be with another man.” (Rom. 7:1-3)

Therefore, when Christ died, the old law (the Old Covenant and its rituals) ended and the new law began (the New Covenant and its rituals):

“Therefore, my brethren, you also are become dead to the [Old Covenant] law, by the body of Christ [by Christ’s sacrificial death which ended the Old Covenant and replaced it with the New Covenant and created the Catholic Church]; that you may belong to another, who is risen again from the dead, that we may bring forth fruit to God.” (Rom. 7:4)

Under the New Covenant, the faithful who are in a state of grace no longer have the sin debt because their sins are remitted by Christ. They are no longer under the law of Moses and the Old Covenant. Instead, they are under the law of Christ who paid the sin debt and thus remitted their sins. The faithful, then, are members of another Church, to the Catholic Church and no longer of the synagogue.

The following verses teach that the old law could not remit the sins of men but could only cover them. Thus their sin debt remained and therefore men during the Old Testament era were under the law of death:

“For when we were in the flesh, the passions of sins, which were by the [violation of the dogmatic] law, did work in our members to bring forth fruit unto death [, not only by the guilt of the sin which could be forgiven and covered, but also the sin debt which could only be remitted by Christ,]. But now we are loosed from the [Old Covenant] law, dead to that which held us captive [by the sin debt, and thus the Old Testament elect could not go to heaven when they died but went to the Limbo of the Fathers], so that we serve not under the old written code [the Old Covenant that only promised the remission of sins] but in the new life of the Spirit [the New Covenant which remits sins and completely justifies souls by sanctifying grace bestowed in souls by the Holy Spirit].” (Rom. 7:5-6)

The law makes men aware of their sins and tempts rebellious men to violate it

When men keep the natural law, there is no need for the written law to warn, condemn, and punish them. That does not mean that men who do not have the written law are not guilty of sin when they violate the natural law. They are! This is what St. Paul means when he says,

“For whosoever have sinned without the [written] law, shall perish without the law [because they violated the natural law]; and whosoever have sinned in the [written] law, shall be judged by the [written] law.” (Rom. 2:12)

“For when the Gentiles, who have not the [written] law, do by nature those things that are of the law [by the natural law]; these having not the [written] law are a law to themselves [by the natural law].” (Rom. 2:14)

Furthermore, as you will read below, St. Paul, in Rom. 7:13, teaches that those who violate the written law are doubly guilty for violating the natural law and the written law. Here is commentary of Rom. 2:12:

Catholic Commentary, Rom. 2:12. Whosoever sinned without the law: “That is, without the written law of Moses, against their reason and conscience, against the natural law. And also those who being Jews, have sinned under this written law, shall be judged even with greater severity for having transgressed against the written law.”

St. Paul teaches that some men who sin against the natural law are so obstinate that they do not know it is a sin anymore. Hence they hardened their hearts and thus their conscience. In his mercy, God gives some of these men the written law, such as the Ten Commandments, so that they no longer hide their sins from themselves and must confront them, at which point there is hope for them to repent.

But because most fallen men are rebellious, the written law incites their rebelliousness and thus they violate the written law simply because someone or some law told them what they must do or not do. All this St. Paul teaches in Romans 7:7-13, when considering all the verses. In these verses, St. Paul speaks for mankind and not for himself. This is evident because in verse 9 he says “I lived some time without the law,” but there was no time that St. Paul lived without the law because he was born into the law and lived as a Pharisee:

“Though I might also have confidence in the flesh. If any other thinketh he may have confidence in the flesh, I more, Being circumcised the eighth day, of the stock of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, an Hebrew of the Hebrews; according to the law, a Pharisee.” (Phili. 3:4-5)

“And my life indeed from my youth, which was from the beginning among my own nation in Jerusalem, all the Jews do know: Having known me from the beginning (if they will give testimony) that according to the most sure sect of our religion I lived a Pharisee.” (Acts 26:4-5)

And in Rom. 7: 10, 11, and 13, he says he committed the sin of covetousness unto death and thus a mortal sin. Yet we know that St. Paul was not guilty of mortal sins against morals but against the faith for denying Christ. Another example is Queen Esther. In the following verses, Queen Esther speaks for her sinful people and not for herself because she did not worship false gods, even though she used the word “we”:

“We have sinned in thy sight, and therefore thou hast delivered us into the hands of our enemies: For we have worshipped their gods. Thou art just, O Lord.” (Est. 14:6-7)

In regards to Romans 7:7-13, St. Augustine says,

St. Augustine, Letter 37, to Simplician, First Question, 397: “1.1. ...In this text it seems to me that the apostle [St. Paul] has put himself in the place of someone who is under the law, whose words he speaks in his own person.”

Hence, in Romans 7:7-13, St. Paul speaks for mankind and not for himself:

“What shall we say, then? Is the [dogmatic] law sin? God forbid. But I do not know sin, but by the law; for I had not known concupiscence, if the law did not say: Thou shalt not covet. But sin taking occasion by the commandment wrought in me all manner of concupiscence. For without the law sin was dead.” (Rom. 7:7-8)

St. Paul did not say “I did not sin,” but “I do not know sin”:

St. Augustine, Letter 37, to Simplician, First Question, 397: “1.2. This is why it must be understood that the law was given not that sin might be instilled nor that it might be extirpated [forgiven] but only that it might be made manifest... And so he does not say, 'I did not commit sin except through the law,' but, I did not know sin except through the law. Nor, again, does he say, 'For I did not have covetousness except that the law said, You shall not covet,' but, did not know about covetousness except that the law said, You shall not covet. From this it is clear that covetousness was not instilled by the law but made manifest by it."<sup>2962</sup>

Hence, when St. Paul says, "I do not know sin but by the law," he means the hard hearted man who no longer knew his sin was sin until the written law was made manifest to him:"

"There is a way that seemeth to a man right: and the ends thereof lead to death." (Prv. 16:25) "There is a generation that are pure in their own eyes, and yet are not washed from their filthiness." (Prv. 30:12) "For I am not conscious to myself of anything, yet I am not hereby justified." (1 Cor. 4:4)

Hence, when St. Paul says "without the law sin was dead" (Rom. 7:8), he means hidden and buried in his heart. This is made clear in the following verses:

"And I lived some time without the [written] law. But when the commandment came, sin revived, and I died." (Rom. 7:9)

Therefore, if the written law revived his sin, then his sin was alive before the written law only he did not know it was sin because of his hardened heart. When he says "I died" he means that he now knows that he is in a state of damnation.

"And the commandment that was ordained to life, the same was found to be unto death to me. For sin, taking occasion by the commandment, seduced me, and by it killed me." (Rom. 7:10-11)

The written law seduced him by forcing him to confront his sin that he was hiding in his heart. The written law brings joy to those who were keeping it by obeying the natural law and sadness and hopefully repentance to those who were violating it by violating the natural law. To the former it confirms them in life but to the latter it makes them aware that they are dead, in a state of damnation:

"Wherefore the law indeed is holy and the commandment holy and just and good. Was that then which is good made death unto me? God forbid. But sin, that it may appear sin, by that which is good, wrought death in me; that sin, by the commandment, might become sinful above measure." (Rom. 7:12-13)

Here St. Paul clearly teaches that the written law made manifest the sin that he was hiding in his heart so that it "may appear as sin." He did not say that it "may be sin." This man, then, now knows that he is dead, in a state of damnation, and not only for violating the natural law but now for violating the written law, at which point he became "sinful above measure" and thus doubly guilty; sinful when he violated the natural law and sinful when he violated the written law.

Ancient Christian Commentary on Scripture, 1998, Commentary on Romans 7:7-13: "Overview: The law revealed to us that desires that we previously supposed were innocent were in fact culpable. Covetousness is a case in point. Before the law came, people were living in a fool's paradise, imagining that everything was all right. But when the law arrived they became aware of how wrong their previous actions had been. In itself the law is holy and shows us what God expects of us. But because we are sinful, the effect of this is the opposite of the one intended. The devil makes use of this and incites us to sin by transgressing the commandment. The Fathers were well aware of the psychological tendency to find in the commandments of the law a prod to disobedience, and they did not hesitate to bring out this aspect of the matter whenever they could. The law cannot cause death by itself, because it is spiritual by nature. Rather, it is our sin which does this, because we are sinful by our fallen nature. The law makes our sin worse because it makes it more obvious."<sup>2963</sup>

In Romans 5, St. Paul teaches the same as in Roman 7, that before the written law was given to Moses (the Ten Commandments) sin was nevertheless in the world even though it was not accounted as sin and hence death reigned from Adam to Moses:

"For until the [Mosaic] law, sin, although it was in the world, was not accounted sin, because there was no law. But death reigned from Adam unto Moses." (Rom. 5:13-14)

What follows is a commentary on Roman 7 by St. Augustine:

St. Augustine, Letter 37, to Simplician, First Question, 397: "1.4. To this he adds, For without the law sin was dead (Rom 7:8). It was as though he said that it was hidden—that is, it was thought to be dead. Shortly thereafter he says more clearly, But once I lived without the law (Rom 7:9)—that is, I was unafraid of death from sin because it had not appeared when there was no law. But with the coming of the commandment sin came back to life (Rom 7:9)—that is, it made its appearance. But I died (Rom 7:10)—that is, I knew that I was dead for the reason that the guilt of transgression threatens me with the certain punishment of death... For unless [sin] was once alive it cannot come back to life. But it was dead—that is, hidden—when mortal men who were born without the law's commandment lived in pursuit of the covetous desires of the flesh without any knowledge, because there was no prohibition. Therefore he says, Once I lived without the law... But I died, and the commandment, which was for life, turned out to be death for me. (Rom 7:9-10) For if one is obedient to the commandment, life is certainly there. But it turns out to be death as long as the commandment is contravened, so that it not only becomes sin, which was committed even before the commandment, but becomes it in a more widespread and pernicious fashion, such that sin is now committed by a knowing transgressor...

“1.6. And so, to be sure, the law is holy, and the commandment is holy and righteous and good (Rom 7:12), for it enjoins what should be enjoined and prohibits what should be prohibited. Has, then, what is good become death for me? Of course not! (Rom 7:13) There is vice in using a thing badly, not in the commandment itself, which is good, because the law is good if a person uses it lawfully (1 Tim 1:8). But a person uses the law badly if he does not submit to God with devout humility so that the law may be fulfilled through grace. And so, he who does not use it lawfully receives it for no other purpose than that his sin, which before its prohibition lay hidden, may begin to appear through transgression, and to appear without limit, because now it is not only a matter of committing sin but also of contravening the commandment. He continues, therefore, and adds, But sin, in order to appear as sin, worked death in me through what was good, so that the sinner and the sin might, thanks to the commandment, be without limit (Rom 7:13). From this it is evident what he meant when he said previously, For without the law sin was dead, not because it did not exist but because it was not manifest, and how it was said, Sin came back to life, not that it might be just what it was before the law but that it might be made manifest inasmuch as it contravened the law, since he says in this place, But sin, in order to appear as sin, worked death in me through what was good; for he does not say “in order to be sin” but in order to appear as sin.

“1.7. Then he gives the reason why this is so: For we know that the law is spiritual, but I am fleshly (Rom 7:14). In saying this he clearly indicates that the law cannot be fulfilled except by spiritual persons, who do not become such apart from grace. For a person becomes that much more conformed to the spiritual law—that is, he rises all the more to a spiritual disposition—the more he fulfills it, because he takes that much more delight in it when he is no longer worn down by its burdensomeness but energized by its light. For the precept of the Lord is lucid and enlightens the eyes (Ps. 18:9), and the law of the Lord is unsullied, transforming souls (Ps. 18:8). By grace he forgives sins and pours out the spirit of love, which is why practicing righteousness is no longer burdensome but indeed joyful.”

In Romans 7:15-23, St. Paul speaks of the concupiscence of the flesh. (See commentary on Romans 7:15-23.)

Romans 4:1-8

“What shall we say then that Abraham hath found, who is our father according to the flesh. For if Abraham were justified by works he hath whereof to glory but not before God. For what saith the scripture? Abraham believed God, and it was reputed to him unto justice. Now to him that worketh, the reward is not reckoned according to grace, but according to debt.” (Rom. 4:1-4)

St. Paul is speaking of the work of redemption, which only the God-man (the Messiah) could do, that remits men’s sins and thus pays their sin debt. Because sin is an offence by man against the infinite God, the only person that can redeem men and thus pay the sin debt to God is a sinless man and who is also the infinite God:

“No brother can redeem, nor shall man redeem: he shall not give to God his ransom, Nor the price of the redemption of his soul: and shall labour forever.. But God will redeem my soul from the hand of the underworld, when he shall receive me.” (Ps. 48:8-9, 16)

There is no work, then, that Abraham could have done to redeem himself. Therefore, faith in God and the Messiah who would redeem men was necessary for sins to be covered during the Old Testament era and thus for men to be partially justified. And faith in the God-man, Jesus Christ, who came and redeemed men was necessary for sins to be remitted during the New Covenant era and thus for men to be completely justified. The next verse of Romans 4 says,

“But to him that worketh not, yet believeth in him that justifieth the ungodly, his faith is reputed to justice according to the purpose of the grace of God.” (Rom. 4:5)

In context, this means that he who knoweth that he cannot work his own redemption is justified by his faith in God as the only one who can do the work of redemption that can justify and save him.

Signs and Wonders

“For there shall arise false Christs and false prophets, and shall shew great signs and wonders, insomuch as to deceive (if possible) even the elect.” (Mt. 24:24)

It is a Catholic dogma that the Catholic faith must come before signs and wonders; that is, before apparent miracles, exorcisms (the casting out of devils from humans), apparitions, and fulfilled prophecies. Signs and wonders are either from God or from the Devil. Regarding demonic signs and wonders, St. Paul says that Antichrist’s coming “is according to the working of Satan, in all power, and signs, and lying wonders.” (2 Thes. 2:9) And Jesus says, “For there shall arise false Christs and false prophets, and shall shew great signs and wonders, insomuch as to deceive (if possible) even the elect.” (Mt. 24:24) Hence from mere appearances it is impossible to tell if a sign or wonder is from God or the Devil: "For such false apostles are deceitful workmen, transforming themselves into the apostles of Christ [good Catholics]. And no wonder, for Satan himself transformeth himself into an angel of light." (2 Cor. 11:13-14)

To know if a sign or wonder is from God or the Devil, one must examine the faith and morality of the sign or wonder-worker as well as the faith and morality of any messages produced by the sign or wonder. St. Paul says, "But though we, or an angel from heaven, preach a gospel to you besides that which we have preached to you, let him be anathema." (Gal. 1:8) And Moses says, "If there rise in the midst of thee a prophet or one that saith he hath dreamed a dream, and he foretell a sign and a wonder, and that come to pass which he spoke, and he say to thee: Let us go and follow strange gods, which thou knowest not, and let us serve them: Thou shalt not hear the words of that prophet or dreamer; for the Lord your God trieth you, that it may appear whether you love him with all your heart, and with all your soul, or not." (Deut. 13:1-3) That is why St. Paul says, "Try your own selves if you be in the faith; prove ye yourselves...unless perhaps you be reprobates?" (2 Cor. 13:5) And "Prove all things; hold fast that which is good." (1 Thes. 5:21)

From a human perspective, many miracles of the Devil are hard or even impossible to distinguish from miracles of God. From all appearances, the black magicians that challenged Moses performed the same miracles as Moses but their miracles were from the Devil. The black magicians turned a rod into a serpent, water into blood, and brought forth frogs upon the land. (See Ex. 7:10-11, 20-22 and Ex. 8:5-7.) However, the Devil and those who follow him cannot perform true exorcisms, as the Devil does not want to cast himself out of persons he possesses. Hence apparent exorcisms by non-Catholics either do not work, or the devils pretend to be cast out but are not.

While miracles and outward piety are necessary conditions to be a true saint, they are not the main conditions. The main conditions to be a saint are orthodoxy and morality. Hence a true saint cannot be a formal heretic, a formal schismatic, or immoral. Any so-called saint who was guilty of any one of these mortal sins is not a true saint even if he performed miracles and was outwardly pious—his outward piety in this case did not reflect inward piety. Hence miracles and outward piety are not sure signs of sanctity. The miracles attributed to a canonized so-called saint who was actually evil and in hell were either miracles from the Devil or miracles from God that he allowed for the sake of others. St. Paul says that a Catholic can perform a miracle of God by moving a mountain, but if he has not charity he is nothing: "And if I should have prophecy and should know all mysteries, and all knowledge, and if I should have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing." (1 Cor. 13:2) The miracle in this case is for the benefit of others but not for the evil Catholic.

Hence do not be fooled by demonic signs and wonders done by self-professed non-Catholics and members of false religions. And, most importantly, do not be fooled by demonic signs and wonders done by nominal Catholics and bad Catholics, especially the anti-Church Fathers and anti-saints who appear as angels of light, as good Catholics.

My (RJMI) video Faith before Signs and Wonders shows nominal Catholics and a Buddhist levitating; corrupt bodies of nominal Catholics, Russian Orthodox Schismatics, and Buddhists; demonic stigmatas (which I call "stinkmatas") on New Ageras and nominal Catholics, such as the apostate Padre Pio who denied the Salvation Dogma and was guilty of other sins against the faith; and demonic apparitions and false seers and their heretical, immoral, or otherwise erroneous messages posing as godly (Catholic) apparitions and messages, such as the demonic apparitions of LaSalette, Fatima, Garabandal, Bayside, and Medjugorje; and the demonic seers Hildegard von Bingen, Bridget of Sweden, Anne Catherine Emmerich, and Therese of Liseux.

Beware also of the many good teachings and acts of these demonic sign and wonder-workers which may make you think they are holy and blessed. After all, many Protestants and Russian Orthodox Schismatics have many good and holy-sounding teachings and produce holy music but are nevertheless very unholy. It only takes one heretical teaching or one mortally sinful immoral act for them to be in a state of damnation and lead astray all who follow their heretical teaching or immoral act. St. James says, "Whosoever shall keep the whole law, but offend in one point, is become guilty of all." (Ja. 2:10) And St. Paul says, "Now I beseech you, brethren, to mark them who make dissensions and offences contrary to the doctrine which you have learned, and avoid them." (Rom. 16:17) For more on signs and wonders, see commentary on Mk. 9:37.

Lastly, beware of the fact that at times God allows nominal or bad Catholics to do godly signs and wonders, not for their benefit but for the benefit of the recipients. Jesus said, "Not every one that saith to me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven: but he that doth the will of my Father who is in heaven, he shall enter into the kingdom of heaven. Many will say to me in that day: Lord, Lord, have not we prophesied in thy name, and cast out devils in thy name, and done many miracles in thy name? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, you that work iniquity." (Mt. 7:21-23)

The Battle of Armagedon

Christ's army defeats Antichrist's army at the Battle of Armagedon

The final battle of this world is the Battle of Armagedon in which Christ's army defeats Antichrist's army. Christ's army consists of a visible earthly army and an invisible heavenly army of angels and saints led by Christ the King. The ultimate ruler of Christ's earthly army is Christ the King. Antichrist's army consists of a visible earthly army with him at the head and an invisible hellish army of devils and damned humans with Satan at its head. The ultimate ruler of Antichrist's earthly and hellish army is Satan. Apocalypse, Chapter 19, speaks of the Battle of Armagedon:

“And I saw heaven opened, and behold a white horse; and he [Christ the King] that sat upon him was called faithful and true, and with justice doth he judge and fight. And his eyes were as a flame of fire, and on his head were many diadems, and he had a name written, which no man knoweth but himself. And he was clothed with a garment sprinkled with blood; and his name is called THE WORD OF GOD. And the armies that are in heaven followed him on white horses, clothed in fine linen, white and clean. And out of his mouth proceedeth a sharp two edged sword; that with it he may strike the nations. And he shall rule them with a rod of iron; and he treadeth the winepress of the fierceness of the wrath of God the Almighty. And he hath on his garment, and on his thigh written: KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS. And I saw an angel standing in the sun, and he cried with a loud voice, saying to all the birds that did fly through the midst of heaven: Come, gather yourselves together to the great supper of God: That you may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of tribunes, and the flesh of mighty men, and the flesh of horses, and of them that sit on them, and the flesh of all freemen and bondmen, and of little and of great. And I saw the beast, and the kings of the earth, and their armies gathered together to make war with him that sat upon the horse, and with his army. And the beast was taken, and with him the false prophet, who wrought signs before him, wherewith he seduced them who received the character of the beast, and who adored his image. These two were cast alive into the pool of fire, burning with brimstone. And the rest were slain by the sword of him that sitteth upon the horse, which proceedeth out of his mouth; and all the birds were filled with their flesh.” (Apoc. 19:11-21)

The Sixth Vial and the Sixth Trumpet (The Battle of Armagedon)

The sounding of the sixth trumpet and the pouring out of the sixth vial, as recorded in Apocalypse, usher in the Battle of Armagedon. Each gives additional information regarding the battle. Even though The Jerome Biblical Commentary contains many heresies, it teaches this truth in the following quotes:

The Jerome Biblical Commentary, 1990 edition:

“[On the Sixth Trumpet] 40. ...14. At the great river Euphrates: The mention of the Euphrates anticipates the battle associated with the sixth bowl [vial] (16:12-16). It is likely that the sixth trumpet and the sixth bowl allude to the same event from different points of view...

“[On the Sixth Vial (Bowl)] 52. ...12. The sixth (angel) poured out his bowl upon the river Euphrates. The mention of the Euphrates River links this vision to the sixth trumpet (9:13-21)... The sixth bowl resumes the sixth trumpet, apparently depicting the same event in more coherent images and in a way which makes its historical setting clearer, its water dried up to prepare the way of the kings of the East. The sixth trumpet and bowl refer to a battle fought both by supernatural beings (the angels and their demonic armies in 9:13-21 and the three unclean spirits of 16:13-14 and by human beings (explicit only in the sixth bowl—the kings of the East and of the earth—vv 12 and 14.”<sup>2964</sup>

The sixth vial (Apoc. 16:12-14)

When the sixth vial is poured out, a way is prepared for Christ’s earthly army that comes from the East (from the “rising of the sun”) and crosses the Euphrates River:

Christ’s Army: “And the sixth angel poured out his vial upon that great river Euphrates and dried up the water thereof, that a way might be prepared for the kings from the rising of the sun.” (Apoc. 16:12)

Then, the Antichrist gathers his earthly army to fight against Christ’s army. Note that it says that Antichrist’s army is gathered from the whole world and not just from the East, as is Christ’s army:

Antichrist’s Army: “And I saw from the mouth of the dragon [Satan], and from the mouth of the beast [the Antichrist], and from the mouth of the false prophet, three unclean spirits like frogs. For they are the spirits of devils working signs, and they go forth unto the kings of the whole earth, to gather them to battle against the great day of the Almighty God.” (Apoc. 16:13-14)

Hence Antichrist’s army is gathered from the “whole earth,” and Christ’s army comes from the East, which excludes Israel because Israel is in the Middle East. Hence, Israel will be part of the Antichrist’s kingdom and army.

The text then says that this battle will be fought at Armagedon:

Location of the Battle: “And he shall gather them together into a place, which in Hebrew is called Armagedon.” (Apoc. 16:16)

The sixth trumpet (Apoc. 9:14-21)

At the sounding of the sixth trumpet, four of God’s angels who are bound in the Euphrates River are loosed in order to prepare the way for Christ’s earthly army by drying up the Euphrates River. And they participate in the Battle of Armagedon with Christ’s invisible heavenly army:

Sixth Trumpet: “Saying to the sixth angel, who had the trumpet: Loose the four angels who are bound in the great river Euphrates. And the four angels were loosed, who were prepared for an hour, and a day, and a month, and a year, for to kill the third part of men.” (Apoc. 9:14-15)

We know that these are good angels who prepare the way for Christ’s army and participate in the Battle of Armagedon because, as you will read, they win the battle and those whom they defeat are evildoers. Hence when it says that the angels are bound, it does not mean in shackles but that they are held back from taking action, just as God holds back his good angels from destroying the earth until his servants are given Christ’s mark on their foreheads:

“After these things, I saw four angels standing on the four corners of the earth, holding the four winds of the earth, that they should not blow upon the earth, nor upon the sea, nor on any tree. And I saw another angel ascending from the rising of the sun, having the sign of the living God; and he cried with a loud voice to the four angels to whom it was given to hurt the earth and the sea, saying: Hurt not the earth, nor the sea, nor the trees, till we sign the servants of our God in their foreheads.” (Apoc. 7:1-3)

We also read that a husband and wife are bound to one another, but that does not mean that they are bound in shackles and as evildoers:

“I think therefore that this is good for the present necessity, that it is good for a man so to be. Art thou bound to a wife? Seek not to be loosed. Art thou loosed from a wife? Seek not a wife. But if thou take a wife, thou hast not sinned.” (1 Cor. 7:26-28)

And St. Paul was bound to preach the gospel, but that does not mean that he was bound in shackles and as an evildoer:

“Praying withal for us also, that God may open unto us a door of speech to speak the mystery of Christ (for which also I am bound), that I may make it manifest as I ought to speak.” (Col. 4:3-4)

Hence, in context with other verses describing the sixth trumpet, the words “Loose the four angels who are bound in the great river Euphrates” means held back from taking action.

Apocalypse 16’s verses regarding the sixth trumpet go on to say that the number of Christ’s army is 200 million (twenty thousand times ten thousand), which consists of his visible earthly army and invisible heavenly army:

Sixth Trumpet, continued: “And the number of the army of horsemen was twenty thousand times ten thousand. And I heard the number of them.” (Apoc. 16:16)

However, it is not improbable that this refers only to Christ’s earthly army, as the nations from the East contain many people, such as China. And if the 200 million refers only to Christ’s earthly army, that is a small percentage of the world population. For example, if the world population just before Antichrist comes to power is 7 billion, it will be much less at the time of the Battle of Armagedon. Hence if the world population at the time of the battle is 2 billion, then 200 million is only 10% of the world population.

The text goes on to describe Christ’s army and its weapons, which, regarding his earthly army, is a description of weapons of modern warfare that did not exist in the days of St. John; such as gunpowder and nuclear weapons that emit fire, smoke, and brimstone (projectiles) from guns, tanks, bombs, and missiles. And it says that a third of mankind is killed in this war:

Sixth Trumpet, continued: “And thus I saw the horses in the vision: and they that sat on them had breastplates of fire and of hyacinth and of brimstone and the heads of the horses were as the heads of lions; and from their mouths proceeded fire, and smoke, and brimstone. And by these three plagues was slain the third part of men, by the fire and by the smoke and by the brimstone, which issued out of their mouths. For the power of the horses is in their mouths, and in their tails. For, their tails are like to serpents and have heads: and with them they hurt.” (Apoc. 16:17-19)

Some weapons of modern warfare shoot not only from the front (their mouths) but also from their rear (tail), such as bullets and missiles fired from the rear of tanks, planes, and helicopters. And St. John also possibly describes the arms and the effects of Christ’s heavenly army.

The text goes on to say that the army just mentioned (Christ’s army) wins the battle, and all or most of the men in Antichrist’s army that were not killed in the battle did not repent from their evil ways:

Sixth Trumpet, continued: “And the rest of the men who were not slain by these plagues did not repent from the works of their hands, that they should not adore devils, and idols of gold, and silver, and brass, and stone, and wood, which neither can see, nor hear, nor walk. Neither did they repent from their murders, nor from their sorceries, nor from their fornication, nor from their thefts.” (Apoc. 9:20-21)

The fact that those who are defeated in the Battle of Armagedon are evildoers who adored devils and idols and are murderers, sorcerers, fornicators, and thieves is one proof that they are of Antichrist’s army and the opposing army is Christ’s army who comes from the East, “rising of the Sun” (Apoc. 16:12), and crosses the dried up Euphrates River (Apoc. 16:12; Apoc. 9:14). Hence at the time of the Battle of Armagedon, the Antichrist controls Israel, his home base is Jerusalem, and his army comes from the whole world, which includes parts of the East. Beware, then, of the error which teaches that the kings of the East are part of Antichrist’s army and that Christ’s army controls Israel. Christ’s army is coming to liberate Israel and convert it from being apostate Israel to Catholic Israel.

Location of the Battle of Armagedon

Apocalypse 16:16 says that this final battle will be fought at Armagedon:

“And he shall gather them together into a place, which in Hebrew is called Armagedon.” (Apoc. 16:16)

The most probable opinion is that the Battle of Armagedon is fought in the mountains and plains of Megiddo. Megiddo is located in Northern Israel in the land allotted to Manasses:

“And the inheritance of Manasses in Issachar and in Aser was Bethsan and its villages, and Jeblaam with its villages, and the inhabitants of Dor, with the towns thereof: the inhabitants also of Endor with the villages thereof: and in like manner the inhabitants of Thanac with the villages thereof: and the inhabitants of Mageddo with their villages, and the third part of the city of Nopheth.” (Jos. 17:11)

“Manasses also did not destroy Bethsan and Thanac with their villages, nor the inhabitants of Dor and Jeblaam and Mageddo with their villages. And the Chanaanite began to dwell with them.” (Jdg. 1:27)

Megiddo commanded the pass between the plains of Jezreel and Sharon.<sup>2965</sup>

Many famous battles were fought at Megiddo. For example, Debora’s army defeated Sisara and his army at Megiddo. (See Jdg. 4:10-24; 5:19.) Gideon defeated the Madianites at Megiddo. (See Jdg. 6:33; 7:1-15.) Saul was defeated at Megiddo. (See 1 Ki. 29:1; 31:1.) The good King Josias was killed in battle at Megiddo. (See 4 Ki. 23:29-30.)

It is a less probable opinion that the Battle of Armageddon will take place in and around Kidron Valley. And it is also possible that the battle may not take place in Megiddo or Kidron Valley but in some other place.

The Two Witnesses and the Battle of Armagedon

The arrest of the Two Witnesses causes the Battle of Armagedon

Near the end of the reign of the Two Witnesses, God will allow the Antichrist to have power over them and thus arrest and murder them; just as God allowed the apostate Jews to have power over Christ and arrest and murder him near the end of his earthly ministry.

It is probable that the arrest of the Two Witnesses and jailing them in Jerusalem is what causes the Battle of Armagedon, as those who followed the Two Witnesses (faithful Catholics) will rise up at all costs in order to try to free the Two Witnesses and kill the Antichrist.

The Two Witnesses are murdered in Jerusalem and Antichrist’s followers celebrate

The murder of the Two Witnesses in Jerusalem is one proof that Jerusalem at that time is under the control of the Antichrist. It is Antichrist’s home base, hence it is apostate Jerusalem. (See Apoc. 11:3, 7-10.) Therefore, the fact that the Two Witnesses are murdered in Jerusalem is one proof that Jerusalem is under the control of the Antichrist before and during the Battle of Armagedon. The death of the Two Witnesses causes the followers of Antichrist to celebrate and demoralizes Christ’s earthly army and emboldens Antichrist’s army during the Battle of Armagedon.

The Two Witnesses are resurrected and taken into heaven, God punishes Jerusalem and the rest of the earth, and Antichrist is defeated

Three and one half days after the Two Witnesses are murdered, they are resurrected and taken into heaven, which ends their reign. (See Apoc. 11:11-13.) As the death of the Two Witnesses demoralized Christ’s earthly army and emboldened Antichrist’s army, the opposite occurs when the Two Witnesses are resurrected and taken into heaven. Their resurrection and being taken into heaven, and God’s immediate punishments upon Jerusalem and the rest of the earth, gives confidence to Christ’s earthly army and demoralizes Antichrist’s army and causes it to flee and thus Christ’s army wins the Battle of Armagedon, which ends the reign of the Antichrist. The survivors of Antichrist’s army flee and hide. The Antichrist also flees and hides and is captured thirty days later and thrown down into hell along with the False Prophet. And all or most of the apostate Jews in Jerusalem who survive the battle repent and convert and thus become Catholics. Hence Jerusalem is liberated and thus converted from apostate Jerusalem to Catholic Jerusalem.

The sounding of the seventh trumpet and pouring out of the seventh vial occur within one hour after the Two Witnesses are taken into heaven

Within the hour after the Two Witnesses are taken into heaven, the seventh trumpet is sounded and the seventh vial is poured out.

The seventh trumpet announces the end of all new prophecies as announced by the prophets upon the taking up of the two last prophets, the Two Witnesses, into heaven:

“In the days of the voice of the seventh angel, when he shall begin to sound the trumpet, the mystery of God shall be finished, as he hath declared by his servants the prophets.” (Apoc. 10:7)

After the Two Witnesses are resurrected and taken into heaven, there will be no more prophets on earth and thus prophecy will end and thus there will be no new prophecies. However, some prophecies that were made before the witnesses were raptured (such as recorded in the Old and New Testaments) are yet to be fulfilled; such as the killing of the Antichrist, the desolation of this world, the General Judgment, the creation of the everlasting earthly paradise, and the New Jerusalem coming down from heaven.

The seventh vial is also poured out when the seventh trumpet is sounded and hence within one hour after the Two Witnesses are raptured and thus when “it is done,” when all prophecy has ended and hence there will be no more prophets. The pouring out of the seventh vial also causes additional punishments from God upon Jerusalem and the rest of the earth which are not mentioned in Apoc. 11:13:

“And the seventh angel poured out his vial upon the air, and there came a great voice out of the temple from the throne, saying: It is done [when prophecy has ended when the Two Witnesses are taken into heaven]. And there were lightning, and voices, and thunders, and there was a great earthquake, such an one as never had been since men were upon the earth, such an earthquake, so great. And the great city [Jerusalem] was divided into three parts; and the cities of the Gentiles fell.” (Apoc. 16:17-19)

The “great earthquake” caused by the pouring out of the seventh vial, as mentioned in Apoc. 16:18, is the same one that occurs within one hour after the Two Witnesses are taken into heaven, as mentioned in Apoc. 11:13:

|--|---|
| “And the seventh angel poured out his vial upon the air, and there came a great voice out of the temple from the throne, saying: It is done [when prophecy has ended when the Two Witnesses are taken into heaven]. And there were lightning, and voices, and thunders, and there was a great earthquake...” (Apoc. 16:17-18) | “And after three days and a half, the spirit of life from God entered into them [the Two Witnesses]... And they heard a great voice from heaven, saying to them: Come up hither. And they went up to heaven in a cloud: and their enemies saw them. And at that hour there was made a great earthquake...” (Apoc. 11:11-13) |
|--|---|

Hence some of God’s punishments upon Jerusalem and the rest of the earth which occur within one hour after the Witnesses are raptured are mentioned in both of these scriptures (Apoc. 11:11-13; Apoc. 16:17-19):

- Apostate Jerusalem is split into three parts, a tenth of the city is destroyed, and seven thousand citizens of Jerusalem are killed.
- Gentile cities [Babylon] fall.

These punishments cause all or some of the apostate Jews who survived in Jerusalem to repent and convert and thus become Catholic. And they cause some Gentiles throughout the world to repent and convert and thus become Catholic. And these punishments also cause Antichrist’s army to panic and flee and thus be defeated by Christ’s army at the Battle of Armagedon.

The Everlasting Earthly Paradise

Upon Christ’s second coming, this world and all its evils and evildoers will be burnt up and destroyed by fire:

“But the day of the Lord shall come as a thief in which the heavens shall pass away with great violence and the elements shall be melted with heat and the earth and the works which are in it, shall be burnt up.” (2 Pt. 3:10)

This was also prophesied several times in the Old Testament:

“God shall come manifestly. Our God shall come and shall not keep silence. A fire shall burn before him and a mighty tempest shall be round about him.” (Ps. 49:3)

“Lift up your eyes to heaven and look down to the earth beneath, for the heavens shall vanish like smoke and the earth shall be worn away like a garment and the inhabitants thereof shall perish in like manner.” (Isa. 51:6)

“Blow ye the trumpet in Sion, sound an alarm in my holy mountain, let all the inhabitants of the land tremble because the day of the Lord cometh, because it is nigh at hand, a day of darkness, and of gloominess, a day of clouds and whirlwinds... the like to it hath not been from the beginning nor shall be after it even to the years of generation and generation. Before the face thereof a devouring fire and behind it a burning flame. The land is like a garden of pleasure before it, and behind it a desolate wilderness neither is there any one that can escape it.” (Joel 2:1-3)

“The Lord hath reigned, ... Clouds and darkness are round about him; justice and judgment are the establishment of his throne. A fire shall go before him and shall burn his enemies round about. His lightning have shone forth to the world. The earth saw and trembled. The mountains melted like wax, at the presence of the Lord, at the presence of the Lord of all the earth.” (Ps. 96:1-5)

But God will not utterly destroy the earth because he did not create the earth in vain:

“For thus saith the Lord that created the heavens, God himself that formed the earth and made it, the very maker thereof, he did not create it in vain; he formed it to be inhabited. I am the Lord, and there is no other.” (Isa. 45:18)

“For thus saith the Lord: All the land shall be desolate, but yet I will not utterly destroy.” (Jer. 4:27)

While the evil things of this world will pass away and no longer exist upon the face of the earth, the earth will remain after the second coming of Jesus Christ. But Christ will transform the old earth into a new earth, an everlasting earthly paradise. He will restore and perfect all the good material things that were in the old earth. And the new earth will also contain new and wonderful things, and it will be united to God's heaven in a way we cannot comprehend.

It was prophesied in both the Old and New Testaments that all evil and evildoers will eventually be destroyed from the face of the earth and that the meek shall inherit the earth forever, and thus the earth will last forever:

King David: "For evildoers shall be cut off. But they that wait upon the Lord, they shall inherit the earth. For yet a little while, and the wicked shall not be, and thou shalt seek his place, and shalt not find it. But the meek shall inherit the earth and shall delight in abundance of peace." (Ps. 36:9-11)

King Solomon: "For they that are upright shall dwell in the earth, and the holy shall be left behind in it. But the wicked shall be destroyed from the earth, and they that do unjustly shall be taken away from it." (Prv. 2:21-22)

Jesus: "Blessed are the meek for they shall inherit the earth." (Mt. 5:4)

If the earth did not last forever, then the meek would not be able to inherit it. The Prophet Isaias, St. John, and St. Peter speak of the earthly paradise that Jesus Christ will create after his second coming:

Isaias: "For behold I create new heavens and a new earth; and the former things shall not be in remembrance, and they shall not come upon the heart." (Isa. 65:17)

St. John: "And I saw a new heaven and a new earth. For the first heaven and the first earth was gone." (Apoc. 21:1)

Catholic Commentary on Apoc. 21:1: "New earth: New by their form and qualities but not by their substance. The first heaven and first earth was passed away, being changed not as to their substance but in their qualities."

St. Peter: "Seeing then that all these things are to be dissolved, what manner of people ought you to be in holy conversation and godliness? Looking for and hasting unto the coming of the day of the Lord by which the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved and the elements shall melt with the burning heat? But we look for new heavens and a new earth according to his promises, in which justice dwelleth." (2 Pt. 3:11-13)

Catholic Commentary on 2 Pt. 3:11: "New earth: According to the divine promises, look for new heavens and a new earth where justice is to dwell whither sinners shall not enter but the just only in a new state of never-ending happiness."

St. Paul also speaks of the earthly paradise in which not only men but also animals and other material good things of the earth will be delivered from all corruption and be glorious:

"For I reckon that the sufferings of this time are not worthy to be compared with the glory to come that shall be revealed in us. For the expectation of the creature waiteth for the revelation of the sons of God. For the creature was made subject to vanity, not willingly but by reason of him that made it subject, in hope: Because the creature also itself shall be delivered from the servitude of corruption into the liberty of the glory of the children of God." (Rom. 8:18-21)

Catholic Commentary on Rom. 8:19: "The expectation of the creature: He speaks of the corporal creation made for the use and service of man, which by occasion of his sin was made subject to vanity; that is, to a perpetual instability, tending to corruption and other defects, so that by a figure of speech it is here said to groan and be in labour and to long for its deliverance, which is then to come when sin shall reign no more. The creatures expect with impatience and hope with confidence to see a happy change in their condition in which they will be delivered from the captivity of sin to which man has reduced them and enter into the liberty of the glory of the sons of God. Inanimate creation will enter into a pure, incorruptible, and perfect state to the end of ages. They will no longer be subject to those changes and vicissitudes which sin has brought upon them; nor will there be any sinful men to abuse their beauty and goodness in offending the Creator of all. Beasts of prey will then lay aside their ferocity and venomous serpents their poisonous qualities."

The Prophet Isaias describes some of the good material things that will exist in the everlasting earthly paradise:

"For behold I create new heavens and a new earth. And the former things shall not be in remembrance, and they shall not come upon the heart. But you shall be glad and rejoice for ever in these things which I create. For behold I create Jerusalem a rejoicing, and the people thereof joy. And I will rejoice in Jerusalem, and joy in my people, and the voice of weeping shall no more be heard in her, nor the voice of crying... And they shall build houses, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and eat the fruits of them... The wolf and the lamb shall feed together; the lion and the ox shall eat straw; and dust shall be the serpent's food: they shall not hurt nor kill in all my holy mountain, saith the Lord." (Isa. 65:17-25)

Catholic Commentary on Isa. 65:17: "New earth: Having purified the former by the general conflagration, which many assert will take place at the end of 6,000 years. After the resurrection the qualities and not the substance of the world will be changed."

"The wolf shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; the calf and the lion and the sheep shall abide together, and a little child shall lead them. The calf and the bear shall feed, their young ones shall rest together, and the lion shall eat straw like the ox. And the sucking child shall play on the hole of the asp, and the weaned child shall thrust his hand into the den of the basilisk. They shall not hurt, nor shall they kill in all my holy mountain, for the earth is filled with the knowledge of the Lord, as the covering waters of the sea.” (Isa. 11:6-9)

“And the Lord of hosts shall make unto all people in this mountain, a feast of fat things, a feast of wine, of fat things full of marrow, of wine purified from the lees. And he shall destroy in this mountain the face of the bond with which all people were tied and the web that he began over all nations. He shall cast death down headlong for ever. And the Lord God shall wipe away tears from every face; and the reproach of his people, he shall take away from off the whole earth, for the Lord hath spoken it.” (Isa. 25:6-8)

Hence the Jerusalem that Isaias says will be created will last forever:

“For behold I create Jerusalem a rejoicing, and the people thereof joy. And I will rejoice in Jerusalem, and joy in my people, and the voice of weeping shall no more be heard in her, nor the voice of crying... (Isa. 65:18-19)

St. John tells us more about this Jerusalem. He calls it the New Jerusalem and says it will come down from heaven and land upon the new earth and that God himself, Jesus Christ, will rule the new earth from it:

“And I saw a new heaven and a new earth. For the first heaven and the first earth was gone... And I John saw the holy city, the new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a great voice from the throne, saying: Behold the tabernacle of God with men, and he will dwell with them. And they shall be his people; and God himself with them shall be their God. ... And he took me up in spirit to a great and high mountain: and he shewed me the holy city Jerusalem coming down out of heaven from God ... And I saw no temple therein. For the Lord God Almighty is the temple thereof, and the Lamb [Jesus Christ]. And the city hath no need of the sun, nor of the moon, to shine in it. For the glory of God hath enlightened it, and the Lamb is the lamp thereof. And the nations shall walk in the light of it, and the kings of the earth shall bring their glory and honour into it. And the gates thereof shall not be shut by day, for there shall be no night there. And they shall bring the glory and honour of the nations into it.” (Apoc. 21:1-3, 10, 22-26)

This is when the promise made to Abraham and his Israelite descendents will finally be fulfilled, in which Catholic Israelites who are saved will possess the New Israel and New Jerusalem forever. And the elect of other races will possess their own lands forever. Each race and nation will have its own king while Christ the, King of kings, will rule supreme over all the races and nations from the New Jerusalem.

What follows is testimony from two Church Fathers, St. Augustine and St. Irenaeus. They teach that this earth will not be utterly destroyed but will be transformed:

St. Augustine, City of God, 426: “For when the judgment is finished, this heaven and earth shall cease to be, and there will be a new heaven and a new earth. For this world shall pass away by transmutation not by absolute destruction. And therefore the apostle says, ‘For the figure of this world passeth away. I would have you be without anxiety.’ The figure, therefore, passes away not the nature.”<sup>2966</sup>

St. Irenaeus, Against Heresies, inter. 180-190: “It behoves the righteous first to receive the promise of the inheritance which God promised to the fathers and to reign in it when they rise again to behold God in this creation which is renovated... It is fitting, therefore, that the creation itself, being restored to its primeval condition, should without restraint be under the dominion of the righteous; and the apostle has made this plain in the Epistle to the Romans, when he thus speaks: ‘For the expectation of the creature waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God. For the creature has been subjected to vanity, not willingly, but by reason of him who hath subjected the same in hope; since the creature itself shall also be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the sons of God.’ ...

“2. ... Now God made promise of the earth to Abraham and his seed; yet neither Abraham nor his seed, that is, those who are justified by faith, do now receive any inheritance in it; but they shall receive it at the resurrection of the just. For God is true and faithful; and on this account He said, ‘Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth.’<sup>2967</sup> ...

“For neither is the substance nor the essence of the creation annihilated (for faithful and true is he who has established it), but ‘the fashion of the world passeth away;’ that is, those things among which transgression has occurred, since man has grown old in them. And therefore this [present] fashion has been formed temporary, God foreknowing all things... But when this [present] fashion [of things] passes away and man has been renewed and flourishes in an incorruptible state so as to preclude the possibility of becoming old, [then] there shall be the new heaven and the new earth in which the new man shall remain [continually] always holding fresh converse with God. And since (or, that) these things shall ever continue without end, Isaiah declares, ‘For as the new heavens and the new earth which I do make, continue in my sight, saith the LORD, so shall your seed and your name remain.’<sup>2968</sup>”

Beware, then, of the stoics who heretically believe that all material things are evil or at least to be abhorred. If material things (human bodies, animals, plants, bodies of water, mountains, food, etc) are evil, then God is evil for placing them in the first Garden of Paradise, which was meant to last forever, and for placing them in the Garden of Paradise that Jesus Christ will create after his second coming, which will last forever.

“And God saw all the things that he had made, and they were very good. And the evening and morning were the sixth day.” (Gen. 1:31)

Also beware of the epicureans and others who idolize the good material things of the world by placing them over God and spiritual things, of whom St. Augustine speaks of:

St. Augustine, Homilies on the First Epistle of John, Homily 2 (1 John 2:12-17), 416: “11. “[St. John says,] ‘But let us not love the world, neither the things that are in the world. For the things that are in the world are the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life.’

“These three are they [lust of flesh, lust of eyes, and pride], lest haply any man say, ‘The things that are in the world, God made: i.e. Heaven and earth, the sea; the sun, the moon, the stars, all the garniture of the heavens. What is the garniture of the sea? all creeping things. What of the earth? animals, trees, flying creatures. These are in the world, God made them. Why then am I not to love what God hath made?’ Let the Spirit of God be in thee that thou mayest see that all these things are good. But woe to thee if thou love the things made and forsake the Maker of them! Fair are they to thee, but how much fairer he that formed them!

“Mark well, beloved. For by similitudes ye may be instructed, lest Satan steal upon you, saying what he is wont to say. Take your enjoyment in the creature of God wherefore made he those things but for your enjoyment? And men drink themselves drunken and perish and forget their own Creator, while not temperately but lustfully they use the things created, the Creator is despised. Of such saith the apostle: ‘They worshipped and served the creature rather than the Creator, Who is blessed for ever.’ (Rom. 1:25) God doth not forbid thee to love these things, howbeit, not to set thine affections upon them for blessedness, but to approve and praise them to this end, that thou mayest love thy Creator.

[RJMI: “For by the greatness of the beauty and of the creature, the creator of them may be seen so as to be known thereby.” (Wis. 13:5)]

“In the same manner, my brethren, as if a bridegroom should make a ring for his bride, and she having received the ring, should love it more than she loves the bridegroom who made the ring for her; would not her soul be found guilty of adultery in the very gift of the bridegroom, albeit she did but love what the bridegroom gave her? By all means let her love what the bridegroom gave; yet should she say, ‘This ring is enough for me, I do not wish to see his face now,’ what sort of woman would she be? Who would not detest such folly? Who not pronounce her guilty of an adulterous mind? Thou lovest gold in place of the man, lovest a ring in place of the bridegroom.

Thou lovest a ring in place of thy bridegroom and hast no wish to see thy bridegroom to pledge thee to him but to turn away thy heart from him! For this the bridegroom gives earnest, that in his earnest he may himself be loved. Well then, God gave thee all these things. Love him that made them. There is more that he would fain give thee, that is, his very self that made these things. But if thou love these... and neglect the Creator [who make them] and love the world [instead of or more than God who made the world], shall not thy love be accounted adulterous?”

(See RJMI book The Hellenization of Christianity by the Anti-Church Fathers and Scholastics: The Stoic and Epicurean Philosophies.)

The Meanings of Sleep

“Then was he [Jesus] seen by more than five hundred brethren at once: of whom many remain until this present and some are fallen asleep.” (1 Cor. 15:6)

In the Bible the word “sleep” means several things:

- It means being alive but not awake and thus in the repose of sleep:

“And he [Jesus] cometh to his disciples, and findeth them asleep, and he saith to Peter: What? Could you not watch one hour with me?” (Mt. 26:40)

“And a certain young man named Eutychus, sitting on the window, being oppressed with a deep sleep (as Paul was long preaching), by occasion of his sleep fell from the third loft down, and was taken up dead.” (Acts 20:9)

- It means being awake but sluggish, slothful, or unaware:

“And that knowing the season; that it is now the hour for us to rise from sleep. For now our salvation is nearer than when we believed.” (Rom. 13:11)

“Therefore, let us not sleep, as others do; but let us watch, and be sober. For they that sleep, sleep in the night; and they that are drunk, are drunk in the night.” (1 Thes. 5:6-7)

- It means being dead and thus when the body dies:

“So David slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David.” (3 Ki. 2:10)

“After that he [Jesus] said to them: Lazarus our friend sleepeth; but I go that I may awake him out of sleep. His disciples therefore said: Lord, if he sleep, he shall do well. But Jesus spoke of his death; and they thought that he spoke of the repose of sleep.” (Jn. 11:11-13)

“Then was he [Jesus] seen by more than five hundred brethren at once: of whom many remain until this present and some are fallen asleep.” (1 Cor. 15:6)

- And the elect whose bodies are dead are said to be sleeping in the Lord:

“For if we believe that Jesus died, and rose again; even so them who have slept through Jesus, will God bring with him.” (1 Thes. 4:13)

“And falling on his knees, he [St. Stephen] cried with a loud voice, saying: Lord, lay not this sin to their charge. And when he had said this, he fell asleep in the Lord. And Saul was consenting to his death.” (Acts 7:59)

However, when sleep means dead and thus when the body dies, it does not mean that the dead persons are not conscious. It means that their bodies are dead but their souls are conscious and reside either in the hell of the damned, in purgatory, or in heaven during the New Testament era or in the Limbo of the Fathers during the Old Testament era.

The Bible speaks of men who died before the General Judgment at the end of the world who are in the hell of the damned, or were in the Limbo of the Fathers (Abraham’s Bosom) during the Old Testament era, or are in heaven since the New Covenant era.

When the holy Prophet Samuel’s body was dead, his soul was in the Limbo of the Fathers. And he appeared upon the face of the earth to rebuke King Saul:

“And Samuel died, and all Israel was gathered together, and they mourned for him, and buried him in his house in Ramatha. And David rose and went down into the wilderness of Pharan.” (1 Ki. 25:1)

“Now Samuel was dead... And Samuel said to Saul: Why hast thou troubled me that I should be brought up [from the Limbo of the Fathers]? (1 Ki. 28:3, 15)

Jesus speaks of the poor, sick beggar Lazarus and the greedy rich man. After their bodies died, their souls were still alive; Lazarus was in Abraham’s Bosom (the Limbo of the Fathers) and the rich man was in the hell of the damned.<sup>2969</sup> And the rich man also saw Abraham alive but without his body, as Abraham’s body was dead and in the grave:

“And decaying, he [Abraham] died in a good old age... And Isaac and Ismael his sons buried him in the double cave, which was situated in the field of Ephron the son of Seor the Hethite, over against Mambre.” (Gen. 25:8-10)

<sup>2969</sup> While the souls of the damned are alive, they are said to be dead, just as men on earth in deadly sins are said to be dead. Their souls are said to be dead because they are in a state of damnation. And the souls in the hell of the damned are in a state of everlasting damnation. (See commentary on Jn. 11:26.)

“And it came to pass, that the beggar died, and was carried by the angels into Abraham’s bosom. And the rich man also died: and he was buried in gehenna. And lifting up his eyes when he was in torments, he saw Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom...” (Lk. 16:22-23)

While the bodies of Moses and Elias were dead, their souls were in the Limbo of the Fathers. And they came upon the face of the earth and appeared with Jesus on Mount Tabor when Jesus was transfigured:

“And after six days Jesus taketh unto him Peter and James, and John his brother, and bringeth them up into a high mountain apart: And he was transfigured before them. And his face did shine as the sun: and his garments became white as snow. And behold there appeared to them Moses and Elias talking with him.” (Mt. 17:1-3)

When Jesus died, he went to the Limbo of the Fathers, the highest level in the underworld, where the Old Testament elect were alive but did not have their bodies:

“Christ also died once for our sins, the just for the unjust: that he might offer us to God, being put to death indeed in the flesh, but enlivened in the spirit, in which also coming he preached to those spirits [human souls] that were in prison [the Limbo of the Fathers].” (1 Pt. 3:18-19)

And after Jesus rose from the dead, the bodies of the Old Testament elect rose out of their tombs and were united to their souls. Note carefully that it does not say that their souls rose out of their tombs, as we know that their souls were in the Limbo of the Fathers. It says that their bodies arose:

“And the graves were opened: and many bodies of the saints that had slept arose, and coming out of the tombs after his resurrection, came into the holy city, and appeared to many.” (Mt. 27:52-53)

This was necessary so that the Old Testament elect could be baptized, confirmed, and fed the Holy Eucharist. When Jesus ascended into heaven, he took the souls of the Old Testament elect with him and their bodies returned to the grave.

Before the General Judgment and when the Fifth Seal is opened, saints who have died are under the altar of God in heaven crying out and thus are alive, alive in their souls in heaven but dead in their bodies which will not be resurrected until just before the General Judgment:

“And when he had opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the souls of them that were slain for the word of God, and for the testimony which they held. And they cried with a loud voice, saying: How long, O Lord (holy and true) dost thou not judge and revenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth? And white robes were given to every one of them one; and it was said to them that they should rest for a little time, till their fellow servants, and their brethren, who are to be slain, even as they, should be filled up.” (Apoc. 6:9-11)

The heresy that souls of dead men are literally asleep or cease to exist

Beware of the heresy that the souls of men literally sleep when they die and will not awake until the General Judgment, or the heresy that when men die their souls cease to exist. The former heresy takes out of context St. Paul's word "sleep" to mean that both the souls and bodies of dead men sleep and hence not only their bodies sleep. The dogma is that when men die, their bodies are said to sleep but their souls do not sleep nor cease to exist. While their bodies are dead and decaying, their souls are awake and conscious and reside either in heaven, purgatory, or hell. During the Old Testament era, the souls of the elect who died were conscious and resided in the Limbo of the Fathers. And the souls of the reprobates who died were conscious and resided, as they still do, in the hell of the damned. The Bible contains several proofs of this dogma. Take the following examples:

- After the holy Prophet Samuel died and his body was dead and decaying, he, in his soul, came from the Limbo of the Fathers to relay a message to King Saul. (1 Ki. 28:11-15)
- After Moses and Elias were dead and their bodies were dead and decayed, they, in their souls, came from the Limbo of the Fathers and appeared with Jesus during his transfiguration. (Mt. 17:1-4)
- The apostle St. John was taken to heaven and saw some of the elect who died and thus whose bodies were dead and decayed. He saw twenty-four ancients: "And the four and twenty ancients and the four living creatures fell down and adored God that sitteth upon the throne, saying: Amen, Alleluia." (Apoc. 19:4) And he saw one of his brethren, a human being and thus not an angel: "And I fell down before his feet to adore him. And he saith to me: See thou do it not: I am thy fellow servant, and of thy brethren, who have the testimony of Jesus. Adore God. For the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy." (Apoc. 19:10)
- St. John saw the souls of the martyrs in heaven crying out under the altar of God: "And when he had opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the souls [not bodies] of them that were slain for the word of God and for the testimony which they held. And they cried with a loud voice, saying: How long, O Lord (holy and true), dost thou not judge and revenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth? And white robes were given to every one of them one; and it was said to them, that they should rest for a little time, till their fellow servants, and their brethren, who are to be slain, even as they, should be filled up." (Apoc. 6:9-11)

- When the elect died during the Old Testament era, their souls were alive and went to the Limbo of the Fathers but their bodies were dead and went to the grave and decayed and thus their dead bodies are said to have slept. After Jesus rose from the dead "the graves were opened, and many bodies of the saints that had slept arose, and coming out of the tombs after his resurrection came into the holy city and appeared to many." (Mt. 27:52-53) Hence the Old Testament elect's bodies were re-united to their souls after Jesus' resurrection so that they could be baptized, confirmed, and fed the Holy Eucharist. After which, their bodies returned to the grave and Jesus took their souls with him when he ascended into heaven.
- And Jesus speaks of the dead poor Lazarus who was in Abraham's Bosom (the Limbo of the Fathers) and the dead rich man who was in the hell of the damned and both were alive in their souls even though their bodies were dead and decayed: "And it came to pass that the beggar died and was carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom. And the rich man also died and he was buried in gehenna. And lifting up his eyes when he was in torments, he saw Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom: And he cried, and said: Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water to cool my tongue, for I am tormented in this flame.” (Lk. 16:22-24)

Hence Jesus’ following words, just before he raised Lazarus from the dead, apply immediately to souls and then later to bodies. Not until the end of the world will the bodies of the elect be resurrected in a glorified state:

“Jesus said to her: I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth in me, although he be dead, shall live: And every one that liveth, and believeth in me, shall not die for ever. Believest thou this?” (Jn. 11:25-26)

Jesus is speaking of the souls of the elect because they live forever even after their bodies die. He is also speaking of the bodies of the elect that will also live forever in incorruption when the elect get their bodies back during the General Judgment at the end of the world.

Beware also, then, of the heresy that when souls are said to be “dead” it means that they no longer exist or that they are literally asleep. The dogma is that the souls of the dead reprobates, and the living who are guilty of deadly sin, exist and are conscious and thus are not literally dead or asleep. Their souls are said to be dead or asleep because they exist in a state of damnation. St. Paul says that men who have not died and are guilty of original sin or mortal sin are dead, that is, in a state of damnation:

“For she that liveth in delicacies is dead while she is living.” (1 Tim. 5:6)

“You were dead in your offences and sins wherein in time past you walked according to the course of this world, according to the prince of the power of this air, of the spirit that now worketh on the children of unbelief. . . . But God, (who is rich in mercy,) for his exceeding charity wherewith he loved us, even when we were dead in sins, hath quickened us together in Christ (by whose grace you are saved).” (Eph. 2:1-5)

Again, speaking to those who are alive but in deadly sin, St. Paul says, “Wherefore he saith: Rise, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead and Christ shall enlighten thee.” (Eph. 5:14)

And Jesus said,

“Let the dead bury their dead.” (Mt. 8:22)

The dead cannot bury the dead unless they are still alive, and thus Jesus means men who are not literally dead but are in a state of damnation. You can call them “the walking dead.”

Hence when we read that souls are killed or destroyed, it means that they are in a state of damnation even though they still exist and are conscious. Jesus, son of Sirach, says,

“The teeth thereof are the teeth of a lion, killing the souls of men.” (Eccus. 21:3)

And Jesus Christ says,

“Fear ye not them that kill the body and are not able to kill the soul, but rather fear him that can destroy both soul and body in gehenna.” (Mt. 10:28)

Jesus does not mean that their souls are literally killed but that they are in a state of damnation. This is also proved when Jesus says,

“I say to you, my friends: Be not afraid of them who kill the body and after that have no more that they can do. But I will shew you whom you shall fear; fear ye him who, after he hath killed hath power to cast into gehenna. Yea, I say to you, fear him.” (Lk. 12:4-5)

If the souls of the reprobates will cease to exist and their bodies will no longer exist, then why should they fear being cast into hell!

The New Covenant Replaced the Old Covenant

When the abolished Old Covenant laws were dead but not deadly

It was prophesied during the Old Covenant era that another covenant, a new covenant, an everlasting covenant, would replace the Old Covenant:

“And I will make with them another covenant that shall be everlasting.” (Bar. 2:35)

“Behold the days shall come, saith the Lord, and I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Juda...” (Jer. 31:31)

“And I will remember my covenant with thee in the days of thy youth, and I will establish with thee an everlasting covenant.” (Ez. 16:60)

When Christ died on the holy cross, the New Covenant was instituted, as testified to when the veil in the Temple was rent in two:

“And Jesus again crying with a loud voice, yielded up the spirit. And behold the veil of the temple was rent in two from the top even to the bottom...” (Mt. 27:50-51)

Catholic Commentary on Mt. 27:51: “Veil: The veil of the temple was rent at Christ’s death. And by it being broken down was signified that the ceremonies of the ancient law were to be abolished by the law of Christ.”

At that instant, the Old Covenant ended and was replaced by the New Covenant. The things in the Old Testament era that were figures of Christ’s first coming were fulfilled upon his first coming and thus there was no more need for them. St. Paul, then, testifies that the Old Covenant ended and was replaced by a new and better Covenant:

“And therefore he is the mediator of the new testament, that by means of his death for the redemption of those transgressions which were under the former testament, they that are called may receive the promise of everlasting inheritance.” (Heb. 9:15)

“In saying before, sacrifices and oblation, and holocausts for sin thou wouldest not, neither are they pleasing to thee [anymore], which are offered according to the law [the Old Covenant]. Then said I: Behold, I come to do thy will, O God: he taketh away the first [the Old Covenant], that he may establish that which followeth [the New Covenant]. In the which will, we are sanctified by the oblation of the body of Jesus Christ once.” (Heb. 10:8-10)

“But now he [Jesus Christ] hath obtained a better ministry, by how much also he is a mediator of a better testament, which is established on better promises.” (Heb. 8:6)

“Jesus [is] the mediator of the new testament and to the sprinkling of blood which speaketh better than that of Abel.” (Heb. 12:24)

At the instant of Christ’s death, the sacrificed Christ replaced the animal sacrifices, baptism replaced circumcision, the Melchisedec priesthood (the Christian priesthood) replaced the Levitical priesthood, the pope replaced the high priest, the Christian hierarchy replaced the Levitical hierarchy, and Christianity replaced Judaism. And when Christ rose from the dead, the Lord’s Day replaced the Sabbath Day. And, after some time had passed, all of the Old Covenant disciplinary laws were eventually abolished. However, the Old Testament’s dogmatic laws remained in effect because dogmatic laws can never be abolished or modified because they are infallible truths regarding faith and morals.<sup>2970</sup>

There was a period of time in which the abolished Old Covenant sacrifices, rituals, and disciplinary laws were allowed to be observed without sinning. Even though these things were dead and no longer necessary for salvation, they were not deadly to the souls of those who observed them. Thus they were dead but not deadly. Once the gospel was sufficiently promulgated, these things could no longer be observed without committing sin; at that point, these things became not only dead but also deadly (to the souls of those who observe them). St. Augustine aptly refers to this transition period as a time when the Old Covenant rituals, disciplinary laws, Levitical priesthood, and Levitical hierarchy were being buried with honor. And he says that the time when the transition period ended and thus these things could no longer be observed without sinning are to be compared to a buried body that if dug up is defiled:

St. Augustine, Letter 82, to apostate Jerome, 405: “15. I maintain, therefore, that circumcision and other things of this kind were by means of what is called the Old Testament given to the Jews with divine authority as signs of future things which were to be fulfilled in Christ... [Therefore] circumcision and [the] other...rites were not to be imposed upon the Gentiles. [However,] the compliance with them to which the Jews had been accustomed was not to be prohibited in such a way as to give the impression that it was worthy of abhorrence and condemnation. Therefore slowly and by degrees all this observance of these types was to vanish away through the power of the sound preaching of the truth of the grace of Christ, to which alone believers would be taught to ascribe their justification and salvation and not to those types and shadows of things which till then had been future... The toleration, for the time, of their continuing to observe these was enough to declare their excellence as things which, though they were to be given up, were not like the worship of idols, worthy of abhorrence; but they were not to be imposed upon others lest they should be thought necessary either as means or as conditions of salvation...

“20. ...How much more impossible for those ordinances which were merely typical, circumcision and the rest, which were destined to be abolished when the revelation of grace became more widely known, to be the means of justifying any man! Nevertheless they were not on this ground to be immediately shunned with abhorrence, like the diabolical impieties of heathenism,...but to be for a little while tolerated, especially among those who joined the Christian Church from that nation to whom these ordinances had been given. When, however, they had been, as it were, honourably buried, they were thenceforward to be finally abandoned by all Christians...

“16. ...What objection can there be to my affirming that the Apostle Paul and other sound and faithful Christians were bound sincerely to declare the worth of these old observances by occasionally honouring them, lest it should be thought that these institutions, originally full of prophetic significance, and cherished sacredly by their most pious forefathers, were to be abhorred by their posterity as profane inventions of the devil? For now, when the faith had come, which, previously foreshadowed by these ceremonies, was revealed after the death and resurrection of the Lord, they became, so far as their office was concerned, defunct. But just as it is seemly that the bodies of the deceased be carried honourably to the grave by their kindred, so was it fitting that these rites should be removed in a manner worthy of their origin and history, and this not with pretence of respect, but as a religious duty, instead of being forsaken at once, or cast forth to be torn in pieces by the reproaches of their enemies, as by the teeth of dogs. To carry the illustration further, if now any Christian (though he may have been converted from Judaism) were proposing to imitate the apostles in the observance of these ceremonies, like one who disturbs the ashes of those who rest, he would be not piously performing his part in the obsequies, but impiously violating the sepulchre.”

Hence St. Paul and other Jewish Christians still observed some of the old defunct (dead) ordinances to show that these ordinances were good and holy and to mingle with unbelieving Jews in order to try to convert them, to bring them out of the synagogue and into the Christian Church.

For example, after the Council of Jerusalem in AD 50 decreed that Gentile converts did not have to get circumcised, St. Paul circumcised the Christian Gentile St. Timothy in AD 51. But he did not do so as a necessity of St. Timothy's salvation but so that St. Timothy could enter the Temple and synagogues and mingle with the unbelieving Jews in order to try to convert them:

“And he came to Derbe and Lystra. And behold, there was a certain disciple there named Timothy, the son of a Jewish woman that believed; but his father was a Gentile. To this man the brethren that were in Lystra and Iconium gave a good testimony. Him Paul would have to go along with him: and taking him he circumcised him, because of the Jews who were in those places. For they all knew that his father was a Gentile.” (Acts 16:1-3)

Catholic Commentary on Acts 16:3: “Circumcised him: The Old Covenant rituals and disciplinary laws though now no longer obligatory were for a time observed by the Christian Jews to bury, as it were, the synagogue with honor. But they could not look upon circumcision as necessary for salvation. St. Paul circumcised Timothy not to obstruct the conversion of the Jews and because it was still lawful to observe the Jewish ceremonies, though the obligation of keeping the old law had ceased. This St. Paul did in order to gain the Jews and make Timothy acceptable to them. To the Jew, says he, I became a Jew that I might gain the Jews (1 Cor. 9:20). While he refused to circumcise Titus in order to vindicate the Christian's independence of the Mosaic ceremonies (Gal. 2:1-5), he now submits to the observance of them by circumcising St. Timothy to shew there is nothing of itself bad in them; and that they might without crime be practised till time by degrees had abolished them. (St. Augustine, Letter 82, to Jerome).”

We can then take in correct context St. Paul's following words that he wrote in AD 57:

“Is any man called being circumcised? let him not procure uncircumcision. Is any man called in uncircumcision? let him not be circumcised. Circumcision is nothing, and uncircumcision is nothing: but the observance of the commandments of God.” (1 Cor. 7:18-19)

In context, then, when St. Paul tells Christians who are uncircumcised not to get circumcised, he means as if it were necessary for salvation. We know this because St. Paul circumcised St. Timothy, a Christian Gentile, as recorded in Acts 16. And in AD 58, St. Paul, according to the dead Mosaic laws, was purified and prepared to have an animal sacrifice offered for him in the Temple, as recorded in Acts 21. But he did not do so as a necessity for salvation.

The reason St. Paul refused to circumcise St. Titus was because some Jews tried to impose circumcision on the Gentiles as if it were necessary for salvation. This occurred in AD 51:

“Then, after fourteen years, I went up again to Jerusalem with Barnabas, taking Titus also with me. I went up by revelation, and I laid before them (but privately before those who were of repute) the gospel which I preach among the Gentiles, lest somehow I should be running or had run in vain. But neither Titus who was with me, being a Gentile, was compelled to be circumcised. But because of false brethren unawares brought in, who came in privately to spy our liberty, which we have in Christ Jesus, that they might bring us into servitude, to them we yielded not by subjection, no not for an hour, that the truth of the gospel might continue with you.” (Gal. 2:1-5)

Again from his Letter 82 to the apostate Jerome, St. Augustine aptly says the following regarding St. Paul's circumcising St. Timothy but not St. Titus:

St. Augustine, Letter 82, to apostate Jerome, 405: “12. For this reason also he circumcised Timothy, lest to the Jews, and especially to his relations by the mother's side, it should seem that the Gentiles who had believed in Christ abhorred circumcision as they abhorred the worship of idols; whereas the former was appointed by God, and the latter invented by Satan. Again, he did not circumcise Titus, lest he should give occasion to those who said that believers could not be saved without circumcision, and who, in order to deceive the Gentiles, openly declared that this was the view held by Paul. This is plainly enough intimated by himself, when he says: ‘But neither Titus, who was with me, being a Greek, was compelled to be circumcised: and that because of false brethren unawares brought in, who came in privately to spy out our liberty which we have in Christ Jesus, that they might bring us into bondage: to whom we gave place by subjection, no, not for an hour, that the truth of the gospel might continue with you.’ Here we see plainly what he perceived them to be eagerly watching for, and why it was that he did not do in the case of Titus as he had done in the case of Timothy, and as he might otherwise have done in the exercise of that liberty, by which he had shown that these observances were neither to be demanded as necessary to salvation, nor denounced as unlawful.”

Some Christian Jews falsely accused St. Paul of commanding the Jewish converts not to circumcise their children. To refute them, St. Paul and four other Christian Jews observed the dead Mosaic laws of purification before entering the Temple and were prepared to have the customary oblation (animal sacrifice) offered for them in order to prove they did not condemn the Mosaic laws and that they could still be observed as long as Christians did not observe them as a necessity for salvation. However, they were kicked out of the Temple before the oblation could be offered for them:

“But they hearing it, glorified God, and said to him: Thou seest, brother, how many thousands there are among the Jews that have believed: and they are all zealous for the law. Now they have heard of thee that thou teachest those Jews, who are among the Gentiles, to depart from Moses; saying, that they ought not to circumcise their children, nor walk according to the custom. What then is to be done? The multitude must needs come together, for they will hear that thou art come. Do therefore this that we say to thee. We have four men who have a vow on them. Take them and go and purify thyself with them and pay the expenses along with them as they shall shave their heads that every one may know that what is said against thee is false and that thou fulfilllest and observest the law. But as touching the Gentiles that believe, we have written, decreeing that they should only refrain themselves from that which has been offered to idols, and from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication. Then Paul took the men, and the next day being purified with them, entered into the temple, giving notice of the accomplishment of the days of purification, until an oblation should be offered for every one of them. But when the seven days were drawing to an end, those Jews that were of Asia, when they saw him in the temple, stirred up all the people, and laid hands upon him, crying out: Men of Israel, help: This is the man that teacheth all men every where against the people, and the law, and this place; and moreover hath brought in Gentiles into the temple, and hath violated this holy place. For they had seen Trophimus the Ephesian in the city with him, whom they supposed that Paul had brought into the temple.” (Acts 21:20-29) (See Acts 24:17-18.)

Catholic Commentary on Acts 21:24: “Observe the law: All the observations of the law were now in themselves dead and unprofitable, yet till further propagation of the Gospel, they were not damnable to the keepers, nor offensive to God, but might be observed even of the Christian Jews, and for fear of scandalizing the weak of that nation, newly converted or prone to receive the faith, the Apostles by God’s suggestion did think it good to observe them as occasion required.”

Catholic Commentary on Acts 21:21: “To forsake Moses: To depart or apostatize from Moses and the law. This is more than was true. For St. Paul circumcised Timothy (Acts 16) and did not absolutely hinder converts who had been Jews, from practicing the Jewish ceremonies. There is a manifest falsity in this accusation against St. Paul. He had never commanded or advised the Jews, to whom he had preached, to renounce the law, abandon the ceremonies of Moses, or reject the ancient customs of the nation. He had never hindered any one from following in this respect the bias of his inclinations. He had indeed defended the liberty of the converts from these ceremonies; he had taught that Christ had taken away the necessity of this yoke; but he left them at liberty still to carry it if they pleased. For these things were not then to be sought after as necessary, nor yet to be condemned as sacrilegious. The law of Moses at that time was dead but not deadly. (St. Augustine, Letter 82) These considerations will sufficiently explain the apostle’s motive for submitting on this occasion to one of their ceremonies. He became all to all, that he might gain all to Christ.”

Catholic Commentary on Acts 21:23: “Who have a vow upon them: On which account they will have sacrifices offered for them in the temple.”

When the abolished Old Covenant laws were dead and deadly

After some time had passed, when the gospel was sufficiently promulgated, the transition period ended and thus all Christian Jews were no longer allowed to observe any of the Old Covenant rituals and all but two of the Old Covenant’s disciplinary laws. Hence these laws were now not only dead but also deadly. The two Old Covenant disciplinary laws that banned eating blood and things strangled remained in force and thus were not abolished. It was not until quite some time later that they too were abolished. Even though the Council of Florence was invalid and heretical, it nevertheless teaches the truth in this regard:

Invalid and heretical Council of Florence, 1442:

“It firmly believes, professes, and teaches that the legal prescriptions of the old Testament or the Mosaic law, which are divided into ceremonies, holy sacrifices and sacraments, because they were instituted to signify something in the future, although they were adequate for the divine cult of that age, once our lord Jesus Christ who was signified by them had come, came to an end and the sacraments of the new Testament had their beginning. Whoever, after the passion, places his hope in the legal prescriptions and submits himself to them as necessary for salvation and as if faith in Christ without them could not save, sins mortally. It does not deny that from Christ’s passion until the promulgation of the gospel they could have been retained, provided they were in no way believed to be necessary for salvation. But it asserts that after the promulgation of the gospel they cannot be observed without loss of everlasting salvation. Therefore it denounces all who after that time observe circumcision, the sabbath, and other legal prescriptions as strangers to the faith of Christ and unable to share in everlasting salvation unless they recoil at some time from these errors. Therefore it strictly orders all who glory in the name of Christian, not to practise circumcision either before or after baptism, since whether or not they place their hope in it, it cannot possibly be observed without loss of everlasting salvation.”(Sess. 11: Bull of Union with the Copts.)

In some countries, Catholics are circumcised for health reasons. This does not violate this law because they are circumcised for health reasons and not for religious reasons and thus not by a religious rite. However, it is nevertheless a scandal and can be a sin if Catholics do not do their best to legally evade the law that they must get circumcised for health reasons.<sup>2971</sup>

The transition period most probably ended when the Temple fell in AD 70

The most probable opinion as to when the transition period ended was when the Second Temple fell in AD 70. The reason is that one would expect a manifest sign from God to announce the end of the transition period. And what better sign than the fall of the Temple when the Old Covenant rituals and other rites that had to be observed in the Temple, such as the animal sacrifices, could no longer be observed. And the Levitical priesthood and hierarchy were taken into exile and thus dispersed from Israel. And the great majority of the apostate Jews were killed or taken into exile:

Catholic Commentary on Zach. 11:14: "After the destruction of the temple, the Jewish ceremonies were no longer observed or tolerated in the Church, as they had been in order that the synagogue might be buried with honour."

The transition period was definitely ended by at least the 4th century

Testimony from the Church Fathers and others prove that by at least the 4th century the transition period had already ended. (See St. Augustine's Letter 82, as quoted above.)

The Old Covenant ended and thus was not transformed

The Old Covenant ended and was replaced by the New Covenant. Hence the Old Covenant did not transform into the New Covenant, like a caterpillar transforms into a butterfly. If it did, then the Paschal Lamb under the Old Covenant would have been transformed into Christ (the Paschal Lamb of the New Covenant) and thus Christ would have been an animal that was transformed into a human. Instead, Christ replaced the Old Covenant Paschal Lamb. The sacrifice of an animal during the Old Covenant was replaced by the sacrifice of the God-man during the New Covenant. Hence one must not say that the Old Covenant is in the New Covenant, or that the Old Covenant was transformed into the New Covenant. Rather, the Old Covenant ended, is dead. It died when Christ died, and it was replaced with the New Covenant. Jesus compared those who try to mix the Old Covenant with the New Covenant to those who put new wine into old bottles. He said,

"And no man putteth new wine into old bottles: otherwise the wine will burst the bottles, and both the wine will be spilled and the bottles will be lost.

But new wine must be put into new bottles." (Mk. 2:22)

Catholic Commentary on Mt. 9:16-17: "Raw cloth... new wine: This shows that the Apostles being hereafter to be replenished with newness of grace, ought not now to be bound to the old observances. By the old garment and old skins, we must understand the Scribes and Pharisees; and by the piece of new cloth and new wine, the Gospel precepts, which the Jews were not able to bear, so the rent was made worse. Something such the Galatians sought to do, to mix the precepts of the Law with the Gospel, and to put new wine into old skins. The word of the Gospel is therefore to be poured into the Apostles rather than into the Scribes and Pharisees, who, corrupted by the traditions of the elders, were unable to preserve the purity of Christ's precepts."

Beware, then, of the heresy which teaches that the Old Covenant still exists either by itself or within the New Covenant era. And beware of the heresy that the Christ-denying Jews are under any kind of covenant with God. There is only one covenant with God in effect during the New Testament era, and that is the New Covenant.

The Old Testament Elect's Sins Were Covered But Not Remitted

Their sins were forgiven and covered but not remitted

The sins of the elect during the Old Testament era were forgiven and covered but they were not remitted. It is sanctifying grace (which can also be called remitting grace) that was made available by Christ's sacrificial death that remits sins. Therefore, the sins of the Old Testament elect were not remitted until after Jesus Christ's sacrificial death. Hence during the Old Testament era forgiveness of sin was separate from remittance of sin, whereas in the New Covenant era they are the same.

The Bible teaches that sins are remitted only by Christ's sacrificial death:

"Surely he hath borne our infirmities, and carried our sorrows... But he was wounded for our iniquities, he was bruised for our sins: the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and by his bruises we are healed." (Isa. 53:4-5)

Jesus said that his blood "shall be shed for many unto remission of sins." (Mt. 26:26-28)

"In whom [Jesus] we have redemption through his blood, the remission of sins." (Col. 1:14)

Hence not until Jesus' sacrificial death could sins be remitted for those who were guilty of original sin and voluntary sins. This was the primary purpose of Jesus' birth:

"She [the Blessed Virgin Mary] shall bring forth a son: and thou shalt call his name Jesus. For he shall save his people from their sins." (Mt. 1:21)

St. John the Baptist teaches that it is Christ who takes away (remits) the sin of the world:

"Behold the Lamb of God. Behold him who taketh away the sin of the world." (Jn. 1:29)

In the Canticle of Zachary, St. John the Baptist's father speaks of John's mission and says that God's chosen people, the Israelites, did not yet have their sins remitted and that it would be John who would teach them what must happen and what they must do to have their sins remitted:

"And thou, child, shalt be called the prophet of the Highest: for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare his ways: To give knowledge of salvation to his people unto the remission of their sins." (Lk. 1:76-77)

The Old Testament elect, then, needed the Messiah and Redeemer Jesus Christ to come and die in order for their sins to be remitted. During the Old Testament era, faith in the true God and the Old Testament rituals forgave and covered sins but did not remit them. King David speaks of how his forgiven sins are covered and hence not imputed to him:

"To David himself, understanding. Blessed are they whose iniquities are forgiven, and whose sins are covered. Blessed is the man to whom the Lord hath not imputed sin, and in whose spirit there is no guile." (Ps. 31:1-2)<sup>2972</sup>

Because the Old Testament elect's sins were forgiven and covered but not remitted, they could not enter heaven when they died but had to wait in the Limbo of the Fathers, also known as Abraham's Bosom, which was a prison that was located in the highest level of hell:

"Because Christ also died once for our sins... In which also coming, he preached to those spirits who were in prison..." (1 Pt. 3:18-20)

Catholic commentary on 1 Pt. 3:19: "The true and common interpretation of this place is that the soul of Christ, after the separation from the body and before the resurrection, descended to a place in the interior parts of the earth, called hell in the Apostles' Creed (sometimes called Abraham's bosom, sometimes Limbus Patrum, a place where were detained all the souls of the patriarchs, prophets, and just men, as it were in prison), and preached to these spirits in this prison."

Although the Limbo of the Fathers was in hell, it was not in the part of hell where the damned go. Hence Abraham's Bosom was a place of peace and joy. It was a place where the sin debt was covered but not yet remitted, a place where the Devil had no active right over the elect but had a passive right over them, and a place where the elect were in the way of salvation but not yet redeemed and saved. The elect were detained in the Limbo of the Fathers because they still carried the debt of sin that needed to be remitted. There they anxiously waited for the ultimate sacrifice, the one that was prefigured from the time of Adam by the killing and shedding the blood of the most perfect animals offered as sacrifices to the true God. This ultimate sacrifice is the spotless Lamb, Jesus Christ, whose sacrificial death would remit their sins and thus redeem them, break their bondage to the Devil, release them from the prison of hell, and open the gates of heaven to them so that they could "passover" from hell to heaven by the precious blood of the spotless Lamb, Jesus Christ.

The Devil had a passive right but not an active right over the Old Testament elect who were in the Limbo of the Fathers because their sins were not remitted although they were forgiven and covered. If <sup>2972</sup> This is not to be confused with Martin Luther's heresy that during the New Covenant era sins are not truly remitted but only covered. It is a dogma that during the New Covenant era forgiven sins are not covered but are truly remitted.

Christ had not fulfilled his promise by remitting their sins by his sacrificial death, then the Devil would have had an active right over the Old Testament elect and would have brought them to gehenna, the hell of the damned. St. Paul says that “if Christ be not risen again, your faith is vain, for you are yet in your sins.” (1 Cor. 15:17)<sup>2973</sup>

For example, a man named Bob goes into debt to a banker. Bob, then, finds himself in a position in which he can never pay the banker. The banker, then, turns Bob over to the debt collector, who has the active right from the banker to punish Bob. Bob is then in everlasting debt to the banker and is under the power of the debt collector. Bob is a slave to the banker and the debt collector. A rich patron, then, promises the banker that he will pay Bob’s debt in full in ten years as long as the banker leaves Bob alone and does not hold Bob accountable. Now Bob’s debt is covered by the rich patron’s promise, and thus the banker does not call in the debt and hence does not send the debt collector after Bob. But Bob’s debt will not be remitted until the rich patron pays it in ten years. Therefore, the banker has a passive claim over Bob but not an active claim, and the debt-collector has a passive right to punish Bob but not have an active right. However, the banker’s passive claim will become active if the rich patron does not fulfill his promise by paying the debt in ten years. Bob’s debt will then become active and the banker will call in the debt and hold Bob accountable by sending in the debt collector to punish Bob. And thus the debt-collector will have an active right to punish Bob. In this example, the debt is sin, the banker is God, the debt collector is the Devil, and the rich patron is Jesus Christ. Because Jesus Christ is the rich patron, the promise he made to the Old Testament elect to pay their sin debt was guaranteed and took place in the fullness of time when Jesus died on the holy cross.

<sup>2973</sup>The sin debt is paid to God not Satan because the offense was against God. The reason Satan has power and rights over sinful men is because men offended God and followed Satan instead of God, and thus God gave Satan the power and right over men to control and torment them. Satan has power and rights over sinful men in the same way a prison warden has power and rights over his prisoners. The warden does not have the ultimate power and right but the ruler of the State does. It is the ruler of the State who put the prisoners in prison, and it is he who can free the prisoners, not the warden of the prison. Hence God, not Satan, is the one who delivers sinners to Satan, and it is God who can free them from Satan. Therefore, it is God, not Satan, who must be petitioned, appeased, and satisfied for the sins committed against him. And this is the role that only the Messias can fulfill who comes to offer himself as a sacrifice to God, not to Satan, to appease God’s wrath and to satisfy God’s justice and hence pay the sin debt for men and make it possible for their sins to be forgiven and remitted.

The just men during the Old Testament era were partially justified

Abel and Noe were just and perfect men who lived during the Old Testament era:

“By faith Abel offered to God a sacrifice exceeding that of Cain, by which he obtained a testimony that he was just...” (Heb. 11:4)

“Noe found grace before the Lord. Noe was a just and perfect man in his generation.” (Gen. 6:8-9)

Although a just and perfect man during the Old Testament era was perfect and just in all his ways, he was only partially justified. He was not completely justified until Christ “was delivered up for our sins and rose again for our justification.” (Rom. 4:25)<sup>2974</sup>

God promised that the covered sins of the Old Testament elect would be remitted when the Messias, the Redeemer, comes and thus the elect would then be completely justified. Hence when they lived, the promise was unfulfilled but was destined to be fulfilled when Christ would die on the cross and remit their sins. St. Paul tells the Jews that Jesus Christ fulfilled this promise:

“And we declare unto you, that the promise which was made to our fathers, this same God hath fulfilled to our children, raising up Jesus, as in the second psalm also is written: Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee.” (Acts 13:32-33)

Hence St. Paul tells the Jews that none of the Old Testament elect received the promise of the remission of their sins and hence could not be completely justified until Christ fulfilled the promise by dying on the cross:

“Now faith is the substance of things to be hoped for, the evidence of things that appear not. All these died [Old Testament elect] according to faith, not having received the promises but beholding them afar off and saluting them and confessing that they are pilgrims and strangers on the earth. ...And all these, being approved by the testimony of faith, received not the promise: God providing some better thing for us, that they should not be perfected [completely justified] without us.” (Heb. 11:1, 13, 39-40)

“But when the fullness of the time was come, God sent his Son, made of a woman, made under the law: That he might redeem those who were under the law: that we might receive the adoption of sons.” (Gal. 4:4-5)

Not until Christ died were the Old Testament elect who were under the Old Law redeemed and made perfect (meaning perfectly justified, completely justified). Hence St. Paul teaches that the Old Testament animal sacrifices did not take away their sins and thus did not remit them:

<sup>2974</sup>In some of my previous works I held the opinion that the Old Testament elect were justified in vow but not in reality. However, the better opinion is that they were partially justified. This fits with the Holy Spirit dwelling in their souls, as the Holy Spirit would not dwell in their souls if they were only justified in vow but would dwell in their souls if they were partially justified in the part that is justified and thus holy and not the part where their sins are covered.

“For the law having a shadow of the good things to come, not the very image of the things; by the selfsame sacrifices which they offer continually every year, can never make the comers there unto perfect... For it is impossible that with the blood of oxen and goats sin should be taken away. ... We are sanctified by the oblation of the body of Jesus Christ once. And every priest [Old Testament priest] indeed standeth daily ministering, and often offering the same sacrifices [animal sacrifices], which can never take away sins.” (Heb. 10:1-4,10,11)

St. Paul teaches that the former sins of the Old Testament elect are remitted by the “redemption that is in Christ Jesus” and thus by his sacrifice and blood and not by the sacrifice and blood of oxen and goats:

“For all have sinned, and do need the glory of God. Being justified freely by his grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus, whom God hath proposed to be a propitiation through faith in his blood, to the shewing of his justice for the remission of former sins.” (Rom. 3:23-25)

Even though the animal sacrifices did not remit sins (take them away), they did forgive and cover them. During the time of the Levitical priesthood, God prescribed very specific sacrifices that had to be offered up by the Levitical priests for their sins and the sins of the faithful, accompanied by a confession from the penitents. Upon confession and the offering of the prescribed sacrifices, penitents’ sins were forgiven:

“If any one shall sin... he shall offer for his offence a ram without blemish... delivering it to the priest, who shall pray for him, offering the ram, and it shall be forgiven him.” (Lev. 5:15-16)

Clearly, then, we see the separation of forgiveness of sin and remittance of sin during the Old Testament era. The animal sacrifices forgave sin—“it shall be forgiven him”—but did not remit sin because “it is impossible that with the blood of oxen and goats sin should be taken away.” (Heb. 10:4)

“For the law of the spirit of life, in Christ Jesus, hath delivered me from the law of sin and of death [the sin debt by remitting sins]. For what the [old] law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh, God sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh and of sin hath condemned sin [the sin debt] in the flesh [by remitting sins].” (Rom. 8:2-3)

“For if the former [the Old Covenant] had been faultless, there should not indeed a place have been sought for a second [the New Covenant].” (Heb. 8:7)

Catholic commentary on Heb. 8:7: For if that first had been faultless: If it had not been imperfect and all those sacrifices and ceremonies sufficient for the justification, salvation, and redemption of mankind, there would have been no need of a second.”

Catholic commentary on Heb. 7:4-7: “For if the former law and sacrifices offered by the priests of Aaron had been sufficient for man’s [complete] justification and salvation, there would have been no necessity of a new priesthood according to the order of Melchisedech... But the new law and sacrifice of Christ is according to the power of an indissoluble and never ending life, conferring sanctifying grace and thus the remission of sins, by which men are completely justified and are thus saved.”

If Old Testament penitents worthily confessed their sins, the Old Testament sacraments (the sacrifices and rituals) forgave their sins and bestowed upon them a special grace, a covering grace, to cover their sins but did not confer on them sanctifying or remitting grace and thus their sins were not remitted.<sup>2975</sup> It was only after Christ died on the cross that the former covered transgressions of the Old Testament elect were remitted by which they were made completely clean, completely justified:

“Neither by the blood of goats or of calves but by his own blood, he [Jesus Christ] entered once into the sanctuary having obtained everlasting redemption. For if the blood of goats and oxen and the ashes of an heifer being sprinkled sanctify such as are defiled to the cleansing of the flesh: How much more shall the blood of Christ, who by the Holy Spirit, offered himself unspotted unto God, cleanse our conscience from dead works, to serve the living God? He is the mediator of the New Testament: that by means of his death for the redemption of those transgressions which were under the former testament, they that are called may receive the promise of everlasting inheritance.” (Heb. 9:12-15)

Catholic Commentary on Heb. 9:12: “This is another difference and preeminence of Christ above the priests of the law of Moses, that they could only offer the blood of beasts; but Christ entered into heaven by the effusion of his own precious blood in his sufferings, and on the cross, by this having found an everlasting redemption for mankind, having satisfied for the sins of all men in the sight of God, which the former priests, with all their sacrifice, could not do. ...Ver. 13-14. For if the blood of goats... Another main difference between the sacrifices in the old, and that of Christ in the new law. Those imperfect sacrifices could only make the priests and the people reputed clean [not completely clean], so that they were no longer to be treated as transgressors and liable to punishments prescribed and inflicted by the law; but the sacrifice of Christ has made us completely clean, and sanctified them even in the sight of God.”

<sup>2975</sup> Without faith in the true God and worthy confession of sins, which includes sorrow and a firm purpose of amendment, the Old Testament sacrifices and rituals availed nothing. They would not forgive and cover sins, just as the New Testament sacraments of baptism and confession bear no fruit and thus do not remit the sins of those who receive them unworthily; that is without faith or without proper intentions or dispositions.

Again we see the difference between the forgiveness of sins and the remission of sins during the Old Testament era. The animal sacrifices forgave sins but did not make men totally clean but only reputedly clean (partially clean). The Prophet Jeremias and St. Paul teach that the Old Testament elect’s forgiven sins would be forgotten by God (that is, remitted) only when the New Covenant replaced the Old Covenant:

“Behold the days shall come, saith the Lord, and I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Juda... This shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith the Lord: I will give my law in their bowels, and I will write it in their heart: and I will be their God, and they shall be my people. And... I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more.” (Jer. 31:31-34)

“And this is the testament which I will make unto them after those days, saith the Lord. I will give my laws in their hearts, and on their minds will I write them: And their sins and iniquities I will remember no more.” (Heb. 10:16-17)

Hence the sins of the Old Testament elect were remembered until Christ died on the cross and the New Covenant replaced the Old Covenant. Only then would their sins be remitted and thus be remembered no more. The Old Covenant ended and the New Covenant began when Jesus died on the cross. At the very instant that Christ died, the veil in the Temple was rent in two signifying the end of the Old Covenant and the beginning of the New Covenant:

“And Jesus again crying with a loud voice, yielded up the spirit. And behold the veil of the temple was rent in two from the top even to the bottom...” (Mt. 27:50-51)

After Christ ascended into heaven, the apostles preached that forgiveness of sins now comes through Christ with the additional benefit that worthy men would also be completely justified, which the law of Moses could not do:

“Be it known therefore to you, men, brethren, that through him [Jesus] remission of sins is preached to you; and from all the things from which you could not be justified by the law of Moses.” (Acts 13:38)

St. Peter tells faithful Jews that their sins will not be remitted until they get baptized

Faithful Jews who accepted Christ had to be baptized by water for their sins to be remitted. On Pentecost Day St. Peter preached to devout Jews and told them that they needed to repent and be baptized unto the remission of their sins:

“Now there were dwelling at Jerusalem, Jews, devout men... Ye men of Israel, hear these words... Repent and be baptized, every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of your sins. And you shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit.” (Acts 2:5, 22, 38)

If these devout (just) Jews had already gotten their sins remitted by faithful obedience to the Old Covenant, then St. Peter spoke falsely when he told them to “be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of your sins.” Their baptism would have been only an initiation rite that gave them the indelible mark and made them members of the Catholic Church without remitting their sins.

St. Paul’s sins were not remitted when he was a Pharisee

When St. Paul was a Pharisee and called Saul, he conversed in the law (the Old Covenant) without blame:

“Though I might also have confidence in the flesh. If any other thinketh he may have confidence in the flesh, I more, being circumcised the eighth day, of the stock of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, an Hebrew of the Hebrews; according to the law, a Pharisee: According to zeal, persecuting the church of God; according to the justice that is in the law, conversing without blame.” (Phil. 3:4-6)

Yet only when St. Paul was baptized into the Catholic Church were his covered sins remitted:

“And one Ananias, a man according to the law, having testimony of all the Jews who dwelt there, coming to me, and standing by me, said to me: Brother Saul... Rise up, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, invoking his name.” (Acts 22: 12, 16)

The Holy Spirit dwelt in the justified part of the souls of the Old Testament elect

The Holy Spirit gives his grace and other gifts not only to righteous believers but also to unbelievers and unrighteous believers to enable them to see and believe the truth, to do good, and to convert or repent. However, the Holy Spirit dwells only in the souls of righteous believers because he dwells in clean vessels only:

The just man Job says, "As I was in the days of my youth, when God [the Holy Spirit] was secretly in my tabernacle..." (Job 29:4)

King David says, "Who shall ascend into the mountain of the Lord: or who shall stand in his holy place? The innocent in hands, and clean of heart, who hath not taken his soul in vain, nor sworn deceitfully to his neighbor. He shall receive a blessing from the Lord, and mercy from God his Savior." (Ps. 23:3-5)

"For God hath not called us unto uncleanness but unto sanctification. Therefore, ...God...hath given his holy Spirit in us." (1 Thes. 4:7-8)

"Know you not, that you are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?" (1 Cor. 3:16)

"But you are not in the flesh, but in the spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his." (Rom. 8:9)

Hence the Holy Spirit does not dwell in the souls of unbelievers or in believers who are guilty of deadly sin.

The question, then, is, How could the Holy Spirit have dwelt in the souls of just men during the Old Testament era while their original sin and mortal sins were only covered but not remitted? Would not the Holy Spirit be dwelling in unclean vessels because the souls of the Old Testament elect were only partially justified? No, because the Holy Spirit dwelt in the justified part of their souls not in the unjustified part, the part that contained their covered sins. The holy and just man Job says,

"Thou hast sealed up my offences as it were in a bag, but hast cured my iniquity." (Job 14:17)

For example, radioactive waste (sin), which kills humans, is discovered in a house (soul). Let us say that in this case the radioactive waste cannot be destroyed or removed from the house. However, the waste (sins) could be totally contained (covered) in a vessel within the house. Once the radioactive waste is totally contained in a vessel in the house, the dwelling areas of the house outside the vessel are totally clean. Therefore, within the house (soul) there are two parts: one that is clean, and one (inside the vessel within the house) that is unclean. One can say that the house is reputed clean or partially clean because men can live in it without any danger to their life. However, the house is not totally clean because it still has radioactive waste in it within the vessel in the house. Of course the man living in the house will always have on his conscience the fact that this unclean vessel that contains radioactive waste is in his house, and hence he will anxiously wait for the day when it can be totally destroyed or removed from his house.

Likewise, during the Old Testament era the Holy Spirit dwelt in the clean, non-contaminated part of a just man's soul. But the Holy Spirit did not dwell within the part of his soul that contained his covered original sin and any covered mortal sins that he may have committed.

The just man during the Old Testament era had on his conscience the fact that there was an unclean vessel inside his soul that contained original sin and mortal sins, and hence he anxiously waited for the day when this vessel and the sins in it would be totally destroyed or removed from his soul. Let us listen to just men from the Old Testament era petitioning God for this to happen, for Christ to come and redeem them and totally destroy and obliterate their forgiven and covered sins:

"Out of the depths I have cried to thee, O Lord: Lord, hear my voice. Let thy ears be attentive to the voice of my supplication. If thou, O Lord, wilt mark iniquities: Lord, who shall stand it. For with thee there is merciful forgiveness: and by reason of thy law, I have waited for thee, O Lord. My soul hath relied on his word: My soul hath hoped in the Lord. From the morning watch even until night, let Israel hope in the Lord. Because with the Lord there is mercy: and with him plentiful redemption. And he shall redeem Israel from all his iniquities. (Ps. 129:1-8) The Lord will redeem the souls of his servants: and none of them that trust in him shall offend. (Ps. 33:23) For our soul is humbled down to the dust: our belly cleaveth to the earth. Arise, O Lord, help us and redeem us for thy name's sake. (Ps. 43:25-26) No brother can redeem, nor shall man redeem: he shall not give to God his ransom, Nor the price of the redemption of his soul: and shall labour forever... But God will redeem my soul from the hand of hell, when he shall receive me. (Ps. 48:8-9, 16)"

If during the Old Testament era a just man fell into mortal sin, the Holy Spirit would leave his soul and no longer dwell within his soul until he worthily confessed his sin and offered up the prescribed sacrifice so that the mortal sin would then be covered in the part of his soul in which forgiven sins were sealed and contained. The Holy Spirit would then return to his soul and dwell in it. This is similar to the New Covenant era. As soon as a Catholic who is in a state of grace commits a mortal sin, the Holy Spirit leaves his soul until he worthily confesses his mortal sin. The only difference is that in the New Covenant era the sin is not only forgiven but also remitted. It is obliterated. It is totally destroyed. It does not exist in any part of the soul. This is what Christ promised—the special coming of the Holy Spirit into the souls of men during the New Covenant era to remit their sins, without which men cannot enter heaven and gain everlasting life. Speaking of this special coming of the Holy Spirit, St. John the Baptist says that Jesus "shall baptize you with the Holy Spirit and with fire." (Lk. 3:16)

This is how Jesus dwelt in the Apostles when they received his Body and Blood at the Last Supper

The way the Holy Spirit dwelt in the clean part of the souls of the Old Testament elect is the same way the Holy Spirit dwelt in the clean part of the souls of the Apostles, except Judas Iscariot who was guilty of mortal sin, when they received the Holy Eucharist at the Last Supper. The Holy Spirit and Christ dwelt in the clean part of their souls:

“Jesus saith to him: He that is washed, needeth not but to wash his feet, but is clean wholly. And you are clean [the apostles], but not all [Judas Iscariot]. For he knew who he was that would betray him; therefore he said: You are not all clean.” (Jn. 13:10-11)

Even though the Apostles were baptized previous to the Last Supper and thus received the indelible mark, they had not yet become members of the Catholic Church or had their sins remitted until Christ died on the cross and in so doing created the Catholic Church and remitted their sins. Hence when the Apostles received the Holy Eucharist at the Last Supper, their sins had been forgiven but not remitted and thus were covered and sealed up in the part of the soul in which the Holy Spirit and Christ did not dwell.<sup>2976</sup>

In their resurrected bodies, the Old Testament elect were baptized, confirmed, and fed the Holy Eucharist

The Bible teaches that after Jesus rose from the dead, the Old Testament elect came out of their tombs in their resurrected bodies and appeared to many:

“And Jesus again crying with a loud voice, yielded up the ghost... And the graves were opened: and many bodies of the saints that had slept arose, and coming out of the tombs after his resurrection came into the holy city and appeared to many.” (Mt. 27:50, 52-53)

This was prophesied in the Old Testament:

“That their memory might be blessed, and their bones spring up out of their place, and their name continue forever, the glory of the holy men remaining unto their children.” (Eccus. 46:14-15)

The Roman Governor Pontius Pilate sent a report to Tiberius Caesar of the events that took place regarding Jesus Christ. In the letter he reports the many miracles of Jesus; that Jews delivered Jesus up to be tried and killed; that he allowed Jesus to be crucified to prevent an insurrection by the Jews; the worldwide supernatural darkness that occurred when Jesus was crucified; and the resurrection of the Old Testament elect in their bodies on Sunday night at 9:00 pm (the third hour of night) which was accompanied by a supernatural light from the sun, angels appearing in the heavens, the shaking of mountains and hills, a great chasm revealing hell and Abraham's Bosom, Christ-denying Jews falling into the hell of the damned, and the destruction of all the synagogues in Jerusalem that opposed Jesus except the one that did not. The authenticity of Pilate's letter to Tiberius Caesar reporting the events about Jesus is attested to in several imprimatured books:

Pontius Pilate, The Report of Pilate the Procurator Concerning Our Lord Jesus Christ, sent to Tiberius Caesar in Rome, Second Greek Form:

“To the most mighty, venerable, awful, most divine, the august,—Pilatus Pontius, the governor of the East: ...On the first of the week, about the third hour of the night, the sun was seen such as it had never at any time shone, and all the heaven was lighted up. And as lightnings come on in winter, so majestic men of indescribable splendour of dress and of glory appeared in the air, and an innumerable multitude of angels crying out, and saying: Glory in the highest to God, and on earth peace among men of goodwill: come up out of Hades, ye who have been kept in slavery in the underground regions of Hades. And at their voice all the mountains and hills were shaken, and the rocks were burst asunder; and great chasms were made in the earth, so that also what was in the abyss appeared. And there were seen in that terror dead men raised up, as the Jews that saw them said: We have seen Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and the twelve patriarchs, that died two thousand five hundred years ago; and we have seen Noah manifestly in the body. And all the multitude walked about, and sang praises to God with a loud voice, saying: The Lord our God that has risen from the dead has brought to life all the dead, and has plundered Hades, and put him to death. All that night therefore, my lord, O king, the light ceased not. And many of the Jews died, and were engulfed and swallowed up in the chasms in that night, so that not even their bodies appeared. Those, I say, of the Jews suffered that had spoken against Jesus. And one synagogue was left in Jerusalem, since all those synagogues that had been against Jesus were engulfed. From that fear, then, being in perplexity, and seized with much trembling, at that same hour I ordered what had been done by them all to be written; and I have reported it to thy mightiness.”<sup>2977</sup>

One may ask, “Why did the bodies of the Old Testament elect need to be resurrected and united to their souls?” The answer is, so that their covered sins could be remitted and their bodies prepared to be glorified when they are resurrected again before the General Judgment.

The Old Testament elects' covered sins were remitted after Christ rose from the dead, freed them from the Limbo of the Fathers, placed them upon the face of the earth, resurrected their bodies from the grave, and had them baptized. They also received the sacrament of confirmation and received the Holy Eucharist. And their bodies returned to the grave some time before Jesus took their souls with him when he ascended into heaven.

Christ did not spend all of the forty days after his ascension in the presence of the Apostles and disciples. Many days he was absent from them. Between his first and second manifestation to the Apostles, six days had passed. Where was Christ and what was he doing when he was absent from the Apostles? Certainly a portion of his time was spent with the Old Testament elect who were dwelling upon the face of the earth. Christ was preaching to them and supervising their baptisms, confirmations, and receptions of the Holy Eucharist.

Certainly, Christ would not have deprived the Old Testament elect of these great sacraments that they longed for, paved the road for, and suffered and died for. Could it be that the very Christ they prepared the world for, the very Christ that was prefigured by the many animal sacrifices, the very Christ they lived and died for in anxious anticipation of his coming to redeem them, would have deprived them of the direct benefits of his sacrificial death, which are the sacrament of baptism which remitted their sins, the sacrament of confirmation which confirmed them in the Christian faith, and the sacrament of the Holy Eucharist which made it possible for their bodies to be glorified and have everlasting life when their bodies are resurrected before the General Judgment. No, Christ did not deprive them of these things! What they faithfully waited and prepared for in figure was given to them in reality. King David alludes to the fact that one day he would receive the chalice of salvation, the Holy Eucharist:

"I will take the chalice of salvation; and I will call upon the name of the Lord." (Ps. 115:13)

Hence God would not deprive the Old Testament elect of eating the ultimate sacrifice of the Holy Eucharist, of Christ's most precious Body, Blood, and Divinity, that they prefigured in all of the animal sacrifices and looked forward to with so much love and anticipation. Hence when "Jesus said to them: Amen, amen I say unto you: Except you eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, you shall not have life in you" (Jn. 6:54), he literally meant all men. That is why it is a dogma of the Catholic Church that infants must be given the Holy Eucharist after they are baptized and confirmed.<sup>2978</sup>

<sup>2978</sup> See RJMI book Some Dogmas and Heresies Regarding Confirmation and the Holy Eucharist: Catholic Infants Must Receive the Holy Eucharist.

During the Old Testament era, there were figures of the sacrament of baptism that hinted at the reality of what was to come. The sacrament of baptism was prefigured in the water that saved Noe and his family from the perverse generation, in the water of the Red Sea that saved Moses and the Israelites, in the water that came from the rock that quenched the thirst of the Israelites, and in the rite of circumcision. How could it be that all the just men who lived when baptism was prefigured would not receive it when it came in reality? Therefore, the Old Testament elect were baptized by water some time during the forty days after our Lord rose from the dead and before he ascended into heaven and took them with him. Thus when our Lord said, "Unless a man be born again of water and the Holy Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God" (Jn. 3:5), he literally meant all men, himself and his Blessed and Immaculate Mother Mary also.

It is unthinkable for the faithful to believe that there are and will be some holy men (such as Abraham, Moses, St. Joseph, and the Good St. Anne) in heaven and the earthly paradise to come that were not baptized, confirmed, and fed the Holy Eucharist?

The Particular Judgment and the General Judgment

The Particular Judgment

As soon as men die, Jesus judges them according to their faith and works

As soon as men die and God is not going to bring them back to life again, their souls without their bodies go immediately to their Particular Judgment in which Jesus Christ judges them:

"It is appointed unto men once to die and after this the judgment." (Heb. 9:27)

"For it is easy before God in the day of death to reward every one according to his ways." (Eccus. 11:28)

Jesus judges dead men according to the faith they believed in and the works they did when they were alive in body and soul:

"For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ [for our Particular Judgment] that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or evil." (2 Cor. 5:10)

"For when the just shall depart from his justice and commit iniquities, he shall die in them [in damnation]. And when the wicked shall depart from his wickedness and shall do judgments and justice, he shall live in them [be saved]." (Ez. 33:18-19)

Hence the Bible teaches that the souls of men who died during the Old Testament era were either saved and thus in the Limbo of the Fathers or damned and thus in the hell of the damned. For example,

Sometime after the holy Prophet Samuel died, his soul came from the Limbo of the Fathers and appeared to King Saul:

“And the king [Saul] said to her: Fear not: what hast thou seen? ...And she said: An old man cometh up, and he is covered with a mantle. And Saul understood that it was Samuel, and he bowed himself with his face to the ground and adored him. And Samuel said to Saul: Why hast thou troubled me that I should be brought up [from the Limbo of the Fathers]?” (1 Ki. 28:13-15)

The souls of Moses and Elias came from the Limbo of the Fathers and appeared on Mount Tabor with Jesus during Jesus’ Transfiguration:

“And behold there appeared to them [the apostles] Moses and Elias talking with him [Jesus].” (Mt. 17:3)

The Book of Wisdom teaches that atheists are in the hell of the damned:

Atheists say: “So we also being born, forthwith ceased to be: and have been able to shew no mark of virtue: but are consumed in our wickedness.’ Such things as these the sinners said in gehenna.” (Wis. 5:13-14)

And Jesus says that when the poor, sick Lazarus died, his soul went to the Limbo of the Fathers (also called Abraham’s Bosom); whereas, when the evil rich man died, his soul went to the hell of the damned:

“And it came to pass, that the beggar died and was carried by the angels into Abraham’s bosom. And the rich man also died, and he was buried in gehenna. And lifting up his eyes when he was in torments, he saw Abraham afar off and Lazarus in his bosom: And he cried, and said: Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water to cool my tongue, for I am tormented in this flame.” (Lk. 16:22-24)

The following verses say that the saints who died and are saved convict the wicked who are alive. And the wicked are convicted by their own sins when they die and go to their Particular Judgment:

“That the grace of God and his mercy is with his saints, and that he hath respect to his chosen. But the just that is dead condemneth the wicked that are living, and youth soon ended, the long life of the unjust. For they shall see the end of the wise man, and shall not understand what God hath designed for him, and why the Lord hath set him in safety. They shall see him, and shall despise him: but the Lord shall laugh them to scorn. And they shall fall after this without honour, and be a reproach among the dead for ever: for he shall burst them puffed up and speechless, and shall shake them from the foundations, and they shall be utterly laid waste: they shall be in sorrow, and their memory shall perish. They shall come with fear at the thought of their sins, and their iniquities shall stand against them to convict them.” (Wis. 4:15-20)

The Bible also teaches that the souls of men who died during the New Covenant era are either saved and in heaven or purgatory or damned and in the hell of the damned. For example,

The book of the Apocalypse tells us that saints reign in heaven with Christ. (See commentary on Apoc. 20:4.) The apostle St. John saw saints in heaven. (See Bible verse and commentary on Apoc. 19:10.) And St. Peter teaches that the heretics and apostates who bring in sects of perdition and die that way will be damned to hell during their Particular Judgment where they await the General Judgment:

“But there were also false prophets among the people, even as there shall be among you lying teachers who shall bring in sects of perdition and deny the Lord who bought them, bringing upon themselves swift destruction... For if God spared not the angels that sinned but delivered them drawn down by infernal ropes to the depths of the underworld unto torments [during their Particular Judgment] to be reserved unto judgment [the General Judgment], [so you also will suffer the same fate]... [For] the Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly from temptation, but to reserve the unjust [in the hell of the damned after their Particular Judgment] unto the day of judgment [the General Judgment] to be tormented.” (2 Pt. 2:1, 4, 9)

Hence we see that all the angels also underwent a Particular Judgment and will also undergo the General Judgment at the end of the world so that the goodness of the good angels and the evilness of the bad angels (devils) will be manifest and thus known to all.

During the New Covenant era, which began in AD 33 when Christ died on the cross, only those who die as good members of the Catholic Church will be saved. Hence the faith that men must believe in to be saved is the Catholic faith, the works they must do to be saved are the works necessary to be a good Catholic, and then they must die as good members of the Catholic Church. Therefore all men who die and go to their Particular Judgment as non-members of the Catholic Church are damned, and all members of the Catholic Church who die in mortal sin are damned.

The General Judgment

All of the dead bodies are resurrected just before the General Judgment

While men’s souls are either saved or damned during their Particular Judgment, their dead bodies are still in the grave waiting to be resurrected at the end of this world and just before the General Judgment, at which point all men will be judged in body and soul before the whole world. This is when the following prayers will be answered and prophecies fulfilled:

King David: "O hear my prayer, all flesh shall come to thee. (Ps. 64:3) The Lord remaineth for ever. He hath prepared his throne in judgment: And he shall judge the world in equity, he shall judge the people in justice. (Ps. 9:8-9) The rivers shall clap their hands, the mountains shall rejoice together at the presence of the Lord: because he cometh to judge the earth. He shall judge the world with justice, and the people with equity. (Ps. 97:8-9)"

Jesus, son of Sirach: "And I said in my heart: God shall judge both the just and the wicked, and then shall be the time of every thing." (Ectes. 3:17)

The purpose of the General Judgment is to make manifest to all men God's justice and mercy

The purpose of the General Judgment is to make manifest to all men the justice of God in saving this one while damning that one and to know the extent of the goodness of the elect or evilness of the reprobates. Hence God's perfect justice and perfect mercy will be manifest to all men, as well as to all angels, regarding each person and how it relates to persons in relation to one another:

"For there is not any thing secret that shall not be made manifest, nor hidden, that shall not be known and come abroad." (Lk. 8:17)

Men who have not died cannot know the ultimate destiny of a soul unless it is mentioned in the Bible

"Therefore judge not before the time [the General Judgment]; until the Lord come, who both will bring to light the hidden things of darkness, and will make manifest the counsels of the hearts; and then shall every man have praise from God." (1 Cor. 4:5)

The judgment St. Paul warns about making in regards to men who have not died is the judgment regarding the ultimate disposition of a person; that is, if he be of the elect or a reprobate. As St. Paul says in Verse 4, even though he is not conscious of any sin he is guilty of, that does not mean that he is justified and of the elect:

"For I am not conscious to myself of any thing, yet I am not hereby justified; but he that judgeth me is the Lord."

Even a Catholic who is in a state of grace can fall away and end up in hell, and a bad Catholic who is not in a state of grace can repent and end up in heaven. (Ez. 33:18-19) St. Paul is not teaching that Catholics cannot make any judgments whatsoever, since in other places he teaches that Catholics must judge sinners. (See commentary on Mt. 7:1.) Instead, he is teaching that they should not judge "before the time" (that is, before the General Judgment at the end of the world) the ultimate disposition or fate of a person if he be of the elect or a reprobate. Before the General Judgment, the only humans who are infallibly known to be saved or damned are those mentioned in the Bible. For example,

- Judas is a reprobate and thus damned: Jesus said, "Those whom thou gavest me have I kept; and none of them is lost but the son of perdition [Judas], that the scripture may be fulfilled. (Jn. 17:12) The Son of man indeed goeth, as it is written of him: but woe to that man by whom the Son of man shall be betrayed: it were better for him if that man had not been born. And Judas that betrayed him, answering, said: Is it I, Rabbi? He saith to him: Thou hast said it. (Mt. 26:24-25)" If Judas was saved, Jesus would not have called him the son of perdition nor said that it were better that he had not been born.
- Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob are of the elect and thus saved: "And I say to you that many shall come from the east and the west and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven." (Mt. 8:11)
- Moses and Elias are of the elect and thus saved. See the above quote when they appeared on Mount Tabor during Jesus' Transfiguration. (Mt. 17:3)
- The twelve apostles (excluding Judas and including Matthias) are of the elect and thus saved: "And Jesus said to them: Amen, I say to you, that you [the apostles], who have followed me in the regeneration, when the Son of man shall sit on the seat of his majesty, you also shall sit on twelve seats judging the twelve tribes of Israel." (Mt. 19:28)

Hence not until the General Judgment will all men know for certain the fate of those who died who were not mentioned in the Bible as saved or damned.

However, Catholics who have not yet died are bound to presume that a man who has died is either saved or damned based upon the evidence available to them. Hence if there is no evidence that a man died as a member of the Catholic Church, then that man is presumed to be damned. And if there is evidence that a member of the Catholic Church who was guilty of mortal sin when he died and there is no evidence that he repented, then he is presumed to be in the hell of the damned. And if there is no evidence that a member of the Catholic Church was guilty of mortal sin when he died, then he is presumed to be saved.

Jesus will judge men again but this time publicly and on earth

After the second coming of Jesus Christ and after he has destroyed all the evildoers from the face of the earth, Jesus will resurrect the bodies of the dead and conduct the General Judgment in which he will publicly judge all men according to the faith they believed in and the works they did before they died. This is also known as the “Great White Throne Judgment”:

“And I saw a great white throne, and one sitting upon it, from whose face the earth and heaven fled away, and there was no place found for them. And I saw the dead, great and small, standing in the presence of the throne, and the books were opened; and another book was opened, which is the book of life; and the dead were judged by those things which were written in the books, according to their works. And the sea gave up the dead that were in it, and death and gehenna gave up their dead that were in them; and they were judged every one according to their works. And gehenna and death were cast into the pool of fire. This is the second death. And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the pool of fire.” (Apoc. 20:11-15)

Just previous to the General Judgment, the elect and reprobates with their resurrected bodies will be taken up to the intermediate heaven before the throne of Jesus Christ; and Christ will then desolate the earth and the heaven above the earth. He will then create a new earth and new heaven. The elect and reprobates will then land upon the new earth with its new hell, and Christ will then conduct the General Judgment in Jerusalem.<sup>2979</sup>

The General Judgment is also recorded in Matthew 25, which states that Jesus judges men again according to the faith they believed in and the works they did before they died. But this second judgment is public and before all rational creatures. The elect are referred to as sheep and placed at his right hand, and the reprobates are referred to as goats and placed at his left hand:

“And when the Son of man shall come in his majesty, and all the angels with him, then shall he sit upon the seat of his majesty. And all nations shall be gathered together before him, and he shall separate them one from another, as the shepherd separateth the sheep from the goats. And he shall set the sheep on his right hand but the goats on his left. Then shall the king say to them that shall be on his right hand: Come, ye blessed of my Father, possess you the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world... Then he shall say to them also that shall be on his left hand: Depart from me, you cursed, into everlasting fire which was prepared for the devil and his angels.” (Mt. 25:31-34, 41)

While the souls of the dead elect already possess the kingdom of God before the General Judgment, their resurrected glorified bodies will now also possess the kingdom of God. And while the souls of the reprobates are already in the hell of the damned before the General Judgment, their resurrected corrupted bodies will now be cast into the hell of the damned where the reprobates will suffer not only in soul but now also in body. Hence the following verses do not refer to the souls of the elect and reprobates that are alive either in heaven, purgatory, or the hell of the damned but rather to their dead bodies that will be resurrected just before the General Judgment:

“Wonder not at this; for the hour cometh, wherein all that are in the graves [the dead bodies] shall hear the voice of the Son of God [and be resurrected]. And they that have done good things shall come forth unto the resurrection of life [in body and soul]; but they that have done evil unto the resurrection of judgment [in body and soul].” (Jn. 5:28-29)

“And the sea gave up the dead that were in it, and death and gehenna gave up their dead that were in them; and they were judged every one according to their works.” (Apoc. 20:13)

The sea symbolizes the places where the dead bodies of the elect are, as water is a symbol of grace, life, and purity. Death and hell symbolize the places where the dead bodies of the reprobates are, as death means the death of the soul and thus refers to reprobates, and hell is the place of damnation, the place their dead bodies are destined for.

The Prophet Isaias speaks of the new heaven and earth that Jesus will create after his second coming and of the corrupted bodies (carcasses) of the reprobates that will suffer in hell forever:

“For as the new heavens, and the new earth, which I will make to stand before me, saith the Lord: so shall your seed stand, and your name. And there shall be month after month, and sabbath after sabbath: and all flesh shall come to adore before my face, saith the Lord. And they shall go out and see the carcasses of the men that have transgressed against me: their worm shall not die, and their fire shall not be quenched: and they shall be a loathsome sight to all flesh.” (Isa. 66:22-24)

The Book of Daniel also speaks of the General Judgment:

“But at that time shall Michael rise up, the great prince, who standeth for the children of thy people: and a time shall come such as never was from the time that nations began even until that time. And at that time shall thy people be saved, every one that shall be found written in the book. And many of those [bodies] that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake: some unto life everlasting, and others unto reproach, to see it always. But they that are learned shall shine as the brightness of the firmament: and they that instruct many to justice, as stars for all eternity.” (Dan. 12:1-3)

Before the New Covenant, the faithful believed that the Messiah would save their bodies and souls during his first coming

Before the New Covenant era, God’s faithful chosen people believed that if they died faithful their souls would go to the Limbo of the Fathers, which is the highest level in the underworld, waiting for the day to be saved and thus enter heaven when the Messiah would come.<sup>2980</sup> And they believed that their bodies and souls would be saved at that time. Hence they believed that the Messiah would only come once and that it would mark the end of the world and thus the establishment of his everlasting kingdom on earth. For example,

Job: “For I know that my Redeemer liveth, and in the last day I shall rise out of the earth. And I shall be clothed again with my skin, and in my flesh I shall see my God. Whom I myself shall see, and my eyes shall behold, and not another: this my hope is laid up in my bosom.” (Job 19:25-27)

Martha: “Jesus saith to her: Thy brother shall rise again. Martha saith to him: I know that he shall rise again, in the resurrection at the last day.” (Jn. 11:23-24)

Before Jesus’ resurrection, even the apostles believed that Jesus would bring his kingdom upon earth and thus save both souls and bodies during his first coming. For example, when Jesus told his disciples that he must die, they said the following:

“The multitude answered him: We have heard out of the law, that Christ abideth for ever; and how sayest thou: The Son of man must be lifted up? Who is this Son of man?” (Jn. 12:34)

And other followers of Jesus “thought that the kingdom of God should immediately be manifested.” (Lk. 19:11)

Hence they believed that the Messiah would not die and that his first coming would be the last coming when all things would be accomplished. And after Jesus’ resurrection, he met two of his disciples on the road to Emmaus but hid his identity. And they said the following to him:

“But we hoped that it was he that should have redeemed Israel: and now besides all this, to day is the third day since these things were done.” (Lk. 24:21)

After his resurrection, Jesus told his chosen people exactly how their souls and bodies would be saved. He told them that their souls are saved first and then their bodies. He told them that the resurrection of their bodies and the everlasting earthly kingdom will not come immediately but only after some time. And to keep them on guard and to wean them from the love of this world over the love of heaven and the everlasting earthly paradise to come, he stated it in such a way that each generation would expect his second coming in their lifetime. For example, regarding his second coming, Jesus said,

“Behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to render to every man according to his works.” (Apoc. 22:12)

After all, when men die, their fate is sealed, be it the hell of the damned or heaven and the everlasting earthly paradise to come.

Hence after his resurrection, Jesus said that the souls of the elect would be taken to heaven first to see God face to face without their bodies. And then their bodies would be saved when he comes the second time at the end of the world and they would then see God face to face in body and soul. Thus while Christ’s death redeemed souls and bodies, the souls of the elect would benefit from the redemption and be saved first, as soon as they die, and then their bodies would benefit from the redemption and be saved during his second coming at the end of the world just previous to the General Judgment, at which point they would then see God face to face not only in the soul but also in their bodies.

In the same way, during Christ’s first coming and before his resurrection, God’s faithful chosen people, including his apostles, believed that when the Messiah comes he would not only bring the spiritual kingdom of God upon earth but also God’s everlasting material kingdom. But after his resurrection Christ told them that he first brought his spiritual kingdom upon earth in souls when he died on the cross but that he will not bring his everlasting earthly kingdom upon earth until his second coming at the end of the world.<sup>2981</sup>

After the General Judgment there will be no more death and no more evil upon the face of the earth

Apocalypse 20:14 teaches that after the General Judgment there will be no more death and there will be no more hell (devils or evil humans) upon the face of the earth:

“Gehenna and death were cast into the pool of fire. This is the second death.” (Apoc. 20:14)

The second death is the everlasting death of the corrupted bodies of the reprobates that will be resurrected just before the General Judgment and reunited to their corrupted souls. Their first death was the death of their souls when they died and their souls were cast into the hell of the damned. (See commentaries on Apoc. 20:5 and 6.) The Prophet Isaias describes the condition of the new earth Jesus creates

<sup>2981</sup> Christ will have kingdoms in this fallen world, as proved by the Holy Roman Empire, but they will not be everlasting and will only be in parts of the world.

after his second coming in which there will be no more death, pain, or sadness. (See Long Commentaries: “The Everlasting Earthly Paradise,” p. 1179.)

Jesus permits saints to judge in his name

Jesus permits some of his saints to judge men in his name. He permits them to judge not only men who have not yet died but also men who have died. And they judge them at their Particular Judgment and at the General Judgment. (See commentary on Apoc. 2:4. Judgment was given unto them.)

The place of the General Judgment

The elect and reprobates will be gathered in Kidron Valley; and Christ the King will judge them from Jerusalem, which overlooks Kidron Valley (also known as the Valley of Josaphat). The elect will be to the right of Jesus, and the reprobates to his left (Mt. 25:33):

“Let them arise, and let the nations come up into the valley of Josaphat: for there I will sit to judge all nations round about.” (Joel 3:12)

Josaphat means “the Lord Judges.” Hence this is the valley where the Lord conducts the General Judgment. Therefore it does not refer to the good King Josaphat, although his tomb is in Kidron Valley.<sup>2982</sup> In Verse 14 the prophet Joel also calls the Valley of Josaphat “the Valley of Destruction” because this is where all the reprobates will be gathered and killed previous to the General Judgment:

“Put ye in the sickles for the harvest is ripe; come and go down for the press is full, the fats run over, for their wickedness is multiplied. Nations, nations in the valley of destruction: for the day of the Lord is near in the valley of destruction.” (Joel 3:13-14)

Faithful Jews during the Old Covenant era knew that the General Judgment will take place in Kidron Valley, and thus some were buried there so that their bodies would be in the same place where the General Judgment will occur:

Nominal Catholic Encyclopedia, “Valley of Josaphat”: “Cedron (Kedron) takes the name of Valley of Josaphat... Christians, Jews, and, later, Mussulmans regard Cedron as the place of the last judgment. What has lent colour to this popular belief is the fact that since the time of the kings of Juda, Cedron has been the principal necropolis of Jerusalem. Josias scattered upon the tombs of the children of Israel the ashes of the idol of Astarte which he burned in Cedron (IV Kings, xxiii, 4). It was in Cedron that the hand of Absalom was set up, and the monument of St. James, and of Zachary. The ornamental facade of the tomb said to be that of Josaphat has been completely walled up by the Jews, who have their cemeteries on the flanks of the Valley of Cedron. They wish to stand in the first rank on the day when God shall appear in the Valley of Josaphat.”

Kidron Valley is east of Jerusalem and between the Temple and the Mount of Olives.

Catholic Commentary on Joel 3:2. Josaphat: “...the judgment of the Lord,” marks the place...east of Jerusalem, between the temple and Olivet, whence our Lord ascended into heaven.”

Catholic Commentary on Lk. 7:12: “So the sepulchre of Joseph of Arimathea, in which the body of Christ lay, was without Jerusalem. So also the valley of Jehoshaphat, the scene of the judgment to come and the general resurrection, is the common burial-place of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, with the exception of the kings, for whom David had provided a sepulchre in Zion. I Kings ii.”

Catholic Commentary on Lk. 9:26: “When he shall come in his own glory, and in his Father’s, and of the holy angels, i.e., at the day of judgment, when he shall sit as judge in the valley of Jehoshaphat, and in the presence of all, both men and angels, reward the just, and punish the evildoers.”

Venerable Bede, Book of the Holy Places, 8th century: “The city of Jerusalem is almost circular in its form... In the circumference of its walls, which is extensive, there are eighty-four towers and six gates. The first is David’s gate, to the west of Mount Sion... the fifth is the Postern or little gate, through which we go down by steps to the Valley of Jehoshaphat... The rain which falls runs in streams through the eastern gates, and carries with it all the filth of the streets into the brook Cedron, in the Valley of Jehoshaphat...<sup>2983</sup> Near Jerusalem and the wall of the temple is Gehennon, which is the valley of Jehoshaphat, extending from north to south, and through it flows the brook Cedron, when it is swelled by a fall of rain. This valley, forming a small level plain, is well watered and woody, and full of delightful things: formerly there was in it a place dedicated to Baal. Here was the tower of King Jehoshaphat, containing his tomb; on the right side of it was a separate chamber, cut out of the rock of Mount Olivet, containing two hollow sepulchres, one of the old Simeon, the other Joseph the husband of Saint Mary.<sup>2984,2985</sup>

There is also visible up to this day the pool used by the priests before offering their sacrifices, and the Jews coming thither write their names upon the wall. The gate of Jehoshaphat leads to the valley of Jehoshaphat, which is the gathering-place of nations. Here is the pillar called Absalom's Hand, and the sepulchre of King Uzziah.<sup>2986</sup>

"In the neighbourhood is also a great spring, called the Waters of Siloam, connected with the brook of Kidron. Over the spring is a large structure dating from the time of our ancestors, but little water is found, and the people of Jerusalem for the most part drink the rain-water, which they collect in cisterns in their houses. From the valley of Jehoshaphat one ascends the Mount of Olives; it is the valley only which separates Jerusalem from the Mount of Olives. From the Mount of Olives one sees the Sea of Sodom, and at a distance of two parasangs from the Sea of Sodom is the Pillar of Salt into which Lot's wife was turned; the sheep lick it continually, but afterwards it regains its original shape. The whole land of the plain and the valley of Shittim as far as Mount Nebo are visible from here."<sup>2987</sup>

The Redemption

Men need a redeemer to pay their sin debt to God and save their souls and bodies

Because God gave men a second chance after they sinned against him in the Garden of Paradise, God still loved men. And because he loved them, he had mercy on them. But God could never let his mercy compromise his justice or else God would be unjust and thus be evil. Hence, in order to save men, God's justice demanded that a sacrifice must be made to him in order to pay the sin-debt that men incurred and thus to redeem men and therefore make it possible for them to be saved.

For sins to be forgiven, then, mankind needed a redeemer, the Messiah, to pay their sin debt to God by appeasing God's wrath and satisfying his justice in order for sins to be forgiven and remitted. Even though God is merciful, he is also just. King David says,

"The Lord is merciful and just." (Ps. 114:5)
"Justice and judgment are the preparation of thy throne. Mercy and truth shall go before thy face. (Ps. 88:15)

And Jesus, son of Sirach, says,

"For mercy and wrath are with him. He is mighty to forgive, and to pour out indignation: According as his mercy is, so his correction judgeth a man according to his works." (Eccus. 16:12-13)

In his justice, God demanded that a price be paid to himself for the sins of men in order to have mercy on men and thus redeem them from their sins and hence make it possible for their sins to be forgiven and gain everlasting life.

The sin debt is paid to God not Satan because the offense was against God. The reason Satan has power and rights over sinful men is because men offended God and followed Satan instead of God, and thus God gave Satan the power and right over men to control and torment them. Satan has power and rights over sinful men in the same way a prison warden has power in rights over his prisoners. And the prison warden, in this case, is a prisoner himself and the boss of the prison. The warden does not have the ultimate power and right but the ruler of the head of the State does. It is the head of the State who put the prisoners in prison, and it is he who can free the prisoners, not the warden of the prison. Hence God, not Satan, is the one who delivers sinners to Satan; and it is God, not Satan who can free them from prison and thus from Satan. Therefore, it is God, not Satan, who must be petitioned, appeased, and satisfied for the sins committed against him. And this is the role that only the Messiah can fulfill who comes to offer himself as a sacrifice to God, not to Satan, to appease God's wrath and to satisfy God's justice and hence pay the sin debt for men and make it possible for their sins to be forgiven and remitted so that they can be saved.

Mere men cannot redeem themselves, only a God-Man could

Because men sinned against God and sin is an infinite offence against God, only a man who is sinless and infinite can make reparation to God in order to redeem men. And because only God is infinite, this man must also be God and thus be both God and man. And that redeemer is the sinless God-Man, Jesus Christ, the Messiah, who redeemed men by his sacrificial death which he offered up to the God the Father.<sup>2988</sup> God's justice demanded this because he is just, even at the cost of his own life in the person of God the Son. Hence, in God's love for us, he did not spare his himself in the Person of God the Son:

"He [God] ... spared not even his own Son, but delivered him up for us all." (Rom. 8:32)

Because men sinned against God, a man needs to make reparation to God and in order for men to be redeemed:

"For by a man came death, and by a man the resurrection of the dead. And as in Adam all die, so also in Christ all shall be made alive." (1 Cor. 15:21-22)

“Wherefore it behoved him [Jesus Christ] in all things to be made like unto his brethren [to be made man], that he might become a merciful and faithful high priest before God that he might be a propitiation for the sins of the people.” (Heb. 2:17)

Because men are guilty of sin, only a sinless man can redeem them by paying the price for sinful men:

“What can be made clean by the unclean?” (Eccus. 34:4)

“Hear, O Lord, my prayer, give ear to my supplication in thy truth. Hear me in thy justice. And enter not into judgment with thy servant, for in thy sight no man living shall be justified.” (Ps. 142:1-2)

“But all things are of God, who hath reconciled us to himself by Christ; and hath given to us the ministry of reconciliation. For God indeed was in Christ, reconciling the world to himself, not imputing to them their sins; and he hath placed in us the word of reconciliation. For Christ therefore we are ambassadors, God as it were exhorting by us. For Christ, we beseech you, be reconciled to God. Him, who knew no sin, he hath made sin for us that we might be made the justice of God in him.” (2 Cor. 5:18-21)

Because the price of sin is death, the Messiah had to die for the sins of men to redeem them:

“By one man sin entered into this world and by sin death, and so death passed upon all men in whom all have sinned... [However,] Christ died for us, much more therefore, being now justified by his blood, shall we be saved from wrath through him.” (Rom. 5:12, 9)

Even pagans can understand this. In order to prevent feuds from breaking out when a pagan killed another man’s family member, the law required that a family member of the killer must be killed to end or prevent feuds. Justice, then, even in pagan societies, demanded a like punishment for a like crime, a like punishment to make reparation. Hence Christ’s sacrificial death put an end to death for those who would accept the terms. St. Peter says,

“[Jesus] is on the right hand of God, swallowing down death that we might be made heirs of life everlasting.” (1 Pt. 3:22)

St. Paul also speaks of how Christ put an end to death for the faithful who believe in Christ:

“O death, where is thy victory? O death, where is thy sting?” (1 Cor. 15:55)

Because sin is an infinite offense against God, only an infinite person, which can only be God, can pay the price. Hence King David says,

“The Lord will redeem the souls of his servants.” (Ps. 33:23)

And the prophet Isaias says,

“I am the Lord that save thee, and thy Redeemer, the Mighty One of Jacob.” (Isa. 49:26)

Therefore the Messiah has to be not only a sinless man but also God, and he has to die for the sins of men in order to redeem them.

Men cannot redeem themselves from their own sins anymore than perpetually poor men can ever escape poverty. Hence King David says,

“No brother can redeem nor shall [mere] man redeem; he shall not give to God his ransom nor the price of the redemption of his soul, and shall labour forever.” (Ps. 48:8-9)

Even if there were a sinless man since the fall of Adam and Eve (such as the Blessed Virgin Mary), he cannot redeem men because he is a mere man and only a divine person (an infinite person) can pay the infinite sin-debt to God.

Just as it is not within man’s power to create himself, so also it is not within mere man’s power to redeem himself once he fell into sin and incurred spiritual death. Original sin made men spiritually dead and also brought physical death upon them. And only God can bring them back to life, spiritually and physically. Hence, the Messiah has to be not only a sinless man but also God.

Most men do not benefit from the redemption

God loves all men and thus wants all men to be saved:

“Thou hast mercy upon all because thou canst do all things and overlookest the sins of men for the sake of repentance. For thou lovest all things that are and hatest none of the things which thou hast made, for thou didst not appoint, or make any thing hating it.” (Wis. 11:24-25)

“For this is good and acceptable in the sight of God our Saviour, who will have all men to be saved and to come to the knowledge of the truth.” (1 Tim. 2:3-4)

Hence the Messiah’s sacrificial death redeems all men and thus pays the sin debt for all men:

“And he is the propitiation for our sins; and not for ours only, but also for those of the whole world.” (1 Jn. 2:2)

“For therefore we labour and are reviled because we hope in the living God, who is the Saviour of all men, especially of the faithful.” (1 Tim. 4:10)

“Christ also died once for our sins, the just for the unjust, that he might offer us to God, being put to death indeed in the flesh but enlivened in the spirit,” (1 Pt. 3:18)

Yet many times the Word of God says that very few men will be saved and thus most men will be damned and thus end up in the hell:

“The Lord hath looked down from heaven upon the children of men to see if there be any that understand and seek God. They are all gone aside, they are become unprofitable together, there is none that doth good, no not one.” (Ps. 13:2-3)

“For if thy people, O Israel, shall be as the sand of the sea, a remnant of them shall be converted...” (Isa. 10:22)

“Which yet my soul seeketh, and I have not found it. One man among a thousand I have found, a woman among them all I have not found.” (Ectes. 7:29)

“Enter ye in at the narrow gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction, and many there are who go in thereat. How narrow is the gate, and strait is the way that leadeth to life: and few there are that find it!” (Mt. 7:13-14)

“Many are called, but few chosen.” (Mt. 20:16)

Therefore, even though the Messiah redeemed all men, most men will not ultimately benefit from the redemption because most men end up in hell. To benefit from their redemption, men must cooperate with God’s grace, believe in God, and obey all of his commandments.

What good can the redemption do for obstinate sinners who want to go on sinning forever? Unrepentant obstinate sinners spit in the face of their redemption. They say to God, “We do not want your redemption. Leave us alone. We do not want to go to your heaven.” If God ever let them benefit from the redemption and thus be saved, then heaven would be hell and God would be Satan. God would be evil and unjust for letting obstinate sinners live among the righteous in his heavenly kingdom and earthly paradise to come, and he would be a liar for calling such a condition heaven or paradise.

Therefore, to ultimately benefit from the redemption and thus be saved during the New Covenant era, men must believe in Jesus Christ and the Catholic faith, get baptized into the Catholic Church and thus have their original sin and other sins remitted, obey all of God’s commandments, confess any sins they committed since their baptism, and die in a state of grace (that is, not guilty of mortal sin):

“He that believeth in the Son, hath life everlasting; but he that believeth not the Son, shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him.” (Jn. 3:36)

“Whosoever revolteth, and continueth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that continueth in the doctrine, the same hath both the Father and the Son.” (2 Jn. 1:9)

“He that believeth and is baptized, shall be saved: but he that believeth not shall be condemned.” (Mk. 16:16)

“And if he will not hear them: tell the [Catholic] Church. And if he will not hear the church, let him be to thee as the heathen and publican.” (Mt. 18:17)

“If thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments.” (Mt. 19:17)

“Confess therefore your sins...” (Jam. 5:16)

“My little children, these things I write to you, that you may not sin. But if any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the just: And he is the propitiation for our sins: and not for ours only, but also for those of the whole world.” (1 Jn. 2:1-2)

“And all nations shall be gathered together before him, and he shall separate them one from another, as the shepherd separateth the sheep from the goats: And he shall set the sheep on his right hand, but the goats on his left.” (Mt. 25:32-33)

Athanasian Creed, 4th century: “Whosoever willeth to be saved needs above all to hold the Catholic faith. Which faith except every one do keep whole and undefiled, he will without doubt perish eternally.”

However, a Catholic who is in a state of grace and then falls away and dies in mortal sin does not ultimately benefit from his redemption even though he temporally benefited from his redemption when his original sin and other sins were remitted:

“Yea, if I shall say to the just that he shall surely live, and he, trusting in his justice, commit iniquity, all his justices shall be forgotten and in his iniquity which he hath committed, in the same shall he die.” (Ez. 33:13)

“For if, flying from the pollutions of the world, through the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, they be again entangled in them and overcome: their latter state is become unto them worse than the former.” (2 Pt. 2:20)

Whereas, a man who lived and died as a pagan was never just and therefore never benefited from his redemption.

The bodies of the elect do not benefit from the redemption until the General Judgment

The Messiah’s sacrificial death redeems not only souls but also bodies. While faithful souls benefit from the redemption immediately, the bodies of the elect do not benefit from the redemption until the General Judgment:

“For we know that every creature groaneth and travaileth in pain, even till now. And not only it, but ourselves also, who have the firstfruits of the Spirit, even we ourselves groan within ourselves, waiting for the adoption of the sons of God, the redemption of our body.” (Rom. 8:22-23)

“Behold, I tell you a mystery. We shall all indeed rise again: but we shall not all be changed. In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall rise again incorruptible: and we shall be changed. For this corruptible must put on incorruption; and this mortal must put on immortality. And when this mortal hath put on immortality, then shall come to pass the saying that is written: Death is swallowed up in victory. O death, where is thy victory? O death, where is thy sting?" (1 Cor. 15:51-55)

(See Long Commentaries: "The Particular Judgment and the General Judgment," p. 1196.)

The earth will not benefit from the redemption until the second coming of Jesus Christ

The Messiah's sacrificial death also redeemed the earth. But the earth will not benefit from its redemption until the second coming of Jesus Christ when he purifies the earth from all evil and turns it into an earthly paradise where there is no death or sorrow. And Christ, the King of kings, and Mary, the Queen of queens, will rule the everlasting earthly paradise from the New Jerusalem that came down from heaven. (See Long Commentaries: "The Everlasting Earthly Paradise," p. 1179.)

The Seven Heads and Ten Horns of the Beast

The first mention of the seven heads and ten horns is recorded in Apocalypse 12:

"And there was seen another sign in heaven: and behold a great red dragon, having seven heads, and ten horns: and on his heads seven diadems." (Apoc. 12:3)

The red dragon is Satan. The seven heads are seven successive kingdoms of Satan that dominated, are dominating, and will dominate the world. The ten horns are ten kings (or several kings, if ten is symbolic of many) that will rule under the ultimate and final Antichrist in the end times. The beast is not yet mentioned. He is the Antichrist and his precursors, human beings, whom Satan (the dragon) uses to rule his kingdoms on earth.

The next mention of the seven heads and ten horns is in Apocalypse 13. The Beast is the Antichrist and his precursors who serve Satan, the dragon:

"And I saw a beast coming up out of the sea, having seven heads and ten horns, and upon his horns ten diadems, and upon his heads names of blasphemy." (Apoc. 13:1)

The seven heads and ten horns are again mentioned in Apocalypse 17. The Antichrist, the Beast, uses the Harlot to rule his seventh kingdom to bring him to worldwide power:

"And he took me away in spirit into the desert. And I saw a woman sitting upon a scarlet coloured beast, full of names of blasphemy, having seven heads and ten horns." (Apoc. 17:3)

The seven heads of the Beast are seven successive kingdoms of the Beast

"And here is the understanding that hath wisdom. The seven heads are seven mountains, upon which the woman sitteth, and they are seven kings: Five are fallen, one is, and the other is not yet come." (Apoc. 17:9-10)

Hence the seven horns are seven successive kingdoms of the Antichrist and his precursors that dominate the world. In the days of St. John, five of these kingdoms no longer existed and one was and one was to come. The five successive kingdoms that no longer existed in St. John's day were the kingdom of Egypt, then Assyria, then Babylon, then Persia, and then Greece. The kingdom that existed in St. John's day and which dominated the world was the kingdom of the pagan Roman Empire, which is the sixth kingdom of the Antichrist. The apostate Jews who denied Christ and persecuted Christians became part of this sixth kingdom. The main persecutors of Christians, then, were the kingdom of apostate Jews and the kingdom of the pagan Roman Empire. The apostate Jews were the first and worst persecutors of Christians since they instigated the pagan Romans to persecute Christians. St. Paul says, "The unbelieving Jews stirred up and incensed the minds of the Gentiles against the brethren." (Acts 14:2)

We learn from Apocalypse 13 that this sixth kingdom will be slain (destroyed). But it will be healed and thus resurrected as the seventh kingdom (head) of the Antichrist (the Beast):

"And I saw a beast coming up out of the sea, having seven heads and ten horns, and upon his horns ten diadems, and upon his heads names of blasphemy... And I saw one of his heads as it were slain to death: and his death's wound was healed. And all the earth was in admiration after the beast." (Apoc. 13:1, 3)

This is also recorded in Apocalypse 17:8:

"The beast, which thou sawest, was, and is not, and shall come up out of the bottomless pit, and go into destruction: and the inhabitants on the earth (whose names are not written in the book of life from the foundation of the world) shall wonder, seeing the beast that was, and is not." (Apoc. 17:8)

The "beast that was" and the "head that was slain to death" was the sixth head and hence was the kingdom of the apostate Jews and the kingdom of the pagan Roman Empire. The kingdom of the apostate Jews was slain in AD 70 when the Second Temple was destroyed and the apostate Jews were taken into exile and hence they were cast out of Israel. The kingdom of the pagan Roman Empire was slain when it was replaced by the Holy Roman Empire. The slaying of the sixth kingdom was made possible by Jesus Christ's death on the holy Cross and the promulgation of the gospel. When Christ died, Satan was chained for 1000 years and hence his power was greatly limited, which enabled Christianity to eventually conquer the sixth kingdom of the beast. (See Apoc. 20:1-3.)

From the time of its destruction, the sixth kingdom went underground and thus plotted and fought against the Catholic Church in secret and semi-secret. The main force against the Catholic Church in this secret and semi-secret kingdom is the apostate Jews, who form alliances with pagans and other unbelievers in order to attack the Catholic Church and faith until they can come to worldwide power. The pagans and these other unbelievers first come to worldwide power and then they bring the apostate Jews and the final Antichrist to power. The main allies of the apostate Jews are the Freemasons, who were created in the 18th century; and the Christian Zionists, who were created in the 19th century. And both are controlled by the apostate Jews, the former physically and the latter spiritually.

The war against the Catholic Church began to make steady progress from the time Satan was unchained in 1033, which began the Great Apostasy. From that point forward the underground sixth kingdom of the Antichrist began to make steady progress in re-paganizing the world and then Judaizing the world with Talmudic Judaism, which will be the religion of the final Antichrist when he comes to power.

When the pagans and other unbelievers come to dominate the world, with the help of the apostate Jews, the death wound inflicted upon the pagan part of the sixth kingdom is healed and is the seventh kingdom of the Antichrist, the seventh head. It includes not only pagans but other unbelievers, such as Freemasons, Christian Zionists, Protestants, Schismatics, and nominal Catholics. Nominal Catholics are the second most powerful ally of the apostate Jews, second to the Freemasons.

Once the pagan part of the sixth kingdom is resurrected as the seventh kingdom, then the wound of the apostate Jewish kingdom will be healed, and it will then dominate the world when the ultimate and final Antichrist comes to power. And this is the eighth kingdom that was made possible by the seven previous kingdoms, especially the seventh kingdom which brings the eighth kingdom to power. We read of this in Apocalypse 17:

“And here is the understanding that hath wisdom. The seven heads are seven mountains, upon which the woman sitteth, and they are seven kings: Five are fallen, one is, and the other is not yet come: and when he is come, he must remain a short time. And the beast which was, and is not: the same also is the eighth, and is of the seven, and goeth into destruction.” (Apoc. 17:9-10)

This beast of the eighth kingdom is the final Antichrist of the apostate Jews, whose precursor persecuted Christians in the early days of the Catholic Church; and he will persecute them much more so in the final days. And this eighth kingdom of the beast is destined to be destroyed upon the second coming of Jesus Christ—it “goeth into destruction.”

The seventh head (kingdom) of the beast that brings the eighth head (kingdom) of the beast to power is the United States of America, which was created in 1776 and is the political half of the harlot who sits upon the beast. However, it did not dominate the world until it dropped the two atomic bombs on Japan in 1945, which caused the whole world to fear and admire the USA. This event was prophesied in Apocalypse 13:13:

“And he [USA] did great signs, so that he made also fire to come down from heaven unto the earth in the sight of men.” (Apoc. 13:13)

This event, which occurred in 1945, was the beginning of the seventh kingdom of the Antichrist, the resurrection of the pagan Roman Empire as the USA, which is the modern-day equivalent of pagan Rome, and the epitome and utopia of the Freemasonic State. It dominates the world and spreads its apostasy and vices throughout the world. And it will eventually bring the eighth kingdom of the Antichrist to world power, when the apostate Jews will rule the world under the final Antichrist and his false religion of Talmudic Judaism in apostate Israel.

The beast’s seventh kingdom is publicly ruled by the USA but secretly ruled by apostate Jews and Freemasons. This beast is mentioned in the following verse:

“And I saw another beast coming up out of the earth, and he had two horns, like a lamb, and he spoke as a dragon.” (Apoc. 13:11)

The USA pretends to be a lamb, a peacemaker, but is actually a dragon who unjustly subjugates nations by physical or economic warfare or by subversion from within.

The “former beast” also referred to as the “first beast,” mentioned in the following Verse 12, is the kingdom of apostate Israel which was slain and went into captivity in AD 70 but was healed in 1948 when the apostate State of Israel was created by the help of the USA (the harlot and beast of the seventh kingdom):

“And he [USA] executed all the power of the former beast [apostate Israel] in his sight; and he caused the earth, and them that dwell therein, to adore the first beast [apostate Israel], whose wound to death was healed.” (Apoc. 13:12)

The part of the sixth kingdom that was apostate Israel is referred to as the “former beast” because it was not resurrected until after the pagan part was resurrected. The pagan part was resurrected in 1945, and the apostate Israel part in 1948. Hence the apostate Israel part is referred to as the former beast when the pagan part existed but the apostate Israel part did not yet exist.

And the part of the sixth kingdom of apostate Israel is referred to as the “first beast” because it was the first to persecute Christianity and Christians before the pagan Roman Empire did. And it instigated the pagan Roman Empire to persecute Christians.

The next verse speaks of how the USA came to dominate the world:

“And he [USA] did great signs so that he made also fire to come down from heaven unto the earth in the sight of men.” (Apoc. 13:13)

This occurred when the USA dropped two atomic bombs on Japan in 1945 and the whole world was in awe and fear of the USA. The worldwide power of the USA, the beast’s seventh kingdom, enabled it to glorify and promote apostate Israel, by force if necessary, and thus eventually bring the beast's eighth kingdom to worldwide power when the final Antichrist and apostate Israel rule the world:

“And he [USA] seduced them that dwell on the earth for the signs, which were given him to do in the sight of the beast [apostate Israel], saying to them that dwell on the earth, that they should make the image of the beast [apostate Israel], which had the wound by the sword, and lived [since it was created in 1948].” (Apoc. 13:14)

Not only does the beast's seventh kingdom of the USA give physical life to apostate Israel but it kills either physically, economically, or by imprisonment anyone who does not adore apostate Israel:

“And it was given him [the USA] to give life to the image of the beast [apostate Israel], and that the image of the beast should speak [upon the creation of the State of Israel in 1948]; and should cause, that whosoever will not adore the image of the beast should be slain. And he shall make all, both little and great, rich and poor, freemen and bondmen, to have a character in their right hand, or on their foreheads. And that no man might buy or sell, but he that hath the character, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name.” (Apoc. 13:15-17)

The last verse of Apocalypse 13 gives a clue as to the identity of the final Antichrist:

“Here is wisdom. He that hath understanding, let him count the number of the beast. For it is the number of a man: and the number of him is six hundred sixty-six.” (Apoc. 13:18)

The political and ecclesiastical harlot sits upon the Beast and brings the Beast to power

The Apocalypse speaks of a woman (a harlot) who rides the beast who has seven heads and ten horns:

“And the angel said to me: Why dost thou wonder? I will tell thee the mystery of the woman, and of the beast which carrieth her, which hath the seven heads and ten horns.” (Apoc. 17:7)

“And there came one of the seven angels, who had the seven vials, and spoke with me, saying: Come, I will shew thee the condemnation of the great harlot, who sitteth upon many waters, with whom the kings of the earth have committed fornication; and they who inhabit the earth, have been made drunk with the wine of her whoredom. And he took me away in spirit into the desert. And I saw a woman sitting upon a scarlet coloured beast, full of names of blasphemy, having seven heads and ten horns. And the woman was clothed round about with purple and scarlet, and gilt with gold, and precious stones and pearls, having a golden cup in her hand, full of the abomination and filthiness of her fornication. And on her forehead a name was written: A mystery; Babylon the great, the mother of the fornications, and the abominations of the earth. And I saw the woman drunk with the blood of the saints, and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus. And I wondered, when I had seen her, with great amazement. And the angel said to me: Why dost thou wonder? I will tell thee the mystery of the woman, and of the beast which carrieth her, which hath the seven heads and ten horns.” (Apoc. 17:1-7)

The Antichrist and his precursors give power to the harlot and her precursors to rule his seven kingdoms, while the Antichrist and his precursors are ruled by Satan (the dragon). The harlot has two powers, political and ecclesiastical (physical and spiritual). Many times these evil kingdoms are referred to as Babylon. Her job is to fight against the one true God, Church, religion, and God's chosen people. Hence she is responsible for the murder of all the martyrs:

“And I saw the woman drunk with the blood of the saints, and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus. And I wondered, when I had seen her, with great amazement.” (Apoc. 17:6)

The ultimate goal of the harlot and her precursors is to bring the eighth kingdom of the beast to power, the final Antichrist and his eighth kingdom. And when her job is finished, the final Antichrist, as well as the ten kings who rule under him, will throw her off his back and kill her since she is no longer needed:

“And the ten horns [ten kings under the Antichrist] which thou sawest in the beast [the final Antichrist]: these shall hate the harlot [USA and Vatican City], and shall make her desolate and naked, and shall eat her flesh, and shall burn her with fire. For God hath given into their hearts to do that which pleaseth him: that they give their kingdom to the beast [the beast's eighth kingdom], till the words of God be fulfilled.” (Apoc. 17:16-17)

The final and ultimate harlot, then, rules the seventh kingdom and is killed when Antichrist comes to power in his eighth kingdom. The Apocalypse gives a description of the final harlot who rules the seventh kingdom.

The political half of the final harlot

In regard to the political half of the harlot, Apocalypse says the following:

“And he said to me: The waters which thou sawest, where the harlot sitteth, are peoples, and nations, and tongues... And the woman which thou sawest is the great city, which hath kingdom over the kings of the earth.” (Apoc. 17:15, 18)

This is none other than the USA, which is populated by peoples of many nations and tongues and dominates the world.

The great city which has power over the world is New York City, the economic powerhouse of the world. A tribute to the harlot is the Statue of Liberty, Liberty Island, New York, USA:

The names “Queens” and “Babylon” given to boroughs of New York are another tribute to the harlot. Hence the political half of the harlot is the USA (the epitome and utopia of the Freemasonic State) that physically justifies apostate Israel, apostate Judaism, and the Antichrist by bringing them to power. After the end of World War II, the Freemasonic USA threw off its cloak of secrecy in bringing the eighth kingdom to power by its adamant and many times sole support of apostate Israel. The first success was the creation of the apostate State of Israel in 1948.

Apocalypse 18 gives a perfect description of the political half of the harlot, which is none other than the USA who is referred to as Babylon

It gives a description of this political half of the harlot (the USA and especially New York City) and her destruction, when she is thrown off the back of the beast. This political half of the harlot is the economic and military powerhouse of the world, which is full of all kinds of riches, has the most powerful seaports, and is the arts and crafts center of the world.

And Apocalypse 18 says that this harlot will be destroyed in one day, even in one hour:

“Therefore shall her plagues come in one day, death, and mourning, and famine, and she shall be burnt with the fire; because God is strong, who shall judge her... For in one hour are so great riches come to nought; and every shipmaster, and all that sail into the lake, and mariners, and as many as work in the sea, stood afar off... And a mighty angel took up a stone, as it were a great millstone, and cast it into the sea, saying: With such violence as this shall Babylon, that great city, be thrown down, and shall be found no more at all.” (Apoc. 18:8, 17, 21)

Other verses say that Antichrist comes to power in one day, one hour, which indicates coordinated limited nuclear strikes on selected targets around the world followed by immediate invasions:

“And the ten horns which thou sawest are ten kings who have not yet received a kingdom, but shall receive power as kings one hour after the beast [the final Antichrist].” (Apoc. 17:12)

Hence the USA and many of its major cities, especially New York City and Washington DC, will be destroyed in one day, and hence this will be the day when this Great Babylon is thrown off the back of the Beast and falls.

But before the USA is destroyed, it will be ravished and weakened from within and then burnt with nuclear fire:

“And the ten horns [ten kings under the Antichrist] which thou sawest in the beast [the final Antichrist]: these shall hate the harlot [USA], and shall make her desolate and naked, and shall eat her flesh, and shall burn her with fire. For God hath given into their hearts to do that which pleaseth him: that they give their kingdom to the beast [the beast’s eighth kingdom], till the words of God be fulfilled.” (Apoc. 17:16-17)

Apocalypse 18 ends with the following verse:

“And in her was found the blood of prophets and of saints, and of all that were slain upon the earth.” (Apoc. 18:24)

Indeed, the final harlot is the fulfillment of all the precursor harlots and thus is guilty of the blood of all the prophets and saints. The Antichrist and his precursors, as well as Satan, are also guilty of the blood of all the prophets and saints.

The ecclesiastical half of the final harlot, and the False Prophet

While the political half of the final harlot (the USA), physically justifies the Antichrist and apostate Israel, the ecclesiastical half of the final harlot (Vatican City, Rome) spiritually justifies the Antichrist and apostate Israel. Note how their two capitol buildings look the same.

United States Capitol Building,
Washington, D.C.

St. Peter’s Basilica, Vatican City

The ecclesiastical half of the final harlot is the nominal Catholic Church, whose home is in Vatican City in Rome. It spiritually justifies apostate Judaism and thus apostate Jews. Its plan ultimately succeeded from the time of the Second Vatican Council onward when it declared that apostate Jews are God’s chosen people, blessed by God, under a covenant with God, and thus do not need to become Christians to be saved. This is the job of the False Prophet described in the Apocalypse. Hence there are three main evildoers during the reign of the Antichrist—Satan (the dragon), the Beast (the Antichrist), and the False Prophet:

“And I saw from the mouth of the dragon, and from the mouth of the beast, and from the mouth of the false prophet, three unclean spirits like frogs.” (Apoc. 16:13)

The apostate antipopes since 1130 were and are precursors to the ultimate False Prophet:

“Beware of false prophets, who come to you in the clothing of sheep, but inwardly they are ravening wolves.” (Mt. 7:15)

“For there shall arise false Christs and false prophets, and shall shew great signs and wonders, insomuch as to deceive (if possible) even the elect.” (Mt. 24:24)

The only way these false prophets may possibly deceive the elect is if they are nominal Catholics because the elect (that is, faithful Catholics) will never follow self-professed non-Catholic religious rulers.

When the final Antichrist comes to power, the ecclesiastical half of the harlot will no longer be needed and hence will be thrown off the beast and destroyed on the same day and hour that the political half of the harlot (the USA) will be destroyed.<sup>2989</sup> And most, if not all, of the nominal Catholic places, as well as Protestant and Schismatic places, in the world, such as churches and cathedrals, will be destroyed. When this happens, the final False Prophet will declare that Jesus Christ was not the Messiah, and he will point the world to the Antichrist as the Messiah. His declaration may sound something like this:

The False Prophet’s declaration that Jesus is not the Messiah: “We declare, define, and decree that although Jesus Christ was a good man and meant well, he was not the Messiah. He was deceived by the Devil, as is evident by the massive failure and many contradictions of Christianity and the destruction of all the Catholic places in the world. This is a manifest sign from the God of Israel that Christ was not the Messiah and Christianity was a false religion and thus of the Devil. And the ascendant power of Mr. 666 [Antichrist’s name] in Israel is proof that God is with him and thus he is the true Messiah.”

After the final harlot is killed, the final Antichrist will then rule the world. We read this in Apocalypse 14 and 17:

Babylon (the harlot) falls: “And another angel followed, saying: That great Babylon is fallen, is fallen; which made all nations to drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication.” (Apoc. 14:8)

The Beast (Antichrist) comes to power: “And the third angel followed them, saying with a loud voice: If any man shall adore the beast and his image, and receive his character in his forehead, or in his hand...” (Apoc. 14:9)

The harlot is destroyed: “And the ten horns which thou sawest in the beast: these shall hate the harlot, and shall make her desolate and naked, and shall eat her flesh, and shall burn her with fire.” (Apoc. 17:16)

<sup>2989</sup> See Apocalypse 11:2 and its commentary for another description of the fall of Vatican City. And see Ezechiel, Chapter 9, for the Prophet Ezechiel’s vision of the fall of Jerusalem and the Temple, which was a figure of the fall of Rome and Vatican City.

The Antichrist comes to power: “And the ten horns which thou sawest are ten kings, who have not yet received a kingdom, but shall receive power as kings one hour after the beast. These have one design: and their strength and power they shall deliver to the beast [the Antichrist].” (Apoc. 17:12-13)

The ten horns of the Beast are part of the Beast’s eighth and final kingdom

The ten horns of the Beast are ten kings (or several kings, if ten is symbolic of many) that rule the world under the final Antichrist. Hence they are part of the eighth kingdom (head) of the Beast:

“And the ten horns which thou sawest are ten kings who have not yet received a kingdom, but shall receive power as kings one hour after the beast [the final Antichrist]. These have one design: and their strength and power they shall deliver to the beast.” (Apoc. 17:12-13)

The Prophet Daniel saw the same thing. Daniel prophesied in the Babylonian kingdom when it dominated the world; and he was given a vision of four successive kingdoms (beasts) that will dominate the world after the Babylonian kingdom—that is, the empires of Persia, then Greece, then Rome, and then the kingdom of the final Antichrist. The fourth kingdom, then, will be the final kingdom of the Antichrist, which is the eighth kingdom according to Apocalypse 17.<sup>2990</sup> The fourth kingdom mentioned in Daniel 7, then, is the final kingdom of the Antichrist that will rule the world for 3½ years (a time, times, and half a time); and it will make war against the saints and overcome them,<sup>2991</sup> which is also recorded in Apocalypse 13:

“And thus he said: The fourth beast shall be the fourth kingdom upon earth, which shall be greater than all the kingdoms, and shall devour the whole earth, and shall tread it down, and break it in pieces... And he shall speak words against the High One, and shall crush the saints of the most High: and he shall think himself able to change times and laws, and they shall be delivered into his hand until a time, and times, and half a time.” (Dan. 7:23, 25)

In his vision, Daniel saw ten horns on the fourth beast. This is the same beast that has ten horns, as recorded in Apocalypse 12:3; 13:1; 17:12. And Daniel’s prophecy tells us more about the ten horns:

“After this I beheld in the vision of the night, and lo, a fourth beast, terrible and wonderful, and exceeding strong, it had great iron teeth, eating and breaking in pieces, and treading down the rest with its feet: and it was unlike to the other beasts which

I had seen before it, and had ten horns. I considered the horns, and behold another little horn sprung out of the midst of them: and three of the first horns were plucked up at the presence thereof: and behold eyes like the eyes of a man were in this horn, and a mouth speaking great things.” (Dan. 7:7-8)

“And the ten horns of the same kingdom shall be ten kings: and another shall rise up after them, and he shall be mightier than the former, and he shall bring down three kings.” (Dan. 7:24)

The ten kings are ruling just previous to the public reign of the final Antichrist and help to bring him to power. The Antichrist is ruling them in secret. Three of the kings will rebel against the Antichrist. And when he comes to public power, he will pluck them up, remove them from his kingdom.

Daniel also saw the second coming of Christ, who will conquer the fourth beast, the final Antichrist and his evil kingdom. See Dan. 7:12-14, 27-27.

The identity of the ten horns (kings)

The ten kings (horns) are China, Russia, European kings who actually work against Europe, and possibly India. The Antichrist will use China to conquer Vatican City (Rome), Europe, and the USA. And he will use Russia to conquer South America. All this occurs in one day and begins the public reign of the Antichrist. However, three of the kings will rebel against the Antichrist, two of which are China and Russia. I have no opinion as of yet on who the third king will be.

The Two Raptures at the End of the World

Raptures

Rapture means the taking of men up to the heavens either in soul only or in body and soul. They are taken up into either 1) the heaven directly above the earth, or 2) the intermediate heaven which is between the heaven above the earth and the heaven of God’s home (which is probably outer space), or 3) the heaven of God’s home (which St. Paul calls the third heaven).

1) Raptured up to the heaven above the earth

Elias

The holy Prophet Elias was raptured body and soul up to the heaven above the earth:

“And as they went on, walking and talking together, behold a fiery chariot, and fiery horses parted them both asunder: and Elias went up by a whirlwind into heaven.” (4 Ki. 2:11)

Elias then landed upon earth in an undisclosed location and died. His body was then buried and his soul went to the Limbo of the Fathers. And he, in his soul, came from the Limbo of the Fathers to meet Jesus on Mount Tabor when Jesus was transfigured:

“And after six days Jesus taketh unto him Peter and James, and John his brother, and bringeth them up into a high mountain apart: And he was transfigured before them. And his face did shine as the sun: and his garments became white as snow. And behold there appeared to them Moses and Elias talking with him.” (Mt. 17:1-3)

Ezechie

The Prophet Ezechie’s body and soul were raptured to the heaven above the earth and transported to the river Chobar:

“And he said to me: Son of man, receive in thy heart, and hear with thy ears, all the words that I speak to thee: And go get thee in to them of the captivity, to the children of thy people, and thou shalt speak to them, and shalt say to them: Thus saith the Lord: If so be they will hear and will forbear. And the spirit took me up, and I heard behind me the voice of a great commotion, saying: Blessed be the glory of the Lord, from his place. And the noise of the wings of the living creatures striking one against another, and the noise of the wheels following the living creatures, and the noise of a great commotion. The spirit also lifted me, and took me up: and I went away in bitterness in the indignation of my spirit: for the hand of the Lord was with me, strengthening me. And I came to them of the captivity, to the heap of new corn, to them that dwelt by the river Chobar, and I sat where they sat: and I remained there seven days mourning in the midst of them.” (Ez. 3:10-15)

And the Prophet Ezechie’s soul, and maybe his body, was raptured (transported) from Babylon to Israel:

“In the visions of God he brought me into the land of Israel and set me upon a very high mountain, upon which there was as the building of a city, bending towards the south.” (Ez. 40:2)

Habacuc

The holy Prophet Habacuc was raptured body and soul up to the heaven above the earth and landed in Babylon to feed Daniel who was in the lion’s den:

“And Habacuc said: Lord, I never saw Babylon, nor do I know the den. And the angel of the Lord took him by the top of his head, and carried him by the hair of his head, and set him in Babylon over the den in the force of his spirit. And Habacuc cried, saying: O Daniel, thou servant of God, take the dinner that God hath sent thee.” (Dan. 14:34-36)

The Two Witnesses

The Two Witnesses will be raptured body and soul up either to the heaven above the earth or maybe even to a higher heaven three days after the Antichrist kills them:

“And I will give unto my two witnesses, and they shall prophesy a thousand two hundred sixty days, clothed in sackcloth... And when they shall have finished their testimony, the beast, that ascendeth out of the abyss, shall make war against them, and shall overcome them, and kill them. And their bodies shall lie in the streets of the great city, which is called spiritually, Sodom and Egypt, where their Lord also was crucified... And after three days and a half, the spirit of life from God entered into them. And they stood upon their feet, and great fear fell upon them that saw them. And they heard a great voice from heaven, saying to them: Come up hither. And they went up to heaven in a cloud: and their enemies saw them.” (Apoc. 11:3, 7-8, 11-12)

The elect and reprobates just previous to the killing of all the reprobates

After the reign of the Antichrist and after the days of darkness, the elect and then the reprobates will be raptured in their bodies and souls to the heaven above the earth and land in Jerusalem, where the killing of all the reprobates will occur.<sup>2992</sup>

2) Raptured up to the intermediate heaven

The intermediate heaven is between the heaven of the earth and the heaven of God’s home and is probably outer space (where the stars and planets are). This probably is where Satan is allowed to go when he petitions God, such as when he petitioned God regarding holy Job:

“Now on a certain day when the angels of God came to stand before the Lord, Satan also was present among them. And the Lord said to him: Whence comest thou? And he answered and said: I have gone round about the earth, and walked through it. And the Lord said to him: Hast thou considered my servant Job, that there is none like him in the earth, a simple and upright man, and fearing God, and avoiding evil?” (Job 1:6-8)

Wherever men on earth or their inventions are, so are devils. Hence devils roam outer space because men send spaceships into outer space.

The elect and reprobates just previous to the General Judgment

Just previous to the General Judgment, all of the elect and reprobates are raptured body and soul to the intermediate heaven. All will have died and the bodies of the elect will have been resurrected in a glorified state and the bodies of the reprobates will have been resurrected in a corrupted state.<sup>2993</sup>

3) Raptured up to the heaven of God’s home

Isaias

The holy Prophet Isaias was raptured in soul and probably in body to the heaven of God’s home:

“In the year that king Ozias died, I saw the Lord sitting upon a throne high and elevated: and his train filled the temple... And I said: Woe is me, because I have held my peace; because I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people that hath unclean lips, and I have seen with my eyes the King the Lord of hosts. And one of the seraphims flew to me, and in his hand was a live coal, which he had taken with the tongs off the altar. And he touched my mouth, and said: Behold this hath touched thy lips, and thy iniquities shall be taken away, and thy sin shall be cleansed.” (Isa. 6:1, 5-7)

St. Paul

St. Paul was raptured either in soul only or body and soul to the heaven of God’s home, which he calls the third heaven:

“If I must glory (it is not expedient indeed), but I will come to visions and revelations of the Lord. I know a man in Christ above fourteen years ago (whether in the body, I know not, or out of the body, I know not; God knoweth), such a one caught up to the third heaven. And I know such a man (whether in the body, or out of the body, I know not; God knoweth), that he was caught up into paradise, and heard secret words, which it is not granted to man to utter. For such an one I will glory; but for myself I will glory nothing, but in my infirmities.” (2 Cor. 12:1-5)

The Jerome Biblical Commentary, 1968:

Commentary on 2 Cor. 12:2-3: “2. I know a man in Christ: Paul cannot refrain from mentioning a special experience once accorded him. However, his humility forces him to speak of it as if it had happened to another Christian, fourteen years ago: We do not know where this occurred, whether in the body I do not know, whether out of the body I do not know: Those who have had mystical experiences often find them difficult to describe; it is said that such is true of any type of ecstasy... Third heaven: Identified with Paradise (v. 4). The first heaven was our earth’s atmosphere; the second, the region of the stars; the third, the place where God dwells and is seen as he truly is... What the Apostle is saying here is that he was made to enter into very close contact with the deity, and this overwhelmed him. 3. The repetition of his ignorance of the actual state of his soul at the time of the experience emphasizes the extraordinary character of the event. His whole consciousness was enraptured.”<sup>2994</sup>

St. John

The Apostle St. John was raptured up in his soul to the heaven of God’s home:

“After these things I [St. John] looked, and behold a door was opened in heaven and the first voice which I heard, as it were, of a trumpet speaking with me, said: Come up hither, and I will shew thee the things which must be done hereafter. And immediately I was in the spirit: and behold there was a throne set in heaven, and upon the throne one sitting.” (Apoc. 4:1-2)

All of the elect who are in heaven

All of the elect who are in heaven have been raptured in their souls to the heaven of God’s home, except the Blessed Virgin Mary who was raptured (assumed) in both body and soul into the heaven of God’s home.

The two raptures that occur at the end of the world

At the end of the world there will be two major raptures, one after the reign of the Antichrist and just before Jesus and his army kill all the evildoers, and one after all the evildoers are killed and just before the General Judgment.

1) The rapture that occurs after the reign of the Antichrist and just before all the wicked are killed

After the reign of the Antichrist and after the days of darkness, the elect who are alive on earth will be raptured body and soul up to the heaven above the earth and placed down in Jerusalem:

“And immediately after the tribulation of those days, the sun shall be darkened and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars shall fall from heaven, and the powers of heaven shall be moved. And then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven, and then shall all tribes of the earth mourn. And they shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with much power and majesty. And he shall send his angels with a trumpet and a great voice, and they shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from the farthest parts of the heavens to the utmost bounds of them... Then two shall be in the field: one shall be taken [the elect],

and one shall be left [the reprobates].” (Mt. 24:29-31, 40)

After the elect are raptured and land in Jerusalem, the reprobates who are alive will then be raptured body and soul up to the heaven above the earth and placed down in Jerusalem in Kidron Valley where they will be killed:

“Even as cockle therefore is gathered up and burnt with fire, so shall it be at the end of the world. The Son of man shall send his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all scandals and them that work iniquity. And shall cast them into the furnace of fire: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.” (Mt. 13:40-42)

The casting into the furnace of fire occurs as the reprobates are killed in Kidron Valley. So many will be killed in Kidron Valley that their blood will come up to the horses’ bridles:

“And another angel came out from the temple crying with a loud voice to him that sat upon the cloud: Thrust in thy sickle and reap [the reprobates] because the hour is come to reap, for the harvest of the earth is ripe. And he that sat on the cloud thrust his sickle into the earth, and the earth was reaped. And another angel came out of the temple which is in heaven, he also having a sharp sickle. And another angel came out from the altar, who had power over fire, and he cried with a loud voice to him that had the sharp sickle, saying: Thrust in thy sharp sickle and gather the clusters of the vineyard of the earth because the grapes thereof are ripe. And the angel thrust in his sharp sickle into the earth and gathered the vineyard of the earth and cast it into the great press of the wrath of God. And the press was trodden without the city, and blood came out of the press, up to the horses’ bridles, for a thousand and six hundred furlongs.” (Apoc. 14:15-20)

Therefore, the first major rapture at the end of the world will occur after the reign of the Antichrist and just previous to the killing of all the reprobates. The elect will be raptured and placed in Jerusalem and then the reprobates will be raptured and placed in Jerusalem and killed. And it is probable that the elect who are placed in Jerusalem will participate in the killing.

2) The rapture that occurs just previous to the General Judgment

Bodies are resurrected and taken up to the intermediate heaven, and the earth is desolated

All of the elect and reprobates with their resurrected bodies will be present during the General Judgment. The elect will have glorified bodies, and the reprobates corrupted bodies. Hence just prior to the General Judgment, the bodies of the elect and reprobates will be resurrected and they will be raptured (taken up) to the intermediate heaven before the throne of Jesus Christ. The intermediate heaven is between the heaven above the earth and the heaven of God’s home and is most probably outer space. St. Paul calls the heaven of God's home the third heaven: "I [was] caught up to the third heaven." (2 Cor. 12:2) Therefore the second heaven is the intermediate heaven (outer space) and the first heaven is the heaven above the earth.

After the elect and the reprobates with their resurrected bodies are taken up to the intermediate heaven, the old earth and its heaven will be transformed into a new earth and new heaven; hence the old earth and heaven are said to have "fled away." However, the earth and its heaven may literally flee away to a place where God will transform them into a new earth and a new heaven and then they will return to their former place:

"And I saw a great white throne and one sitting upon it from whose face the earth and heaven fled away, and there was no place found for them. And I saw the dead, great [elect] and small [reprobates], standing in the presence of the throne, and the books were opened. And another book was opened, which is the book of life, and the dead were judged by those things which were written in the books according to their works. And the sea gave up the dead that were in it, and death and gehenna gave up their dead that were in them. And they were judged every one according to their works. And gehenna and death were cast into the pool of fire. This is the second death. And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the pool of fire." (Apoc. 20:11-15)

"Wonder not at this, for the hour cometh wherein all that are in the graves shall hear the voice of the Son of God. And they that have done good things shall come forth unto the resurrection of life, but they that have done evil unto the resurrection of judgment." (Jn. 5:28-29)

St. Paul speaks of the order in which the dead bodies will be resurrected. First the bodies of the elect will be resurrected and then the bodies of the reprobates. And of the elect, first the bodies of the elect who died before the second coming will be resurrected and then the bodies of the elect who are alive during the second coming. And he teaches that those who are alive during the second coming will die and be resurrected in the "twinkling of an eye":

"For the Lord himself shall come down from heaven with commandment and with the voice of an archangel and with the trumpet of God. And the dead who are in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive, who are left, shall be taken up together with them in the clouds to meet Christ, into the air, and so shall we be always with the Lord."<sup>2995</sup> (1 Thes. 4:15-16)

<sup>2995</sup> St. Paul does not mean that the elect will always be in the air with Christ but that they will always be with Christ in body and soul, as we know that they will inhabit the everlasting earthly paradise forever in body and soul. (See Long Commentary: The Everlasting Earthly Paradise.)

"We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed."<sup>2996</sup> In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet, for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead [of the elect] shall rise again incorruptible; and we shall be changed. For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality. And when this mortal hath put on immortality, then shall come to pass the saying that is written: Death is swallowed up in victory. O death, where is thy victory? O death, where is thy sting?" (1 Cor. 15:51-56)

What St. Paul means by the word "sleep" when he says "we shall not all sleep" is the dead bodies of the elect that have been dead for some time and thus are decayed or decaying, sleeping in the grave and waiting to be resurrected.<sup>2997</sup> Hence he does not mean that the souls of the elect are asleep because their souls are alive in heaven with God:

Stabat Mater, Verse 20: "While my body here decays, / May my soul thy goodness praise, / Safe in Paradise with thee. Amen."

However, the elect who are alive during the second coming will not sleep even though they will die. They will not sleep because as soon as they die and thus their souls separate from their bodies, they will be given back their bodies but in a glorified state and thus their dead bodies will not decay, will not go to the grave. Their bodies will go from death to everlasting life in the twinkling of an eye.

After the bodies of the elect are resurrected in a glorified state and raptured to the intermediate heaven before the throne of Christ, then the bodies of the reprobates will be resurrected in a corrupted state and raptured to the intermediate heaven before the throne of Christ. Jesus will then desolate the earth. Hence this is the second major rapture that occurs at the end of the world.

The General Judgment takes place upon the new earth

Just previous to the General Judgment, the elect and reprobates with their resurrected bodies are taken up to the intermediate heaven before the throne of Jesus Christ so that God can then desolate the earth and the heaven above the earth. God will transform the old earth and old heaven into a new earth and new heaven. He will then descend from the heaven above the earth with the elect and reprobates upon the new earth in Jerusalem and conduct the General Judgment. We know an earth exists during the General Judgment because after God judges the reprobates he casts them into the hell of the damned, which is in the center of the earth, and seals them in it forever:

<sup>2996</sup> Beware of the erroneous text which says "We shall all indeed rise again, but we shall not all be changed." It contradicts the following text (Verse 52) that says "and we shall be changed." The correct text is contained in the Peshitto, which says "we shall all be changed."

<sup>2997</sup> (See Long Commentaries: "The heresy that souls of dead men are literally asleep or cease to exist," p. 1184.)

“And when the Son of man shall come in his majesty, and all the angels with him, then shall he sit upon the seat of his majesty. And all nations shall be gathered together before him, and he shall separate them one from another, as the shepherd separateth the sheep from the goats. And he shall set the sheep on his right hand but the goats on his left. Then shall the king say to them that shall be on his right hand: Come, ye blessed of my Father, possess you the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world... Then he shall say to them also that shall be on his left hand: Depart from me, you cursed, into everlasting fire which was prepared for the devil and his angels.” (Mt. 25:31-34, 41)

We know that this is a new hell within the new earth because the old earth and thus the old hell fled away (were desolated) before the General Judgment:

“And I saw a great white throne and one sitting upon it from whose face the earth and heaven fled away, and there was no place found for them. And I saw the dead, great [elect] and small [reprobates], standing in the presence of the throne, and the books were opened. And another book was opened, which is the book of life, and the dead were judged by those things which were written in the books according to their works. And the sea gave up the dead that were in it, and death and gehenna gave up their dead that were in them. And they were judged every one according to their works. And gehenna and death were cast into the pool of fire. This is the second death. And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the pool of fire.” (Apoc. 20:11-15)

The damned are sealed in this new hell forever and thus can no more tempt and harass the elect and damage and corrupt the face of the new earth.

Some hold the allowable but what I believe to be the less probable opinion when all things are considered that the General Judgment will take place in the air:

Nominal Catholic Encyclopedia, General Judgment: “(2) Place of the Judgment: All the texts in which mention is made of the Parusia, or Second Coming, seem to imply clearly enough that the general judgment will take place on the earth. Some commentators infer from 1 Thessalonians 4:16, that the judgment will be held in the air, the newly risen being carried into the clouds to meet Christ; according to others the prophecy of Joel (3:1 sq.) places the last judgment in the Valley of Josaphat (q.v.).”

The Two Witnesses of the Apocalypse

“And I will give unto my two witnesses, and they shall prophesy a thousand two hundred sixty days, clothed in sackcloth.” (Apoc. 11:3)

My two witnesses: These are two Catholics, filled with the spirit of the law (the Catholic faith) and the prophets (of prophecy), whom God chooses to restore the Catholic Church and faith, oppose the Antichrist, defend the Catholic Church, preach and preserve the Catholic faith, edify and protect Catholics, protect good-willed unbelievers, and enlighten and convert unbelievers. One of the witnesses will most probably be a pope.

The necessity of the two witnesses is one proof that there will be no active Catholic hierarchy at this time or there would be no need of the two witnesses to restore the Catholic Church and faith. In fact, there have been no popes or cardinals since 1130. All of the so-called popes and so-called cardinals from Innocent II (1130-1143) until today were and are apostate antipopes. And as time progressed in the Great Apostasy, which began in 1033, there eventually were no Catholic bishops and Catholic priests.

The opinion that the two witnesses will to be Enoch and Elias, or Moses and Elias, or Elias and the apostle St. John, is not probable for several reasons. It would mean these holy men never died, as men only live and die on this earth once and hence will not die again: St. Paul says that “it is appointed unto men once to die, and after this the judgment:” (Heb. 9:27) And because the two witnesses will be killed, it would mean that these men would have to die a second time.

If one believes these men never died, then that would be a most unjust and cruel punishment from God to leave them alive in this wicked earth, hiding out somewhere for so long a time and thus be deprived of heaven. And the Bible teaches that Moses and Elias had died. During the Transfiguration of Jesus, they came from the Limbo of the Fathers (Abraham’s Bosom) to appear with Jesus. (Mt. 17:3) The Limbo of the Father is the place where holy men went when they died during the Old Testament era.

And some may say that the following Bible verses teach that Elias will come in person at the end of the world and thus be one of the witnesses. “Behold I will send you Elias the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord. And he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to their fathers, lest I come, and strike the earth with anathema.” (Mala. 4:5-6) During his first coming, Jesus said that St. John the Baptist fulfilled this prophecy: “And his disciples asked him, saying: Why then do the scribes say that Elias must come first? But he answering, said to them: Elias indeed shall come, and restore all things. But I say to you, that Elias is already come, and they knew him not, but have done unto him whatsoever they had a mind.” (Mt. 17:10-12) “For all the prophets and the law prophesied until John: And if you will receive it, he is Elias that is to come.” (Mt. 11:13-14) Hence the spirit but not the person of Elias came by way of St. John the Baptist. In the same way near the end of this world, one of the witnesses will be filled with the spirit of Elias but he will not be Elias. And he will prepare the way for the second coming of Jesus Christ.

Tithes

God has given his Catholic Church more than sufficient means to support herself by donations and tithes. Donations are freewill gifts and tithes are mandatory gifts. God's chosen people are bound to give tithes to God by giving them to his Church through his religious rulers on earth. Tithes are a tenth part of the increase of produce, animals, or other forms of income:

"Every year thou shalt set aside the tithes of all thy fruits that the earth bringeth forth, And thou shalt eat before the Lord thy God in the place which he shall choose, that his name may be called upon therein, the tithe of thy corn, and thy wine, and thy oil, and the firstborn of thy herds and thy sheep: that thou mayest learn to fear the Lord thy God at all times." (Deut. 14:22-23)

"And the Lord said to Aaron: You shall possess nothing in their land, neither shall you have a portion among them. I am thy portion and inheritance in the midst of the children of Israel. And I have given to the sons of Levi all the tithes of Israel for a possession for the ministry wherewith they serve me in the tabernacle of the covenant; that the children of Israel may not approach any more to the tabernacle, nor commit deadly sin, but only the sons of Levi may serve me in the tabernacle and bear the sins of the people. It shall be an everlasting ordinance in your generations. They shall not possess any other thing, but be content with the oblation or tithes which I have separated for their uses and necessities." (Num. 18:20-24)

God promises to bless seven fold those who give tithes, with not only spiritual goods but also physical goods. But he promise curses and want for those who do give tithes:

"Give glory to God with a good heart and diminish not the firstfruits of thy hands. In every gift shew a cheerful countenance, and sanctify thy tithes with joy. Give to the most High according to what he hath given to thee, and with a good eye do according to the ability of thy hands, for the Lord maketh recompense and will give thee seven times as much." (Eccus. 35:10-13)

"Shall a man afflict God? for you afflict me. And you have said: Wherein do we afflict thee? in tithes and in firstfruits [because you do not give them]. And you are cursed with want, and you afflict me, even the whole nation of you. Bring all the tithes into the storehouse that there may be meat in my house, and try me in this, saith the Lord: if I open not unto you the flood gates of heaven, and pour you out a blessing even to abundance. And I will rebuke for your sakes the devourer, and he shall not spoil the fruit of your land, neither shall the vine in the field be barren, saith the Lord of hosts. And all nations shall call you blessed, for you shall be a delightful land, saith the Lord of hosts." (Mala. 3:8-12)

Upholding the law of mandatory tithes, Jesus, speaking to the Pharisees, says,

"Woe to you, Pharisees, because you tithe mint and rue and every herb; and pass over judgment, and the charity of God. Now these things you ought to have done, and not to leave the other undone." (Lk. 11:42)

God's religious rulers are commanded to divide the tithes among the clergy, the poor, and other needs of the Church.

"When thou hast made an end of tithing all thy fruits, in the third year of tithes thou shalt give it to the Levite [priests], and to the stranger, and to the fatherless, and to the widow, that they may eat within thy gates, and be filled:" (Deut. 26:12)

For example, tithes given to the local bishop and his dioceses were divided as follows:

- A tenth or more goes to the pope or the papal account if the papacy is vacant. The amount depends on the amount of tithes compared to expenses in his diocese, as some dioceses are rich and some poor.
- A fourth part of what is left over goes to the bishop
- A fourth to the priests and other clergy in his diocese
- A fourth for the upkeep of the churches and other church property in his dioceses and items necessary for the propagation and practice of the faith
- A fourth for the poor, afflicted, and travelers in his diocese

The Apostolic Constitutions, which spanned from the 1st to the 4th centuries, commands the following regarding tithes:

The Apostolic Constitutions, 1st to 4th centuries: XXV. Let him [the bishop] use those tenths and first-fruits, which are given according to the command of God, as a man of God; as also let him dispense in a right manner the free-will offerings which are brought in on account of the poor, to the orphans, the widows, the afflicted, and strangers in distress, as having that God for the examiner of his accounts who has committed the disposition to him. Distribute to all those in want with righteousness, and yourselves use the things which belong to the Lord, but do not abuse them; eating of them, but not eating them all up by yourselves; communicate with those that are in want, and thereby show yourselves un-blamable before God. For if you shall consume them by yourselves, you will be reproached by God, who says to such unsatiable people, who alone devour all, 'You eat up the milk and clothe yourselves with the wool;' (Ezekiel 34:3) and in another passage, 'Must you alone live upon the earth?' (Isaiah 5:8) Upon which account you are commanded in the law, 'You shall love your neighbour as yourself.' (Leviticus 19:18) Now we say these things, not as if you might not partake of the fruits of your labours; for it is written, 'You shall not muzzle the mouth of the ox which treads out the grain;' (Deuteronomy 25:4; 1 Corinthians 9:9) but that you should do it with moderation and righteousness. As, therefore, the ox that labours in the threshing-floor without a muzzle eats indeed, but does not eat all up; so do you who labour in the threshing-floor, that is, in the Church of God, eat of the Church, which was also the case of the Levites who served in the tabernacle of the testimony, which was in all things a type of the Church.

"Nay, further, its very name implied that that tabernacle was fore-appointed for a testimony of the Church. Here, therefore, the Levites also, who attended upon the tabernacle partook of those things that were offered to God by all the people—namely, gifts, offerings, and first-fruits, and tithes, and sacrifices, and oblations, without disturbance, they and their wives and their sons and their daughters. Since their employment was the ministrations to the tabernacle, therefore they had not any lot or inheritance in the land among the children of Israel, because the oblations of the people were the lot of Levi, and the inheritance of their tribe. You, therefore, O bishops, are to your people priests and Levites, ministering to the holy tabernacle, the holy Catholic Church...

"Hear this, you of the laity also, the elect Church of God. for the people were formerly called 'the people of God,' Exodus 19:5-6 and 'an holy nation.' (Hebrews 12:23) You, therefore, are the holy and sacred 'Church of God, enrolled in heaven, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people,' a bride adorned for the Lord God, a great Church, a faithful Church. Hear attentively now what was said formerly: oblations and tithes belong to Christ our High Priest and to those who minister to him...<sup>2998</sup>

"XXX. Let all first-fruits be brought to the bishop and to the presbyters and to the deacons, for their maintenance; but let all the tithe be for the maintenance of the rest of the clergy, and of the virgins and widows, and of those under the trial of poverty. For the first-fruits belong to the priests, and to those deacons that minister to them.<sup>2999</sup>

If a bishop is greedy and thus does not justly distribute the income generated by tithes and donations, then God will punish him. But those who gave the tithes and donations will, nevertheless, be blessed, and they should report the bishop's abuse to his superior.

The rules regarding what income must be subjected to tithes can change, as this is a disciplinary law. At times, a more or less amount of expenses were allowed to be deducted from the gross income. Tithes (10%) were then paid on the rest of the income. What I believe to be a fair rule for tithes in these days is as follows:

Catholics must pay tithes (10%) on their net income, which is the amount after expenses are deducted from their total (gross) income. The only expenses that cannot be deducted are for jewelry, recreation, and extravagant items. Hence, expenses such as for rent, mortgage payments, gas for the car used for purposes other than recreation, utilities, insurance payments, taxes, food, clothing, medicine, business, and medical expenses are deducted from the total income. And 10% is paid to the Catholic Church on what is left over.

The rulers of God's Church can dispense some of the faithful from paying tithes under certain circumstances. But this is an exception and not the rule.

Once it became the rule to dispense with paying tithes to the Church, which began in the days of the Great Apostasy, simony became rampant in which sacraments and other holy things began to be sold in order to produce income for the Church. These bastard simoniacs were respecters and lovers of men more than God:

"For they loved the glory of men more than the glory of God." (Jn. 12:43)

"There is that will destroy his own soul...by respect of person he will destroy himself." (Eccus. 20:24)

(See Jam. 2:1-10)

They rather offend God by selling the sacraments and other holy things than offend cheap, greedy, and selfish men who do not want to pay tithes. They are spiritual relatives to the Simoniacal Jews whom Christ whipped out of the Temple for turning his Father's house into a den of thieves. (Mt. 21:12-13; Jn. 2:13-16)

Therefore, Catholics, beware of being cheap, greedy, and selfish, especially with God. Let the poor woman who gave all she had to God shame you:

"And looking on, he saw the rich men cast their gifts into the treasury. And he saw also a certain poor widow casting in two brass mites. And he said: Verily I say to you, that this poor widow hath cast in more than they all. For all these have of their abundance cast into the offerings of God; but she of her want, hath cast in all the living that she had." (Lk. 21:1-4)

With God All Things Are Possible

"And Jesus beholding, said to them: With men this is impossible, but with God all things are possible." (Mt. 19:26)

Beware of the heretics who take out of context the words that "with God all things are possible" to teach the heresy that God could create another God, or that God could create a world that always existed and thus is eternal with God, or that God could make a prostitute a virgin, or that God could kill himself. The reason why God cannot do these so-called things is because they are not things and never could be things. Hence they are not only non-things but they can never be things. They can be called "anti-things." An anti-thing is anti-existence.

Therefore, because things do exist, anti-things cannot exist. Conversely, if anti-things were possible, then nothing at all would exist, not even God, the source and maintainer of all existence. Hence if all things are possible with God, which is true, then all anti-things are not possible with God. Conversely, if anti-things were possible, then no thing would be possible with God, not even his own existence.

Without God and all of his divine attributes, nothing can exist. Hence all created things depend on God and his divine attributes to create, maintain, and rule them. Hence any so-called thing that denies or contradicts God or any of his divine attributes is an anti-thing and thus is anti-existence.

One of God's divine attributes is that he is all-powerful. Hence a god who is not all-powerful is an anti-thing. If God were not all-powerful, then he would not be able to create things out of nothing nor maintain them if they did exist and thus nothing at all would be able to exist, not even God because he would not be able to maintain himself. Hence you would have anti-existence in which nothing at all would exist, not even space or void or dimension. Now God can kill an animal and make it cease to exist. But this is not an anti-thing or anti-existence because it did exist. And God can decide not to make a certain species of animals and thus they would never exist. But this is not an anti-thing or anti-existence because they could exist if God willed it. Hence an anti-thing is something that not only does not exist but also could never exist.

One of God's divine attributes is that he will always exist. If God did not always exist, then all things would cease to exist because there would be no almighty God to maintain them. Hence a god who exists and then ceases to exist—a god who could kill himself—is an anti-thing. This anti-thing denies God's eternal existence and thus is not a thing and could never be a thing. The same applies to a so-called god who exists while at the same time does not exist!

One of God's divine attributes is that only he has always existed. Therefore any so-called thing that always existed but is not God (such as an eternal world) is an anti-thing and thus does not exist and never could exist. It is anti-existence. Not only faith but reason alone tells men that there is only one God and he alone created all things. Hence the only thing that has always existed has to be God; for if anything came before him or is co-eternal with him, then who created that so-called thing? And faith and reason also tell men that it is not possible to have a so-called thing that always existed with God because that would deny God's divine attribute that only he has always existed. Hence a so-called thing (such as an eternal world) that always existed but is not God is an anti-thing and thus could never be a thing. This heresy, then, that God could have created a world that always existed is an anti-thing that denies God and his divine attribute that only he has always existed. This heresy presents either a second god or a so-called thing that has always existed but is not God. Hence not only did God not create the world eternal but he could never create an eternal world because that is an anti-thing that would have God denying and contradicting himself.

According to the heretical interpretation of "all things are possible with God," God would be able to create another God because all things are possible with God. Yet if God were able to create another God, then how could that created thing be God, having never existed until the first God created him and his whole existence coming from and depending upon the first God. Hence the belief that God could create another God is an anti-thing and thus could never be a thing.

According to the heretical interpretation of "all things are possible with God," God could turn a prostitute into a virgin because all things are possible with God. Yet this denies God's all-powerful, all-knowing, and all-just divine attributes and has God lying. In his foreknowledge God knew that this virgin would use her freewill to sin and become a prostitute:

"For all things were known to the Lord God before they were created. (Eccus. 23:29) He seeth from eternity to eternity, and there is nothing wonderful before him. There is no saying: What is this, or what is that? For all things shall be sought in their time. (Eccus. 39:25-26)"

"For I know that transgressing thou wilt transgress..." (Isa. 48:8)

Therefore, in his justice, God allowed this virgin to become a prostitute. Surely, God could have prevented her from becoming a prostitute if, in his foreknowledge, he knew that she would not choose to be a prostitute. Hence to believe that God has to undo something that happened is to believe that God did not know that it was going to happen; or if he did know that it was going to happen, he does not have the power to prevent it from happening—in this case, preventing a virgin from becoming a prostitute. Thus God is presented as not all-knowing or not all-powerful. And he is also presented as unjust and lying. Therefore this so-called thing is an anti-thing because it denies one or more of God's divine attributes. The answer, then, to the question "Is it possible for God to turn a prostitute into a virgin?" is "No, because this is an anti-thing that would thus have God denying himself and his divine attributes."

According to the heretics, then, God could un-create what he created and thus what he uncreated would never have existed at all. Hence that would mean that God could un-create you, dear reader, and thus you would have never existed at all even though you exist now and are reading this:

St. Augustine, Against Faustus the Manichaeon, 400: "Accordingly, to say, if God is almighty, let him make what has been done to be undone, is in fact to say, if God is almighty, let him make a thing to be in the same sense both true and false... It will always be true that the past thing which is no longer present had an existence... This truth cannot be contradicted by God, in whom abides the supreme and unchangeable truth, and whose illumination is the source of all the truth to be found in any mind or understanding... Now God is not omnipotent in the sense of being able to die: nor does this inability prevent his being omnipotent. True omnipotence belongs to him who truly exists, and who alone is the source of all existence, both spiritual and corporeal.”<sup>3000</sup>

Here is another dilemma for those who hold this heresy. If God can do all things in the sense that heretics believe he can, then God could un-create himself and thus he would have never existed. And if he never existed, then he is not God. And if he is not God, then he cannot do all things. And if he cannot do all things, then he could not have un-created himself when he did exist. Hence God cannot un-create himself precisely because he is God and to do so would mean that he is not God.

To the trick question “Can God make a rock so big that he cannot lift it?” the heretics would answer, “Yes, God can make a rock big enough so that he cannot lift it because all things are possible with God.” Yet this so-called thing is an anti-thing that denies God’s attribute of being all-powerful, and thus it is not a thing and could never be a thing. Thomas would get trapped with this trick question because either way it is not possible for God to do an apparent something. Either it is impossible for God to make a big enough rock, or it is impossible for God to lift it. Hence we see that this trick question presents a so-called thing that could never be a thing (a rock that God cannot lift) and is a contradiction to the dogma that God is all-powerful. Hence this so-called thing is an anti-thing and thus could never be a thing. The answer, then, to this trick question is, “God can make a rock as big as he pleases, and he can lift it no matter how big it is.”

Therefore, again, if all things are possible with God, which is true, then all anti-things are not possible with God. Conversely, if all anti-things were possible with God, then no thing at all would be possible with God and thus not even his own existence. Thus God would not even exist.

Worshipping, Adoring, and Bowing Down

*Meanings of the Latin words adorate and *colatis

An English dictionary lists the several meanings of the words “adore” and “adoration”:

Webster’s Unabridged Dictionary, 1956:

“a-dore: 1. To worship with profound reverence. 2. To address with exalted thoughts, by prayer and thanksgiving. 3. To pay divine honors to; to honor as a god, or as divine. 4. To love in the highest degree, as a man a woman. 5. To regard with the utmost esteem, affection, and respect.

“ad-o-ra’-tion: 1. The act of paying honors to a divine being; the worship paid to God; the act of addressing as a god. Adoration consists in external homage, accompanied by the highest reverence. It is used for the act of praying, or preferring requests or thanksgiving to the Supreme Being. 2. Homage paid to one in high esteem; profound reverence. 3.

A mode by which the cardinals in conclave sometimes elect the pope. In adoration, unlike scrutiny, the cardinals elect a pope by acclamation. 4. In art, a pictorial representation of the adoration of the infant Jesus by the magi and the shepherds.”<sup>3001</sup>

Hence the Latin word adorate, as well as the word colatis, has several meanings:

Latin Dictionary: “Adorate. honor, adore, worship, pay homage, reverence; beg, plead with, appeal to.”

Latin Dictionary: “Colatis. honor, cherish, worship; tend, take care of; adorn, dress, decorate, embellish.”

When the Latin words adorate or colatis mean veneration or honor, they can apply not only to God but also to creatures, as God must always be venerated and honored but certain creatures can also be venerated and honored, such as good secular or religious rulers, saints, and holy objects (the Holy Cross, relics of the saints, etc.).

However, if the Latin words adorate or colatis mean worship, then they can only apply to God because worship is the highest form of adoration, veneration, and honor and is given only to God. Hence it is idolatry to worship anything other than the one true God.

Worship is the highest form of adoration, veneration, and honor and thus is given only to God

Worship, then, is the highest form of adoration, veneration, and honor and thus must be directed only to the one true God. If worship is directed to a false god, false gods, the devil, idols, or anything else other than the one true God, it is idolatry:

“The Lord your God, ...him shall you fear, and him shall you worship, and to him shall you sacrifice.” (4 Ki. 17:36)

“I am the Lord your God. You shall not make to yourselves any idol or graven thing, neither shall you erect pillars, nor set up a remarkable stone in your land to worship it: for I am the Lord your God.” (Lev. 26:1)

“Turn not away from them, neither to the right hand nor to the left, nor follow strange gods nor worship them.” (Deut. 28:14)

“And yet you have forsaken me, and have worshipped strange gods: therefore I will deliver you no more.” (Jdg. 10:13)

“But as often as beside their own God they worshipped any other, they were given to spoil and to the sword and to reproach.” (Judi. 5:18)

“I do not worship idols made with hands, but the living God that created heaven and earth and hath power over all flesh.” (Dan. 14:4)

“But I feared lest I should transfer the honour of my God to a man, and lest I should worship any one except my God.” (Est. 13:14)

Adoration is given not only to God but also to some creatures

However, when the Latin word adorate means adore, venerate, or honor, it is directed not only to God but can also be directed to creatures. But when it is directed to creatures, it is a lesser adoration, lesser veneration, lesser honor than the adoration, veneration, or honor given to God. For example,

Saul adored Samuel: “And Saul understood that it was Samuel, and he bowed himself with his face to the ground and adored him.” (1 Ki. 28:14)

Gentiles shall adore the Kings of Israel: “And the Gentiles shall leave their idols, and shall come into Jerusalem, and shall dwell in it. And all the kings of the earth shall rejoice in it, adoring the King of Israel.” (Tob. 14:8-9)

Abigail adored David: “When Abigail saw David, she made haste and lighted off the ass, and fell before David on her face, and adored upon the ground.” (1 Ki. 15:23)

Joab adored David: “And Joab, falling down to the ground upon his face, adored and blessed the king. And Joab said: This day thy servant hath understood that I have found grace in thy sight, my lord, O king: for thou hast fulfilled the request of thy servant.” (2 Ki. 14:22)

Apostate Jews will adore good Catholics: “Behold, I will bring of the synagogue of Satan, who say they are Jews and are not but do lie. Behold, I will make them to come and adore before thy [the church in Philadelphia’s] feet. And they shall know that I have loved thee.” (Apoc. 3:9)

When the word “adore” is used in relation to God, it is understood to mean the highest form of adoration (worship) even though the word “worship” is not used. For example,

“The Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt with great power and a stretched out arm, him shall you fear, and him shall you adore, and to him shall you sacrifice.” (4 Ki. 17:36)

“And Esdras blessed the Lord the great God; and all the people answered, Amen, amen, lifting up their hands; and they bowed down and adored God with their faces to the ground.” (2 Esd. 8:6)

“And when they had adored God and given him thanks, they sat down together.” (Tob. 11:12)

“Exalt ye the Lord our God and adore his footstool, for it is holy.” (Ps. 98:5)

“Then all the people together made haste and fell down to the earth upon their faces to adore the Lord their God and to pray to the Almighty God the most High.” (Eccus. 50:19)

False gods, devils, and idols must not be worshipped nor adored

However, false gods, devils, and idols must not be worshipped nor even adored (venerated) in any way:

“Adore not any strange god. The Lord his name is Jealous, he is a jealous God.” (Ex. 34:14)

“But if you and your children revolting shall turn away from following me, and will not keep my commandments and my ceremonies which I have set before you, but will go and worship strange gods and adore them: I will take away Israel from the face of the land which I have given them. And the temple which I have sanctified to my name I will cast out of my sight, and Israel shall be a proverb and a byword among all people.” (3 Ki. 9:6-7)

“You shall not fear strange gods, nor shall you adore them, nor worship them, nor sacrifice to them.” (4 Ki. 17:35)

“There shall be no new god in thee: neither shalt thou adore a strange god.” (Ps. 80:10)

In the same way, Catholics are forbidden to adore, venerate, honor, or even respect false religions. They must hate false religions even though at times they must tolerate them.

*Beware of heretical English translations of the Latin words adorate and *colatis

Hence when the Clementine Vulgate and other Latin Bibles use the Latin words adorate or colatis, the English translation of the words must be based upon the context of the passage so as to avoid any idolatrous, heretical, or otherwise erroneous translation. Take the following examples.

Challoner’s idolatrous translation of Josue 5:15 has men worshipping angels

In the Challoner Bible<sup>3002</sup>, the English mistranslation of the Latin word adorans to mean worshipping in Josue 5:15 is idolatrous because it has God condoning the worship of a creature, in this case St. Michael the Archangel:

Clementine Vulgate: “Cecidit Iosue pronus in terram et adorans ait quid dominus meus loquitur ad servum suum.” (Jos. 5:15)

Challoner’s mistranslation of CV: “(Ver. 14) And he answered: No, but I am prince of the host of the Lord [St. Michael the Archangel] and now I am come. (Ver. 15) Josue fell on his face to the ground, and worshipping, said: What saith my lord to his servant?” (Jos. 5:15)

To not be idolatrous, the translation of the Clementine Vulgate should say “adoring” and not “worshipping.” Even though the original Douay-Rheims text and commentary contain heresies and other errors, its text and commentary on Josue 5:15 are not idolatrous because the Latin word adorans is correctly translated to mean adoring and thus not worshipping:

Original Douay-Rheims: “Josue fell flat on the ground. And adoring, he said: What speaketh my Lord to his servant?” (Jos. 5:15)

The following is a commentary from the Douay-Rheims Bible on Josue 5:15 regarding the use of the word “adoring”:

Douay-Rheims Commentary on Jos. 5: “Ver. 15. Adoring. Josue, knowing that the person which appeared was an angel and not God nor a man, neither adored him with godly honor, for that had been idolatry, nor with civil, for that pertaineth to worldly and temporal excellency and is not competent to sacred things, especially to immortal and glorious spirits; and therefore the honor he did to this angel was religious honor infinitely inferior to divine, and yet much greater than civil.”

However, the Septuagint, as well as the Masoretic, does not contain the word “adore”:

Septuagint: “And Joshua fell on his face upon the earth, and said to him: My lord, what commandest thou thy servant?” (Jos. 5:15)

Masoretic: “And he said: ‘Nay, but I am captain of the host of the Lord; I am now come.’ And Joshua fell on his face to the earth, and bowed down, and said unto him: ‘What saith my lord unto his servant?’ “

Challoner’s idolatrous translation of Genesis 27:29 has men worshipping men

The Challoner Bible’s English mistranslation of the Latin word adorate to mean worship in Genesis 27:29 is idolatrous because it has God condoning worship given to a creature, in this case Jacob:

Clementine Vulgate: “Et serviant tibi populi et adorent te tribus...” (Gen. 27:29)

Challoner translation: “And let peoples serve thee [Jacob], and tribes worship thee...” (Gen. 27:29)

To not be idolatrous, the translation of the Clementine Vulgate should say “and tribes adore thee.”

However, the Septuagint, as well as the Masoretic, uses the words “bow down”:

Septuagint: “And let nations serve thee, and princes bow down to thee...”

Masoretic: “Let peoples serve thee, and nations bow down to thee...”

What follows are other idolatrous verses in the Challoner Bible that have God condoning the worship of angels or human beings:

(Gen. 19:1) (Gen. 27:29) (Gen. 37:9) (Gen. 37:1) (Gen. 50:18) (Ex. 18:7) (Num. 22:31) (Jos. 5:15) (Ruth 2:10) (1 Ki. 24:9) (2 Ki. 9:6) (2 Ki. 14:4) (2 Ki. 24:21) (3 Ki. 1:16, 23, 31, 53) (4 Ki. 2:15) (4 Ki. 4:37) (1 Par. 29:20) (2 Par. 24:17) (Tob. 13:11-14) (Est. 3:2, 5) (Est. 8:17) (Est. 13:12) (Est. 16:11) (Isa. 49:23) (Isa. 60:14) (Dan. 2:46)

Challoner’s idolatrous translation allows men to worship Mary and saints

Challoner’s idolatrous translation of the Latin word adorate to mean worship when it should mean adore or honor or reverence is made even worse by his commentary on Josue 5:15:

Challoner Commentary on Jos. 5: “Ver. 15.

Worshipping. Not with divine honour, but with a religious veneration of an inferior kind, suitable to the dignity of his person.”

Hence, in order to defend his heretical translation, Challoner gives an illogical and idolatrous definition to the word “worship” to mean that it can also be directed to creatures and thus not only to God. The natural law tells all men that worship is directed only to the highest being or to what one believes is the highest being or beings, as testified to in the pagan religions in which they worship a false god or gods but not beings that they believe are not supreme.

Challoner’s idolatrous text and lying commentary, and others like them, went uncondemned and thus opened the door for the idolatry of worshipping the Blessed Virgin Mary and saints, which some nominal Catholics do by worshipping Mary in their hearts (or at least by their words) instead of worshipping God only.

This is not only a supreme offense against God but also a most grievous offense against Mary and the saints because they would never conceive of being worshipped since they know very well that only God is to be worshipped. Those who worship Mary or a saint turn Mary or that saint into Lucifer, who wanted to be equal to or even above God. In fact, there are some sects that have gone so far as to teach that Mary is the fourth person of the Holy Trinity.

Even so-called Catholics who say that they worship Mary but mean a lesser worship than the worship given to God are guilty for scandalizing the Catholic faith and thus the Catholic Church in the eyes of others who know very well what the word worship means and thus believe that Catholics actually do worship Mary on an equal plane with God. And they also show themselves to be hypocrites and liars for trying to explain away the real meaning of the word worship to justify their false devotion to Mary and the saints. In essence (in their hearts or in their words) they have taken the word worship, which only applies to God, and applied it to others.

Although the Catholic Church teaches that the Blessed Virgin Mary is the most adored, venerated, and honored of all creatures, this is a lesser adoration, veneration, and honor than is given to God and thus is not worship. The Catholic Church correctly lists three kinds of religious adoration, veneration, and honor: 1) that which is given to God, which is called latria; 2) that which is given to the saints, which is called dulia; and 3) that which is given to Mary, which is called hyper-dulia. Even though the 1917 Code of Canon Law is invalid and heretical, it teaches the truth in this regard:

Invalid and heretical 1917 Code of Canon Law:
“Canon 1255. To the blessed Trinity and to each of the three Persons, and to Christ our Lord also under the sacramental species, is due the cult of latria; to the blessed Virgin Mary, the cult of hyperdulia; to the other saints reigning with Christ in heaven, the cult of dulia.”

When the worship of Mary and saints in hearts or words began

From the information I have, the idolatry of using the word “worship” instead of adore, venerate, or honor for creatures began in the 18th century with the Challoner Bible, the most influential English Bible used by Catholics, which was published between 1749 and 1752. To my knowledge, it was the first English Bible to mistranslate the Latin word adorate (which it did at least thirty times) to mean worship when applied to creatures when it should have used adore, venerate, reverence, or honor.<sup>3003</sup> Whereas, the original Douay-Rheims Bible, of which the New Testament was completed at Rheims in 1582 and the Old Testament was completed at Douay in 1609, correctly used the word “adore” instead of worship in these instances.

Following the lead of the Challoner Bible, other Bibles mistranslated adorate to mean worship when directed to creatures, such as the Haydock Bible (1859) and the Confraternity Bible (1961). However, more recent Bibles correctly translate adorate to mean adore or venerate, such as the New American Bible (1995).

The words “divine” and “sacred” can be used for God or for godly or holy things

Use of the word “divine” for God and creatures

The word “divine” has several meanings:

<sup>3003</sup> See RJMI book Clementine Vulgate’s Heresies and Other Errors: Heretical or Otherwise Erroneous Texts Not Based on the Clementine Vulgate: The idolatry of worshipping angels and men.

Webster’s Unabridged Dictionary, 1956: “di-vine: 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of God, or any god, goddess, or deity; as, a divine being; a divine nature. 2. Appropriated to God or celebrating his praise; as, divine songs; divine worship. 3. Godlike; heavenly; excellent in the highest degree; extraordinary. A divine sentence is in the lips of the king. —Prov. xvi. 10. 5. Relating to divinity or theology. 6. Divining; augural. [Obs.]

Webster’s Unabridged Dictionary, 1956: “di-vine, n: 1. A man skilled in divinity; a theologian; as, a great divine. 2. A minister of the gospel; a clergyman.”

When the word divine is used for God, it means God himself. Hence the words “divine Father” mean “God the Father.” When the word divine is used for creatures, it means godly. Hence the words “divine Peter” mean “godly Peter” or “Peter the godly.” If a creature is very godly, he can be called “most divine” (most like God, but not God).

For example, St. Hippolytus called the apostle St. John “John the Divine”:

St. Hippolytus, The Antichrist, 3rd century: “XXI. ...His first advent had John the Baptist as its forerunner; and his second, in which he is to come in glory, will exhibit Enoch, and Elias, and John the Divine.”

St. Cyril of Alexandria and Pope St. Leo the Great called St. Peter “divine”:

St. Cyril of Alexandria, 5th Century, *Commentary on Isaia*s: “When he wisely and blamelessly confessed his faith to Jesus saying, ‘You are Christ, Son of the living God,’ Jesus said to divine Peter: ‘You are Peter and upon this rock I will build my Church.’ “

Pope St. Leo the Great, 5th Century, On the Transfiguration: “The divine Peter, by the revelation of the Heavenly Father, overcoming corporeal things, and transcending things human, beheld the Son of the Living God, and confessed the glory of the Deity.”

Theodoret, quoted by Apostate Antipope Benedict XIV, calls the apostles St. John and St. Peter “divine”:

Apostate Antipope Benedict XIV, On Heroic Virtue, 18th century: “Theodoret, on the words of the Apostle: ‘To one indeed, by the Spirit is given the word of wisdom,’ thus speaks ‘He calls the word of wisdom not eloquence, but true doctrine, of which the divine Apostle had received the grace, and the divine John the Evangelist, and the divine Peter, chief of the Apostles, and blessed Stephen, the first martyr. For these men who were fisherman, earning their bread by manual labour, and utterly unlearned, could not have preached and written, and, with the greatest effort, accomplished what they said and wrote, unless they had received true wisdom from the Divine Spirit.’ “

Theodoret of Cyrus, The Unconfounded, 5th century: “Orth.—But it was after the Passion and the Resurrection that the divine Apostle wrote the Epistle to Timothy wherein he speaks of the Saviour Christ as man... And after the Passion and the Resurrection the divine Peter, in his address to the Jews, called him man."

St. Athanasius called the Blessed Virgin Mary and St. Paul "divine":

St. Athanasius, 4th Century, Commentary on Luke I:

Latin: "Quanti aestimanda est gloria sanctae Virginis ac divinae Mariae, quae Verbi mater secundum carnis ortum est et vocatur..."

English: "What would be the glory of the holy virgin and divine Mary, in that she became and is called the Mother of the Word."

St. Athanasius, 4th Century, Discourse 4 Against the Arians: "14. And this the divine Apostle knows, when he writes to the Corinthians, 'Be not straitened in us, but be yourselves dilated, O Corinthians' for he advises identical persons to change from straitness to dilatation."

And the Anglicans refer to their theologians as "divines," in this case meaning "teacher of divine things":

Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, 1956: "di-vine, n. 1. A man skilled in divinity; a theologian; as, a great divine. 2. A minister of the gospel; a clergyman."

Divine can also mean the gift of foretelling the future or revealing some other secret or hidden thing:

Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, 1956: "di-vine,...5. Divining; augural. [Obs.]"

However, when the word "divine" is used for creatures, it is idolatry when the word means God or a god, such as when a pagan Roman Emperor who believed he was a god was called divine.

Certain holy things are also called divine (godly). For example, the Bible refers to the covenant, God's faithful children, incense offered to God, and religious services as "divine":

"My son, let not evil counsel, who hath forsaken the discipline of youth and hath forgotten the divine covenant, take hold of thee." (Prv. 2:17-Septuagint)

"By a voice he saith: Hear me, ye divine offspring, and bud forth as the rose planted by the brooks of waters." (Eccus. 39:17 – Septuagint)

"He poured out at the foot of the altar a divine odour to the most high Prince." (Eccus. 50:17)

"The former indeed had also justifications of divine service and a worldly sanctuary." (Heb. 9:1)

Hence the Catholic Church refers to the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass as the "divine liturgy":

Pope St. Leo the Great, Sermon 45, 5th century: "So that the divine liturgy of the Paschal Mysteries might be performed with worthy solemnity, the two things in which the teaching of all the commandments concurs must be more earnestly sought, in which each separate believer is made both the sacrifice to God and his temple."

Use of the word "sacred" for God and creatures

The word "sacred" has several meanings:

Merriam-Webster Dictionary: "sacred. 1a: dedicated or set apart for the service or worship of a deity, a tree sacred to the gods; b: devoted exclusively to one service or use (as of a person or purpose) a fund sacred to charity. 2a: worthy of religious veneration: holy; b: entitled to reverence and respect. 3: of or relating to religion: not secular or profane: sacred music... 5a: unassailable, inviolable; b: highly valued and important: a sacred responsibility."

When the words "sacred" or "most sacred" are used for God, they mean the holiest of all things, as only God is. When the word "sacred" is used for creatures, it means holy. And when the phrase "most sacred" is used for creatures, it means the holiest a creature could be.

For example, the Council of Chalcedon referred to Pope St. Leo the Great, Anatolius the archbishop, and other bishops as "most sacred":

Council of Chalcedon, 451, First Session, Proceedings: "3. There also assembled the holy and ecumenical council convoked in the city of Chalcedon by divine decree, that is: Paschasinus and Lucentius the most devout bishops and Boniface the most devout presbyter, representing the most sacred and God-beloved Archbishop Leo of Senior Rome, Anatolius the most sacred archbishop of the renowned city of Constantinople New Rome, Dioscorus the most God-beloved archbishop of the great city of Alexandria, and the other most sacred and devout bishops..."

Some holy objects are also referred to as sacred; such as vestments, the Temple, a church, odors, feast days, and relics:

"And I have put wisdom in the heart of every skillful man, that they may make all things which I have commanded thee..., the holy vestments in the ministry for Aaron the priest, and for his sons, that they may execute their office about the sacred things." (Ex. 31:6, 10)

"They made also the plate of sacred veneration of the purest gold, and they wrote on it with the engraving of a lapidary, The Holy of the Lord..." (Ex. 39:29)

"But if he have no uncles by the father, the inheritance shall be given to them that are the next akin. And this shall be to the children of Israel sacred by a perpetual law, as the Lord hath commanded Moses." (Num. 27:11)

"And Joshua, the son of Nun, went in to the priests and spoke to them, saying, And let seven priests having seven sacred trumpets proceed thus before the Lord, and let them sound loudly; and let the ark of the covenant of the Lord follow.” (Jos. 6:6-7 – Septuagint)

“Thus they that persecuted the cause for the city, and for the people, and the sacred vessels, did soon suffer unjust punishment.” (2 Mac. 4:48)

“And when the Lord shall have brought thee into the land...that floweth with milk and honey, thou shalt celebrate this manner of sacred rites in this month.” (Ex. 13:5)

First Council of Nicea, 325: “We further proclaim to you the good news of the agreement concerning the holy Easter, that this particular also has through your prayers been rightly settled; so that all our brethren in the East who formerly followed the custom of the Jews are henceforth to celebrate the said most sacred feast of Easter at the same time with the Romans and yourselves and all those who have observed Easter from the beginning.”

However, it is not prudent nowadays to use the words “adore,” “divine,” or “sacred” for creatures

Because in these days almost all men believe that the words “adore,” “sacred,” and “divine” only apply to God, it is not prudent for a Catholic to use these words in relation to angels or humans because of the misunderstanding and thus scandal it would cause. For example, it is not prudent to say “divine Mary” or “we adore Mary” or “sacred Mary” because most people would believe it means that Mary is God and not simply that Mary is godly or venerated as a creature or holy.

However, the words “adore” and “sacred” can be used in relation to certain objects that redound to God’s glory, such as sacred vestments, sacred altars, and the divine liturgy.

Another example of a word that has changed its meaning over time is the word “gay.” Up until recently, the word “gay” meant happy:

Webster’s Unabridged Dictionary, 1956: “gay, a: 1. Merry, airy; jovial; sportive; frolicsome. It denotes more life and animation than cheerful. Belinda smiled, and all the world was gay. 2. Fine; showy; as, a gay dress. 3. Inflamed or merry with liquor; intoxicated; dissipated. [Colloq.]. Syn. — Merry, lively, blithe, sprightly, sportive, hilarious.”

However, for most people in these days, the word “gay” means a homosexual:

Google Dictionary: “Gay: 1. (of a person) homosexual (used especially of a man)—‘the city’s gay and lesbian people.’ 2. relating to or used by homosexuals—‘a gay bar.’ 3. DATED: lighthearted and carefree—‘Nan had a gay disposition and a very pretty face.’ “

Hence it is not prudent to say that “Moses was gay,” meaning happy, because most people would believe it means homosexual and thus that Moses was a homosexual.

To bow down before a person is an act of obeisance

To bow down before a person is an act of obeisance (of submission) to that person, such as to a father or to a secular or religious ruler. Bowing down before someone can be accompanied by worship or adoration or neither.

Bowing is accompanied by adoration when the person bowing adores (venerates) the person he bows before. For example,

Abigail bowed before David: “When Abigail saw David, she made haste and lighted off the ass and fell before David, on her face, and adored upon the ground.” (1 Ki. 15:23)

Joab bowed before David: “And Joab, falling down to the ground upon his face, adored and blessed the king; and Joab said: This day thy servant hath understood that I have found grace in thy sight, my lord, O king; for thou hast fulfilled the request of thy servant.” (2 Ki. 14:22)

The Wise Men bowed before the infant Jesus: “And entering into the house, they [the Wise Men] found the child with Mary his mother, and falling down they adored him...” (Mt. 2:11)

Bowing is accompanied by worship when the person bowing worships the being or beings he bows before. For example,

Esdras and the people bowed before God: “And Esdras blessed the Lord the great God, and all the people answered, Amen, amen, lifting up their hands; and they bowed down and worshipped God with their faces to the ground.” (2 Esd. 8:6)

And pagans bow down before and worship false gods, idols, or devils.

Bowing is accompanied by neither adoration nor worship when the person bowing does not venerate the person he bows before and thus bows only as an act of obeisance. For example,

Abraham bowed before the people of Heth: “Abraham rose up, and bowed down to the people of the land, to wit the children of Heth...” (Gen. 23:7)

Jacob bowed before Esau: “And he [Jacob] went forward and bowed down with his face to the ground seven times until his brother [Esau] came near.” (Gen. 33:3)

Judith bowed before Holofernes: “And Judith seeing Holofernes sitting under a canopy, which was woven of purple and gold, with emeralds and precious stones, after she had looked on his face bowed down to him, prostrating herself to the ground. And the servants of Holofernes lifted her up by the command of their master.” (Judi. 10:19-20)

At times some of God’s chosen people bowed down before an angel thinking him to be God and were corrected by the angel who told them that he is not God but to worship God only. For example, on two occasions the apostle St. John bowed before an angel thinking the angel to be God:

“And I fell down before his feet to worship him. And he saith to me: See thou do it not: I am thy fellow servant, and of thy brethren, who have the testimony of Jesus. Worship God.” (Apoc. 19:10)

“And I, John, who have heard and seen these things. And after I had heard and seen, I fell down to worship before the feet of the angel who shewed me these things. And he said to me: See thou do it not: for I am thy fellow servant and of thy brethren the prophets and of them that keep the words of the prophecy of this book. Worship God.” (Apoc. 22:8-9)

Catholic Commentary on Apoc. 10:10: “I fell down before his feet: St. Augustine (lib. 20, contra Faust, c. 21) teaches that this angel appeared in so glorious a manner that St. John took him to be God and therefore would have given him divine honour had not the angel stopped him by telling him he was but his fellow servant.”

At other times God’s chosen people were allowed to bow down before an angel because they knew he was not God and thus gave him a lesser adoration, veneration, honor, or obeisance than that which is given to God. For example, Tobias and his son were allowed to bow down before St. Raphael the Archangel because they knew he was not God and thus gave him a lesser veneration and obeisance than that which is given to God:

“For I am the angel Raphael, one of the seven, who stand before the Lord. And when they had heard these things, they were troubled, and being seized with fear they fell upon the ground on their face. And the angel said to them: Peace be to you, fear not.” (Tob. 12:15-17)

Another example is when Josue was allowed to bow down before an angel (St. Michael the Archangel) and adore him because Josue knew he was an angel and thus gave him a lesser adoration and obeisance than that which is given to God.<sup>3004</sup> And as was already shown in this section, God allows and at times commands his chosen people to bow down before certain men as an act of obeisance.

And, lastly, one can adore, venerate, or honor someone while not being in submission to them, such as when a pope adores, venerates, or honors a lesser subject.

A HISTORICAL AND CHRONOLOGICAL INDEX TO THE BIBLE

Old Testament

The Chronology followed here is according to the opinions of Fathers and Chronologers. Note. —
A.M. signify, Anno Mundi: that is, In the Year of the World.

| A.M. | Patriarchs  | Sacred History  |
|------|---|---|
| 1    | Adam, the first man, of whom all mankind is propagated. | Creation of heaven and earth, and all things therein, in six days. Gen. 1.Man last created was made Lord of all living creatures of this lower world, and placed in Paradise. Gen. 2.For transgressing God's commandment, Adam and Eve were cast out of Paradise. But by God's grace repenting had promise of a Redeemer. Gen. 3.   |
| 2    |   | Cain the first born became a husbandman, Abel next born, a shepherd. Gen. 4.  |
| 130  | Seth born.  | God respecting Abel's sacrifice, and not Cain's, Cain killed Abel. Gen. 4.  |
| 235  | Enos born.  | Cain went forth from the face of our Lord; began a new city opposite to the city of God. Gen. 4:16.   |
| 325  | Cainan  | His generations in the right line to Lamech, are those without notice of the time when they were born or died: Enoch, Irad, Maviel, Mathusael, Lamech. Gen. 4:17.   |
| 395  | Malaleel  | Some declining from God, joining in marriage with Cain's race, begot those monstrous men, huge of stature, most wicked and cruel, called giants. Gen. 4:4.  |
| 460  | Jared   |   |
| 622  | Enoch   | Seth's children and other faithful were called the sons of God, to distinguish the true Church from the wicked city begun by Cain. Gen. 6.  |
| 687  | Mathusala   |   |
| 874  | Lamech  | In the days of Enos began public prayers by many assembling together (besides sacrifice, which was before). Gen. 4:26.Enoch a prophet pleased God in all his ways. None born in the earth like to Enoch. Eccus. 49:16.Adam died at the age of 930 years. Gen. 5:5. To whom Seth succeeded chief patriarch. And so in the rest.Enoch in the year of his age 365, was seen no more: because God took him. Gen. 5:24. Enoch was translated that he should not see death. Heb. 9:5.  |
| 1056 | Noe born  | Seth died in the year of his age, 912.Enos died, aged 905.Cainan died, aged 980.Malaleel died, aged 895,Jared died, aged 962.Noe, the preacher of justice, forewarned all men, that except they repented, God would destroy them with a flood.  |
| 1556 | Sem born, and the next                                  | Noe, by God's commandment, built an ark (or ship), wherein himself, and his family, with other living creatures, were preserved from drowning.  |
| 1651 | two years   | Lamech died (before his father) in the year of his age 777.Mathusala died, aged 909, immediately before the flood, as seemeth most probable.The same year of the world 1656, the 17th day of the second month, Noe with his three sons, his wife and their wives, in all eight persons, and seven pair of every kind of clean living creatures, and two pair of unclean, entered into the ark. And presently it rained forty days and forty nights together. All living creatures on the earth out of the ark were drowned. Gen. 7.   |
| 1656 | Cham  |   |
| 1656 | Japhet  | All Cain's race, with other wicked infidels, were utterly destroyed by the flood. Gen. 7.   |
| 1658 | Arphaxad born, the son of Sem                           | The whole earth being covered with water, Noe with his family, and other living creatures, remained in the ark twelve months and ten days; then coming forth, built an altar and offered sacrifice, which God accepting blessed them for new generation. Gen. 8:9. Nemrod the son of Chus, and nephew to Cham, about threescore years after the flood, by force and subtilty drawing many followers, began a new sect of infidels. And afterwards was the principal author of building the tower of Babel. Where the tongues of the builders were confounded, and so they were separated into many nations, about 140 years after the flood. Gen. 11:4, &c. |

|------|-------------------|--|
|      |                   | After Nemrod, his son Belus reigned in Babylon, about the year of the world 1871, which was 315 years after the flood.   |
| 1693 | Sale              |  |
| 1723 | Heber             | Heber consented not to the building of Babel. And therefore his family kept still their former language, which thenceforth, for distinction sake, was called the Hebrew tongue. He lived to see Abraham's father. And Noe, Sem, Arphaxad, Phaleg, and other godly men, lived some part of Abraham's time, who were never corrupted in faith nor religion.                                      |
| 1757 | Phaleg            |  |
| 1787 | Reu               |  |
| 1819 | Sarug             |  |
| 1849 | Nachor            | By God's commandment, Abraham, at the age of 75 years, having been much persecuted for religion, went forth of his country Chaldea. Whereupon his father Thare went as far as Haran, in the confines of Mesopotamia: and Lot went further with him into Chanaan: which country God then promised to give him, and to multiply his seed, and therein to bless all nations. Gen. 11:31, 12:1, 7. |
| 1878 | Thare             |  |
| 2008 | Abraham           |  |
| 2083 | born.             | By occasion of a famine in Chanaan, Abraham went into Egypt with his wife and with Lot. Gen. 12:10.  |
| 2084 |                   | They returned into Chanaan, became very rich; and God renewed his great promises to Abraham. Gen. 13.  |
| 2085 |                   | Lot (among others) being taken captive, Abraham with three hundred and eighteen men rescued them all, whereupon Melchisedech offered sacrifice in bread and wine: blessed Abraham, and received tithes of him. Gen. 14.  |
| 2092 |                   |  |
| 2093 |                   | Sarai, long barren, persuaded Abraham to take her handmaid Agar to wife. Agar conceived and brought forth a son, who was named Ismael. Gen. 16.  |
| 2107 |                   | Circumcision was instituted that Abraham, and his sons, and all the men of his family, might be distinguished from others. Gen. 17.  |
| 2108 |                   |  |
| 2135 |                   | Sodom and Gomorrha with other cities were burnt with brimstone. From whence Lot was delivered by angels. Gen. 19.  |
| 2148 | Isaac born.       | Sarai conceived and bore a son called Isaac. Gen. 21.  |
|      |                   | Agar and Ismael persecuting Isaac (which St. Paul calleth persecution. Gal. iv.) was cast out of Abraham's house together with his mother. Gen. 21:29. And nevertheless had twelve sons, all dukes, before Isaac had any issue, which St. Paul noteth. 1 Cor. 15:46. First, that which is natural, afterwards that which is spiritual.  |
| 2150 |                   | Abraham by God's commandment was ready to offer Isaac in sacrifice, but was stayed by an angel. And former promises were renewed. Gen. 22.   |
| 2168 | Jacob & Esau born | Isaac married Rebecca the daughter of Bathuel, son of Nachor, Abraham's brother. Gen. 24.  |
| 2183 |                   | After the death of Sarai, Abraham married Cetura, by whom he had six sons, and Esau and Jacob are born of Isaac and Rebecca. (Gen. 25) Esau also had much issue, and prospered in the world. But his progeny, as also Ismael's, and all Abraham's offspring by his last wife Cetura, were excluded from the promised inheritance and other blessings. Gen. 25.                                 |
|      |                   | Abraham died at the age of 175 years. Gen. 25.   |

Not long after they were both put in prison and suffered martyrdom.

St. John about this time came to live in Asia and governed all those churches for many years.

St John was put into a caldron of boiling oil at Rome, under Domitian, and banished to the Island of Patmos where he had those wonderful visions of his Apocalypse.

96 He returns to Ephesus, under the emperor Nerva.

He writes his gospel.

He dies at Ephesus, under Trajan, about the year 100.
